HOW TO HOLD THE BOYS

William Shaw of Boston Gives Good Advice to the Christian Endeavorers In National Convention at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, July 8.—After the business sessions of Saturday and the evangelist and other mass meetings of yesterday, the regular programs of the twentieth interantional convention of the Christian Endeavor were begun today. Several of the largest churches in the central part of the city were used in addition to the Odeon hall and the three large auditoriums heretofore used. Two quiet hour meetings were held from 8 to 9 a. m. by Floyd W. Tomkins, of Philadelphia, and Cornelius Worlfkin, of Brooklyn.

G. Campbell Morgan, of Baltimore, conducted a meeting on Bible teaching and J. F. Carson, of Brooklyn, one on "The Holy Spirit." Miss Margaret Koch, of Waterville, Maine, conducted a conference on "Bodily and Vocal Development."

At Auditorium Endeavor, President Clark presiding, and H. C. Lincoln, of Philadelphia ,as director of music, the "Twentieth Century Home" was the topic with addresses by Clarence J. Harris ,Atlanta; Edwin Forest Hallenbeck, Albany; Ira Landrith, Nashville; J. E. Pounds, Cleveland; W. G. Marsh, Adelaide, Australia, and Robert Johnson, London, Ont.

At the First English Lutheran church, Secretary Willis Baer, presiding, and Percy S. Foster, as musical director, there were many addresses on the "School of Methods For the Junior Christian Endeavor" by Miss Nellie F. Whitefield, Kildare, O. T.; Mrs. Frances E. Clark, Boston, Mass.; Miss Frances Le Baron, Chicago; A. J. Turkle, Allegheny, Pa.; Miss Clara L. Boyer, Dayton; Miss Kate H. Haus, St. Louis; Mrs. M. L. Hageman, Muncie, Ind.; Miss Ella M. Brown, Eau Claire, Wis.; Field Secretary C. E. Eberman, Boston; Miss Elizabeth M. Olney, Providence; Jenks B. Robinson, Philadelphia; Treasurer William Shaw, Boston; George W. Pollock, Buchanan, W. Va.; George B. Graft, Boston.

At Odeon hall the new secretary, Clarence Eberman, presided and addresses were made by local, district and state union officials.

The noonday evangelical services were conducted by Dr. C. L. Work.

William Shaw, of Boston, spoke of "How to Hold the Boy." He said in part: "Get within reach of him. Win his friendship in any legitimate way. Don't be forever saying 'don't.' Do give him something to do. Remember that boys are hero worshippers, that they admire masterful men and women, that letting them have their own way does not win them, that a firm hand a warm heart are absolutely necessary. Don't be goody, goody. Don't have the hero of all your illustrations a beautiful, sweet, little girl. Give the boy a chance to win even if he is homely and rough and a trifle unconventional. Don't be afraid of a little noise and restlessness. It is a sign of life. Direct it and use it rather than simply try to suppress it. Don't always blame the boy for your lack of ability to interest him. Don't let him grow up with the idea that only women are interested in religious work. If the junior superintendent is a lady, get a man before the society once in a while, but be sure he is a man. If after you have done your best you still find that the boys will not come with the little girls, then organize a Boys' Junior society, with athletic and other features as well as prayer meeting and Bible work. Do something, anything, everything, but hold the boys, for they are the coming men."

WILL SELL

Conemaugh Steel Company Will Absorb the Cambria Outfit.

Philadelphia, July 8.—The stockholders of the Cambria Steel company, at a meeting today, decided by a unanimous vote to sell their property and assets to the recently formed Conemaugh Steel company. There were 233,894 shares voted and Vice President J. Lowber Welsh said after the meeting that it was unusual in a deal of such magnitude that the vote should be so large. He further stated that the result of today's meeting assures the success of the merger of Pennsylvania steel companies outside the United States Steel corporation, although there will be another meeting on Aug. 15 to ratify the action of today's meeting.

COLEBROOK SCORCHED.

New Hampshire City Damaged $150,000.

Colebrook, N. H., July 8.—A fire which threatened to do damage to the business part of the town broke out here early today. The blaze started near the main street and spread rapidly to some of the principal stores and buildings. Eighteen buildings, nearly all business places, were burned. The loss is estimated at $150,000.

KILBOURNE

Will Be Named For Governorship of Ohio.

Democrats Are Gathering at Columbus.

Columbus, Ohio, July 8.—Delegates and visitors are assembling here today for the Democratic state convention, which does all of its preliminary work tomorrow. They are greatly disappointed because John R. McLean, of Cincinnati, and Mayor Tom L. Johnson, of Cleveland, who are most prominently mentioned for the United States senatorship, will not be here. Each of them is numerously represented, however, from the other eighty-six counties as well as from Hamilton and Cuyahoga counties, but the delegates evidently wanted to see these two leaders more than all the others. McLean was their standard-bearer two years ago for governor, and many wanted him for permanent chairman of this convention.

It is understood that Hon. Charles W. Baker, who presided at the last Democratic Ohio convention, will be permanent chairman. He is a close friend of McLean and chairman of the Hamilton county delegation.

Johnson would have been here at the head of the Cuyahoga delegation but for the death of his brother lest week in New York. Johnson represents what is called the "radical reform" element among platform makers, and McLean represents the conservative element. The indications today were that the conservative element would control the committee on resolutions and adopt what is known as the Cincinnati platform rather than the Cleveland platform. The platforms are so designated because it is known that two platforms have already been constructed, one in Cincinnati and the other in Cleveland, and a draft of the one was brought here today by Temporary Chairman Salen and others from Cleveland, and of the other by Judson Harmon Harlan, of Cleveland, and others from Cincinnati. The former radically changes the system of taxation and puts the burden of taxation upon the corporations, especially on railroads, and on this issue is the principal contention.

In view of the absence of Mayor Johnson, it is thought that there will not be much contest over the platform, and there will be no contests for nominations except for minor places on the state ticket, as all concede that Col. James Kilbourne, of Columbus, will be nominated for governor, and that a conference of his friends tomorrow will select the man for lieutenant governor and that "no slate" for other places will be considered; also, that the free for all fights for judge and clerk of the supreme court, attorney general, state treasurer and member of the board of public works will protract the convention to a late hour on Wednesday evening.

MORGAN TAKES A HAND

He Promptly Arranges for a Settlement of the Wage Troubles Between the Steel Workers and the Corporations.

New York, July 8.—The World says: A plan has been agreed upon which will settle the great steel strike within the next five days. As matters stand, all that remains to be done is to hold a final meeting to formally ratify the plan and announce its terms. The program now is to hold that meeting and make that announcement on Wednesday or Thursday of this week in New York or Pittsburg.

The main points at issue have been settled and there will be no great steel strike such as was contemplated a week ago. It may be stated that this early settlement is the direct result of J. P. Morgan's efforts. If the conference which is to formally end the strike is held here, it will be at the office of Mr. Morgan; if in Pittsburg, at the office of the American Tinplate company. Representatives of the general board of the United States Steel corporation, all the subsidiary companies whose interests are affected, as well as the leaders of the various labor bodies in the Amalgamated association, were notified on Sunday night of the coming conference, and were invited to send representatives.

Charles M. Schwab, president United States Steel corporation, who is at Manhattan Beach, declines to discuss the strike. He was asked:

"Will you see Mr. Morgan tomorrow to discuss the terms for ending the strike?"

"Oh, I don't know about that; I see Mr. Morgan every day and we discuss many things."

LENTZ-TOMPKINS CASE

The Testimony in the Test Case Involving Congressional Seat From Ohio Has Been Sent to Printer.

Washington, July 8.—Alex. McDowell, clerk of the house of representatives today opened and sent to the public printer the testimony in the test case of John J. Lentz vs. Emmett Tompkins, involving the congressional seat from the Twelfth Ohio district. The papers consisted of Lentz's charges and the testimony taken in support of them and Tompkins' answer. Tompkins' majority was only eighteen and Lentz alleges that it was secured by the use of money. Tompkins makes denial of all the charges but offers no testimony.

This is the last contest case to be opened by the clerk. There are seven of them. One involves the contest from the Seventh South Carolina district over the seat which was accorded to Dr. Stokes, who has since died. According to precedents in the house the contest will be prosecuted regardless of Stokes' death. In four cases in which notice of contest was given, the contestants failed to file their papers.

NO CHANGES

Expected in British House of Commons Leadership at Present.

New York, July 8.—Rumors respecting the retirement of Lord Salisbury have died out, says the Tribune's London correspondent, and it is generally assumed that while he is weary of public life, he will consent to remain prime minister until the coronation. Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain are on excellent terms and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach is holding his ground with tenacity of purpose.

No immediate changes of leadership in the commons are considered probable by those watching closely the course of public events.

So far nothing is known as to Lord Rosebery's intentions respecting the invitation to preside at the Asquith dinner. Probably no decision will be arrived at until after tomorrow's meeting at the Reform club. One result of the stand which Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman has made against the imperialists has been to bring him into closer touch with Sir William Vernon-Harcourt and John Morley, and the possibility of their being again brought to take active part in the councils of the party is generally canvassed.

SHOULD BE SO

American Prisoners Must Remain Prisoners Till Close of War.

New York, July 8.—Americans who fight in the Boer armies and are or have been made prisoners by the British, will have to endure their captivity until the close of the South African war, says the Herald's Washington correspondent. Great Britain has declined to comply with the request of this government to release an American now confined in the island of Ceylon, and this refusal probably will prove a bar to further representations by the state department in behalf of Americans captured as belligerents in South Africa.

SHAFFER IS ANGRY

Says Men Discharged at Wellsville Must Be Reinstated.

General Strike Will Be Ordered If This Is Not Done.

President Says Manufacturers Are Working Old Game.

Pittsburg, July 8.—The peremptory dismissal on Saturday of twelve members of the Amlagmated association at the Wellsville plant of the American Sheet Steel company may seriously affect the expected settlement this week of the iron and steel strike. When seen this morning, President Shaffer, of the Amalgamated association, was very much exercised over the turn affairs had taken. 'I cannot say when or where the conference will take place," said he. "But one thing is certain, there will be no conference until the men discharged at Wellsville are reinstated. These men come to us. They violated no law of the land and we shall protect them. If they are not reinstated and the conference postponed, the general strike will come. This is a repetition of what the sheet manufacturers did last year. They signed the scale for Saltsburg and Old Meadows and then stole these mills from us. The men at Wellsville have been organized for months. I sent word for them not to come out, as I wanted a peaceable settlement. I do not blame the chief officials. As usual the troubles come from some middleman, who cannot realize that he may be undoing the conservative work of thoughtful men on both sides, or that his action may involve the commercial world."

Although as yet no word has been received officially by the officers of the Amalgamated association from the American Sheet Steel company and the American Steel Hoop company requesting that the wage conference be reopened, it is expected that such a note will be received during the day. If the Wellsville matter can be settled, the conference will then, it is believed, be quickly arranged, an agreement reached and the strike declared off by the end of the week. There was a resumption of work in many iron and steel mills today. The mills have been idle for two weeks for repairs. It is supposed that fully 12,000 men returned to work today.

The following concerns signed the Amalgamated scale today:

Standard Chain company, Columbus, Ohio; Niles Iron and Sheet company, Niles, Ohio; Lake Erie Iron company, Cleveland; Empire Rolling Mill company, Empire, Ohio, and the Pittsburg Forge and Iron company, of this city.

All the independent companies in the Pittsburg district have now signed the scale but A. M. Byers & Co., and their signature is expected as soon as the repairs to the plant are completed.

New York, July 8.—There will be no conference here today to deal with the points of conflict in the sheet steel strike, but there will be a meeting at Pittsburg. The directors of the United States Steel corporation and the companies forming it who are in New York are watching the situation closely, but have taken no direct part in the dispute. One of the directors of the general corporation made this statement to the Associated Press today:

"President Shaffer of the Amalgamated association requested a conference with representatives of the sheet and hoop interests, and our answer was a favorable one. That conference is to be held today at Pittsburg. The outcome is problematical. The statement that there will be a meeting here today with J. Pierpont Morgan in attendance is erroneous. There will be no meeting and, as far as known, Mr. Morgan has taken no part in the matter. We are watching the situation, but have taken no part in the alleged differences. I know nothing of any future meetings here, and don't believe there will be any."

SOME GOLD

Brought Down By Steamer From Lynn Canal.

Seattle, July 8.—The steamer City of Seattle has arrived from the Lynn canal with a Klondike treasure cargo of $600,000 all, save $100,000, consigned by the Canadian Bank of Commerce to the United States assay office in this city. William Waechter, a cattle trader, and a Mr. Lee, a miner, had $50,000 in dust. The Klondike crowd left Dawson June 29. At that time nearly every producing claim in the district was being worked and the government had 500 men employed in construction of roads to the greatest gold-producing streams in the district.

About 1100 people are said to have left the Klondike for Nome and the Koyokuk since the river opened.

JOB FOR SOME ONE.

Assistant Secretary of Navy to Resign in Fall.

New York, July 8.—The Washington correspondent of the Herald is authority for the statement that Frank Hackett will tender his resignation as assistant secretary of the navy in the fall. President McKinley and Secretary Long have not determined upon his successor. Charles H. Allen, the governor of Porto Rico, has been suggested.

AGAIN AHEAD

Second Race Between the Three Yachts.

The Constitution Rapidly Takes Lead.

Bateman's Point, R. I., July 8.—The race today between the Herreshoff yachts Constitution and Columbia and the Crowninshield yacht Independence was signalled to be sailed over a triangular course, ten miles to a leg, starting from five miles east-southeast of the lightship. The wind was then blowing five knots from the south, and increasing in force.

The roll of the ocean which proved fatal to the Independence on Saturday had not subsided today, and the waters on the reefs and rocks of Bateman's Point were white with foam. The weather off shore was comparatively clear. The yachts were slow in getting out of the harbor on account of light breeze. The Constitution came out first with all sails set, in tow of a small steam yacht. She had her large club topsail set, and the big sail was laced at the tack to the top of the mast. Next came the Independence also in tow, with large club topsail set and fitting well, but not laced to the mast as in the case of the Constitution. The Columbia, the last boat out, came down under her own sail, while right behind her was the excursion fleet.

The judges' boat took up her position about five miles from Brenton Reef lightship, a little after 11:30, and at 11:45 the warning signal was fired. At the same time signals were set on the judges' boat for a triangular race, the first leg southwest ten miles, the second east by south, and the third northwest. At this time the wind was light and the yachts could not maneuver very fast.

The preparatory signal was fired at 11:50, and immediately the Independence was headed back towards the stern of the judges' boat. The Columbia was swung after her, and just before the Independence reached the stern of the judges' boat the Columbia had seemingly established an overlap on the start over the Boston boat. Capt. Haff, however, sent the Independence close under the stern of the judges' boat, much to the consternation of those on board the Columbia, which did not have room to tack.

Mr. Morgan was heard to call to those on the Independence to give way and prevent a foul. Capt. Haff, however, refused to budge, apparently believing the Columbia had not established an overlap. Both the yachts swung around the stern of the judge's boat, a few seconds after the gun was fired, the Columbia just missing the after flagstaff.

On getting around, the Columbia succeeded in getting the weather of the Independence and apparently blanketing her and going across some seconds ahead. In the meantime the Constitution, being well out of the fray, had crossed the line ahead of the other two and began leaving them.

EMPEROR'S NEW YACHT

New York Firm of Naval Architects Has the Order For Schooner, Which Will Be Thoroughly American.

New York, July 8.—The report that the German emperor had ordered an American yacht was confirmed today by Mr. Barber, of the firm of Carey, Smith & Barber, naval architects, this city, in an interview with a reporter of the Associated Press.

Mr. Barber said: "We have received orders for plans and specifications of a schooner yacht, 120 feet long on the water line, for the German emperor. The design and other dimensions have been left to our own ideas, and nothing has been said about the cost. We expect to have the plans and specifications ready in about six weeks. Then they will be submitted to the naval attache of the German embassy at Washington, and after his approval tenders will be advertised for in the regular way. Which yacht builders having the construction of the yacht will depend upon whose bid is accepted, but the yacht will be entirely of American design and build. We expect to have the yacht ready for sea about April next.

THE READING TROUBLES

Freight Handlers Hold Firm in Their Demands While the Shop Men and Iron Men Are Out.

Reading, Pa., July 8.—The strike of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad company freight handlers is still on. The company has over 100 cars blocking traffic in its yards here. The strikers have received word from Wayne Junction, near Philadelphia and Newberry Junction, near Williamsport, the only points along the line where the company is in a position to reload its freight, that the men there will refuse to allow that work to be done at either point.

This morning the company began putting green hands to work. Five of the old men remained and the company has about twenty-five men on duty. The company's officials claim that they have a number of freight handlers at work and that they are handling the freight business fairly well, with as little delay as possible. In their grievances addressed to the company, the men have requested that their wages be advanced from 14 to 18 cents an hour. They want a nine-hour day and ask for double time for overtime on Sundays and holidays, and time and a half on other overtime. The engine hostlers who are employed in handling the locomotives in the yards, have addressed a letter to Superintendent Prince, asking for an advance in wages.

The Reading Iron company strike having 2800 men is still unsettled. The 1250 Reading shop hands are still out, not a man having returned today. They are to meet this afternoon to vote on the proposition submitted by Acting President Welsh yesterday.

PERITONITIS

Of Duke Eugene Evidently Caused By a Sword Thrust.

New York, July 8.—According to a Rome dispatch in the World the duke of Aosta, cousin of the king of Italy and heir presumptive to the throne, fought a duel last week with a Russian prince, beleived to be Duke Eugene of Leutchenberg, grandson of Czar Nicholas I. The Russian received a severe thrust through the stomach.

Duke Eugene is known to be suffering from peritonitis, and from this is is concluded that he was the duke of Aosta's antagonist. The duel has excited the widest interest because of the rank of the principals and there is much speculation as to its cause. It is reported that the Russian affronted the king of Italy recently by making in his presence a slighting remark about the queen while on a visit to Naples.

LANDSLIDES

Great Damage in China By Violent Movements of Earth.

Tacoma, July 8.—Canton advices by the steamer Braemer give details of the loss of 300 lives by landslide and flood, occurring at Lung Keng in June. The landslide was caused by a tremendous earthquake which unsettled land and sea. Native accounts state that a great flood of water poured out of the mountains, carrying everything before it. Two hundred houses were swept away and the fields swept bare of crops. Several great landslides occurred, carrying a large portion of Lung Keng into the bay. What appeared like a tidal wave followed, making it impossible for any one who were carried into the water to escape.

TO PUT ON FERRIES

Interstate Traction Company Plans Two For Next Year.

From Oatka Beach to Duluth and West Superior.

Possibility That Another Pavilion May Be Built.

The plans of the Interstate Traction company that operates on Minnesota Point contemplates the outlay of about $30,000 during the coming winter and season following. The company has made improvements to a considerable amount in the way of the improvement of its street car service, beautifying of its grounds, but the officials of the line say that the largest improvements of all will be made previous to and during the next season.

Foremost in the plans of the company is the construction of two ferry boats, one to run between Oatka beach and West Superior and the other between Oatka beach and Duluth. Both boats will cost about $25,000, and plans are already being made by Capt. Kidd, who also drew up the plans for the lake steamer, the Argo, belonging to the Booth Packing company and put in commission this spring. No decision has yet been reached whether the boats will be of steel or wood. President A. W. Hartman of the Interstate Traction company said today that the boats would be of light draught, very speedy and with a capacity of about 500 people. They will be steam propelled and lighted by electricity.

The idea of installing ferry service has practically been forced on the company because of the patronage that it draws from this city and West Superior. Ever since the establishment of the places of amusement at Oatka beach there has been a complaint from the West Superior people of inadequate service between that city and the beach, and there is said to be no remedy for it so long as the ferry business is in the hands of private individuals, and those not connected with the interests of the beach.

The idea of having a ferry service between the beach and Duluth was brought up by the demand of patrons for such a service. There are many people who would enjoy the trip to the beach more if they could go down by car and come back by boat. Considering the cost of the boats and the shortness of the season, the company officials say that they think it will be a long time before they will realize anything on the investment, but it is believed that the boats would only be another factor in making the point a still more attractive place for a summer outing, and that the boat lines will pay in the long run.

Another improvement planned is in connection with the big dancing pavilion at the beach. The pavilion has one of the largest dancing floors available at the head of the lake, but the large crowds of last season and this have demonstrated that more floor space is needed. The Interstate Traction company will, another season, either enlarge the present pavilion or build another one still larger. The idea of having another pavilion is considered with a great deal of favor, and by many it is believed that two pavilions would be a better arrangement than an enlargement of the one now in use.

The Interstate Tracion company claims to be handling larger crowds this year than last, and with greater ease, owing to improvements made on its roadbed and in the way of stronger power. The pavilion at the beach is a very popular place for dancing parties, and there has not been a night this season when there was an open dance that the building has not been thronged.

The Sunday concerts are also very popular, and whenever the weather is pleasant the company counts on handling large crowds. The attendance at the band concert yesterday afternoon, and the orchestral concert last evening, was very large, the weather conditions being all that could be desired.

Can Be Forced.

In response to an inquiry of the city health department through the city council, City Attorney Mitchell has prepared an opinion in which he holds that the owner of property on sewer lines may be compelled to make sewer connections and that they are subject to penalty on refusal to comply with a request of the health board for a sewer. The city attorney says that it may sometimes be diffi-cult to arrive at the matter where one person owns the property, another manages and still another rents it, but when possible the owner should be reached. If the owner cannot be reached then the agent should be held responsible.

AGAINST IT.

Mayor Hugo Wants No More Gravel on Avenues.

The recent bad condition that most of the avenues on the hill side since the recent heavy rains has been a matter of considerable comment about the city and there has been a general sentiment expressed against repeating the experiment of covering the avenues with gravel. Nearly all the gravel spread over the avenues was found in the sewers at the foot of the hill after the severe storm about a week ago. Mayor Hugo expresses himself decidedly against the gravel proposition and has inaugurated the movement for better roadbeds on the avenues by requesting City Engineer Patton to make an estimate of the cost of crowning them with a proper covering, putting in suitable gutters, crosswalks, in fact everything needed to make a good road. Said the mayor this morning:

"There is no use talking, something must be done in regard to the avenues, and that at once if the city wishes to save money by it. They must have a covering that will not wash away with every rainstorm. The streets in many instances are in wretched condition and will only get worse with every succeeding storm unless properly repaired. I am not in favor of the use of gravel on the avenues under any circumstances. Experience has demonstrated to us that it is not the material best fitted for them. Personally, I am in favor of macadam or tar macadam. I believe that of the roadway is covered with either of these materials, properly rounded up and packed down so that the water will run off the sides, instead of down the center, we will have avenues that will withstand the storms of the future. Gutters must be provided that will take care of the water, something those in present use fail to do. The city cannot stand the expense of continually being called upon to repair its sewers, gutters and roads, and I believe the time has come to go at the matter right and have roads that will not be washed away with every little rainstorm.

"The initiatory, under the charter, must lay with the property owners along the avenues. I have taken the matter up with the city engineer and asked him to make estimates of the cost of fixing up the avenues in the manner mentioned. As soon as his estimates are ready I shall take them to the property owners and see if they can be induced, for their own interest, to petition the council for a good radbed."

AT WORK NOW

Street Railway Company Begins Superior Street Improvements.

The old paving blocks have been pretty well cleaned out of the lower side of Superior street between Third avenue east and Lake avenue, a distance of three blocks. No further attempt will be made to tear up the street until this portion has been paved. This morning the street railway company began at Third avenue east to lay ties on top of the ground close to the curb on the side of the street from which the paving blocks have been removed. The company will lay a temporary track on these ties from Third avenue east to Lake avenue and will not tear up its tracks in the center of Superior street until the temporary track is ready. Both tracks in the center of the street will need to come out at the same time.

Commissioner Butchart of the board of public works said this morning that the people of the city might as well understand first as last that the paving will be a very slow matter particularly on account of the street railway company's new tracks. The first two week's delay will be the most noticeable, for after that the portion of the pavement finished will be cotting while the contractors are proceeding.

The street railway company has placed on the ground at Eighth avenue west the switches and steel necessary for the new "Y" proposed at that point and it is expected that the work of construction will begin very shortly. The plans for the straightening of the reverse curve at Eighth avenue west have not yet been presented to the board of public works for approval, as the company appears to be in no hurry regarding the curves, now that it has begun to prepare to tear up its tracks and put in new ones where the repaving commences. The cars will be sent back and forth over the temporary track next the curb while the work of laying the new rails is in progress, but it is understood that no passengers will be carried over the three blocks torn up.

Grays vs. Board of Trade.

The Duluth Grays and the board of trade people will play ball today at the Driving park. Cummings or Alworth will pitch for the Grays and Chapman will be in the box for the other people. The board of trade players are anxious to lay it into Cummings for the defeat he administered two weeks ago and it will undoubtedly be an exciting game of ball.

Sale Is Over.

The forfeited tax sale is over, and county Auditor Halden will have a breathing spell from his duties as auctioneer until September, when there will be another one in which property bid in for the state in the sale of 1900 will be offered for sale again. Mr. Halden held the last day's selling of this sale this morning, and cleaned up all the work that remained to be done.

PECULIAR PLIGHT

Eugene Sullivan Serving Another Man's Sentence in Jail.

Result of Business Methods in Range Justice Courts.

His Sentence Mixed With That of Longer Time Man.

Eugene Sullivan, a young man who was released from the county jail today on a writ of habeas corpus granted by Judge Ensign, has a genuine hard-luck story. He has been serving time in the county jail on another man's sentence, while the other man escaped from the Hibbing jail and is at liberty. Sullivan had a shorter sentence, but it was pronounced when he was not present, according to his story, and he had no chance to make a defense.

Sullivan has been serving time in the county jail under the name of John Davis. He and Davis were arrested at Hibbing April 22, charged with malicious destruction of property, it being charged that they took part in a row at the Stevenson mine and smashed a cook shanty. They were both brought into Hibbing that day, and next morning Sullivan says he was arraigned before the justice. He asked time to secure a lawyer and consult him, but the justice said he had waited for him long enough, and went ahead with the trial. One witness was called, and the justice asked Sullivan if he wanted to ask the witness any questions. Sullivan replied that he did not consider that he was being tried, and if he was to be treated in that manner he would not remain. He then left the courtroom, a constable following, and was taken back to jail.

In the night preceding Davis, who had been sentenced to ninety days for the same offense, escaped from the jail. On April 23 Sullivan was taken from the jail and brought to Duluth. He says he never saw the commitment, and did not know that he was being taken down on another man's commitment. He did not know what his sentence was, because it was passed after he left the court room. On the way down the officer said his sentence was sixty days, and the justice, who came down with him, said that it was thirty days.

About a month ago Sullivan first found out that he was being held as John Davis. A deputy sheriff was taking the names of the prisoners, when Sullivan asked him about some money he had coming from his employers, and gave his name. The deputy came back later and said that there was no Eugene Sullivan on the books. Then it was discovered that Sullivan was being held under the wrong commitment.

No commitment for Sullivan has been seen, so it is not known whether his sentence, given in his absence, was thirty or sixty days, and if his sentence was thirty days he has served forty-four days too much, and if it was sixty days he has served fourteen days too much. H. H. Hawkins appeared for him in the application for the writ of habeas corpus.

WAS BADLY BURNED.

A Blow That Was Very Painful.

Inspector Theodore Wold of the board of health had an experience with one of the patent gasoline lamps, a few nights ago, that he will not care to have again. Mr. Wold, who resides at 1919 West Second street, was attempting to light the lamp and it would not burn freely. He left the generator burning and blew back through the burner. Some gasoline had collected in the little cup under Mr. Wold's face, and his breath sent the flame over the gasoline. It was in flames in an instant, and the burning liquid splashed over his face and head. Mr. Wold kept his presence of mind, and wrapped his face and head in a cloth, smothering the blaze, but not until the side of his face was badly blistered. The flames took his eyelashes, eyebrows and part of the mustache on the right side of his face, and he considers it almost a miracle that his eye was not destroyed. One hand was burned somewhat in putting out the fire.

SUMMER SCHOOL

It Opens With About 125 Teachers in Attendance.

The Corps of Instructors Is Hardly Large Enough.

Duluth Predominates in Attendance---List of Those Entered.

The fourth annual summer school for teachers opened this morning at the High School. An attendance of 123 is reported, and it is thought that about 25 or 30 more will be in by tomorrow. The morning was principally taken up in registration and arranging programs, and the real work will commence tomorrow. Great enthusiasm has been shown by the teachers in this work, and most of those attending are experienced teachers with certificates, who come to take up new methods of teaching. They are among the most successful teachers in the vicinity. The instructors are the most competent that have ever taught in the Duluth summer school, and they will undoubtedly make their influence felt throughout the state.

County Superintendent Park says that the school is handicapped by a lack of instructors in proportion to the size of the school, and that it is owing to the state department that this is the case. Another instructor at least ought to be added to those already at work.

Four states will be represented by tomorrow in the school, and even now at least 25 per cent more people are in attendance this year on the first day than last. Mr. Park says that this is in a great measure due to the clear and satisfying way in which the advantages of the school have been shown up to the teachers through the columns of The Herald, and many teachers would not have been in attendance had they not seen the good to be gained in this manner.

To County Superintendent Park and professor Denfeld is due the success with which the school is opened, and with such a corps of instructors as there is, it is sure to be a success. Those teachers who registered this morning follow:

WILL TEST.

Owners Object to a Fee For City Elevator Inspector.

Inspector Robinson has granted, up to date, just forty-three licenses to run elevators. Six licenses have been issued since July 1, and these run to Alfred Loyear, at the New Store; Frank Kozlowski, at St. Mary's hospital; Hjelmer Olson, at the Lyceum; Arthur Millard, at the Spalding; Walter S. Cutler, at the Palladio building; William Flood, at the Burrows' building.

Some of the institutions of the city that have elevators in their property are refusing to pay the fee of the city inspector of buildings, and it is said that they will take the matter into the courts if it is pushed. Some time before the present city charter went into effect there was an ordinance requiring that the elevators should be inspected regularly by the city inspector, and that he should receive a fee. So unpopular was the measure, that so far as it affected those insured it was repealed, but under the new charter the building inspector is directed to continue his inspection. This Building Inspector Robinson has done and in some cases he has met with a refusal to pay the fee. The people owning the buildings with the elevators say that they carry elevator insurance and that the insurance company inspects their elevators regularly and for this inspection the owners have to pay. They cannot see the idea of having two inspections, or rather of paying fees for two. There is, apparently, no objection to the inspection, but rather to the paying of the fee. It is likely that a test case will be brought in a few days to test the charter provision relative to the fees for elevator inspection.

Anglo-American Copper Mining Company,

of Parry Sound (Limited).

We now offer another small series of this valuable stock at the very low price of Twenty-five Cents per Share, payable in five equal monthly payments of five cents each. The work at the mines is being pushed under the superintendence of Captain A. Le Duc, with a full crew of men, and the results are most flattering. New bodies of ore are being opened up; values are increasing as we gain depth, and the smelters are bidding for our ore. Owing to an accident to our smelter in the final test, a delay of several weeks will be caused. You remember, the company do not pay for the smelter until the builders have satisfied the directors it will save the values in our ores. A site at Parry Sound for the smelter has been secured, and we hope to be smelting our own ores soon.

This is one of the most promising stocks ever offered in this market, and we confidently expect a rush for this small series.

Remember this company are actual miners, not speculators.

Orders by Mail will Receive Prompt Attention.

Hon. W. D. Edson, F. H. Barnard, Hon. J. O. Milne, S. E. Middleton, Dr. A. C. Taylor, M. W. Bates, Directors.

A second series of the stock of this company will be offered in a few days at the office of the company, 4 Exchange Building, Duluth, Minn. The company are now in possession of their mines in Calaveras County, California, and our consulting engineer says we can be producing gold from our mill within thirty days.

Fuller information will be given at the office—call and secure an early place in the list of shareholders. The stock will have a rapid sale.

AT WEST DULUTH

Passion for play at the gaming table has caused the downfall of one of the prominent young men of this part of the city. Late Saturday night Clerk Olson left the Great Eastern clothing store of Kastriner & Neuman with his week's wages in his pockets, or at least that portion of it which he did not owe on account, or to his fellow clerks. In the tiger's lair, where the green cloth covers the table, he tried his luck with fickle fortune and in a short time had lost the remnants of his week's salary, and in an evil moment yielded to temptation and robbed the cash drawer in the store where he was employed. The crime was committed about 1 o'clock Sunday morning and Olson gained entrance to the place where he was employed with one of the keys in his possession. He thought to recoup his losses, but part of the stolen money followed his wages into the pockets of the chief of the gaming room.

The loss was discovered early Sunday morning by Mr. Kastriner and he at once notified the police. After a careful examination of the place Lieut. Briggs decided that one of the employes of the firm was the guilty party. Young Olson spent Sunday in Duluth and as he stepped from the car here in the evening he was arrested by Detective Troyer. After a short stay in the sweat box, Olson confessed that he was guilty, in the presence of the officers, Mr. Kastriner and others. He told the entire story of how he had lost a portion of the money and that $21 of the $33.60 taken was under the porch of his home, where it was found. One of the gamblers made good the remainder of the firm's loss and prosecution was dropped, so far as the firm is concerned. This is the first offense of the young man of which there is any knowledge. He was always considered trustworthy by the firm, and in the last war was a member of the Fourteenth Minnesota United States volunteers. He is broken-hearted over the affair and at the jail, when asked why he did it, said:

"I must have been crazy." And the strangest part of it was that Olson was the first to tell many people whom he met yesterday of the affair and the exact amount of the loss.

WILL SERVE IF ELECTED.

N. C. Hendricks, at present a member of the school board, will not seek a re-election at the school election July 20, but if chosen by the people will serve them to the best of his ability. Mr. Hendricks is not an officeseeker, nor an avowed candidate, but he will not refuse a nomination and will serve if elected.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

William McNaughton was arrested yesterday charged with wife desertion. It was thought until the time of arrest that McNaughton had placed thousands of miles between himself and West Duluth. The police believe that McNaughton is mentally unbalanced and it is thought he will be examined as to his sanity before being given a hearing in court.

West Duluth was deserted yesterday and the people all sought recreation at the different resorts.

Mr. Mackey has purchased the late Day residence on the corner of Fifty-seventh and Cody streets, and moved in with his family.

Mrs. Hurlock and family, recent arrivals from Bay City, Mich., are living on Fifty-ninth avenue, near Grand.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cormier have returned from a wedding trip to Sault Ste. Marie.

Thomas Dory and Archie Bennett have gone to Hibbing, where they have employment.

Miss Adeline Buckley has gone to St. Paul, where she will spend the remainder of the summer with relatives.

Mrs. E. A. Rock leaves today for St. Paul.

Ed Webb, of Hibbing, who has been spending a week here, will leave for home tomorrow.

Miss Eva Burr will arrive from Minneapolis this evening for a visit with Mrs. R. A. Saunderson.

Dr. Forbes, presiding elder of the Duluth district, will return tonight after a trip over the western part of the district. Next Sunday he will be with Rev. Saunderson at the Oneota church.

Miss Rose Neuman, of St. Paul, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. M. Kastriner.

Alfred Holter, an employe of the Great Eastern, who was injured by the explosion of a cannon cracker July 4, is at work again, but his face is still somewhat disarranged.

It is reported that Mrs. M. C. Murray will be able to leave the hospital Friday entirely recovered.

The Municipal Court.

The municipal court jury calendar was cleaned up this morning. The jury in the case of M. S. Burrows against the Western Union Telegraph company brought in a verdict of $32 for the plaintiff under the instruction of the court. The personal injury suit of W. E. Brown against H. Brown and Joe Davidson, that was called this morning was dismissed on the motion of the defendants' attorney, the plaintiff not appearing. This was the mustache case, the plaintiff bringing suit to recover damages for injury to his feelings because of the alleged dyeing of his mustache and eyebrows by the defendant, Davidson. The case of Sigrudson against the city was continued over the term, by stipulation of the attorneys on both sides.

TAX LEVY.

Board of County Commissioners Is In Session.

The July meeting of the board of county commissioners was held this afternoon. The principal business to come up was the making of the tax levy for St. Louis county for next year. No determination had been reached as to the amount of the levy up to the time the matter came up in the meeting this afternoon, though there has been considerable discussion of the matter.

To assist the board in determining how much money it is going to need in the various funds County Auditor Halden has prepared a statement of the expenses of the county during all of 1900, and the first six months of this year. The total for the six months is less than half of the total for last year, but a large part of the difference is due to the fact that are a large number of bond interest payments that are yet to be made. Still, it is believed that the year's expenditures will show a decrease of $5000 or $10,000 from last year. Mr. Halden's statement is as follows:

Salaries and clerk hire..$	6,390 70	$12,640 37
Boarding prisoners	13,458 00	6,261 00
Maintenance, court house and jail	7,461 64	2,457 66
Blank books, printing	7,970 97	6,290 00
Miscellaneous	5,855 96	3,127 12
Fees and mileage	43,765 17	19,063 23
Poor fund	28,493 08	13,723 29
Roads and bonds	65,041 40	13,164 87
Infectious diseases	138 61	1,249 90
Totals ....$	242,075 53	$98,029 69

AN INCREASE.

St. Paul City Directory Shows Gain in Population.

St. Paul, July 8.—The St. Paul city directory just issued by R. L. Polk & company indicates an increase in population since the last census a year ago of 3409, making the present population 66,065. The directory publishers who also have charge of similar work throughout the Northwest state that this is about the same figure that has prevailed in this section, although the northern part of Minnesota and North Dakota, are far beyond the same ratio of increase, owing to the heavy immigration into those sections.

NEW HOUSE

Gowan - Peyton - Twohy Company Is Formed.

To Engage In Wholesale Grocery Business.

Duluth is to have a new wholesale grocery house. The Gowan-Peyton-Twohy company has been formed and will engage in that business in the city of Duluth beginning the first day of September, according to present plans. The building on Fifth avenue south, formerly occupied by the Marshall-Wells company, will be the home of the new company.

The company, which has just been formed, is one that will commend itself. The officers are: President, Andrew Gowan; vice president, C. L. Twohy; secretary and treasurer, W. R. Peyton. These, with Eugene O'Neil, of Stillwater, and Chester A. Congdon, of Duluth, constitute the board of directors. The company has a paid in capital of $100,000.

Andrew Gowan, the head of the new company, is one of the well known men of this section of the state. For eighteen years he was with the C. N. Nelson Lumber company, at Cloquet, and after the interests of that company were absorbed by the Weyerhaeusers he was with the Northern Lumber company, the Weyerhaeuser company, for two years, and for several years he has been in lumbering and other business on his own account. He is recognized not only as a strong man financially, but as a man of keen judgment and fine business ability.

C. L. Twohy has been in the grocery business for fifteen years, ten of which have been spent with the Twohy Mercantile company of Superior as a member of the company and secretary of it. He was in the house there and has also covered most of the territory adjacent to Duluth. This experience has made him thoroughly conversant with every detail of the wholesale grocery business in this section. The general management of the company will fall upon Mr. Twohy.

W. R. Peyton, secretary and treasurer of the company, is well known in Duluth, having lived here most of his life. He was in the American Exchange bank and later was treasurer of the Listmann mill at Superior. His success in that position was conspicuous. He was in charge of the financial department there.

Eugene O'Neil is of the firm of O'Neil Bros. of Stillwater. They are heavy lumbermen operating in the St. Croix and Ely districts. They are also leading members of the Minnesota Mercantile company, a whole sale grocery company at Stillwater.

Chester A. Congdon is one of Duluth's leading attorneys and will not only give the firm much financial strength, but will bring to it fine business ability and a long experience in general business affairs.

Other stockholders in the company are H. M. Peyton, president of the American Exchange bank, one of the leading banks of the state, and C. P. Magginnis, who was formerly receiver of the Duluth land office, and has for several years been one of the leading pine land dealers in this section.

Duluth is fortunate in securing the new house. It has been known here for some time that a new wholesale house was being considered, and this brought strong inducements from several other places. Duluth, however, was looked upon as the best location and gets the prize.

The building which the company is to occupy will be put into shape at once for the new company, in the meantime the stock will be bought and every arrangement made for the early opening of the house. Every line that a complete wholesale grocery establishment should carry will be put in and the company will go after the trade in the territory which particularly belongs to Duluth. Ten traveling men will be put on at the start and more added as the business demands.

The acquisition of this new company is of no small importance to the city. It is true that there are already two houses here but instead of one detracting from the other the fact is true that both have grown enormously. The same will undoubtedly be true of the future and three great houses will be located in this city.

HE IS IN DEMAND

J. L. Washburn Is a Great Favorite For School Director.

Sentiment For Him Is Strong In All Quarters.

Interviews With Prominent People Favor His Selection.

Interest in the election for the independent school district of Duluth, which will be held Saturday, July 20, is beginning to show evidences of its existence. So far there has been talk of only one candidate in addition to the three directors of the school board whose terms expire, each of whom is said to be at least a receptive candidate for re-election.

The one man that has been named is J. L. Washburn, the well-known and prominent attorney. There seems to exist a very strong popular demand that he be a candidate for the office of director of the public schools, and it is possible that the demand will become so pressing that Mr. Washburn will be induced to agree to run, which he has not done as yet.

In order that some idea of the nature of the demand for Mr. Washburn to run might be known, The Herald has gathered a few expressions of opinion in the matter from prominent citizens whose names will be recognized as those of well-wishers of the school system, as well as conservative men who always have an eye to public expenditures and who wish to see the demands of the school funds kept as low as is consistent with efficiency in the school system.

The demand for Mr. Washburn's services as a member of the school board is founded in a knowledge of the fact that he is eminently capable, and that if the district can secure him it will be an acquisition of much importance to the schools. As the gentlemen quoted below repeatedly say, there is no better man for the place in the city of Duluth, and no man for whom there is so wide a call. The list of interviews is not long, but it is gathered from many sources, and all professions and business branches are represented. It might have been prolonged to the limit of space obtainable in this issue, had it been of any use to do so. But the expressions included here are pointed, forceful and convincing, and they are given as specimens of hundreds of similar expressions heard throughout the city.

To the call conveyed in this consensus of popular sentiment Mr. Washburn will find it hard to fail to respond. The duties of the board are difficult, rather thankless, and in no way remunerative, but the special qualifications that Mr. Washburn possesses seem to point out the necessity of his becoming a candidate. The interviews are as follows:

George Spencer—Mr. Washburn is a first-class man for the school board. I believe him to be the best man in town for the place. If we could always get men like him for the board we should never have any trouble about an intelligent and effectual management of school matters.

Wason S. Moore—I believe Mr. Washburn to be an ideal man for the place.

Ward Ames—Just the man. We need practical and capable men like Mr. Washburn in such a place.

E. N. Bradley—He would be an excellent man for the position, and he should be induced to run.

C. H. Thornton—There is not a better man in the city for a place on the school board than J. L. Washburn.

City Comptroller W. S. McCormick—I believe that Mr. Washburn would be a first-class man to have on the school board. He is a man that not only takes a great interest in educational matters of all kinds, but he has the education and business training that eminently fits him for the position of a public officer. Mr. Washburn is a man that will stick to his convictions in a matter and will not be influenced by anybody else.

City Clerk Candle—Mr. Washburn would make a very good man on school the board. He has great ability and no doubt would be a very competent officer.

Judge Gearhart—Although I have nothing to say against the men that have served on the school board, I believe that Mr. Washburn is eminently qualified for the position.

Charles Silger, West Duluth—I do not know of a better man for the position of school director than J. L. Washburn, and I hope he can be induced to accept the nomination. More men possessing his qualifications are needed on the board at the present time.

O. H. Simonds—Mr. Washburn is a first class man for the place. I doubt whether a more valuable or more effective man could be found in the city.

C. F. Leland—Mr. Washburn is an excellent man. If he could be induced to give the time to it he would be a first class member.

A. R. Macfarlane—The choice would be an excellent one, and I believe Mr. Washburn will take it. I know that he always takes a keen interest in everything that pertains to the young.

C. H. Crosby—I am heartily in favor of Mr. Washburn and will do all I can to help elect him.

C. E. Lovett—He is a good man for anything that he is selected for. I would be glad to see him a school director.

S. T. Harrison—Mr. Washburn is an excellent man and a very proper man to put on the board.

L. C. Harris—Without reference to any others who may be candidates, I can say that I believe no more excellent man could be found. He has property and children and is interested in the schools. There are few men, too who when they go into a thing give it such undivided attention as does he. He always enters into everything with his whole energy.

J. W. Reynolds—The city could not get a better man. I am for him and will do all I can to elect him.

W. O. Pealer—Mr. Washburn would be an excellent school director.

T. T. Hudson—I do not suppose Mr. Washburn will be very anxious for it, but he would be an excellent man, and I would be glad to see him get it. He takes great interest in the schools in his locality and is public spirited and clear headed.

J. R. Carey—He ought to be earnestly requested to accept it. He is the kind of man we want, broad-guaged, active and energetic.

J. B. Greenfield—I could not think of a better man and I hope he can be induced to accept.

J. P. Davies—He is an excellent man and I would do all I could to help him.

Ray T. Lewis—A better man could not be found. He has the courage of his convictions and is public spirited and broad.

C. E. Haines—He is an excellent man, and if he can give the time to it the choice would be an excellent one.

M. Kastriner—I regard Mr. Washburn as one of the brainiest men in Duluth. None are better qualified than he, in every particular, for the place of school director.

Dr. I. T. Burnside—From a business standpoint, and in fact from any point of view, Mr. Washburn would be an ideal candidate. He is a man of determined character, with experience and every qualification for the office. Duluth needs more men of ability on its school board, and Mr. Washburn would be a valuable addition to the membership.

John Cashin—Mr. Washburn is a very able man. I know of no one better qualified for the place.

S. C. Murphy—I hope J. L. Washburn can be induced to accept the nomination. He is one of the most popular men in this city, and no person is more able than he to deal with all questions pertaining to the schools.

NINE HOURS.

Several Duluth Telephone Linemen Accept the Compromise.

The difficulties between the Duluth Telephone company and its striking linemen were settled today and the latter went back to work. The company won out in the position that it took and maintained from the first, that of a nine-hour workday. Four linemen went back to work today under this condition. One man refused to go back and three others have left the city during the strike to look for employment elsewhere. The men on the Duluth Telephone line, as on the Zenith line, struck for an eight-hour day. They were working ten hours a day. The telephone companies agreed to compromise on a nine-hour day, but the men held out. The striking linemen of the Zenith company maintained this afternoon that they would not go back to work unless their demand for an eight-hour day is granted. They say that the Zenith company is made up of local shareholders and they have a better chance of winning than with a foreign corporation like the Bell company, which controls the Duluth Telephone company.

It was claimed this afternoon that the action of linemen in going back to the Duluth company was anticipated and at a recent meeting of the Electrical Linemen's union, it was agreed that the men should go back to the Duluth Telephone company if they so desired, but there would be no consent of a similar nature granted regarding the Zenith company. Manager C. M. Masseau, of the Duluth Telephone company, this afternoon confirmed the report that the men had returned to work and said that no further trouble was anticipated. Manager Masseau said the company has not been troubled by having any cables cut, but that the lines have, in some instances, been damaged by lightning. He says that the repair work is well in hand, and that the company is ready to conduct its business with its usual promptitude.

Delegates to the Trades Assembly express no surprise over the action of the strikers in going back to work with a nine-hour day. They say such a step was expected, and that the linemen of the Duluth Telephone company were given permission to go back to work if they so desired. There have been some strong hints thrown out by the union men that the telephone company will lose by its victory, and that there is a possibility of no more work being accomplished by the men working nine hours a day than if they worked eight hours.

He Stole Rugs.

A painter, who gave his name as Fred Ray was caught filling a potato sac with fine rugs by C. O. Nelson of Nineteenth avenue west, this afternoon, and was arrested on his complaint, by Officer Brigham. When taken to the station and searched, a receipt to Fred Reetz was found on the man. Nelson says that he had suspected him of taking some lace curtains and watched him when he came into the store, being rewarded by seeing him take the rugs.

A special policeman was appointed for the library building to stop promiscuous breaking of stones by boys in that vicinity.

Never Authorized It.

A. R. Macfarlane says that J. L. Dodge, who owns the property at Third avenue east and Second street on which was located the offensive bill boards recently torn down, has never authorized the construction of boards on any of his property and was much put out when he read in a Duluth paper that there was one on his lots here.

TRAIN DITCHED.

One of Bostock's Circuses In the Wreck.

Milwaukee, July 8.—A train carrying one of the Bostock circuses was ditched on the Northwestern railway near Pensaukee. John Frazer, said to be a circus follower, was killed. An unknown man had both legs cut off and will probably die. Several others were slightly injured.

Lumber Market Dull.

Lumber buyers are arriving in the city, but the local market is in a listless condition. There is a brisk demand for something that cannot now be supplied in Duluth—the very best grades of stock.

POSTPONED.

Fireworks Display Is Put Over One More Night.

The fireworks display will not take place this evening, but will occur tomorrow evening if the weather permits. It was the old, old story of the "best laid plans" going up against it today, for the weather, so clear and delightful this forenoon, took on a nasty look this afternoon long enough to put an effectual stop to the fireworks this evening. The men in charge of the fireworks say that it will take from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until dark to hang some of the pieces, so that the getting of the display ready for this evening is out of the question.

Mayor Hugo says that when a favorable evening is had, the city band will start at First street, march to the Spalding and St. Louis hotels, thence out to Thirteenth avenue east, whence the display takes place.

SHORT.

Abstract Clerk of Ramsey County Shy In His Accounts.

St. Paul, July 8.—John H. Schulze, abstract clerk of Ramsey county, is short $700 in his accounts with the county, according to a report to the county commissioners today.

A special committee submitted a report from Frank Mcosbrugger, expert accountant, who has been going over the books of the abstract office.

His investigations covered the period from Jan. 1, 1899, when Mr. Schulze became abstract clerk under a salary, down to Jan. 7, 1901, when the office went on a fee basis.

The amount due Ramsey county for fees collected during the two years was $14,281.20. This included $5.65 for two abstracts made for James E. Hewitt, which were not in the books. The amount actually paid to the county treasurer was $3581.10. There was due on Jan. 7, $900.20.

A payment of $200 was made on this account last month, leaving the balance $700.20.

Mr. Schulze was not present but later said: "I will have no trouble in making it all right. It does not amount to much anyway."

KITTREDGE ACCEPTS.

St. Paul, July 8.—A Sioux Falls, S. D., special to the Dispatch says there is an unconfirmed report here that Governor Herreid when here Saturday offered the appointment as senator to fill the unexpired term of United States Senator Kyle to A. B. Kittredge, of this city, who accepted. It is further understood that the appointment will be made Wednesday or Thursday.

BOY DROWNED.

St. Paul July 8.—A Park Rapids, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: William Retzlaff, 18 years old was drowned at Park Rapids mill dam this forenoon. He fell off the shoot, was swept into the strong current and went down. The body was recovered.

OFFERS TO STRIKERS.

Reading, Pa., July 8.—Acting President Welch sent another offer to the striking shopmen this afternoon. He extends the time for them to return to work until tomorrow and offers to pay them three days' wages for last Friday and Saturday and today. He asks the freight handlers to return tomorrow also, and promises that their grievances shall be fairly considered.

The striking shopmen held a long session this afternoon and agreed to reject both offers of Acting President Welch. It was decided to stand out for better terms.

Marriage licenses have been issued to Mertello M. Mitchell, of Hennepin county, and Marie Hebard, Emil F. Young, of Lake county, and Laura L. Nelson, of Eau Claire, Wis., and to Otto Anderson and Lizzie Anderson.

A letter has just been received in the city from Mrs. William Gallie, dated at Liverpool, June 26, upon the arrival there of the Dominion line steamer New England, from Boston. Mrs. Gallie is one of the party who left Duluth, June 16, for Glasgow, and reports a very pleasant voyage across, the weather conditions being most favorable, and a very pleasant and enjoyable time was had by all on board.

The weather clerk forecasts that nature will supply plenty of fireworks in Duluth tonight, largely of an electrical nature.

HAD A CHASE.

Ely Man Gives Policeman a Hard Run.

Ole Elinger, who says he hails from Ely, was arrested last evening after a very interesting chase by Officer Roberg, the arrest being made by Officer Terry. Elinger is accused of kicking in the glass front of the Bottling house saloon at 102 Lake avenue. Immediately after the glass was broken, it is alleged that Elinger ducked down among the shady houses of the St. Croix district, with Officer Roberg about a block behind. He was fleet of foot, however, and escaped the officer. One of the young women of a house on St. Croix avenue remembered seeing a man run past the door and she gave such an accurate description of him that Officer Terry a few minutes later landed Elinger as the fugitive. Elinger is game, and says he will put up a fight, and that he will see if people can be arrested for doing nothing when they come to the city.

Expects Another Run.

S. W. Campbell, agent at La Pointe Indian reservation, with headquarters at Ashland, was in the city this afternoon. Mr. Campbell spent Sunday with his two sons, who are located on the Mesaba range. Mr. Campbell says that smallpox has been stamped out among the Indians, except at Grand Marias, Minn., and La Courte Orielles, Wis. He thinks that if the white men would do as well as the Indians the authorities would have much less trouble in coping with the disease. He fears that there will be another epidemic next winter, but that it is impossible to do anything more to prevent a return of the scourge unless the state authorities thoroughly fumigate or burn the lumber camps.

COMING HERE.

Gus Ruhlin, Big Fighter, To Stop Off at Duluth.

Jay Anderson, of this city, has received a letter from Billy Madden, an old friend of his, and trainer of Gus Ruhlin, who is to fight Jim Jeffries in San Francisco, in which he says that the Ruhlin party, consisting of himself, Ruhlin and his sparring partner, "Denver Ed" Martin, will arrive in Duluth at 11 o'clock next Saturday morning en route for California. Mr. Madden says that this is the only city that the party will stop at on its way across the continent, and that if arrangements could be made a little athletic exhibition might be given the people at the head of the lake. Mr. Anderson is making arrangements for such an exhibition at the Armory next Saturday evening. He says that Gus Ruhlin will possibly umpire a ball game here on Saturday afternoon and another in Superior on Sunday afternoon. If the arrangement goes through there will be any number of people willing to bet that there will be no kicking on the decisions of the umpire.

THE COUNCIL.

Labor Bureau Location and Other Matters to Come Up.

There will be a very short session of the city council this evening if the aldermen get to the city hall promptly at 7:30 o'clock to begin business. There are not many matters to come before the city fathers this evening, and many of them wish to see the fireworks at Thirteenth avenue east. It is probable that a special car will take the aldermen out to Thirteenth avenue east, at the conclusion of their deliberations.

One of the matters to come up for consideration this evening is the proposed appropriation for the establishment and maintenance of a free labor bureau. The free labor bureau commisson met with the council finance committee last evening and discussed the proposed measure.

It is understood that the committee will report back to the council tonight making a recommendation for an appropriation of about $1500. The matter of securing proper quarters for the labor bureau is another question that is proving a little vexatious. The commission wants an office at the city hall, but the city officials oppose this idea. The latter say there is no room for the bureau at the city hall. They say, also, that it would cause the frequenting of the city hall by a large number of men in search of employment and that this would prove a hindrance to the other offices. It has been suggested that a room reserved by the city in the Armory be used for an office for the bureau, and it is likely that the council may direct the use of this place. Some hold that the Armory is too much out of the way for a suitable office, while others say that if a man is in search of a job, and it is really necessary that he get one, he will find it no trouble to walk as far as the Armory.

The damage to the streets and sewers, and the repairs made, will be the substance of a report of the board of public works to the council this evening. There will be a joint meeting of the finance committee, the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks and the committee on drains, alleys and parks, before the council meeting tonight to consider this matter.

Other matters scheduled for the council's attention this evening are the question of the city's trading two lots on East Third street for half a block near the reservoir; approval of the contract to the American Bridge company for the construction of a footbridge at Tenth avenue west; the granting of a liquor license to Boyle Bros. This license was held up at the last council meeting.

A NEW ORDER.

Movement Toward Formation Lodge Here.

Secretary G. L. Rockwell of the Supreme Grand League of America has been in the city for a few days past in the interest of the movement for an eight-hour work day. Mr. Rockwell says that he has met with a great deal of encouragement from every business and professional man he has talked with, and that a meeting will be held later in the week for the purpose of organizing a branch here. The movement is said to be meeting with great favor all over the country, that it has a wide scope, determining the side that each voter wishes to be on, while at the same time there is no partisan politics in it. A large branch has been organized in Minneapolis, and some of the most influential people of the city have enrolled in the membership.

The idea is to enlist the majority of the business, professional and laboring men in the leagues, and thus secure their aid in the passage of an eight-hour day law.

Thomas Lowry Here.

Thomas Lowry, of Minneapolis, was in the city a short time this afternoon. During the day he has been consulting with the municipal authorities at Superior in regard to the new street railway ordinance and franchise. Mr. Lowry said his business here was of a private nature and he had nothing to offer that would interest the readers of this paper. He leaves for Minneapolis tonight.

Local forecast for twenty-four hours from 7 p. m. (Central time) today: Duluth, West Superior and vicinity: Partly cloudy and cool tonight and Tuesday with probably local showers; fresh to brisk northeasterly winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, July 8.—Forecast until 8 a. m. tomorrow: Wisconsin—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; rising temperature. Minnesota—Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday with possibly local thunderstorms; warmer east portion tonight. North and South Dakota—Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday with possibly local showers; probably cooler Tuesday. Upper Lakes—Variable winds, probably becoming fresh to brisk southeast Tuesday; generally fair except probably showers and thunderstorms on portions of Superior.

Another Ship Subsidy Bill.

It was recently stated that the Hanna-Frye ship subsidy bill, which failed of enactment at the last session of congress, is being trimmed and polished with a view to its revival next December and that its promoters hope to secure its passage, despite the general disapproval by the people of the central idea of the measure. Now it is announced that some of the Republican opponents of the Hanna-Frye bill have prepared a subsidy bill of their own and that Representative Miner, of Wisconsin, has the bill in charge, which will be introduced as a substitute. This bill discards the element of speed entirely and grants subsidy entirely in proportion to freight capacity. Thus a freight steamer of 17,000 tons capacity and ten knots speed would receive more subsidy than the passenger steamer of twenty-one knots speed and less freight capacity. Under this bill no subsidy is to be granted to foreign-built ships; the total subsidy is to be limited to $5,000,000 annually for ten years; no ship older than twenty years shall receive subsidy, and oil tank steamers are not to be subsidized. Certainly, if the purpose of the subsidy is to increase the transportation of our ocean freights by an American merchant marine, this bill will serve this purpose better than the bill which Mr. Hanna has been pushing. But why pay a subsidy to a vessel when it does not carry any freight? It would seem that, if a subsidy is to be granted at all, it should be paid on the amount of freight carried from American ports. But there is no need of any subsidy to stimulate the growth of our merchant marine, inasmuch as the shipbuilding record last year was a heavy one and all the yards now are crowded with orders.

Results of Profit-Sharing.

Profit-sharing with employes, which has been tried for years with more or less success, is still regarded as an experiment by many manufacturers. In many cases it works to advantage of both employers and employes and the parties at interest would not consider a change. At Fall River, Mass., the Bourne Mills corporation paid its twenty-fourth consecutive semi-annual profit-sharing dividend to its help on the day before the Fourth. It amounted to 3 per cent of the wages earned in the past six months, the previous dividend having been paid the day before Christmas, 1900. This payment marks the end of the twelfth year of the trial of this experiment, and while the rate is a half of 1 per cent lower than the last previous one, it is called a very good payment in view of the hard time the mills have had in the first period of the year.

The management of this mill even after twelve years' experience still continues to regard the plan as an experiment, but will continue the plan as before. Some of the other mill owners consider the scheme as a fad of the treasurer of the mill, but a majority believe there is merit in it from an economical view point. The authorities at the mill are diffident about discussing it from a practical standpoint, but it is well known that they do not regard it as a bit of economic curio, and they are not posing as philanthropists because of it. The facts affecting its use as they appear to men who have studied it at close range bear out the contention that it is a wise manufacturing policy for the Bourne mills, and now that it has been tried in two long periods of the lowest wage scale known in twenty-five years, it may be fairly judged from the results obtained. In the twelve years' trial of the plan the help have kept the agreement they made at the time the system was adopted; that is, the exercise of care in the work no indulgence in strikes without a complete understanding with the management as to the grievances complained of, if there were to be any, and the acceptance of the terms of the agreement at the beginning of every six months of the trial. In the time the mills have been trying the profit-sharing plan they have doubled their capacity, and now have about 80,000 spindles. The most significant thing is that the past two or three years the mills have adopted the Northrop looms as a part of the equipment, and while this radical change in the character of the labor to be performed has been going on, there have been no serious frictions between the management and the employes. It is a fact, too, that on this corporation's pay roll are included some of the most active trades unionists in the city and some of the most thrifty operatives known to the local manufacturers who are connected with the banks. The dividend amounts for each participant to about three-fifths of a full week's wage, and as it is paid in cash at a time when the opportunity to spend it in enjoyment is present, it is the more gratefully appreciated.

FOR THE SCHOOL BOARD.

The Herald takes great pleasure in endorsing the suggestion that at the coming school election J. L. Washburn, the well-known attorney, be elected as one of the three directors to be chosen. It is not known that Mr. Washburn is a candidate for this honor, but no doubt he would be willing to devote a portion of his valuable time to the discharge of the duties of the position, should his fellow-citizens request him to do so.

It is hardly necessary to refer to Mr. Washburn's qualifications for the office. He is peculiarly well equipped to do splendid service as a member of the board, and it is the knowledge of this fact that has caused prominent mention of his name at this time when the field is being looked over with a view of discovering desirable candidates.

With a view of ascertaining public sentiment on this subject, The Herald has interviewed a number of citizens in regard to the suggestion that Mr. Washburn be made a member of the school board, and the interviews which are presented in another column show that the idea is extremely popular and should be sufficient to induce Mr. Washburn to permit the use of his name as a candidate.

JOHN FISKE.

Many people in Duluth were grieved to learn of the sudden death last week of Professor John Fiske. He had visited this city and delivered several delightful lectures here, gaining many warm admirers in addition to those who had already learned to appreciate his genius as evidenced in his literary productions.

His was a world-famous name, and it is sad to think that he has been stricken down in the very zenith of his powers, when he had but entered upon his best years. Mr. Fiske contributed much to the religious and philosophical thought, but he will undoubtedly hold highest rank as a historian. His American histories—that remarkable series which runs from the "Discovery of America" to the Mississippi Valley in the Civil War"—are marked by a literary charm and a warmth and picturesqueness of expression that are rarely found. There have been some criticisms of his histories for inaccuracy and it may be that, like Macaulay and Hume, he relied too much upon his memory, but any slight defects of that character are overshadowed by the orginality of thought, freshness of dictation and graphic description contained in his writings.

Mr. Fiske was a most attractive and genial man, and those who have enjoyed his engaging manner and his racy conversation will always recall with pleasure their rare good fortune.

OUR MERCHANT MARINE.

There was a remarkable increase in shipbuilding in the United States during the past year—proof that no subsidy is needed to encourage the growth of our merchant marine. The record of gross tonnage increase has only been exceeded twice in the history of the country, and the coming fiscal year promises to be equally notable in this respect, as all the shipbuilding plants are crowded with work and have orders ahead to keep them busy during the entire season. This is true not only of the yards on the great lakes, but of these on the Atlantic coast.

Vessels built in the United States and officially numbered by the bureau of navigation during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1901, number 1173 of 401,285 gross tons, compared with 1058 of 305,677 gross tons for the previous fiscal year. Unrigged barges, canal boats, etc., will add 88,331 tons to this total. Such construction the previous year aggregated 76,186 tons. The whole tonnage built has been exceeded only twice in our history, in 1854 and in 1855, when the maximum, 583,450 tons, was attained.

Excluding unrigged barges and canal boats, three-fourths of the new tonnage is comprised in 111 vessels, each of over 1000 gross tons. To these large vessels the great lakes, where steel shipbuilding in the past few years has been highly developed, contributed forty steel steamers of 137,312 tons. This tonnage exceeds the steel steam product of the entire United States for any year before 1899. The industry of building small steel steamers for the seaboard has developed considerably during the year, but as the length of locks is only 270 feet this construction does not materially affect salt water navigation.

The ocean steel steamers built on the seaboard were fifteen of 70,667 gross tons, to which may be added nine of 18,888 tons, all small, built on the great lakes for salt water traffic. The principal ocean steamers were three Spreckels mail steamers of 18,495 tons for the San Francisco - Honolulu - Australian mail service, three New York and Cuba mail steamers of 15,408 tons and one Venesuelan Red D steamer of 1713 tons, all built under the ocean mail act of 1891. The remaining ocean steel steamers are for the coasting trade, including three Hawaiian-American steamers of 16,735 tons and four Chicago steamers of 8628 tons temporarily in transatlantic trade. During the calendar year 1900 Great Britain launched 664 steel steamers of 1,432,600 tons and Germany completed sixty-three of 213,983 tons, nearly all of which were for ocean trade.

Wooden schooners, the third important item, numbered twenty-two of 40,273 tons. The limit of size for these vessels appears to have been attained, and large steel schooners will be built next year. Rigged barges, some of steel and some for the Cuban trade, numbered fifteen of 24,313 tons. Nine steel ferryboats and steam dredges of 13,907 tons were built, and six square-rigged vessels of 11,257 tons. Only four wooden steamers, aggregating 6552 tons, exceed 1000 tons, although 460 wooden steamers of 37,921 tons were built. Wooden sail and steam vessels number 1052 of 141,032 tons.

Geographically, vessels were built as follows: Atlantic coast, 735 of 190,948 tons; great lakes, 105 of 153,138 tons; Pacific coast, 151 of 46,105 tons, and Western rivers, 182 of 11,094 tons. Increase over last year on great lakes 53,362 tons, Atlantic coast 30,372 tons.

PIERRE LORILLARD.

The death of Pierre Lorillard at New York is reported. Mr. Lorillard was a millionaire, but it was as a sportsman that he was best known. His connection with the turf began in 1873, when he was advised by his physicians to seek an outdoor life. During the first part of his life he showed a fondness for hard work, in spite of the fact that he had inherited millions, and devoted his attention to the tobacco trade. When he went into racing Lorillard picked up a colt, for which he paid $780. This was a raw-boned specimen named Parole. This horse soon beat everything on this side of the water. He was sent to England, and in one year won the Newmarket handicap, the City and Suburban, the Great Market handicap, the Epsom and Gold Cup. This was the beginning of a series of notable achievements on the turf, followed by the victory of Iroquois in the English Derby.

Mr. Lorillard was also famous in yachting for a time. He bought the yacht Vesta, a schooner that entered the race from Sandy Hook to Cowes, Eng., and he built the Rahda and other famed yachts. He married Miss Emily Taylor, noted for her beauty. He bought a house on the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-sixth street, which for years was the social center of New York. In splendor of entertainment, in elaborate outlay and unchecked expenditure the social affairs of Pierre Lorillard eclipsed all others. It was during this time that he bought Ochre Point, at Newport, and erected there a cottage marvelous for its design. This he afterward sold to Cornelius Vanderbilt. He was the founder of Tuxedo in the Ramapo hills.

Several years ago Mr. Lorillard suddenly sold his Fifth avenue home and left for England. Thereafter he and his wife lived apart, for what reason no one ever knew, but when he arrived home seriously ill a few days ago she was summoned and did all in her power to nurse him back to life.

The Philadelphia Press is authority for the statement that over $1,000,000 was spent in corrupting members of the last Pennsylvania legislature, which is distinguished as the most venal and unscrupulous ever known in that state, and hence in the Union. Votes on behalf of a Quay organization of the legislature, and then for the various "ripper" and franchise-grab bills, are said to have commanded as high as $35,000 each in cases, and $10,000 and $20,000 were common payments. Many of the legislators return home with independent fortunes as a result of the session's work. The gang which bought them at such handsome prices will reimburse itself from the franchise and other steals on the state and people thereof.

The majority report of the committee on suffrage in the Alabama constitutional convention favors the "grandfather" plan of solving the problem of negro disfranchisement, and thus follows the example set by Louisiana and North Carolina. A strong minority report, signed by four members, among them being former Governor W. C. Oates, opposes the plan on the ground that "the grandfather clause violates the federal constitution by undertaking, by indirect means, to abridge the right to vote." The same objection to the "grandfather clause" was urged in the Louisiana and North Carolina conventions, but without avail.

In a few weeks the women of Norway will be able to take part in the local elections as full-fledged voters and they promise some needed reforms. A bill conferring the municipal franchise upon women has passed both houses of the Norwegian parliament (storthing) and will become a law at the end of the present session. Under the new law a woman is entitled to vote if she pays taxes upon an income of at least 300 crowns ($71) in country districts or 400 crowns ($108) in cities. In the case of a husband and wife who have all in common, the wife is entitled to vote if the husband pays taxes upon an income of at least 300 crowns in country districts or 400 crowns in cities.

The proposed alteration in the official title of King Edward to make it in keeping with his sovereign relation to the whole British empire is very interesting. The change, incidentally, will probably serve to dignify Canada and Australia by giving them specific mention in the title. At present, he is only "Edward, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, king, defender of the faith, emperor of India."

Railroad receiverships dwindled to three small roads with only about sixty miles of track during the past half year, according to the Railroad Age. This represents the attainment of an extraordinary height in railroad solvency. Last year was an exceedingly prosperous one for transportation companies, and yet during the first six months nine roads with 973 miles of line and $56,000,000 of capitalization went into receivers' hands.

Brooklyn has discovered a cure for chronic toughs without encumbering its jails. It is known as the "farming system" and consists of hot applications of policemen's clubs to the craniums of toughs every time they are caught. One district of the City of Churches, noted for a superabundance of loafers, was regenerated in two weeks by steady doses of the medicine.

And all that in addition to the sale of South Carolina sheetings to the heathen!

THE DAY OF THE LONG FARE WELL

BY WINFRED BLACK

(Copyright, 1901, by W. R. Hurst.)

It was the Day of the Long Farewell in Honolulu.

The Day of the Long Farewell is the day the government takes the lepers who have been gathered up in the city and the surrounding islands and sends them aboard the ship which carries them to the Island of Death.

Most Americans make it a point to stay away from the wharf on the Day of the Long Farewell.

The average Anglo-Saxon finds the uncontrolled display of emotion decidedly irksome, and the mothers and the sweethearts and the husbands of the lepers are usually quite primitive persons who have not learned to weep quietly.

When they bid an eternal farewell to those they love, they are apt to make things rather disturbing to the more cultivated spector.

On this particular day, however, two Americans came up from the wharf just as the bobbing little steamer coughed her way down the harbor, and left a crowd of crying, screaming, singing people on the shore.

"Aloha Oe!" sang the people on the wharf, and the wind of the South brought back the answer, sung, too, from the Ship of Death, the Hawaiian song of greeting and farewell, "Aloha Oe."

"They'd sing if they were dying," said one of the Americans, a woman. "They do," said the other American, a man. "I heard one the other day and it was that everlasting 'Aloha,' too."

"They're the queerest people I ever came across."

"Well, thank goodness, it's over for this time. I don't want to stand another such siege again for a while, I can tell you."

"I can never stand it again," said the woman. "I don't mind the nursing and all that at all, but when it comes to this—there's never any chance of getting back again when they've gone to the island, is there?"

"Not a shadow," said the man. "They might as well be in their graves. They'll have to stay there till they are."

"Jimmie," said the woman, speaking the man's name suddenly, "Jimmie, did you ever notice anything queer about that case of Kanaka Charlie?

"Kanaka Charlie," repeated the man. "No, he was just developing the disease. I never would have suspected him at all. If that friend of his had not given him away. Of course, when I saw that spot on his shoulder, it was plain enough."

"Was it?" said the woman speaking very quietly. "Jimmie, could a man simulate leprosy?"

"Simulate leprosy," echoed the man. "Well, I suppose a man could simulate smallpox if he tried hard enough—but who on earth would try it?"

"Well," said the woman, "I think Kanaka Charlie"—

The man laughed. "Kate," he said, "you sweet, delicious thing you, you were born to write novels. Medicine is too prosaic for you." He glanced down the palm-shaded avenue. There was no one near save an old native woman, with a load of wreaths to sell. The man took the woman's hand and swung it children-fashion. "Never mind, sweetheart," he said, "when I get my start you shan't practice or even hear—"

"But," began the woman.

"Sh," said the man, here come the Winstons," and the Winstons insisted upon taking the young doctor and his pretty young wife into the carriage with them and carrying them off to tea on the piazza, and after that the woman tried to forget the Day of the Long Farewell as fast as she could.

The little steamer bobbed down the harbor, past the reef and over the bar. Away, away, away she went, churning the purple sea into milky foam, and leaving the green, green land behind.

On deck the lepers sat. They leaned against the wall of the little cabin and stared a the last faint outline of the shore they would never see again. Some wept aloud, some sat in a stupor, some talked to themselves and repeated the names of those they loved over and over. And some were horrible to see beyond the telling, and some were marked out from happy men by the hideous blue of their pallor, and some hobbled footless, and looked upon an affrighted world with faces so twisted out of human semblance that they might have been the faces of wild beasts. But each and everyone of them wore somewhere a wreath of glowing flowers in the Hawaiian fashion. A young man stood in the bow of the little steamer and played upon his taro patch fiddle and sang. He might have stood for the statue of the bronze Adonis, but for the shriveled hand he no longer tried to hide. The wind lifted the white flowers of the sweet-scented jasmine he wore in his long black hair, and the songs he sang were gay with love and laughter.

A girl and a man sat on the deck near him. The girl was a slip of a brown thing with a wistful little face and the eyes of a wounded animal. She wore a loose white dress and she sat with her hands clasped like one who wants to pray. There was no outward mark of the dreadful sickness upon her. The man who sat beside her was young, too, and straight and tall. He was not handsome like the man who sang. He had the pose of a white man and the brow of the brown man, and his skin was thick and muddy with the yellowish brown of mixed blood. The girl frowned at something the singer said in his song. The man laughed, tenderly. "Why not," he said, "it is not so bad at the Island of Death. They say there are mangoes there and cocoanuts, and the fish of the sea are not afraid of the sickness. The jasmine grows there, too, they say. We will find some together, you and I."

The girl turned her soft eyes full on his. "Tell me," she said, "when did you get the sickness?"

The man smiled a twisted smile.

"When I heard that you had it," he said. The girl started. "It is true, then, what the woman doctor tried to tell me. It is not too late now." She made a move as if to rise. "What are you going to do?" said the man.

"I am going to find the white doctor. He is on the ship. I shall tell him."

"Wait," said the man. "Do you see the little god?" He pointed to a strip of faint moonlight on the shining sea, where the black fin of a shark cleft the water. "Ah, they are wise, the little gods, they know the ship that carries death.

"If you tell the doctor, I will make the little god a sacrifice tonight."

The girl looked the man straight in the eyes a long, long minute. Then she slipped her hand to his.

"It is well," she said. The man in the bow of the boat struck the strings of his fiddle with his strong brown hand.

"Ah le mi pi mi," he cried in a strange, buzzing treble.

The girl strang to her feet with an answering cry. The man beside her caught up a withered spray of a forgotten wreath that lay upon the deck, and in an instant he and the brown girl danced the wild, wild dance of the Hula, that is at once a religious rite and a frantic revel.

And the lepers sat upon the deck and laughed and beat the rhythmic time while the little bobbing ship coughed her way nearer to the Island of Death.

They are a strange people, the Hawaiians.

DISCONTENT.

Oh! benign and mellow sunbeam, you may shine upon the earth,
Filling all mankind with gladness and the singing birds with mirth;
You may kiss the dewey petals of the rare and fragrant rose,
And scatter wide its perfume on each passing breeze that blows;
You may bring to their fruition every spreading orchard tree,
And fill the blooming flowers with sweet honey for the bee.
But there's folks around about us who will view you with disdain,
And, withdrawing to their closets, will put up a prayer for rain.

Oh! thou thinking crystal raindrop, falling softly from on high,
Bringing earth a special blessing from the gray and kindly sky,
You may set the brooks a-purling and may paint the grasses green;
You may store your priceless treasures in some deep hid reservoir,
For the use of summer fountains when the skies are gray no more.
But in vain is your enchantment for a certain kind of men,
Who will pray whene'er they see you for the sun to shine again.

Summer, with your golden grain fields;
winter, with your spotless snow;
Spring, with flowers; mellow autumn,
with your ruddy sunset glow,
You may look your best and brightest,
clothe the earth with gold or white,
Fill your moons with softest radiance to emparadise the night,
Burnish up the gleaming rivers, frost with silver hill and plain,
But you'll find that all your efforts have been made, alas! in vain.
For some men are so unwilling to accept their earthly lot
That you'll always find them howling for the things they haven't got.

MISSIONS AND LOOTING.

Pittsburg Dispatch: The case of the Chinese missionaries before the civilized world is hardly improved by the article of Rev. Gilbert Reid in the Forum on "The Ethics of Loot." That gentleman was quoted before as declaring the rightfulness of plundering the insurrectionary Chinese, and any doubts of the correctness of that report are dispelled by his amplification of that doctrine in this magazine article. He follows up his former declaration of having looted when he got the chance by personally regretting "that the guilty suffered so little as my hands," and supports the logic of loot by declaring that it is "only the spoils of war," and "if there has been no war looting may be set down as wrong."

This exponent of the Christian doctrine of forgiveness and love for enemies does not seem to be aware that looting is especially forbidden by the laws of civilized warfare. The prohibition may be difficult of enforcement in the disturbed condition of the scene of hostilities, but it is distinctly specified as not only to be discouraged but suppressed as far as possible. But what can be said of this doctrine of a professed teacher of Christian religion compared with the injunctions of the founder of that religion to "love your enemies" and "do good to them that despitefully use you?"

The avowal of the principle of revenge and plunder by a professed teacher of Christianity may explain why common soldiers in China turned the campaign into an orgy of spoliation. But people desirous of having genuine Christianity taught to the heathen can hardly, after this, contribute to missions where Rev. Gilbert Reid's instruction prevails.

SHIRTWAISTS FOR MEN.

Baltimore American: The shirtwaist has the courage of its convictions. New York lately had a shirtwaist wedding, all the parties concerned wearing that cool and comfortable garment. The only real objection against it is that it is unconventional, but so, once upon a time, were knives and forks.

New York Tribune: Now, here is the germ of a great thought. "Give us the blouse, a man's garment." A blouse, according to the dictionary, is a loose upper garment worn by men in place of a coat. Certainly give us the blouse, or, in other words, call it a blouse and don't for pity's sake, call it a shirtwaist. The garment will be just the same and the resultant coolness will be just as delightful, but the stigma of aping the women will be forever removed. Sometimes there is a good deal in a name. By all means give us the blouse.

Philadelphia Inquirer: A new twist has been given to the intermittent question of the shirtwaist for men by the judge of Waterbury, Conn., who sent a mail carrier out of court for a coat. An inquiry naturally arises as to who was really in contempt in this instance. Evidently the judge thinks the carrier was the guilty party. But for the latter there is the plea that, as an accredited servant of the national government, he was wearing a summer livery which has been officially considered and recognized. In rebuking the man of letters, was not the man on the bench presuming to question the judgment of the government to which, even as a citizen of Connecticut, he owes allegiance?

New York Sun: What a pity it is that the masculine shirtwaist, unlike the feminine shirtwaist, refuses in so many instances to hold up its head and be graceful. Why so frequently does it seem to protest and revolt at the task laid out for it? Is it because it is timid or because it hasn't yet been properly schooled? Perhaps, after all, it is no more obstinate than the bathing suit, but, admitting that to be the fact, it appears very often to lack the courage of its convictions. With so many virtues boasted of it the shirtwaist should rise in its might and conquer the universe, or at least that part of it comprised in the North Atlantic states, and particularly the metropolitan district, contiguous thereto. If it has got any spunk it will make hay, or rather friends, while the sun shines

The Mystery of a Barrel.

Minneapolis Journal: Guam seems to have a hoodoo. Commander Seaton Schroeder, who now holds sway in Guam's metropolis, where Leary once ruled, has stirred up a decided rumpus among the enlisted men on the island by issuing a severe order because of the theft of one barrel of whisky from the naval hospital on the island. Men are kept in the barracks and not allowed out after taps. There is general fear expressed in the foreign offices of Europe that the rum has been drunk.

Exports and Imports.

Philadelphia Record: The treasury department statistics show that whereas agricultural and manufactures during the government year 1900 furnished respectively 55.11 per cent and 36.36 per cent of our total exports, the percentage figures for 1901 are respectively 61.59 per cent and 31.09 per cent. The decline in manufacture exports, it should be observed, is largely in copper ingots, petroleum and special machinery—such as bicycles—no longer in vogue in foreign lands. In the particular lines of mechanical production which American manufacturers affect there has been, indeed, a slight increase rather than a decrease of exported products.

Not Difficult to Please.

Kansas City Star: Congressman Hull does not have much faith in the provincial governments established in the Philippines. Yet the Iowa statesman is not so difficult to please as might be supposed. For instance, if he were given all the franchises and land grants that he hoped to lay his hands on when he went to the Philippines, he might have a great deal more confidence in the general order of things.

HIGHLY PLEASED

Twin City Commission Men Have Fine Time Here.

Banquet, Boulevard Drive and Ride on the Lake.

Routine Business Meeting With Nothing of Importance.

Thirty-one representatives of prominent Twin City commission firms left for their homes last night highly pleased with Duluth and with the charming entertainment given them by the members of the Duluth produce and fruit exchange. All are members of the Twin City Protective association, which the Duluth exchange joined some time ago. Soon after Duluth was taken into the association the Duluth exchange invited the Twin City people to come and have a good time. At that time it was not the idea that a business meeting should be held, but the Twin City members decided that it would be a good idea to hold the regular monthly meeting at the same time.

Saturday night the visitors, with enough Duluth commission men to make up a party of about sixty-five, sat down to a delightful banquet at the Spalding hotel. The banquet lasted from 8:30 o'clock to midnight, and after that a brief session was held, lasting a little over half an hour. At the meeting matters of interest to the trade and the association were discussed. The word protective in the name of the association refers to credits and to unfair dealers, both of which are the principal province of the organization, and the meetings are devoted to discussion of these and other business matters.

Yesterday morning the entertainment was continued. The visitors and their entertainers, to the number of fifty, took the boulevard drive, and to many of the guests it was an eye-opener. Returning to the Spalding at noon, lunch followed, and during the afternoon a number of the guests were taken on a street car ride to Lester Park. Early last evening a ride around the horn was taken on the steamer Bon Ami, which had been chartered for the occasion, and many of the visitors attended services in various churches last night. The guests, before they left, expressed themselves in terms of unmeasured praise regarding Duluth and the entertainment that had been given them. Many of them had never seen Duluth before, and it was to cultivate a friendly feeling between Duluth and the Twin Cities, as well as in the trade, that the Duluth commission men got up this event.

E. M. Ferguson, of the Duluth organization, was toastmaster at the banquet, and he conducted his office in a praiseworthy manner. The weather was perfect during the visit of the Twin City guests, and every detail of the program went off in a delightful manner.

The Duluth commission men are much incensed over the report in the morning paper that the business of the meeting was to enter a combine to maintain prices. They say that the prices were not mentioned from beginning to end of the affair, and that nothing of that nature was discussed. It was a social affair primarily, and the routine business that had to come up was cut very short.

The idea of a combine on prices of fruit and produce is ridiculous, said one of the commission men this morning. "It is utterly out of the range of possibility. If ten commission houses should receive each a car of stuff, every car would be different in quality and condition, and there would necessarily be many different prices. Not only did the matter of price have nothing to do with this meeting, but it has nothing to do with the association at any of its meetings. It is organized for an entirely different purpose."

Fraternity Alumni.

Saturday evening an alumni association of the Lamba Sigma fraternity was formed with the following members, all of whom belonged to Iota chapter, of this city: C. Brewer, A. Whipple, W. L'Estrange, F. Edson, J. C. Agnew, J. L. Bradley, J. Bradley, W. Bradley, H. Wentworth, C. Claypool, L. Richards, B. Howard, S. Marshall, B. Marshall, J. C. Skuse, P. Hall, N. Congdon, F. Gilbert, C. Adonis, R. Hugo.

The following officers were elected: President, William L'Estrange; vice president, Wilson Bradley; recording secretary, J. Carson Agnew; corresponding secretary, Leonard G. Bradley; treasurer, Charles Brewer.

Stevens Brought Back.

Cato Stevens, the colored man charged with holding up and robbing Matt Ericson a few days ago, and who was arrested in West Superior, has been brought back to Duluth for trial. He refused to come without requisition papers, which were obtained from the governor by County Attorney McClintock. Ericson claims that he was robbed of $80. Stevens' examination will be held on Wednesday morning. In default of $500 bail he was committed to the county jail.

Unknown Victims.

The body of an unknown man about 27 years of age, who was killed on the Eastern Minnesota railroad in the vicinity of Stony Brook, is lying at Durkan & Crawford's morgue. The accident happened on Friday. Very few details are known, except that he was walking on the track and in endeavoring to step out of the way of the train tripped and fell.

The body of another unknown is expected to arrive in the city today from Stony Brook. The man was drowned in a small stream near Congo, a station on the Eastern Minnesota road, about seven miles west of Stony Brook.

TRILBY IS DEAD.

Dr. McNulty's Valuable Bull Terrier No More.

Died—July 4, 1901, Trilby, aged 9 years, at the residence of Dr. N. B. McNulty.

Trilby was not a human being, but she had many traits that were almost human, and her death was mourned as deeply as that of many humans. She was Dr. N. B. McNulty's fighting bred bull terrier, and in spite of her fighting blood, which was the best there is in that line, her nature was gentle and she was a great favorite with children. All of the children in the neighborhood in which she lived are joining with Dr. McNulty and his family in mourning her loss, and only those who have lost a dog that seemed almost a member of the family because of long years of close association can realize how acutely the loss of such a household pet may be felt.

She was probably the most valuable dog in town. Her pedigree was a thing to be admired, and her every action showed her aristocratic descent. To her owners she was priceless, but in cold cash her value was high. As an instance of her nature may be mentioned an incident that occurred when Dr. McNulty's son was about a year old. The child was just learning the nursery rhyme that teaches the children the names of the features, and he was much interested in the study and liked to experiment by examining the features that are named in the rhyme. One day the child and the dog were playing on a bed. Dr. McNulty sat near by, and his attention was attracted by the thumping of the dog's tail on the headboard of the bed. Looking over, he saw that the child had innocently thrust a finger into the dog's eye up to the first joint. Trilby neither growled nor bit, but being in a position where she could not escape except by upsetting the child, simply bore the pain and waged her tail. The pain must have been keen, for it was several months before the inflammation was reduced.

When the boy began to go to kindergarten, Trilby accompanied him every morning, and came home after seeing him enter the school. Just before noon every day she would start out and be at the school door to meet him when he came out and bring him home. Great intelligence and a kindly disposition combined to make a dog nature that was much admired, and to make her loss very deeply felt.

Dr. P. O. Rue of Omaha Conspicuous Again.

Dr. P. O. Rue, who came into prominence in Omaha some time ago by being mistaken for Burt Bellinger, of this city, and who was then discovered to have married a young woman after a few days' acquaintance, in which she was horribly deceived, has appeared in a new role in Omaha, as will be seen from the following from the Daily Bee, of that city:

"Dr. P. O. Rue, the bridegroom who spent a week overtime in the city jail two months ago because he had no clothes with which to go abroad, has turned up as a pleador in the South Omaha bull fight, where he is known as William Smith. It will be remembered that after the tailor foreclosed on his effects, the doctor's wardrobe consisted of a suit of sky-blue underwear, but now he is garbed in khaki blouse and trousers all laced and fringed with rawhide thongs and embroidered with bangles. About his neck he wears a red and yellow bandana, while his sombrero has the broadest brim of any in the arena. It is the doctor's new role to ride a raw-boned broncho and to pretend to goad the bull with a thing called a pike.

"The fact that his Council Bluffs bride, with whom he lived a week, has sued him for divorce and $5000 alimony seems to give him little concern."

A SERIOUS OFFENSE.

James Fulton Arraigned on Assault Charge.

James Fulton was arraigned in municipal court Saturday afternoon, charged with assault in the second degree, a penitentiary offense. It is claimed that Fulton and a companion named Harry Thomas caused a disturbance in the Zenith restaurant, when the proprietor insisted on pay for the breakfast served them, that the two men were put out by Ed Wilberforce, the cook, and F. Trinko, a waiter. Fulton is charged with having rushed in afterward with an open knife and stabbed Wilberforce an open knife and stabbed Wilberforce in several places about the head and body. Both Fulton and Thomas will have their examination this afternoon. Neither were able to furnish bail.

Mrs. Kate Gasiewicz was arrested on Saturday night on the complaint of her husband, who charges her with conduct unbecoming a wife. The defendant is but 19 years of age, and her husband is employed on a coal dock. She was arrested about a week ago in company with a young man and was released from custody by putting up $10 bail, which she forfeited.

DULUTHS ARE BEST

Hansell's Men Win the Zenith City Championship.

Game in Which Rank Umpiring was the Feature.

Teams Will Now Consolidate---Games Saturday and Sunday.

Roy Hansell, manager. It still reads that way as yesterday afternoon the Duluth team defeated the Fashions at the Driving park by a score of 8 to 4. It was one of the most interesting games ever seen in Duluth—also the worst umpired one. Paddock umpired and it seemed that he did not even know the first rudiments of the game. He gave Duluth the chilly mit for the first part of the game and in the last part tried to even up by giving it to the Fashions. There were four very rank decisions made during the game and a good many slightly less rank ones. He was off on balls and strikes the whole way through, could not see fouls, and did not seem to know whether or not a man was out. Hurd was called out at third, in the third inning, when he was easily safe, and Hickey was permitted to remain on first when he turned to his left in returning to the base. Then there was some trouble in the seventh inning about an infield fly. Even the Fashion players at the time, acknowledged Paddock wrong, although some dispute has since arisen as to whether or not he was really right. These were the things that he gave Duluth. The bases were filled at the time that he called Hurd out and it almost threw the game away for Duluth.

In the ninth Reynolds got to first on a single and Hurd smashed out a terrific liner about ten feet outside of the foul line. Paddock said fair ball. Reynolds came home on it and Hurd got to third, where had he stayed, he could have probably brought in another run. He tried to get home, however, and Kline caught him. The Fashions went up in the air after this and Duluth easily brought in five more runs. Although Paddock did not seem to give either side the advantage of his rank umpiring it was nevertheless extremely bad, and the spectators left the game with a bad taste in their mouths.

Aside from the umpiring, the game was an interesting one, being won in the ninth inning. During the first eight innings Staub pitched a great game and received wonderful support. He pitched four hard games during last week, and went up in the last inning yesterday. Kline caught a first-class game until he got sore at the umpire, when he lost his head and made several bad plays.

On first Gerard was a wonder and played all around, covering his position without an error. Cheyne on second played a good game in the field although he did not show up so well with the stick. He spoiled a nice shingle for Hansell by going back about fifty feet and taking it in. This was Hicky's first appearance here on third and he fully came up to the expectations of his admirers. Hickey is a cigarmaker from Tower, and will undoubtedly play on the Duluth team when the consolidation takes effect. Bennett on short made four put outs and three errors. The errors made by both shorts and third basemen cannot be held against them very strongly, on account of the field in that vicinity. It was almost as bad as the umpire, which is saying a good deal. Pike Mullaney in the middle plot was there all of the time, and showed up in his usual good form.

Glenny pitched an excellent game for Duluth and struck out seven men. Randall is an A-1 outfielder, but seemed lost on third yesterday. Lambert dragged them down like cold potatoes and came in with some tall base running. All of the rest of the men played good ball with the general weak spot which in this case occurred in the sixth inning.

As to the insinuation made by the morning paper that the umpire was overwhelmingly biased against the Fashions it may be well to know that the Duluth men were roasting him all of the time during the first eight innings and did not occur to the cigarmakers to give him a whirl until Hurd knocked the three-base foul. Furthermore the Fashions secured the umpire.

About 500 people saw the game yesterday.

The two teams will consolidate under the management of Hansell and Van Praagh, and will play the Chicago Unions here next Saturday and Sunday. This team has the reputation of being the fastest colored team in the country and the fans will have an opportunity to see some exceptionally fast ball.

BURGLARY CLAIMED.

Harry Young Arrested Under Peculiar Circumstances.

Harry Young was arrested at an early hour Sunday morning, in the room of Tony Schulte, over Campbell & Doran's saloon, and taken to police headquarters, where the charge of burglary was lodged against him. Schulte on entering his room at an early hour in the morning, discovered Young in the room. The intruder Coolly ordered the rightful owner to vacate, telling him he had no business in there. While the argument was going on Schulte's roommate, J. R. Burnell awakened and denied all knowledge of the stranger's presence. Young claimed that he had come down from Cloquet and was searching for a friend by the name of Smith and thought that the man asleep on the bed was his friend. Nothing of value belonging to the occupants of the room was found on Young and he declares there is no case against him.

The fourth day of July is the brow of the hill of summer merchandise prices—once past it the descent begins, and in many cases it is abrupt and startling—Qualities, of course, remain unchanged—but the before and after prices are vastly different—and the reason of it obvious—Wholesalers and manufacturers are about to enter their Fall season—all summer goods must be cleared out—consequently we have opportunities to buy at half and and less than half the earlier season's prices—and in our own stocks many lines are in so depleted a condition as to colors, sizes, patterns, etc., that a quick clearance is urgent—and a cut price is the quickest way. THESE FOR EXAMPLE:

Freimuth's Freimuth's

Silks

A CANDIDATE

W. L. McLennan Would Be State Public Examiner.

It is expected that Governor Van Sant will announce the appointment of a public examiner this month, the official selected to take his place Jan. 1, 1902. William L. McLennan, of this city, is a candidate for the position. He entered and filled immediately after the election of Governor Van Sant and has behind him the support of both Republican political factions of this county and a large following of other than political. A number of congressmen have endorsed his candidacy and there is said to be a feeling that Duluth should have the place having received nothing in the way of appointments at large.

Mr. McLennan has been in the employ of the American Exchange bank for thirteen years and his ability and judgment are vouched for by the officials of the bank, in fact they are among his most ardent supporters for the place.

The position is now held by Gen. E. M. Pope, who has made a fine record. The appointment is for three years and the salary is $3500 a year. The examiner is required to be an accountant of expert ability.

MAY CONFISCATE.

Outfit of Illegal Hunters to Be Taken.

Commissioner Fullerton was authorized yesterday by the state game commission to confiscate the guns and dogs of persons that begin shooting game birds before the opening of the season in September. He may employ as many deputies as are needed. Last year the illegal shooting during July and August was so extensive that it spoiled the shooting for the sportsmen that obeyed the law and did not enter the fields until September.

The commission approved the plans for improving the fish hatchery, and ordered the work to begin at once. The commission will spend $6500 in building five new ponds and opening the springs on the land donated by the city of St. Paul for the use of the hatchery.

VESSELS NEEDED.

Lumber Shipments Said to Be Retarded.

The lumber trade journals of the Northwest say that the white pine receipts at the great lakes markets have been unusually heavy of late, in spite of the difficulty in getting carriers. They say if all the vessels could have been obtained that were wanted and if the men could have been secured to load and unload the carriers, business would have been still heavier, but as it is there is little ground for complaint, and wholesale yard dealers see some prospect of being able to bring their assortments up to the proper point and to lay in a stock for their next winter's trade. The activity in the white pine trade is said to not only be experienced in the Northwest, but is felt in all the wholesale points such as Saginaw, Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo, and the Tonawandas. There is a temporary lull in orders during the heated period, and some claim it is induced by threatened strikes. After all, there are very few disquieting signs, and manufacturers and dealers, generally, are looking forward to a continuence of the very large season's business enjoyed thus far.

ODD FELLOWS

General Installation of Officers Held Saturday Evening.

The Odd Fellows lodges of Duluth installed officers Saturday evening and it was a very auspicious occasion and one of great interest to all of the Odd Fellows of the city. Mayor T. W. Hugo is grand patriarch of the Encampment degree and grand master of the subordinate lodges, and he was present and officiated at the installation. He was assisted in the installment of the officers of Duluth Encampment by the following: Grand senior warden, R. E. Patterson; grand junior warden, R. E. McFarlane; grand high priest, E. J. Duffies; grand scribe, D. E. Case; grand I. S., W. J. McFadden. The officers installed were: Chief patriarch, John Gillis; senior warden, A. H. Paul; high priest, H. W. Toene; scribe, W. S. Hoffman; treasurer, Earnest Kugler.

For the subordinate lodges the installing officers were: Grand master, T. W. Hugo; grand warden, William Bernard; grand marshal, A. H. Paul; grand secretary, R. E. Patterson; grand guard, R. M. Green. Those installed were:

Duluth lodge—Noble grand, Noble Sampson; vice grand, D. L. LaBarr; R. S., H. W. Toene; F. S., Ernest Geoving; treasurer, John Ebeling.

Zenith City lodge—N. G., William Marquardt; V. G., George Crummett; R. S., T. B. Perry; F. S., W. S. Hoffman; treasurer, D. E. Stevens.

Central Link lodge—N. G., F. B. Fitch; V. G., R. D. McKercher; R. S., George M. Jensen; F. S., N. B. McPhail; T., W. C. Wright.

THE SHOOT

Hughes of Palmyra, Wis., Won First Money.

The shoot of the Central Gun club, which was held here last week, was won by Hughes, the Palmyra, Wis., man who secured the lead at the start and kept it during the whole two days, getting 293 birds out of a possible 300. This is a splendid record for the Wisconsin man as the conditions were unfavorable for good shooting. Hirschey, of Minneapolis, was second with 288, and Morrison, of St. Paul, came out third with 287. Marsh was fourth. Dr. Day was the best Duluth shot, coming out fifth in the final average with 279 birds to his credit. Although the Duluth men did not rank very high in the averages they succeeded in carrying off several prizes, Dr. Day and J. W. Nelson got something out of each of the twenty events, Graham something in nineteen, Berry in sixteen, Thomas in thirteen and Adams in twelve. Ferguson got something out of each of the seven events that he entered; while Hazard did the same thing in two. The Central Gun club won $50 for its general average for the two days.

Sam Higgins, of 209 West Ninth street, found the Parker gun that C. W. Bird lost Saturday and returned it to J. W. Nelson, who forwarded it to the owner at Fairmont, Minn.

The final scores follow:

TRANSFER MADE.

Duluth Grocery Company Takes Crookston House.

The transfer of the Ray Mercantile company of Crookston to the Wright-Clarkson Mercantile company, of Duluth, has been made. It was announced some time ago that this was to be done. A special from Crookston, says:

"The formal transfer of the business of the Ray Mercantile company, a large wholesale grocery company of Crookston, to the Wright-Clarkson company, of Duluth, was completed yesterday. The deal was a cash one, the purchasers buying out the entire interests of F. S. Lycan and E. C. Bates, of this city, and Mr. Ray, of Crookston. The old company did a heavy business in Northern Minnesota. The new concern will increase the capital stock to $100,000, and will continue the established business in Minnesota and will also make a bid for business in North Dakota.

"It had been rumored for some time past that Messrs. Lycan and Bates had disposed of their interests, but it was not known that the business was to be taken by the Duluth company. By this deal they are entirely out of the wholesale business in the Grand Forks Mercantile company some months ago."

LOWRY ON HAND

To Discuss Superior Street Railway Trouble.

Thomas Lowry, of Minneapolis, is in Superior this afternoon with other gentlemen interested in the Duluth-Superior Traction company and his legal advisers, consulting with the city authorities in regard to the pending settlement of the street railway difficulty. The new city ordinance, and the franchise submitted by the street railway people, will be discussed at a special session of the city council of Superior tomorrow evening. All the details in the controversy will be thoroughly gone over at the council meeting tomorrow night, and the matter will come up for final disposition at the next regular session of the superior aldermen. Mr. Lowry will consult with the Superior lawmakers today and tomorrow, and it now looks as if the controversy which has caused a great deal of discussion in the Wisconsin city for the last year was near the end.

ANOTHER DECLINE

Wheat Suffers Another Loss of More Than a Cent.

Good Weather and Weak Cables Were the Factors.

Decrease In World's Shipments and Amount on Passage.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 8.—The wheat market started out early and lower this morning and sold down further soon after the opening. The chief bearish factors were the fine weather in the wheat districts of the Northwest and the weak cables, Liverpool closing ¼@1⅛d lower. There was a decrease of 2,022,000 bus in the amount on passage, and the world's shipments showed a falling off, being 7,-258,000 bus for the past week, against 8,-853 bus for the preceding week. The visible supply of wheat decreased 1,105,000 bus. Primary receipts were 1,065,000 bus, last year 540,000. Clearances of wheat and flour equalled 563,000 bus. Broomhall cabled that India is still without rain and that the situation will be serious if the dry weather continues. It is estimated, however, that there will be an exportable surplus from that country of from 25,000,-000 to 35,000,000.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 353 cars, against 514 last week and 196 last year. Chicago receipts, 53 cars, 21 of contract grade.

Trading was fairly active in futures on the Duluth board. September wheat opened ⅝c off at 64c, sold at 64⅝c at 9:45, declined to 63⅝c at 11:10, recovered to 63¾c at 11:30 reacted to 63¼c at 11:35, sold up again to 63⅞c at 12:16, held steady there for a time and then again slumped sharply, and closed at 63⅛c bid, a decline for the day of 1⅞c. Action of Chicago declined 1c and Minneapolis, 1⅜c.

Cash sales were 60,000 bus at 1¼c over September.

September flax was off 4c and October declined even more, a total of 8c for the day. Other course grains were unchanged in price.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 67¾c; to arrive, 67¾c; July, 67¾c; September, 64⅜c. No. 1 northern, cash, 64¾c; to arrive, 64¾c; July, 64⅜c; September, 63⅝c; August, 63⅝c. No. 2 northern, 59¾c. No. 3 spring, 55¾c. Oats, 27¼-27c. Rye, 46¾c. Flax, cash, $1.35; September, $1.50; September, Northwest, $1.51; October, $1.40.

Inspection—Wheat, 33; corn, 1; oats, 1; rye, 2; flax, 4. Receipts—Wheat, 53,167 bus; corn, 3592 bus; flax, 13,894 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 197,514 bus; corn, 15,636 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Easier in Tone, Corn Was Stronger.

Chicago, July 8.—Good weather and weak cables combined to create an easier tone in wheat today. September opened ¼@⅜c lower at 64⅝c and declined to 64¾c. There was a decrease on passage of 2,-022,000 bus while the world's shipments for the week were 7,238,000 bus against 8,853,-000 bus last week and 7,469,000 bus a year ago. Northwest receipts were 353 cars against 514 last week and 196 a year ago. Local receipts were 53 cars, with 21 contract.

September closed weak, ⅛c higher at 64¾c.

Corn was strong on general buying. September opened ⅛@⅜c to ½@⅝c higher at 47¾c to 48c and rose to 48⅝c. Receipts were 170 cars, 6 of contract grade.

September touched 48⅛c but reacted on profit taking and closed ⅝c higher at 48 @48¼c.

Oats were strong on outside demand. September opened a shade lower to ⅜@½c higher at 29½c to 29⅝c and rose to 30⅛c. Receipts were 51 cars.

Provisions were weak, on lack of demand. September pork opened unchanged at $14.30 and declined to $14.17½. Lard opened unchanged to 5c lower at $8.60@8.65. Ribs were unchanged at $8.02½.

Close: Wheat, July 63½@⅝c; August, 63⅝c; September, 64⅝@⅝c; October, 64⅞c. Corn, July, 46⅝@⅝c; September, 48@48⅛c. Oats, July, 29¼c; September, 30c. MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, July 8.—Wheat—Liverpool cables were weak today, closing a penny lower for wheat and brought no offers for cash wheat at anywhere near the market. Our market opened weak and had very few reactions during the day, closing at the lowest point of the session at 64¾c for September. There was considerable especially for the Pacific coast. Had it not been for this and the strength in the coarse grains the market would certainly have worked lower.

Corn—We have had a strong market all day. The Southwest, especially St. Louis, being free buyers. Local longs liquidated on the bulge and the market closed 48¾c, being ⅛c under the highest point touched. All the reports indicate continued hot, dry weather throughout the Southwestern quarters, 4,000,000 quarters below the government estimate.

Spain is reaping a magnificent harvest estimated at 12,500,000 quarters.

The Italian harvest promises to reach the full average and the Roumanian harvest is estimated at 9,000,000 quarters, leaving 3,000,000 available for export.

The spring wheat in Russia is less promising. In several provinces the winter wheat crop, however, is splendid, according to the moderate standard prevailing. The other autumn sown crops are all above the average, but the spring barley and oats are below par.

IT IS BRIGHT.

E. J. Murphy So Considers the Northwestern Crop Outlook.

The crop prospects in the Northwest are splendid, according to E. J. Murphy, traveling auditor for A. J. Cummings, commission broker, who has just returned from a trip through the Northwest that included the principal portions of the wheat country. When asked by The Herald for the result of his observations he said:

"Since I left Duluth, three weeks ago, I have traveled between 1200 and 1500 miles and I must say that we have in the states of North and South Dakota and Minnesota a most wonderful prospect for a bounteous crop of all kinds of grain especially wheat, of which I predict a yield of 800,000,000 bushels, including winter wheat. In only one spot in all three states did I see any damage. That was at Olivia, Minn., where for a space about five miles wide and twenty-five miles long everything is a total failure owing to a severe hailstorm which cut everything off short and drove all garden truck into the ground. There are other small spots in North Dakota, where hail fell, but the damage was only nominal.

"I drove across the Sisseton reservation, and even the Indians have large wheat fields and are thinking about ordering automobiles after they market their wheat. Many of them are said to have sent for price lists already.

"Oh, don't ask me what I think of the stock market, as I have been doing nothing for some time except to see wheat and talk about it. But if money does not get too tight there should be some good 'buys' in the stock market on a break. I shall remain here for a few weeks, as it was so hot in some parts of the West that I have been placed in a position to appreciate this Duluth weather too much not to stay and enjoy it awhile."

SYNN ON TRIAL.

Charged With the Murder of Farmer Applegate.

Trenton, N. J., July 8.—The trial of Samuel Synn, charged with murder of Thomas Applegate, the farmer, who was found dead in his barn with his skull crushed several months ago, was begun here today. After the jury had been selected Prosecutor Crossley said he expected to prove Synn's guilt. He charged that undue intimacy existed between Synn and Mrs. Applegate.

MAY PAY THEM.

Secretary of the Treasury May Refund Duties.

Washington, July 8.—Comptroller of the Treasury Tracewell has decided that the secretary of the treasury has authority under the law to refund Laschelles & Co., of New York, the duties paid by them on sugar imported from Porto Rico between th date the treaty of Paris took effect and the date of the approval of the Foraker act. The duties so paid amounted to over $470,000. This decision is based upon the recent insular decisions of the supreme court. Other claims are on file for refunds amounting to $1,500,000.

SEVEN SOLDIERS DROWNED.

Kehl, Baden, July 8.—While the Nineteenth pioneer battalion was practicing on the Rhine today, a boat containing sixteen soldiers capsized. Seven of the men were drowned.

PENSION GRANTED.

Washington, July 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—An increase of pension to $10 monthly has been granted to Peter Schneider, of Elmdale, Minn.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Raids By Bears Forced Down the Prices Repeatedly.

The Leaders Dropped Violently In the Final Dealings.

Close Active and Semi-Demoralized at the Lowest.

New York, July 8.—The market was weak and feverish at the opening, after the four days' holiday, some of the stocks showing violent declines. Atchison broke 2⅝. Union Pacific 1⅜, Pennsylvania, 1¼, Southern Pacific 1⅜ and many other stocks a fraction. United States Steel stocks were exceptions, the common selling at 47 to 46½ on the transfer of 20,000 shares, compared with 46½ on Wednesday last, and the preferred advanced 1⅛.

The United States Steel stocks were vigorously supported in face of heavy offerings, blocks running up to 4000 and 5000 shares being taken. Prices elsewhere continued to yield weakly, and United States Steel ultimately gave way 1¾ for the common and ⅜ for the preferred. The Grangers, Pacifics and Southwesterns were most affected, Missouri Pacific losing 4½. Atchison, St. Paul, Rock Island and Illinois Central from 3 to 4½ and Union Pacific 2¾. Among the specialties there were losses of 2 to 2⅜ for the New York public utilities, General Electric and Tennessee Coal. There were many declines of 1 to 1¾ for the general list. There was no marked recovery during the first hour. American Linseed preferred rose 3½ against their general current.

The bears made the most of the current uneasiness regarding the money outlook and succeeded in forcing out many stop-loss orders. Losses run from 3 to 6 points in the granger, traction, Pacific, Southwestern, Illinois Central, Tennessee Coal, Sugar, General Electric and others. Bonds were weak in sympathy with stocks.

The only authentic demand for stocks at the rally invited a new raid by the bears which carried prices lower than before, some of them to the extent of between 1 and 2 points from the extreme decline in St. Paul reached 7¼, and in Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Union Pacific, Rock Island and General Electric from 5 to 6 points. Some of the Eastern railroads showed added weakness, Pennsylvania loosing 3½ in all. There was a quick rally again before 1 p. m., amounting to a point in the leaders, but which did not hold. LaClede Gas rose 7⅝ over the previous selling price on two transactions.

The traders bought moderately of some stocks and sold others. The latter included Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Baltimore & Orio, Pennsylvania, United States Steel and Tennessee Coal, all of which reached the lowest prices of the day. The Western stocks and industrials were firmer and the support of these caused a steadier tone all around at 2 o'clock.

Prices hung suspended for a time and then yielded once more. The most notable weakness was in the same stocks as heretofore. St. Paul dropping an extreme 10⅜. Union Pacific, Atchison and Missouri Pacific also went lower than before, as did a number of trunk lines, coalers and specialties, including the United States Steel stocks. Covering caused some struggling rallies. The leaders dropped violently in the final dealings and the closing was active and semi-demoralized at the lowest.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 8.—Cotton opened steady, 5 to 8 points lower on weak cables. Soon after the call shorts turned for cover and light investment buying set in, on which prices rallied, to 775 for August, 761 for October and 763 for January, around which level they hovered much of the rest of the forenoon. Trade was extremely light. Toward midday shorts bid the market up several points to 776 for August, 762 for October and 765 for January. Noon bids showed a net loss of 2 to 4 points.

Cotton spot closed dull, ½ lower; middling uplands, 8¾; middling gulf, 9; sales, 2755. Cotton futures closed, July, 851; August, 779; September, 761; October, 733; November, 760; December, 763; January, 766; February, 766; March, 769; April, 771.

RIFLE SHOOT

English Will Profit in Annual Practice by Boer Lessons.

New York, July 8.—The program of the Bisley (England) rifle meeting, which begins today, shows, the Tribune's London correspondent thinks, that some, at least, of the lessons of the Boer war, have not been overlooked. The rapid fire principle has been introduced in many short-distance competitions, both for teams and individuals, and efficiency in firing at extreme range is also encouraged. In the latter case the target will be undistinguishable to the naked eye, and readily adjustable telescopic sights and artificial rests will be allowed.

The most interesting competition, however, will be that founded by Lord Roberts for snap shooting by teams from sections or companies. The men who are concealed behind breastworks will, on the sound of a whistle, rise, fire and return to concealment, the entire exposure not exceeding four seconds. With the exception of the Canadians, the only colonists who have arrived are two men from Cape Colony and one from Rhodesia. Unlike the disastrous gathering of last year, the meeting promises to be a great success, the number of entries showing an increase of nearly 5000.

RESUME WORK.

Men of the Republic Mills Return to Labor.

Youngstown, Ohio, July 8.—The resumption of the mills of the Republic Iron and Steel company, the bar iron combine, today is general after a week's shut down for repairs and 25,000 iron workers in the twenty-eight mills of the country returned to work. The scale was signed a week ago, the men getting an advance of about 8 per cent. The workers wanted several weeks off, but the press of business made that impossible.

BOER CASUALTIES.

As Reported to the House of Commons.

London, July 8.—The financial secretary of the war office, Lord Stanley, in the house of commons today, in answer to a question gave the total number of Boers killed, wounded or made prisoners, from among the active commands recently as follows: March 1, 472; April 2, 434; May 2, 640; June, incomplete, 1583.

STRUCK BY TRAIN.

Le Grand, Ia., Man Killed on Track.

St. Paul, July 8.—A Marshalltown, Ia., special to the Dispatch says: Henry Knudson, a Norwegian resident of Le-Grand, was struck and instantly killed by west bound Northwestern passenger train No. 1 in the East End yards in this city at 1:25 this morning. No one apparently knew that the tragedy had happened until about 5 o'clock when his dead body was found about forty feet from the rails.

BURNED TOWN.

Boers Enter Murraysburg at Cape Colony.

London, July 8.—A special dispatch from Cape Town, dated today, says Scheper's Boer command has entered Murraysburg, Cape Colony, and burned the public buildings and residences. The town was not garrisoned.

PATROLMAN KILLED.

Was Making An Arrest At Humboldt, Ia.

Humboldt, Iowa, July 8.—Ole McMillan, night patrolman here, was shot and killed by J. Metzner, while the latter was resisting arrest yesterday. McMillan's body was riddled with a charge of buckshot. Metzner is said to have been abusing his family when the officer attempted to arrest him.

LINES NOT SOLD.

Tacoma, July 8.—George B. Dodwell, of London, head of the Dodwell line of steamers, and Fred Dodwell, American manager, have returned from a trip down the sound. Manager Dodwell said there was absolutely no foundation for the stories sent out to the effect that the Morgan syndicate had purchased the Dodwell Oriental and Alaska line of steamers.

ARMOUR AND YERKES.

Liverpool, July 8.—Among the passengers booked to sail on the White Star liner Oceanic from Liverpool Wednesday via Queenstown for New York are Mr. and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour and C. L. Yerkes, of Chicago.

A RESTING PROGRAM.

Canton, Ohio, July 8.—President and Mrs. McKinley closely observed their "resting program" today. Mrs. McKinley continues to gradually regain strength. President McKinley and Secretary Cortelyou devoted some time to official work during the morning.

"I owe my whole life to Burdock Blood Bitters. Scrofulous sores covered my body. I seemed beyond cure. B. B. B. has made me a perfectly well woman." Mrs. Charles Hutton, Berville, Mich.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

The Waverly Was Floated By the Tug Boscobel.

Received $600 For Getting Her Off Inside One Hour..

Vesselmen at Chicago Holding Out For Advance on Wheat.

Port Huron, July 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The tug Boscobel was to get $600 or nothing for one hour's work in getting the Waverly floated. She went ashore in trying to release the steamer Venus which stranded off the beach at False Presque Isle. Before the end of the hour the Waverly floated.

WAITING AN ADVANCE.

Chicago, July 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a much improved demand for tonnage, vesselmen were generally holding today for 1¾ cents an wheat. Some of them were confident that the advance would be scored before night. Wheat is the main item in the grain trade today.

LAKE SUPERIOR'S LEVEL.

J. H. Darling, United States assistant engineer, reports as follows: The mean level of Lake Superior in June, 1901, by the United States gauge at Houghton, Mich., was 0.94 feet above low water datum. This is 0.17 feet higher than for the preceding month, and the rate of rise is less than the normal which is 0.32 feet for May to June. The stage last month was 0.32 feet higher than in June, 1900, a year ago, and is 0.40 feet higher than the average June stage for a period of twenty-six years. The rainfall at Duluth for June was 9.09 inches, as reported by United States Forecast Officer Richardson, this being 4.54 inches in excess of the normal. It was heaviest during the last quarter of the month, and, if general over the entire lake, will have a marked effect on the July stage.

MARINE MEN HIT.

Buffalo, July 8.—The failure of two banks here within a week—one, the Niagara, being under the nominal management of Capt. M. M. Drake—has touched marine circles as well as business generally. Nobody supposes for a moment that Capt. Drake is to blame for the failure, but the blame is all laid on the president of the Niagara and the vice president of the City, P. H. Griffin, a well-known car-wheel manufacturer and said-to-be millionaire. Drake & Mayham have considerable money tied up in the Niagara, but will no doubt get it all in time. The firm benefited by the slow payment on a lot of ore at Ohio ports. Had this money been in on time it would have been tied up, too.

HOW GILCHRIST FINANCES DEALS.

The following from the Detroit Tribune affords an explanation of the manner in which the Gilchrist vessel deals are financed: "The Lake Shore Transit company and the Gilchrist Transportation company have executed trust mortgages for $125,000 each to secure an issue of bonds for a like amount on two new steel freight steamers built last summer by the Detroit Drydock plant of the American Shipbuilding company. The bonds are first mortgage, 5 per cent securities and cover the Lake Shore and the Gilchrist, sistear steamers. Secretary McPhersen said yesterday that these steamboat bonds are becoming favorites and that there is no trouble in disposing of them at good prices."

ANOTHER CONTRACT LET.

The American Shipbuilding company has closed a contract with W. C. Richardson, of Cleveland, for the construction of a 6000-ton steamer to be ready for service by the opening of navigation next season. She will be nine feet longer than the John T. Hutchinson, which came out this season. Other deals for new tonnage are on and it is predicted that the shipbuilding trust will have work enough to reopen the Bay City yard.

STEAMER HARLEM TO BE SOLD.

The steel steamer Harlem, which spent an entire winter on the rocky bottom of Isle Royale, Lake Superior, and after her rescue underwent thorough repairs, is to be sold under the hammer at Port Huron on Friday next, July 12. The keel length of the Harlem is 288 feet, beam 41 feet and depth 26 feet; measurement 2300 gross tons. Her wheat carrying capacity is 80,000 bushels.

OF INTEREST TO MARINERS.

The Canadian government has sent out notice of the following changes to aids to navigation: A temporary fixed white light is now shown from a lantern suspended about five feet above the water on poles driven on the shoal extending south from Stag island, St. Clair river, which will be maintained until the stronger mast light can be rebuilt. The light is located about fifty feet north of the position of the mast carried away. On July 1 the temporary light maintained on the ruins of the old crib on Pelee spit (the dummy) was discontinued permanently.

Notice has been given by the light house board that the light on Rain's island gas buoy No. 18, Sailor's Encampment, St. Mary's river, Mich., was relighted on June 30.

The official time of crossing the starting line was: Constitution, 11:55:46; Columbia, 11:56:07; Independence, 11:56:22. The Independence, after her sharp contest with the Herreshoff boat, experienced some difficulty in reaching the line before the gun was fired. A few minutes after crossing the line the Constitution took a short tack to the port, in order to establish herself safely to windward of the other two yachts, and then swung round to starboard, heading out to sea. The Independence found the conditions almost exactly the same as in Saturday's race, and Haff began to fall aff to leeward of the other two boats, and ten minutes after the start was well astern. The Constitution, however, seemed to point higher and to foot faster than ever, and rapidly pulled out on the Columbia, so that within fifteen minutes she was a good eighth of a mile ahead.

12:35 p. m.—The yachts are once more standing out to sea on the starboard tack. During the last few minutes of sailing, the Constitution appears to have opened up considerably on the two other boats and to have a lead of nearly a mile over the Columbia and a mile and a quarter over the Independence.

1:15 p. m.—The yachts are now standing toward Point Judith on the port tack, the Constitution apparently leading the Columbia over a mile, while the latter boat is about half a mile ahead of the Independence. The wind is freshening and now blows about seven knots off shore. Down to the southwest a rain squall appears to be making up.

1:40 p. m.—The wind has increased to over 8 knots an hour and both the Independence and the Columbia appear to be picking up on the Constitution. The Constitution is heading down toward the mark on the port tack.

2:16 p. m.—The Constitution turned the first mark at 2:15:20, as taken from shore, and immediately headed over toward the second with the sheets well started. The Columbia and the Independence were some distance away at the time.

2:28 p. m.—The Columbia rounded the first mark, as seen from shore, at 2:26:10, having been beaten over ten minutes by the Constitution in a ten-mile beat to windward.

2:56 p. m.—The Independence rounded the first mark at 2:55:25, forty minutes behind the Constitution. At that time the Constitution was a good seven miles away, running towards the second mark.

IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Death of Senator Kyle and His Probable Successor.

May Result In Return of Pettigrew to the Senate.

Republicans Think They Can Carry Virginia This Year.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, July 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The death of James Henderson Kyle, senior United States senator from South akota, last Monday, is regretted by that class of reformers of which Senator Kyle was a conspicuous leader, and his demise is also regretted by politicians of all parties who became intimately acquainted with the preacher-statesman from South Dakota. The death of Senator Kyle may result in the return of Richard Franklin Pettigrew, who was retired by the people of South Dakota from the United States senate March 3, 1901.

Former Senator Pettigrew intended, before the death of Mr. Kyle, to become a candidate in opposition to his re-election to the United States senate. The death of Mr. Kyle may make it easier for Mr. Pettigrew to bring about his own return to the senate. Notwithstanding the fact that Senator Kyle was first elected as a so-called "Popocrat," he was re-elected by the assistance of Senator Hanna and other Republican leaders, and after that time voted with the Republicans in the senate on all important questions. Had Senator Kyle lived he would have been a Rpublican aspirant for re-election to the senate. He would have been opposed for this place by Mr. Pettigrew, who was first elected to the senate as a Republican, and later deserted that party to become affiliated with the queer political faction in South Dakota which first made it possible for Mr. Kyle, who was then drawing a salary of $800 a year as a preacher of the gospel, to come to the United States senate at a salary of $5000, with perquisites which go with positions of this kind.

Messrs. Pettigrew and Kyle never worked together in the United States senate. Mr. Pettigrew declined to discuss questions of interest to the state which he represented with Mr. Kyle because the latter was first elected as a Popocrat. After Mr. Pettigrew secured re-election as a Popocrat himself, he also declined to have anything to do with Mr. Kyle because he had decided that it was to the best interests of the people of his state that he affiliate with the Republicans.

Shortly before the close of the last session of congress, Senator Pettigrew informed some of his friends that he proposed to succeed Mr. Kyle in the senate at the close of the latter's term, March 3, 1903. At that time it was believed that Senator Pettigrew was anything but a wealthy man. Shortly after his retirement from congress, however, through the instrumentality, it is said, of James J. Hill, Mr. Pettigrew was able to make nearly a half million dollars in Wall Shreet, and since that time, by a lucky speculation, has been able to add largely to this amount.

The present Republican governor of South Dakota will appoint a Republican successor to Mr. Kyle before the Fifty-seventh session of the national congress assembles next December. The present governor of South Dakota elected as a Republican, is Charles N. Herled. At this writing it is known that Governor Herled has several good Republicans in view to appoint to the senate in place of Mr. Kyle, deceased. It is impossible, however, according to reports from Pierre, South Dakota's capital, to tell just what Governor Herled will do. It is possible that his choice will be National Committeeman Kittridge, of Sioux Falls.

As previously stated, the death of Senator Kyle will make it possible for Mr. Pettigrew to be elected United States senator again at Pierre during the winter preceding the expiration of Mr. Kyle's term. With the money that former Senator Pettigrew now has, it may be possible for him next year to bring about the election of an anti-Republican legislature in South Dakota, and if he succeeds, his return to the United States senate, according to the views of South Dakota politicians, is assured.

The Republicans of Virginia have an idea that, this being an off year in politics, their party stands a pretty good chance to defeat the Democrats this year.

The leaders of the Republican party are, at least, preparing to put up a very big fight in the Old Dominion this year. Their idea is that the disaffection in the Democratic party is so pronounced that in the coming campaign the Republicans, if the right men are put upon the state ticket, can win at the polls this fall. The Virginia constitutional convention has been in session at Richmond for several weeks. It has been anything but harmonious. It may be stated that the members of this constitutional convention have been watching every point, both in connection with the work of that body and in the campaign of the Democrats, hoping to turn them to their own advantage. It appears that such Republican leaders as Col. Summers, Messrs. Blair, Davis and Moore are ever on the alert in this direction, and are supposed to be arming themselves with campaign thunder in huge quantities.

Robert W. Blair, the young Republican leader from Wytheville, was recently in Washington. "We are going to elect our state ticket this fall." This is the statement Mr. Blair made to a Washington correspondent. When asked upon what grounds he hoped to defeat the Democrats this fall, he replied: "On the work of the constitutional convention and dissensions in the Democratic ranks, brought on by the present campaign for the nomination for governor."

Inside information from Virginia shows that it is not the purpose of the Republicans to make a fight for the legislature, but to center their forces on an effort to capture the state ticket. The Democrats are aware of the fact that the Republicans are making a powerful effort to win, and will, without doubt, be able to secure the assistance of the national Republican campaign committee.

The Republicans of Virginia, however, are having considerable trouble regarding the selection of a man to head the state ticket. The men talked of for the governorship by the Republicans are J. Hampton Hoge, former Congressman Jacob Yost and Gen. Thomas L. Rosser. It will be recalled that Gen. Rosser was a Confederate, and after the close of the war of the rebellion, trained with the Democrats of Virginia for many years. At the present time he is acting with the Republicans. It is not altogether likely that Gen. Rosser will secure the nomination for the governorship this year, at least. It may be stated further that all the indications now point to the selection of J. Hampton Hoge for this position.

Democrats from Virginia concede that, owing to the ill-feeling which has been aroused over the selection of a candidate by the Democrats for the governorship, there is a possibility that the Republicans may carry the state. The contest between Attorney General Montague and Representative Swanson for this honor has created a good deal of dissension among the Democrats of the state. The Montague faction of the Democratic party in Virginia assert that the success of their leader and the defeat of Swanson means a turn-down for the Democratic in Virginia. In view of the fact that Senators Daniel and Martin have for some time been the manipulators of this so-called machine, all indications point to a bitter contest between the machine and anti-machine Democrats, and the Virginia Democrats are honest enough to assert that it is impossible to tell, at this time, whether Montague, who will be nominated for governor at Norfolk in August, will be defeated by J. Hampton Hoge, who is almost certain to be the Republican nominee for the governorship. If Montague wins easily, there is probably defeat in store for both Senators Daniel and Martin. The Democrats opposed to them, and who are now affiliating with the anti-machine men, declare that the election of Montague means the political death-knell of both senators. In a word, if Montague wins by a fair majority, candidates with senatorial ambitions will spring up throughout the Old Dominion, and the outcome will be the retirement to private life of Messrs. Daniel and Martin.

If, however, the Republican state ticket is elected with the pronounced assistance of the machine Democrats in Virginia, both Daniel and Martin are pretty certain to be re-elected when their terms in the United States senate expire.

LANDS OF INDIANS

Will Be Opened for Settlement on August Sixth.

No Grand Scramble for Location Will be Allowed.

Everyone Must Register and Participate in General Drawing.

Washington, July 8.—The proclamation of President McKinley opening to settlement the landed ceded by Indians in the territory of Oklahoma, was given to the public today. The proclamation covers the sessions made by the Wichita and the affiliated bands of Indians in accord with the act of March 2, 1895, and those made by the Commanche, Kiowa and Apache tribes in pursuance of the act of June 6, 1900. The proclamation provides for the opening of the lands in those reservations which are not reserved at 9 o'clock a. m. on Aug. 6, next, the lands to be open to settlement under the homestead and townsite laws of the United States. The proclamation says that beginning on July 10 and ending on July 26, those who wish to make entry of land under the homestead law shall be registered. The registration will take place at the land office and at Reno and Lawton. The registration at each office will be for both land districts.

To obtain registration the applicant will be required to show himself duly qualified to make homestead entry to those lands under existing laws and to give the registering offices such appropriate matters of description and identity as will protect the applicant and the government against any attempted impersonation.

Registration cannot be effected through the United States mails or the employment of an agent, excepting that formally discharged soldiers may present their applications through an agent, no agent being allowed to represent more than one soldier. No person will be allowed to register more than once. After being registered, applicants will be given certificates, allowing them to go upon the ceded lands and examine them in order to aid them in making an intelligent selection. It is explicitly stated that "no one will be permitted to make settlement upon any of the lands in advance of the opening provided for," and the statement is made "that for the first sixty days following said opening no one but registered applicants will be permitted to make homestead settlement upon any of said lands and then only in pursuance of a homestead entry duly allowed by the local land officers or of a soldier's declatory statement duly accepted by such officers." The order of the applications is to be determined by drawing.

Oklahoma City, O. T., July 8.—An injunction suit will be brought before Judge Irwin in El Reno in a few days, for an order restraining the register of the land office here, the receiver, the surveyors and all other persons from proceedings with the opening of the lands of the Kiowas, Commanches and Apache Indians, according to the proclamation of the president and the act of congress under which he proceeded. The suit will be brought by C. Porter Johnson, of this city, who has been engaged by Judge William M. Springer to act as the attorney for the Indians who are affected by the opening of the lands. The bill of particulars is being prepared and action will be asked upon it so that the order can be effective and the injunction, if granted, will prevent the registration of the homeseekers in the Kiowa country. If there is a court with jurisdiction at Lawton, in the Kiowa country, a case will be commenced there in a similar manner. The bill of particulars for the injunction will contend that the lands of the Indians are being illegally and unconstitutionally wrested from them and against their wishes. It will show that the organic act creating the territory of Oklahoma made the laws and the constitution of the United States applicable to the territory. Provisions were made in the act whereby the Indians could invoke the authority of the courts for their protection. Under the constitution of the United States "No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without the process of law." It will contend that Lone Wolf is a "person" and that the opening of the reservation will deprive him of his landed rights and will do the same injustice to the other Indians affected.

AT CASS LAKE

Cass Lake, Minn., July 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. C. C. Whitney, wife of State Expert Printer Whitney, accompanied by her two little sons, spent the Fourth of July, and several succeeding days in Cass Lake, enjoying an outing in this vicinity. The party returned to St. Paul on Sunday.

The Cass Lake Indians, to the number of 200, have been revelling in the dizzy whirl of various kinds of dances since the Fourth of July. They leased the baseball park, charged 15 cents admission, and have been having considerable of a "time" among themselves on the proceeds derived from admission to their "balls." Nothing resembling a disturbance has occurred among them, and they are exceedingly friendly toward the white residents of Cass Lake, Chiefs Flatmouth, Bemidji and several lesser lights among the reds have participated in the dances.

GASOLINE EXPLODED.

Causing the Death of William E. Fitzgerald.

Milwaukee, July 8.—As the result of the explosion of a gasoline tank in the cellar of the country house of William E. Fitzgerald, at Lake Nagawick, late Saturday night, Mr. Fitzgerald was so badly burned that he died at noon Sunday, and his coachman, William Gurenwald, is in a dying condition.

Mr. Fitzgerald was president of the Milwaukee Dry Dock company and managing director of the American Shipbuilding company. He was well known throughout the great lakes, and among business men of Milwaukee he commanded a prominent position.

Mr. Fitzgerald, followed by his coachman, was walking through a passageway leading to the cellar trying to locate a leak in the gas plant, when the coachman picked up a lighted candle from a table and had entered the cellar before hearing Mr. Fitzgerald shout for him to go back.

Best Remedy For Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

"I have been in the drug business for twenty years and have sold most all of the proprietary medicines of any note. Among the entire list I have never found anything to equal Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for all stomach and bowel troubles," says O. W. Wakefield, of Columbus, Ga. "This remedy cured two severe cases of cholera morbus in my family, and I have recommended and sold hundreds of bottles of it to my customers to their entire satisfaction. It affords a quick and sure cure in a pleasant form. No family should be without it. I keep it in my house at all times." For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

Scrofula

Scrofula is an unwelcome legacy, but one which the children of blood poisoned parentage must accept, with all its humiliating consequences. It is an inheritance that makes one poorer; that brings wretchedness and disease instead of health and riches, for the child whose ancestral blood is tainted with Scrofula or the loathsome virus of Contagious Blood Poison is unfitted for the arduous duties of life so long as any of the transmitted poison remains in its veins. Scrofula manifests itself in various forms; swollen glands about the neck and throat, catarrh of the head, weak eyes, hip bone disease, white swelling and offensive sores and abscesses are familiar symptoms, attended usually with loss of strength, poor digestion and pale or bloodless complexion. The skin is sometimes most dreadfully affected, eruptions breaking out on all parts of the body. Scrofula destroys bone, tissue and flesh; no part of the human system escapes its withering, benumbing touch.

Parents whose blood is poisoned by their own misdeeds, or who themselves may be suffering for the sins of some remote ancestor, must restore their own blood to its normal purity and strength, or they cannot expect healthy, robust children. S. S. S. cures Scrofula, like other diseases of a deep-seated, constitutional character, by restoring life and purity to the profoundly poisoned blood, and the rich, strong blood that is carried to the swollen and diseased glands absorbs and destroys the tuberculous deposits, and the painful, disfiguring sores and other evidences of Scrofula disappear.

When nineteen years old, and about one year after the birth of my first child, the glands on the left side of my neck began to swell. Four of the places were lanced and became open running sores; risings came under my left arm, and the discharge was simply awful. The doctors said I had the worst case of Scrofula they had ever seen. I took Iodide of potassium, but this nor the other drugs given for this disease brought relief. When the physicians advised me to have the glands removed, I decided to try S. S. S. A few bottles cured me completely; no signs of the terrible disease are left.

MRS. RICHARD WASSON,
Golden Corners, Ohio.

S. S. S. should be begun immediately upon the appearance of the first symptoms, or where there is a known predisposition to Scrofula. Our medical department will be found of great help to those who are struggling with this wasting disease of heredity or any other blood trouble, and we invite you to write us. Should you or any member of your family need advice, our physicians will cheerfully give the information you desire, for which we make no charge. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free.

LONSDALE BLDG.

A LAND OF GUSHERS

A. Kime Tells of the Great Texas Oil Finds.

Opening of New Wells Not Diminishing the Pressure.

An Eight-Inch Stream 215 Feet in Height.

A Kime, direct from the great oil fields at Beaumont, Texas, is in the city, having arrived last evening. He says that it is very warm at present in the Lone Star state, in fact the heat is almost blistering, but that there have been no deaths from sunstroke or heat prostration.

"They are still punching holes in the ground all around Beaumont," said Mr. Kime, "but a great many of them are 'dry.' The population of the city has doubled since the discovery of oil. Many large buildings of modern design are in course of construction, including hotels, of which the city is sadly in need, and an opera house. At the present time there are fourteen gushers in the Beaumont field, with no apparent diminution of the oil flow. The oil can be refined, but the chances are that its principal use will be for fuel. The railroads are already planning to supplant their coal-burning engines with oil burners. Three trunk lines have tracks entering the city, and all of them are preparing to utilize oil as a team generator. The Kansas City & Gulf, which has coal mines of its own, 400 miles north of Beaumont, is already equipping its engines with oil burners.

"The discovery of oil in Texas will revolutionize the fuel market of the world. Oil is the ideal fuel, as it is cheaper than coal, cleaner, occupies less space and is easier to handle. Railroads in Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas will utilize 25,000,000 barrels per annum. Three to three and a half barrels of the best steam coal is used on the engines in Dixie-land. A steamship recently left a Texas port on a voyage with oil as fuel, and a comparison showed that she could steam one-third farther than with an equal amount of coal. Oil occupies less bunker space, and in addition to the other points of superiority, the carrying capacity of vessels is largely increased. One hundred and forty-two carloads were recently shipped out of Beaumont in one day. This is not a large amount, but the export capacity is only limited by the supply of cars. The first large consignment of oil from the new fields left last week for Hamburg, Germany. The cargo consisted of 100,000 barrels. Smaller shipments are continually going to West India and South American points.

"Any of the fourteen wells in this field alone will run as much oil as the California fields, although oil has made more millionaires in that state than all the gold ever washed out. The gushers were all struck on one hill at Beaumont, and within a radius of one mile. The greatest distance of any well from the original Lucas gusher is three-quarters of a mile. The Lucas is still flowing as at first, and one day last week, in twenty minutes less than twelve hours, it filled a 35,000 gallon tank.

"The Higgins well was choked up about a month ago, and workmen removed the gate valve, and the slimy flood unexpectedly broke loose and was beyond control for four hours, and it cost the company $500 to check the stream. The oil has a strong gaseous odor, and men are overcome if they remain too long in close proximity, although no case has resulted fatally. At the time the Higgins well was beyond control, the well nearest to it was given free vent in the hope of diminishing the flow, but it had no effect. One company has already lost two wells as a result of drilling into gas pockets, which blew off the derricks, two pipe lines now extend to the coast and as many more are under construction."

"What is the Standard Oil company doing in this new field?" was asked.

"Well, that is a very difficult question to answer. The Standard Oil people, themselves, are probably the only ones who know. Texas laws are very stringent in regard to trusts and foreign corporations, but it is certain that Mr. Rockefeller's company is not operating as the Standard Oil company. So far as I know this company has never dealt in fuel oil, confining itself to the illuminating grade. Beaumont oil is of the lower grade, showing about 20 per cent light or illuminating oil. Three refineries are being erected at Beaumont by Eastern concerns. Of the 400 companies operating in and around Beaumont, those in 'proved' territory will make a success, and the greater number of the companies are in 'dry' territory. Ex-Governor Hogg paid $600,000 for fourteen acres of land in the 'wet' belt and where every well being drilled has a good prospect. He has since divided this plot into small tracts and sold them. I understand that ex-Senator Charles A. Towne is identified with one of the companies which have bought land in the Hogg tract. A company does not need much land if it secures one well, as a single gusher will give it all the product it can handle. Increase in the number of wells has not decreased the pressure. The Heywood, recently struck, is the greatest at Beaumont and it spouts an 8-inch stream 217 feet above the earth's surface. It is a great spectacle to witness the turning on of a new gusher. In my opinion there is not much 'dry' territory in the Beaumont district, although some of the wells will not be gushers."

Mr. Kime went to Beaumont from Iowa in January this year. He is treasurer of the Saratoga Oil and Pipe line, and may open an office in Duluth.

For forty years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux; pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

THE DAKOTAS

Six Prisoners Escaped From County Jail at Dickinson.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Dickinson—Six prisoners broke out of the county jail early Sunday, stole horses and rode off. Among the horses taken was one belonging to the sheriff. McDonald and Hummell, two notorious cattle thieves are among the fugitives. Every possible effort is being made to effect their recapture.

Steele—A sudden and violent wind of the character of a tornado struck Steele and vicinity on the Fourth. Several chimneys were blown down, three windmills leveled or broken and the belfry torn from the school house. State's Attorney Walker had his kitchen torn from the main part of the house and the building and contents scattered. His loss will be $300. A heavy oak table was torn in pieces and thrown in opposite directions, indicating the twisting nature of the wind. A machine shed was leveled on the farm of County Judge Lyons. S. A. Hague's barn in town was wrecked and a new barn moved fourteen feet and badly twisted. The Goodsill building, 25 by 70 and 24 feet front, occupied upstairs by A. L. DeShon and family, was moved away. It will have to be torn down. The family escaped without harm. This is the first wind to do any damage in nearly eighteen years. Storms interfered with the celebration on the Fourth, but there was a good attendance notwithstanding.

Jamestown—The James river is on a rampage. Not since 1897 has it reached such a depth. A portion of the Russell-Miller Milling company's dam has been swept away by the flood, and some damage to bridges down stream has resulted. The rainfall during the past week has been unusually heavy, and from Jamestown to Fargo the land is dotted with miniature lakes. The same is true of the James river valley from Leeds to Oakes. The heavy rains have also resulted in damage to railroad roadbeds. The Northern Pacific will be obliged to do a great deal of ballasting on main line and branches.

Fargo—There is unusual interest in Fargo this summer over the gun club shoots. The next annual meeting of the association will be held here, and the crack shots are beginning to prepare for the event. Additional interest has been aroused by the organization of a ladies' club. Some of the fair sex are good shots and a competition between the ladies of the different clubs will probably be a feature of the next annual meeting.

Cavalier—Isaac Mortz, living two miles east of this place, had his hand so badly torn by the explosion of a cannon cracker that he will probably lose it.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Huron—The program for Friday at the State Epworth league assembly was interfered with because of the collapse of the big tent Thursday night during a severe wind storm. Fortunately but few persons were in the tent when it fell and none were injured beyond a few slight bruises and scratches.

Sioux Falls—Pieces of a cannon which exploded here on the nation's birthday are still being found in various parts of the central portion of the city, at surprising distances from the scene of the explosion. Several residents are yet congratulating themselves because of their remarkable escape from instant death or serious injury. The cannon, which was about five feet long, was a relic of pioneer days, and for years occupied a conspicuous position near the heart of the city. It stood the strain of being fired four or five times, but finally bursted. The men fired it with a fuse, retiring to a safe distance, and to this fact, and the absence of spectators, is due the prevention of serious, if not fatal, accident. One piece of iron weighing 104 pounds was thrown a distance of several hundred feet by the force of the explosion, tearing a great hole in the rear end of a business block on the principal business street.

Gettysburg—A special election was held for the purpose of voting upon the proposition of issuing bonds not to exceed $6000 to be expended in sinking a 3-inch artesian well.

Webster—A young girl named Christina Olson Lovig, employed as a domestic, disappeared leaving a letter addressed to her father in which she said she was going to kill herself and her body might never be found. She has been despondent for some time.

IN MICHIGAN.

Houghton County Casualty List Was Unusually Long One.

Houghton—The Houghton county casualty list for Independence day was an unusually long one. Some thirty people received injuries requiring surgical attention and three persons lost their right hands. In nearly every instance the more serious injuries came from cannon crackers loaded with dynamite.

Menominee—Menominee is getting to be considerable of a Gretna Green. One day last week five wedding ceremonies had been performed there and all but one of them united Wisconsin couples. At that there were due, before night, a couple of additional weddings. Menominee offers the handiest place for many Wisconsin couples who find it expedient to be married outside their own state.

Iron Mountain—Supervisor Samuel D. Evans was notified that he is to receive a gold medal of honor from the Canadian government. During the Fenian invasion of Canada, in 1866, Mr. Evans was a member of Bradford Company I, Fifth battalion, under Lieut. Col. Denison, and was stationed at Clifton. It was for bravery shown in the battle to save the suspension bridge from destruction that Mr. Evans is to receive the badge of honor. The medal was a long time coming, but it is appreciated none the less by the gentleman on that score.

The board of education at Iron Mountain has finally decided on a site for the proposed Carnegie library. It will be erected at the northeast corner of East Ludington street and Iron Mountain avenue on a couple of lots for which $1500 will be paid. The site is admirably situated for the library, being centrally located, within a block or so of both the postoffice and the high school. Several sets of plans for the new structure have been examined, but the selection has not yet been made. A decision will be reached shortly, however, as it is desired that building operations be started this season. Andrew Carnegie's donation for the Iron Mountain library is $20,000.

BREACH IS WIDER.

Master Builders Refuse to Arbitrate With Strikers.

Easton, Pa., July 8.—The breach between the local master builders and the strikers is wider today than at any time since the strike was inaugurated. The builders have refused the request of the carpenters to arbitrate the differences, taking the ground that there is nothing to arbitrate. They further state that all shops will be opened Wednesday morning, when the men may return to work under the old conditions. Today all the journeymen plumbers went out and the carpenters' union claim that twenty-five nonunion men joined their raks.

CROMWELL SAILS.

Washington, July 8.—The navy department received a cablegram this morning announcing the departure of Rear Admiral Cromwell aboard his flagship, the Chicago, from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, for St. Vincent, Canary islands, en route to the Mediterranean to assume his new duties as commander-in-chief of the European station.

TOO OLD TO SERVE.

DOG BIT HIM.

Widow Sues For Loss of Her Husband.

Washington, July 9.—James R. Kennan, a hotelkeeper, today was sued for $10,000 damages by Annie White, the widow of a milk wagon driver, who is alleged to have died from hydrophobia inflicted by dogs belonging to Kennan. It is claimed that while he was delivering milk on July 10 last at the home of the defendant, White was attacked by dogs owned by Kennan and bitten in different parts of the body, and it is alleged that he died two months later from the poison of the wounds.

CASE OF SUICIDE.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 9.—Coroner Mathews today officially reported Frederick D. White's death as a case of suicide, due to neurasthenia.

MUTILATED

Horrible Work of Denver's "Jack the Ripper."

Fourteen Year Old Girl the Fiend's Victim.

Denver, July 9.—Jesse Kinport, the 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. Carrie D. Kinport, who resides at 119 West Ninth avenue, was assaulted and horribly mutilated in her room during the absence of her mother last night. Mrs. Kinport had been away during the evening and upon returning home found the doors open. Hastening to her daughter's room she found the bed clothes strewn about and blood spattered over the room. The girl was nowhere to be seen. She aroused the neighbors, who began searching the neighborhood. About midnight they found the girl in a vacant lot nearby, unconscious and with numerous cuts on her body.

The authorities were notified, but not before Chris Jensen had been brought to the station by Policeman Lambert, who had arrested him on the outskirts of the city. Lambert came upon Jensen about a mile and a half from the scene of the assault. As Lambert approached Jensen whipped out a knife and shouted to the officer that he would not be taken to jail. Lambert disarmed Jensen and brought him to the station. On the way he repeatedly spoke of having been compelled to defend himself from a woman, saying that he had cut her up pretty badly. The knife he had threatened the officer with was covered with blood.

Shortly after Jensen was locked up the police department was notified of the assault upon the Kinport girl. They immediately connected Jensen with the affair. Jensen admitted to Chief Armstrong that he had stabbed and cut a woman, but said that he met her in the street and she had bumped against him as he was passing by. From his actions the police are convinced that Jensen is demented. An investigation of the footprints at the scene of the crime show that the shoes worn by Jensen fit the marks exactly. The police believe that Jensen is the person, and that he committed the numerous assaults made upon women of late. The victim of last night's assault is still alive but in a critical condition.

Jensen confessed to the police that he assaulted Jessie Kinport, and also said he stabbed another woman during the night, near the end of the University park car line.

Search was made at once, and this morning the dead body of Mrs. Armenia A. Bullis was found at the place described by Jensen. She had been stabbed in the breast and the blade of the knife had penetrated her heart, causing instant death. The body lay in the roadway, and there was no evidence of a struggle. Jensen said the woman "was after him" and, for that reason, he stabbed her.

Mrs. Bullis was about 60 years old. She conducted a dairy near the place where she was killed.

Chief of Police Armstrong says Jensen is undoubtedly is insane.

NOT ONE WENT TO WORK

Reading Strikers Again Reject the Propositions Made to Them to Return to Work By Acting President Welsh.

Reading, Pa., July 9.—Not a single Philadelphia & Reading striking employe in this city returned to work today. The men have apparently rejected the latest proposition of Acting President Welsh.

At the Reading shops in this city the situation continues the same. Sixty-five engines are now awaiting necesary repairs by boilermakers and blacksmiths.

Today the company has not a single boilermaker at work, and there are but three blacksmith fires running.

Freight handlers, also, are still out, but the places of many have been filled. Clerks at the freight depot asked for an advance, but received no reply to the request. The salaries range from $20 to $25 per month, the latter being for the chiefs. The men work, it is said, ten to fifteen hours a day without extra pay for overtime.

IRON ORE RATE CASES

Schedules Filed By Iron Range and Missabe Roads With the Old Rates, But the Hearing Proceeds.

St. Paul, July 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—At 9:30 this morning, half an hour before the hour set for the hearing of the iron ore rate cases before the state railroad and warehouse commission, the Duluth & Iron Range road and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road filed with A. K. Teisburg, secretary of the commission, schedules giving a flat rate, effective next Friday, on shipments of ore to Duluth, when such shipments are not part of the contract for the carriage of the ore to a point outside the state. The rates on carload lots are, per gross ton:

Missabe—From Hibbing and common points, 80 cents.

In spite of the filing of the rates, however, the hearing proceeded at the scheduled hour. The matter comes up on rehearing, the former commission having issued a mandatory order requiring the roads to reduce their rates.

F. B. Kellogg appeared for the Duluth & Iron Range road; J. B. Cotton, of Duluth, and G. Welwood Murray, of New York, for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, and M. D. Grover for the Eastern Minnesota. Moses E. Clapp appeared as the special attorney for the commission. M. H. Stanford, of Duluth, and J. C. Weadock, of Bay City, Mich., were present as representatives of the Penobscot Mining company, of Hibbing, and asked to be heard. Permission was granted them to take part in the hearing.

OVERCOME BY SMOKE

Twelve Persons Narrowly Escaped Death In Chicago Fire---Were Carried Out of Building By Police.

Chicago, July 9.—The frame buildings at 8712-8714 Commercial avenue were destroyed by fire today. Twelve persons, overcome by smoke, were carried out by the police. The lower portion of the building was used as stores, while two families of Poles lived in the upper rooms. All the occupants of the buildings were asleep when the fire broke out, and the majority of them were overcome by the smoke and heat. Three policemen who discovered the fire managed to break through the door and succeeded in carrying all the occupants to places of safety. While endeavoring to extinguish the flames which had ignited the nightdress of his sister, one of the rescued men was probably burned.

Mrs. Stanilaus Sezinkus was seriously burned about the body, but will recover.

Peter Rudowic was probably fatally burned in trying to extinguish flames which were burning Mrs. Sezinkus' clothing.

An explosion of a gasoline stove caused the fire; loss small.

WENT FOR A DRIVE.

Canton, Ohio, July 9.—After attending to the official work during the morning, the president took Mrs. McKinley for a drive about the city and over country roads beyond. Both seemed in excellent health and spirits.

THREES, FOURS AND FIVES.

Washington, July 9.—The secretary of the treasury today purchased $200,000 3 per cent short term bonds at $109:0162; $50,000 fives at $139 and $12,500 fours at $112:9773.

MANY ARE PRESENT

Very Large Attendance at Ohio Democratic State Convention.

There Are Many Candidates for the Minor Nominations.

Conservatives Will Control the 21 Congressional Districts.

Columbus, Ohio, July 9.—An unusually large attendance of visitors was noticeable here today when the preliminary meetings were held for the Democratic state convention. The 950 delegates are accompanied by large delegations supporting different candidates for the nominations for judge and clerk of the supreme court, attorney general, state treasurer and member of the board of public works.

The nominations for governor and lieutenant governor are the only ones in which there is not a free-for-all race with many entries. But the large attendance is due more to the reunion of Democrats who have not been together in Ohio since 1896. Those who have been called "gold standard Democrats" are largely represented, and many of them have not attended their conventions in Ohio for years. Nearly all the old leaders of this class are here now, and they are given places of prominence on committees and organization generally. They are actively co-operating with those who are being denominated conservatives in opposing so-called "isms," which, they claim, will handicap the party.

When the Kilbourne men secured the location of this convention at Columbus there was a strong effort to have it held at Cleveland. As a compromise, Hon. Charles P. Salen, who is in the cabinet of Mayor Johnson of Cleveland, was selected as temporary chairman. He is expected to speak tomorrow morning on the "Johnson Policies," but he will be followed by a conservative as permanent chairman and by the adoption of what is known as the conservative platform.

At the conferences this morning it was evident the conservatives will control the twenty-one congressional districts and, therefore, have all the committees which meet tonight to prepare their reports for the convention which assembles tomorrow morning. There was considerable hustling for members of the committee on credentials, on account of local fights in some counties, notably Montgomery, Butler and Union. The state committee and the committee on resolutions were in the hands of the conservatives before the district meetings were held, but there was no friction. Every effort seemed to have been made for harmony by the conservatives, but they insisted on harmony being held without any compromise with what they termed "new ideas" or "experiments."

WAR CLAIMS.

Commission Has Lively Time With South African Claims.

New York, July 9.—There was a close approach to a skirmish, says the Tribune's London correspondent at the latest meeting of the commission to which the British foreign office has referred the European and American claims respecting the war in South Africa. The representative of the Dutch government and chairman of the committee corrected and disciplined each other for a half hour until Sir John Ardagh took up a large class of railway claims and sought to rule them out on the ground that the claimants were not neutrals, but virtually belligerents. Nearly all the claims against the British government came through the Dutch foreign office. There are not more than a dozen American claims and they are not important, but the proceedings are watched closely by Mr. Carter on behalf of the American embassy since larger claims may yet be presented.

FOR EVANS.

Said He Will Be Appointed Comptroller of Currency.

New York, July 9.—According to a dispatch to the World, there is general feeling in official circles in Washington that the resignation of Comptroller Dawes has presented a solution of the controversy regarding the continuance of Commissioner Evans at the head of the pension bureau.

An impression prevails, the dispatch says, that the president has already determined to appoint Mr. Evans to be comptroller of currency. This would be in the nature of a promotion, for the salary is more and the term of office longer.

TERRIFIC

Was Crash of Big Four Train Into Freight.

Worst Wreck In Years on Lake Shore Tracks.

Cleveland, July 9.—A special to the Leader from Nottingham, Ohio, says: One of the worst wrecks on the Lake Shore road in years occurred at 2:30 this morning in the center of this village, ten miles east of Cleveland. The Southwestern limited on the Big Four from St. Louis, Cincinnati and other Western cities, which goes on to the Lake Shore tracks at Cleveland, was ditched through collision with a portion of a freight. Just what caused the wreck is not definitely known, but it is thought a portion of a freight train that had broken in two had rolled on to the passenger tracks. No passengers were killed. The dead are:

FRANK ANDERSON, engineer of passenger, of Buffalo.

O. G. McCULLEN, of Cincinnati, mail clerk.

The injured: William Elliott, Buffalo, fireman of passenger train, probably will die; W. M. Baker, Columbus, mail clerk, injured on head and body, not serious; E. F. Loveless, Cincinnati, mail clerk, slight; two unknown tramps, badly hurt.

The shock to passengers was terrific, and although they were badly shaken up, no passengers were hurt.

When the front end of the engine plowed into the ground of the gully, it became disconnected from the other coaches that went over the embankment and swirled sideways, so that it pointed in the other direction; the mail car crashed into the tender, surrounding it completely. The engineer met his death by being pinioned under his engine. McCullen, the mail clerk, was crushed between the side of the car and coal tender. He was found with his head forced down between his knees. Two clerks, when they awoke to their condition, were able to extricate themselves from the wreck without assistance. At least one person is believed to be buried under the wreck. Two Nottingham doctors responded to calls for assistance. The roadbed and two tracks were torn up for a distance, and the embankment will have to be repaired before the track can be relaid. The Lake Shore track is blocked east and all trains are being sent over the Nickle Plate. The passengers of the wrecked train were taken to Cleveland over the Nickel Plate, and wrecking trains are at work on the Lake Shore.

Cleveland, July 9.—Five of the men injured in the collision were brought to the Cleveland general hospital early today.

One man, whose name is unknown, lies at the hospital unconscious. His condition is critical. I. Johnson, of Buffalo, and A. Hirtz, of this city, sustained serious injuries, but will recover.

Two tramps who were on the freight train are also at the hospital with broken collar bones.

PAINFUL REVELATIONS

Disclosures Concerning the Conduct of the South African War Cause British Military Men to Shake Heads Ominously.

New York July 9.—The British military men, says the Tribune's London correspondent, have been shaking their heads ominously over the disclosure made by a special correspondent of the Daily Mail respecting the conduct of the Boer war and the arbitrary suppression of facts by the censors. They find evidence of what they have been expecting for a long time, namely, that Lord Kitchener is now allowed to be as thorough and ruthless as they think he ought to be and that the government insists upon interfering with him for political reasons. The Radicals, on the other hand, assert that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's indictment of the government for conducting a barbarous warfare is fully sustained and that Boer atrocities are the natural sequels to Lord Kitchener's drastic measures. There will be a heavy cross fire of questions in the house of commons in consequence of all these painful revelations, but Mr. Burdick has a safe refuge in silence.

A preliminary paper issued last night relating to the peace negotiations, demonstrates that the Boer forces are in a very perilous state and that the burghers are only kept in the field by unblushing perversions of Lord Kitchener's terms and extravagant fables of Boer successes. The most notable instances of the latter are De Wet's statement that Cape Colony has risen to a man against the British and that in proceeding to invade the colony he killed Gen. Knox. Other veracious statements are that the czar had received a Boer deputation introduced by Mr. Leyds, and that France was ready to Land troops in England on Nov 1. The assurance given by Mr. Kruger that he had made arrangements in Europe by which the safety and comfort of the women and children in the refuge camps would be assured had considerable influence with the Boer leaders in deciding to continue the fight.

STRIKE MAY BE SETTLED

Officers Amalgamated Association, and of Steel Trust Are Hopeful That All Difficulties Will Be Adjusted at Coming Conference.

Pittsburg, July 9.—A more hopeful atmosphere pervaded the headquarters of both the steel combine and the Amalgamated association today. As the result of the preliminary conference between President Shaffer of the Amalgamated association and Warner Arms, representing the combine's interests, last evening, the Wellsville trouble which yesterday threatened to undo all that had been done toward effecting a peaceable settlement of the strike, was not referred to today, and everything pointed to an amicable adjustment of all differences at the general conference arranged for next Thursday in this city.

President Shaffer said he considered the questions to be discussed at the conference to be most grave and for that reason he thought it best to call in the general executive board, composed of the highest officers of the association instead of consulting with the conferees who usually meet to consider such questions. This board has only been called together once before and that was during the trouble last April at the Wood plant in McKeesport.

"Our board," said President Shaffer, "will meet the committee representing the combine in conference at the Hotel Lincoln in this city at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. I am now pretty well satisfied that the trouble will be settled at this meeting. There seems to be a spirit of fairness prevailing among those to whom I have talked officially on the subject, and I think we will fix matters up. The meeting will be for the signing of the scale of the mills as a whole."

In response to a query as to who would make up the combine committee, Mr. Shaffer said that he did not know.

Among those on the outside it was said the conference will, in this case, be governed, for the United States Steel corporation, by general officers and not by any of the operating officials of the underlying companies.

Should this be the case, it will mark a decided departure in the method of dealing with labor questions with the Amalgamated association. The former determination of the officers of the United States Steel corporation to remain out of such negotiations and allow them to be settled by the officials of the various subsidiary companies will have been entirely changed, and in place the general officers will undertake to settle the labor matters for the entire interests of the greater corporation.

BALDWIN AT TROMSOE.

Tromsoe, Norway, July 9.—Evelyn B. Baldwin, the leader of the Baldwin-Zeigler Arctic expedition, arrived here today. He boarded the refitted Arctic whaler America (formerly the Esquimaux, on which he will make his headquarters), where preparations for the trip are proceeding apace.

MIXED WRESTLING MATCH.

Cleveland, July 9.—Articles of agreement have been signed here for a mixed wrestling match between Tom Jenkins, of this city, and Charley Wittmer, of Cincinnati, for the world's championship, the largest obtainable purse and a side bet of $1000. The date and place for the match will be decided later.

A Straw Hat of Correct Shape

Is a fitting climax to a well dressed man's wardrobe.

We used greater care this season than ever before in selecting the qualities, shapes and styles of bands, and have a greater variety than in any past season from which you can make your choice.

We need not dilate on the merits of the "BURROWS" Straw Hat, for it is one of the leaders of Hat fashions.

PRICES:

$1.50, $2.50, $3.00, $3.50

Of other fine makes we have also an enormous variety of shapes and styles and sizes, ranging in price from 25c to $12.

And we have some nobby fancy straws for the little fellows that will certainly please you. Lots of novelty effects.

Neckwear, light and airy as a summer zephyr.

WANTS A DRIVEWAY

Mayor Hugo Anxious For One On Park Point Beach.

Says That the Land Should Be Acquired Very Soon.

Is Advancing In Price and May Get Too High.

Inquiry has been made about the city within the past few days as to whether the park board is likely to take any steps in the near future regarding the acquisition of a lake shore driveway along the beach on Park Point. There are a number of citizens interested in this drive, among whom is Mayor Hugo, who believes there is no time like the present for the park board to take some active steps in at least securing control of the route of the proposed driveway, even if there are not the funds available at the present time to make any improvements. As the mayor says, the land on Park Point is steadily increasing in value, and if the board waits until after the bridge is built across the ship canal, the prices of property are bound to be prohibitive.

The park board, says the mayor, has about caught up with its work at the various parks and could now give a little attention to the lake shore drive. Plans have already been prepared by City Engineer Patton for the contemplated driveway along the beach as far as the platted portion of the point extends, and this is as far as the matter has gone.

Mayor Hugo says that a driveway along the beach on Park Point would prove one of the most attractive features in Duluth's category of places of interest. He carried his idea regarding the driveway farther, perhaps, than anybody else, for the mayor says that he hopes to see the day that the driveway will not only extend through to the Superior entry, but that the people of Superior will construct a bridge over the natural entry and the driveway be continued along Wisconsin Point. If this is ever done, says the mayor, the head of the lakes will have a picturesque and interesting driveway that cannot be excelled anywhere else in the country.

In connection with the agitation regarding the lake shore drive, it might be said that there is quite a sentiment toward changing the name of Park Point. Those in favor of the move say that the name is not at all appropriate; that whereas Minnesota Point might formerly have been called a point, to all purposes it is now an island, and could be called Island Park with a greater degree of appropriateness. There is an objection to the name of Park Point on the ground that there are many other names more euphonious, and that so beautiful a spot is entitled to a prettier name.

WANTS HIS MONEY.

E. Engel Anxious to Get His Balance.

E. Engel, the contractor, wants the remainder of the money that the city is alleged to owe him on a sewer contract in London road, between Twelfth and Fourteenth avenues east. He alleges that 5 per cent of the total estimates of the cost of the sewer and $17.95 were withheld from him because of a personal injury suit brought against the city by Oscar Cederstrom, of West Duluth, who claimed to have received injuries in an accident caused by the obstruction of the road. Contractor Engel says that the suit of Cederstrom against the city has now been removed, and he wants the council to pass a resolution making it possible for him to collect his money. The matter is in the hands of the claims committee, and a report on it will probably be made at the next meeting of the council.

MRS. EDGAR F. SWIFT DEAD

Spirit Takes Flight After Short Illness.

Died, at St. Mary's hospital, Sunday night, Mrs. Edgar F. Swift, of 2020 East Second street, this city.

The death of Mrs. Swift, after an illness of short duration, comes as a severe shock to her many friends and acquaintances, whose sincere sympathy is extended to the sorrowing relatives. Cut down at a time when life seemed the brightest, taken from a happy home, blessed with three charming daughters, at an age when they needed most of all the watchful care and guidance of a devoted mother; her death adds to the mysteries of an inscrutable Providence, whose acts are said to be all for the best. Mrs. Swift was a woman of rare attainments. Of a gentle and hospitable nature, she was a favorite with all who knew her, and her loss will be keenly felt.

In addition to a husband and three children, she leaves to mourn her demise a father and mother, living at Wadena, this state; a sister, Miss Alice Britts, of this city, and three brothers, Charles A., of Duluth; Bruce, of Virginia, and another living on the Pacific coast.

Mr. Swift is at present in Europe in the interests of the McCormick Harvesting company. He left Duluth in May for an extended trip, and was accompanied abroad by his sister, Mrs. Charles W. Elston, also of this city.

The funeral of Mrs. Swift will occur on Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, and the remains will be placed in the vault at Forest Hill cemetery to await the return of Mr. Swift.

$5 REWARD!

The board of health will pay $5 reward for the first information that will lead to the conviction of the person who scattered night soil between Eighth and Twentieth avenues east on Superior street, during the night of July 8.

J. W. MILLER, Sec'y.

DAMAGES.

Claims On Account of the Storm Are Coming In.

Already the city has been called on to pay for damage done to private property during the recent storm, and for which the city is alleged to be responsible. The first claim made directly after the first hard storm is now in the hands of the city attorney. The second claim was made yesterday by Mrs. Kate McKinnon, who owns and occupies a lot and dwelling at 108 West Tenth street, or the boulevard. She claims that the storm damaged her property to the extent of $100, and asks the city to either pay her the $100 or repair the damage immediately.

In part detail, Mrs. McKinnon says that when the boulevard was constructed the natural channel for the water off the road was changed so as to threaten her property and that no precaution was taken by the city to protect her lot, that during the late storm the water rushed on to her lot, covering it and the cellar with mud and debris, washing away the foundation and part of the lot, an incident that she says would not have taken place had the city permitted the water to run off in its natural channel. The claim has been referred to the board of public works and the city attorney.

Wants Sign Space.

The cigarmakers' local union, No. 294, wishes to put an advertising sign on Superior street between the city hall and police headquarters that will be somewhat unique in design and out of the ordinary line of billboard advertising. The union has asked the permission of the city council for the space and the request has been referred to the committee on city property. The union has promised to put up a sign that will be a work of art, one of the features of which will be a painting of the goddess of liberty. Furthermore, the union has the back of the boards painted white to act as a reflector of light into the city offices and will place in a cupola on top of the board a Western Union time clock with a 32-inch dial.

RIOT AT SEVILLE.

Serious Conflicts Between Workmen and Gendarmes.

Seville, Spain, July 9.—There was a serious conflict in a street here today, between workmen and gendarmes. Owing to the refusal of groups of the former to disperse, the gendarmes arrested a workman. The latter's comrades thereupon dug up cobblestones and threw them at the police, injuring five of them. The gendarmes then charged, shots were exchanged and several persons were hit. Women actively participated in the disturbance. The prefect who intervened was stoned.

IS WILLING TO SERVE

Mr. Washburn Ready To Render Service Upon th Board of Education, But Will Not Enter Any Contest.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In view of what has been transpiring, it is perhaps due that I say, while I am not now and never expect to be a candidate for any office on the face of the earth, if the public feel that it is my duty as a citizen to render service upon the board of education for a reasonable time, I am willing to try to learn the duties of the position and take the necessary time from my business to discharge the same.

Under no conditions, however, am I willing that either my friends or myself be burdened with any contest. If a contest is necessary, then there is no serious call to duty. As I shall be out of town a few days, I will take this opportunity to thank The Herald and my friends for unmerited kindly mention. Respectfully. J. L. WASHBURN.

Duluth, July 9.

THE TAX LEVY

Board Will Probably Provide For 4.1 Mills.

The levy that the county board will make at its meeting this afternoon will probably be about 4.1 mills as against 2.97 mills last year. This means the raising of about $176,000 for county purposes as against $123,000 last year.

One reason for the increase is that a levy for the overdraft in the poor fund must be made this year, and that will make a tax of 1 mill. Without that the county tax would be 3.1 mills, or only .4 of a mill more than last year.

This is based on the supposition that the board of poor commssioners, which, makes the levy for poor purposes, will levy the full amount permitted by the law creating that body, .7 of a mill. This amounts to about $30,100. It is possible the board of poor commissioners may levy less than this, and in that case the county levy will be correspondingly reduced. The county board has nothing whatever to do with the poor levy this time.

TO EQUALIZE.

County Board To Meet Monday at Court House.

Next Monday the county board of equalization will meet at the court house, and while this is an off year in the board's work, it is possible that some interest in the meeting may be worked up.

Real estate is not assessed this year, only personal property, so the usual matters that attract much attention in connection with the board's meeting, the taxations of lumber, iron mines, etc., will not be up. But there is a chance that something will drop along the line of personal property valuations.

There are in the city of Duluth quite a number of men with newly-made fortunes, or fortunes that are of comparatively recent acquisition. Of course few if any of them are paying taxes on any great valuation, certainly not on anything like the amounts they are credited with possessing. There is a disposition on the part of some of the members of the county board of equalization to push their assessments up more in accord with their estimated fortunes, following the lead of the city board of review, which picked out several of them for such attentions.

The county board of equalization is composed of the members of the board of county commissioners, with the county auditor. The session is likely to last a couple of weeks.

HAY BACK.

Secretary Returns to Washington From New Hampshire Home.

Washington, July 9.—Secretary Hay returned to Washington this morning from his New Hampshire home. He was driven directly to the state department and was closeted with Acting Secretary Hill for some time. The new Turkish minister, Chekib Bey, called in company with Ali Ferrough Bey, the retiring minister. The new minister must await until a later date to be presented at the White House owing to the president's absence, but he will from now on exercise all the functions of a minister as a matter of courtesy. This course is necessary, because Ali Ferrough Bey is returning to Turkey almost immediately. It is believed the business which calls Secretary Hay to Washington is principally personal in character, and that he will not be obliged to remain here beyond this week.

OLYMPIAN GAMES.

Association Incorporated For Revival In Chicago.

Chicago, July 9.—The secretary of state at Springfield today granted articles of incorporation to the Olympian Games association, capitalized at $200,000. W. R. Harper, of the university of Chicago; Volney W. Foster and John Barton Payne are the incorporators. The object of the association is to hold a great international athletic meet, during which Grecian games will be revived in Chicago in 1903. Plans for an immense stadium for the games and other details of the enterprise soon will be in the hands of the committee.

BOTH WERE KILLED.

Santa Fe, July 9.—Harry Daly, a health-seeker from New York, fought a pistol duel today in a saloon with Julian Arias, of this city. Arias was killed and Daly so badly wounded that he died within a few hours. A quarrel over a game of cards precipitated the shooting.

MORE SIGNATURES.

Pittsburg, July 9.—Signatures to the Amalgamated scale continue to reach headquarters from independent steel makers. Today signed scales were received from the Kittaning Iron company, Kittaning, Pa., and the Niagara Iron company, Lockport, N. Y.

WILL RESIGN.

Ambassador White Will Soon Retire From German Mission.

Berlin, July 9.—Although the United States ambassador, Andrew D. White, quite recently denied to the correspondent of the Associated Press that he intends to resign, the correspondent now learns from a close personal friend of Mr. White that he will resign next year, upon reaching his 70th year.

Mr. White's decision to resign was taken before the news of his son's suicide had reached him, but it is believed that his son's death renders Mr. White's decision irrevocable.

Mr. White is at present staying at Sassnitz, island of Ruegen, in the Baltic. Therefore he was personally inaccessible to the correspondent of the Associated Press. Horace White, of Syracuse, cabled to Secretary Jackson early this morning the news of the death of Frederick D. White, but did not say he had committed suicide. The correspondent, after receiving details of F. D. White's death, wired to Ambassador White at 9 o'clock this morning and has just received a reply from Mrs. White, saying:

"Your telegram, fortunately, has not reached Mr. White. We have no details as yet."

The correspondent understands that Mr. White is greatly shocked and nervously depressed at the death of his son. Mrs. White, therefore, fearing the result upon her husband, has thus far withheld the news of her son's suicide, intending to gently break it to Mr. White.

Telegrams of sympathy are being sent from Berlin to Sassnitz, one of the first being from Baron Von Richthofen, the German foreign minister.

CONFIDENCE.

British Liberals Renew Allegiance to Sir Henry Bannerman.

London, July 9.—The much discussed meeting of Liberals called by Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader in the house of commons, with the object of ascertaining whether he still retains the confidence of the party, was held at the Reform club today and resulted in the adoption of a vote of confidence in the leader of the opposition. All factions of Liberals attended. The Liberal Imperialists, headed by R. H. Asquith were there almost to a man, out Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and Sir William Vernon Harcourt were the only two who received any marked recognition on entering. The crowd watching the arrivals greeted them with cries of "How's your friend Kruger?"

Sir Henry made a conciliatory speech.

The Imperialist showed that they would not be associated with any anti-national policy; but the gathering was harmonious and seem to have resulted in a temporary clearing of the air.

In the course of his speech, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman met the imperialists so far as to say the war must be brought to a victorious close, but he thought the Liberals ought to insist on amnesty in the settlement. While the country had the sword in one hand, it ought to have the olive branch in the other and show a disposition to come to terms with an enemy who had fought so bravely.

Mr. Asquith expressed the highest appreciation of the qualities of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, but at the same time he regretted that the Liberal leader in the house had not been outspoken in a policy of honest difference, rather than in an impossible attempt to reconcile differences. He urged that those taking the views which he himself held, should be free to express their opinions within the pale of the party.

Mr. Aquith then supported the resolution of confidence in Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman.

IS ALL RIGHT.

Shamrock II Shows Herself To Be the Better Boat.

Rothesay, Firth of Clyde, July 9.—In the first five miles of the racing trial between the Shamrocks this morning, both yachts apparently sailing for all they were worth, the challenger beat Shamrock I quite a half mile.

The boats started to windward with a steady, gradually strengthening breeze, about sufficient to cover the America cup course. The challenger had just come out of the dock where her hull was cleaned, and she showed immensely improved form, outsailing Shamrock I on every tack. She led the latter by a half mile off Little Cumbrae, five miles from the start.

The yachts beat out past Cumbrae in long tacks, Shamrock II still opening out until her lead was increased to nearly a mile. The wind then softened, and the cup challenger squared away and ran back to her opponent.

Reaching up the Firth, the yachts were both hopelessly becalmed, and the trial was abandoned.

The challenger's exhibition of sailing earlier in the day is taken to indicate that the smoothing of the hull and slight alteration made in her trim have brought Shamrock II to her proper condition and shows her true qualities.

AT WEST DULUTH

Robert Higginson had his left wrist severely lacerated at Merrill & Ring's mill last evening at 9 o'clock. He was attempting to remove a chunk from the edging machine. Mr. Higginson will experience a month of enforced idleness. While the gashes made by the saw on his wrist are deep, his wounds will not permanently disable him.

As darkness was approaching Louis Faulkner was hurt at the Mitchell & McClure banking ground. Logs rolled upon him and bruised and crushed one of his legs, besides temporarily rendering him unconscious. Mr. Faulkner received medical attendance and was removed to St. Mary's hospital. It is said that his injuries are not as serious as it was feared at first.

WILLIAM SIMPSON DEAD.

William Simpson died this morning at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Simpson, on Fifty-eighth avenue. Death was caused by a complication of diseases, and the deceased had been in poor health for the last year, although confined to the house only two weeks preceding the final summons. He was 24 years of age and is survived by his parents, five sisters and one brother. The funeral will be held from the house and will probably be held Thursday afternoon.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson, of Michigan, who have been making an extended visit with their daughter, Mrs. M. J. Burke, left yesterday for home accompanied by Mrs. Burke, who will remain there for some time.

William McLaughlin was given a sentence of ten days in the county jail yesterday. Shortly after making the arrest the police thought the man was demented, but it developed later that he was on the verge of delirium tremens. After serving his short sentence the man will probably be held on a charge of wife desertion.

A laborer boarding at a hotel on Fifty-fourth avenue was robbed of $41 recently. The money was in bills, being sewed into the lining of his shirt. On the night in question, after removing the garment and laying it to one side, he retired as usual. In the morning he discovered the loss and reported it to the police. A man rooming with the owner of the money was arrested, but as there was no evidence against him he was promptly discharged.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—
It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—
It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—
As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—
By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, which was duly made, executed and delivered by M. Fink and Catherine Fink, his wife, of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to N. J. Miller, of St. Louis County, Minnesota, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of July, A. D. 1890, and which was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 27th day of May, A. D. 1891, at 8 o'clock a. m., in Book 72 of mortgages, on page 348 thereof; which default consists in the non-payment of the principal and interest moneys secured by said mortgage, and on which said mortgage, there is claimed to be due, and there is due, at the date of this notice, the sum of two hundred twelve and 43-100 ($212.43) dollars, which is the principal and interest now due on said mortgage, and no proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage; and said mortgage contained a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the default and non-payment above mentioned.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that, by virtue of said power of sale, contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, which are situated in St. Louis County, Minnesota, and known and described as follows: Lot four (4), in section five (5), township sixty (60), range twelve (12) west, according to the United States government survey thereof, which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the county court house, in said city of Duluth, in said St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 24th day of August, A. D. 1901, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five ($25.00) dollars attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one (1) year from date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated July 9th, 1901.

Jury In the Pearson Case Will Probably Disagree.

St. Paul, uJly 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury in the case of Pearson vs. the Great Northern for $1,500,000 for alleged discovery of coal beds by a new method was still out at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and the indications are for a disagreement.

CAPT. DUNN DEAD.

Was Prominent In Minnesota State Politics.

St. Paul, July 9.—(Special to the Herald.)—A Rochester, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: Capt. Edwin Dunn, of Eyota, died last night in an operation for hernia, at his home. He was 67 years old, was very prominent in state politics. He was a member of the state prison board and also held several other offices. He served in the civil war in the Twenty-fifth regiment New York cavalry, and was mustered as commissary.

WITH OWNERS

The action of the city council last evening, along the line suggested by Mayor Hugo, of asking the property owners to petition for the permanent improvement of the avenues, has raised the question of how this may be accomplished when there is not enough money in the permanent improvement revolving fund, out of which the expense of the permanent improvements must be paid. The charter provides that the city must have on hand money enough to make the improvements before a contract can be let.

The permanent improvement revolving fund was created to provide a fund to work with. This fund, as is well known, has been heavily drawn on in the improvements made on Michigan street, and which are about to be made on Superior street, beside all the sewer and other improvement contracts that have been let. The fund is certainly not available in its present condition for other improvements as extensive as those planned, and the city officers are aware of this fact., Said Mayor Hugo this morning:

"The permanent improvement fund is far from being in a condition to warrant the improvement planned on the avenues. When I asked the city engineer yesterday to make estimates as to the cost of getting the avenues properly covered and guttered, I did not know that there was a move along the same line contemplated by the city council, as expressed by the resolution of that body passed last evening.

"The situation may be characterized as extraordinary. We must have the permanent improvements, and yet there is not enough money in the permanent improvement revolving fund to warrant those improvements, under the charter. The action taken by myself and by the council is to bring the matter before the property holders, for with them lies the whole matter. We have thought that some plan can be devised, if the property owners are sufficiently interested in the move, by which the funds could be advanced by them before the contractors are given the work. Some such plan as this must be tried. After we get the movement well under way and before the attention of the property owners, it will be time then to plan just what steps will be the most advisable."

STILL SEARCHING.

St. Paul, July 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special to the Dispatch from Rochester, Minn., says: The searching party for Henry Schmelzer still works vigorously. All last night and today they have been dragging the Zumbrota river but nothing was found. Telegrams received from relatives say nothing has been seen of him. Foul play or suicide is now believed to have been the cause and search will not be given up.

UNDER ADVISEMENT.

C. O. Baldwin appeared before the pardon board yesterday in behalf of Claude Harrison, the young man who was sentenced to the state prison at Stillwater, on the reformatory plan, for carnal knowledge of a girl under 16 years of age. The application for a pardon was based on the result in the trial of the case against B. F. Hough, in which the jury decided that the same girl was over 16 years old, and also on the conflicting testimony of the girl and her mother in Superior. There the girl said she was 17 years of age, and the woman who swore in the district court here that she was the girl's mother said in Superior that she was not. The board took the application under advisement along with a number of other matters of a similar nature.

A Suggestive Title.

The Midnight Test Mining company is the rather romantic title of a mining corporation that filed its articles with the register of deeds this morning. The company is authorized to do a mining business in Minnesota, Arizona and elsewhere, and its principal place of business is Duluth. The incorporators are William Elder, Arthur Howell and E. Frankenfield and the capital stock is $50,000, divided into 50,000 shares of the par value of $1 each.

MISSIONS.

Women of Union Hold Their Second Annual Meeting.

The second annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary union was held at the Morley Congregational church today. This morning the meeting was opened by a praise service led by Mrs. Myra Gray, who took for her subject "The Transfiguration of Christ." During the hour Mrs. LeTourneau sang beautifully, "Will There be Any Stars in My Crown?" Mrs. Blackmar was heard in an excellent presentation of the Mormon problem. Her paper was interestingly prepared and some new facts were brought out .

Miss Holt, who leaves in two weeks for Brousa, Turkey, under the auspices of the American board of missions, was introduced and the ladies in attendance took great pleasure in meeting her.

The secretary's annual report was then read by Mrs. E. G. Chapman, after which luncheon was served by the ladies of Morley church.

In the afternoon Miss Holt led the praise meeting and Miss True, a teacher of the freedmen in the South, gave an interesting talk concerning hem. "Congregational Home Missionary Work" was the subject of a very interesting talk by Mrs. Alexander Milne, and Miss Ostergren, who is interested in the Scandinavian work throughout the country, spoke on "Women in the Home Land."

Miss Nason, from Turkey, who has been in the work in that land for several years, spoke this afternoon. Miss Nason has been ill since her return from Turkey and this was to be the first opportunity the ladies have had of meeting her. The election of officers was the last matter on the program.

NOTICE.

Beginning tomorrow, and continuing while the work on Superior street, between Lake and Third avenues east is in progress, Interstate cars and the extra West Duluth cars will be run down Lake avenue to the canal, instead of to Third avenue east. The Lake avenue car will be taken off.

HIS REPORT.

Capt. Mercer Says It Will Be of Much Interest.

Capt. W. A. Mercer, in charge of the Leech Lake agency at Walker, Minn., is in the city this afternoon. The captain came to Duluth with his daughter, who has gone on to Wisconsin, where she will visit some friends.

"We have been experiencing miserable weather in the 'park region,'" remarked the captain. "It has been very cold and the rainfall is away above the normal. One day in June I saw a heavy fall of snow, the storm lasting twenty minutes and covering the ground with a white mantle of some depth. In less than ten days following the temperature was 88 in the shade, and in the interval between the snow and the torrid weather we had two hail storms, stones being picked up that measured three and a half inches in circumference. We have all varieties of climate in the 'park region.' The Indians are quiet and, I think, are contented. We have a postoffice of our own on the reservation now, named Omnigum.

"My official report on the timber operations during the past season is in Washington, and will be made public soon. This report contradicts the sensational stories and misrepresentations which are in circulation, and which are believed in many quarters. The situation is thoroughly reviewed and official figures and statistics given. I expect that it will create more than ordinary interest in certain quarters. I am anxious to have the report made public as soon as possible, as it brings out many things in an entirely new light."

Capt. Mercer will leave for the agency tomorrow morning.

W. E. LUCAS HERE.

Has Been In Mexico For Some Time.

William E. Lucas, formerly of Duluth, arrived in the city today from Chicago, where he now makes his headquarters. For some time past he has been in Mexico and he has a high opinion of the resources and busines prospects of that country. American capital is going in there heavily and finds there is better opportunity and richer returns than in the states. It is a land rich in mineral wealth. Oil developments there are becoming very extensive, too, and there is reason to believe that there is great wealth in that direction. The rapid settlement of the great American grazing states is driving the big cattle raisers to Mexico, too, and that industry is growing rapidly.

Mr. Lucas says that he can see that Duluth is growing and believes that its growth will be steady and substantial.

BANKERS TO MEET

State Association to Convene Here July 24 and 25.

Fine Program Outlined For a Session of Two Days.

To Leave Here For Buffalo Pan-American Exposition.

One of the notable gatherings to be held in Duluth this summer is the twelfth annual convention of the Minnesota Bankers' association, which will take place in the Spalding hotel July 24 and 25. The convention will bring to this city some of the most prominent financiers of the state, and it is expected that the sessions will be very interesting. The officers of the association are: President, J. C. Hunter; vice president, J. R. Mitchell; treasurer, George H. Prince; secretary, Joseph Chapman. A. A. Crane is chairman of the executive committee.

The convention will be called to order at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, July 24. The program for the day includes an opening prayer by Rev. T. H. Cleland, address of welcome by Mayor Hugo, annual address by the president, annual reports of the secretary, of the treasurer and the executive committee.

Other interesting features of the day's program will be an address by F. I. Whitney, general passenger agent of the Great Northern road, on the topic, "Our Trade Relations With the Orient."

Hon. John Lusk, of St. Paul, will speak on the subject, "Financial Panics in the United States."

On Thursday the convention will be called to order at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. The opening address will be made by Hon. William B. Dean, of St. Paul, member of the Indianapolis Monetary commission, on the subject, "Asset Currency." David R. Forgan, vice president of the First National bank, Chicago, will talk about "A Decade of Financial Progress." Hon. Myron T. Herrick, president of the Society for Savings, Cleveland, Ohio, will deliver an address on the savings system.

The addresses will be followed by a question box, general reports of committees and the election of officers.

The local committee has arranged the following entertainment for the visiting bankers and their families:

Thursday—A carriage drive around the boulevard; a boat ride on Lake Superior in the evening.

Friday—An all-day excursion on the Iron Range road, and a visit to the largest ore mines. This trip is a complimentary one, and the association will be indebted for it to one of its members.

Friday evening the Bankers' association will leave the city in a special train over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic line on its way for a two weeks' visit at the Pan-American exposition. The party will take a Detroit & Cleveland steamer at St. Ignace for Buffalo. Stops will be made at some of the larger lower lake ports for sightseeing.

TONIGHT.

Fireworks Display To Come Off---Rain or Shine.

Rain or shine, the fireworks display will take place this evening. This is the final decision reached by the committee today, after days of nerve-racking suspense on their part and many indignation meetings on the part of those people that have traveled out to the platform on several occasions thinking the display would take place. The gentlemen in charge of the fireworks began getting them ready, and several of the large pieces have already been hung. Of course, if it rains, "it is all off" with some of the fireworks, for the dampness will ruin the pieces, but the committee will go ahead now even if there is a thunder storm in sight. The fireworks will take place at Thirteenth avenue east and London road and the street railway company is making arrangements to run special cars during the evening to handle the crowds that are expected to go out. The display, if it does not rain, will be one of the finest ever seen at the head of the lake. There will be a large number of people over from West Superior this evening to see the fireworks, numerous inquiries having been made today as to the probability of the display taking place tonight.

COMPROMISE.

Result Will Be Improvements at Superior Entry.

The announcement made in the morning paper that the government will pay owners of property who have been damaged by reason of government work in Duluth-Superior harbor, $40,000 as reimbursement, is misleading. The improvement of the mouth of the Nemadji river and the Superior entry required the taking of certain land and condemnation proceedings were instituted. An award of about $72,000 was made. Maj. Sears declared this excessive and the work was hung up.

When Capt. Gaillard came here he was anxious to have the work proceed and the property owners were called together and were told the situation and a compromise was suggested. They came down to about $40,000 and this was approved by the department.

The matter is in the hands of the United States district attorney at Madison and Capt. Gaillard has heard nothing further. It is presumable, however, that the matter is to be adjusted. If that is true the improvement will proceed and it is one that the vessel interests are anxious for.

A Body Found.

The body of an unknown man was found last Sunday afternoon in a small river seven miles west of Stony Brook Junction on the Eastern Minnesota railway. He wore lumberman's shoes with corks and it is thought that he was lost last spring in the drive. The head and one arm and shoulder were gone partly from decomposition and partly from the action of the logs. It was thought that the remains would be brought here but they were buried immediately, owing to their condition, where he was found, about half a mile east of Congo.

BAD ALLEYS.

Dirty One In Rear Superior Street Blocks.

Officials connected with the health department of this city say that nowhere else in Duluth will there be found such dirty alleys as behind the business houses along Superior street. Of course there are now and then exceptions to the rule, but the statement is said to be true, generally. Only this morning a man walked into the health office and said, after declaring that he has a "cast iron lined stomach," there was an alley back of a certain business house on Superior street that he could not pass, one that is a disgrace to the house and to the city. It was his invectives that called forth the reply of the health department regarding the general conditions which, by the way, were confirmed by one or two of the inspectors that were present.

The inspectors say that the commission men of the city keep the alleys in the rear of their place the cleanest, and that, too, without a continual prodding up by the city health department, but they also say that there are business firms that seem to run just as close to the line as possible where arrest is liable before they will clean their alleys. The board of health is said to have more trouble in keeping some of the business men in line of cleanliness in this respect than any other class of people.

This morning there was a rush of East End residents to the health office to make complaint against one of the night scavengers whom, they declare has made life a burden in the vicinity of Superior street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues east, because of refuse left along on top of the pavement. The residents that were not able to come to the office telephoned in about the matter. The health office has a tracer out after the scavenger, and if he is one of the men licensed by the city the chances are that his license will be revoked, as the department has given strict orders to the men employed as scavengers regarding the performance of their duties.

WILL UMPIRE.

Gus Ruhlin To Officiate Saturday and Sunday.

All of the arrangements have been completed for Ruhlin's visit to Duluth, and the big fighter will be here Saturday. Jay Anderson wired Billy Madden this morning and received the answer that everything would be acceptable to them. Gus will umpire the ball game between the Duluth team and the Chicago Unions, Saturday and Sunday afternoons, at the Driving park, and Saturday evening he will give an exhibition with his sparring partner at the Superior theater. His trainer, Billy Madden, will introduce the man of mighty muscle each time the latter appears. This will be an event in the sporting circles of Duluth, as but few men of his size in the arena ever get this far north, and in this case it was only on account of the friendship existing between Jay Anderson and Madden that Duluth will have an opportunity to see him.

BUYS MORE.

Davis Realty Company Purchases O'Brien & Knowlton.

An important real estate deal was concluded today when the Davis Real Estate company purchased the O'Brien & Knowlton block, at the southeast corner of Michigan street and Second avenue west, from the American Exchange bank and the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company. The consideration is withheld for the present.

The building occupies two lots and has a frontage of 100 feet on Michigan street. It is five stories high on the railroad tracks and four on Michigan street, and the stores on the Michigan street front are occupied by commission houses. It is a substantial building and it cost $60,000 originally.

C. P. Craig & Co. made the purchase for the Davis Real Estate company, which has lately acquired a large amount of choice property in this city, particularly several pieces purchased by Mrs. Ida P. Davis, of New York, who transfered them to the company.

"PIG" CAUGHT

William McKinney, proprietor of an establishment on Park Point, was arrested this morning by Officer Drennan on a warrant charging him with selling liquor without a license. McKinney was arraigned in municipal court and made no opposition to the charge. He was fined $70 and costs, a total of $77.50, which he paid and was released. This is the first instance of an arrest this season for selling liquor on the point without a license.

Thomas McKinney, a brother of William McKinney, was arrested and fined on two occasions last summer for a similar offense, but this was the first appearance of William in court. The city authorities declare positively that there will be no liquor sold on the point this year, and say that every case, backed with good evidence, will be prosecuted to the fullest extent.

Change In Directors.

A. R. Macfarlane, who has for many years been a director of the American Exchange bank, has resigned. Chester A. Congdon has been elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. Congdon will bring to the bank financial strength, and will be a valuable counsellor by reason of his business and legal ability.

Marcy the Winner.

J. R. Macey was the lucky man in the contest inaugurated by W. J. Suffe & Co. some time ago by offering a twenty-dollar gold piece for the person who guessed the nearest to the number of pieces that entered into the making of a pair of boots in their window. The correct answer is 648 and Mr. Macey guessed 650. Another man guessed the same number, but as Mr. Macey was almost two weeks earlier he received the prize.

PROVIDES FOR ONE

County Board Follows Suggestion of State Health Board.

County Health Board Named and Dr. Patton Is Selected.

Declines to Compromise Duluth - Superior Bridge Taxes.

There is now a county board of health, composed of Dr. Frederick J. Patton and Commissioners Morcom, Berdie, Kauppi and Patterson. This board was appointed this morning by the county board in accordance with the law passed at the last session of the legislature. Dr. Patton will receive pay at the rate of $300 a year and expenses, and will act as county health officer. The remainder of the board, being county commissioners, will serve without pay.

Commissioner Kugler brought the matter up by moving that the board appoint a board of health, and he suggested that Dr. Robinson, the city health commissioner, be appointed as the physician on the board as required by law. He thought that as the city and county health officers would have to act in conjunction anyway, much trouble and expense might be avoided by having both offices filled by one man, who could then act in conjunction with himself.

This idea of mixing up city and county matters did not meet with the approval of the other members of the board, however, so Mr. Kugler did not press the matter. Commissioner Berg suggested the county physician might be used, but Commissioner Kugler said the law did not contemplate that.

Commissioner Kauppi thought it would be a good idea to give some young and able physician a chance, especially as the position would involve some hard work traveling that a young man could better undertake. He suggested that Dr. Patton be asked to serve.

Finally Commissioner Kugler suggested the membership comprised in the list above, and it was accepted by the board. The pay was then fixed at the rate of $300 per year and expenses on itemized accounts.

Commissioner Patterson moved that the chairman write to the state board of health calling attention to having a detention hospital for the insane provided, according to the new law, and this will be done.

Commissioner Kugler said in reference to the offer of the Duluth-Superior Bridge company to compromise the taxes on the Duluth-Superior bridge that the city assessor said that the assessment was made carefully and no reduction would be recommended by him. In accordance with that Mr. Kugler advised the board not to accept any compromise.

The offer of F. L. Buell of $300 for the release of F. W. Paine, H. Lardner and Joseph Sellwood from the bond of the Security bank as a county depository was not accepted. On the contrary, the board directed the county attorney to proceed against the bond and collect what is coming to the county if possible.

The bid of F. A. Thorwald for painting the inside of the county jail was accepted. He offered to paint the jail thoroughly with one coat of paint, and then give it a coat of enamel for $475, and his offer was accepted.

A bill of the Village of Fountain Iron for small pox expenses was turned down, and it was added to the growing list of accounts of this nature that will come up in the September term of the district court. Commissioner Berdie said that some of the range towns had been reimbursed by the state out of $20,000 that was appropriated for that purpose, and it was decided to ask the towns and villages to make application to the state before that $20,000 is gone.

Commissioner Berdie wanted $1300 more for roads, and his application was turned down by a vote of 5 to 2, Commissioner McInnes voting with him. Commissioner McInnes wanted $1000 more, and this demand met the same fate, Chairman Morcom joining the two Mesaba range commissioners in voting for it.

Commissioner Kauppi also had a request in, but just as the clerk was about to read it Mr. Kauppi headed it off, and asked for a statement of the amount of money available for road purposes.

"You needn't think you can get anything out of us for your roads," said Commissioner Berdie with some acidity.

Then a motion to adjourn went through, and the rest of the business, including the levy, went over to this afternoon.

SECOND ONE.

Another Arrest On Account of C. O. Nelson Robbery.

Clarence E. Boyd, a West Duluth youth, was arrested this afternoon on a warrant charging him with stealing lace curtains from the establishment of C. O. Nelson. Fred Hanson, a companion in the alleged crime, was arrested yesterday. The crime is said to have been traced to Boyd, through his attempt to dispose of the curtains to a second-hand dealer.

Hary Thomas, who was arrested a few days ago charged with assault on Harry Trinko, a waiter in the Zenith restaurant, was found guilty in municipal court this morning and fined $1 and costs, the whole amounting to $9, which Thomas paid.

The examination of George E. Leissner, former manager of the wall paper department in the Glass Block store, on the charge of embezzlement of $31.38 from Panton & White, is being conducted in municipal court this afternoon. Witnesses have been procured from Two Harbors.

Thomas Marks was arrested by Officer Jensen today for using profane language. His examination will take place this afternoon.

John Olson, a street beggar, pleaded guilty in municipal court today and was released under suspended sentence.

For being drunk, Martin Aden was sent up for ten days.

Walter Bailey was arraigned this morning on the charge of disorderly conduct. He pleaded not guilty and his examination will take place this afternoon. Wallie Mark was run in by Officer Smollett this afternoon and will be arraigned on the charge of drunkenness.

CITY BRIEFS.

If you smoke a "Tom Reed" you smoke the best cigar on the market.

The contract for the erection of a building at 328 West Michigan street has been let to C. E. Evens. It is to be built by Ida P. Davis, a non-resident property owner. It will be twenty-five feet in width and two stories in height.

The LaVaque Paint and Wall Paper company, at 21 East Superior street, has made an assignment to C. W. Stilson.

Next Saturday's special term of court will be the last until Aug. 17. In accordance with the usual custom the last two special term days in July and the first two in August will be omitted, and this will make next Saturday's the last until the end of the vacation.

Second citizenship papers have been granted by the district court to Charles Johnson, Mary Johnson and Alvan Goodman.

Dancing at Lester Park Thursday.

The baseball game between the Duluth Grays and the Board of Trade did not come off yesterday afternoon on account of the rain. It will probably be played Friday.

The following births were reported at the health office today: A boy to Mr. and Mrs. Hokanson, 424 First avenue east, June 26; a boy to Mr. and Mrs. Helmer Nelson, 23 West Ninth street, July 5; a girl to Mr. and Mrs. George Thram, 219 East Sixth street, July 2; a boy to Mr. and Mrs. John F. Bumpus, 223 First avenue east, July 3.

The death of John Henry Williams, the 9-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, of 125 First avenue west, on July 7, was reported at the health department this morning. Burial at Forest Hill cemetery.

Desirable men for work in the woods are reported as being very few. Men who will take a job in the woods have only to say the word and be annexed to a position.

Eighteen delegates from the Red Men lodges in Duluth and vicinity are going to the grand council at Walker, Aug. 12. Dr. R. H. Pierce has received word that the Walker people also want to entertain the best baseball nine that can be secured in Duluth.

The police payroll for extra policemen on July 4, was $25.

Building permits have been granted August Wickman, for a frame dwelling on Michigan street, between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth avenues west, to cost $100; and to Emil Schaender, for the construction of a frame store building on Fourth street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues east, to cost $450.

Six of the property owners on First street, between Twentyfirst and Twenty-second avenues east, have petitioned the council for permanent improvements between the avenues named in the way of a combined cement curb and gutter on both sides of the street. The proposition has been laid before the board of public works for its recommendation.

Fred Hanson, the young man accused by C. O. Nelson, of the West End, with stealing rugs, was arraigned in municipal court late yesterday afternoon. His examination was set for July 11. In default of $250 bail, Hanson was committed.

An adjourned meeting of the park board will be held this afternoon if enough of the commissioners are present to form a quorum. There is nothing of importance to come before the board, but there are a number of bills to be passed on.

The street railway company has completed laying its temporary track along Superior street near the curb, between Third avenue east and Lake avenue. It is expected that the company will make its first move in tearing up the old rails tomorrow.

Capt. Caillard has issued a circular letter calling for bids for the removal of the hulk of the tug E. P. Ferry which now reposes in the harbor near the Point where the canal ferry lands on the lower side.

Health Officials Will Be Prosecuted In Five Localities.

St. Paul, July 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Secretary Bracken's quarterly report at the meeting of the state board of health today, stated that steps had been taken to criminally prosecute local health ocials in five localities for culpable negligence to quarantine cases of smallpox.

He declined to give the names of the men or the places, on the ground that the prosecutions were in the hands of the county attornies concerned and could not be made public without hampering them in getting action berore their grand juries.

ACTUAL ROMANCE

Human Suffering While Buffeting Ill Winds of Misfortune.

Story That Exceeds the Power of Fiction to Portray.

Lost One Has Been Reclaimed After Twelve Years.

New Carlisle, Ohio, July 9.—Missing Ward Leroy Smith, who was believed to have been drowned in the Johnstown flood, is now fully identified by his father Henry Smith, and reclaimed to the hearth from which he had been so long absent.

The story of this lad's experience, his finding and return to Osborn awaiting identification has already appeared in The Herald, but the details are indeed sad, and when strung together are stranger than fiction and certainly more appealing to human emotions.

On the ill-fated day of the flood, and on that ill-fated train, were riding the wife and son of Henry Smith, the hardware merchant of Osborn. Mr. Smith, knowing that his wife and child were on the train, hastened, as fast as steam could carry him to the scene of disaster.

For days he searched among the dead and dying for the forms and faces of Hettie, his wife, and Ward, his son; when at last he recognized the dead body of his wife, but his little son could not be found, search as he would.

Henry Smith never recovered from the shock of the death of his wife and the loss of their only child. The uncertainty of the fate of little Ward cast a shadow over his life.

During the night of that ill-fated day Ward L. Smith was rescued from the wreck at Stone Bridge, near Cambridge City, by a heroic young man. He was held for some time for recognition; was seen by hundreds of those stricken friends who were in search of lost loved ones, but no recognition came for the child. When taken from the wreck his arm was dislocated and the bridge of his nose was broken; he received no treatment, and was turned over to a poor Irish family, who were unable to care for him.

He was given the name of Harry Caln. He next found a home with E. J. Young. At the end of a year he was turned out and driven away. Having no friends, he wandered to a man named Drinton, where he remained a short time, but he was again turned out, and from pillar to post this child, crippled as he was, struggled along.

For twelve years this lost waif was without the care and sympathy of any loving heart, for he never knew what it was to feel the pressure of kindred love. Yet amid all the trials and temptation to do wrong he carries the impress of better things.

He finally went to work for Mr. Rodgers, a dairyman, near Johnstown. Here he remained for five years, until the first clew was learned by his friends of the probability of his identification.

It appears that a Mr. White, who had lost his wife and child in his search for his own loved ones, and became interested by reason of sympathy, feeling that some poor father or mother was lamenting the loss of a child, He placed an advertisement in the papers of Pittsburg, calling attention to this boy, and there he kept it for these long years, always keeping track of the boy. By accident Clay Hartmen, a resident of the vicinity of Osborn, was in the city of Pittsburg a few months ago, and saw the notice in the paper. Being familiar with the facts concerning the loss of Mr. Smith's son, he cut out the notice and sent it to J. C. Smith, the merchant, and a brother of Henry Smith. This led to a correspondence, which ended in bringing the boy to Osborn last Thursday.

By a large number of the friends and acquaintances the boy was readily recognized as the long lost child.

There can be no positive evidence, but there is other circumstantial evidence that makes identification clear. The only remembrance the boy has is of the dress which he wore was plaid. The grandmother has a piece of the dress that Ward wore when they started away from Osborn—it is plaid goods. The nurse that had the care of the child stated that Ward had two birth marks upon his back; she recognizes the same marks upon the body of the boy today. So it will never be positively known that this boy is the lost one, yet the evidence is so clear in many ways that there is scarcely a doubt but what this is the lost Ward L. Smith. The boy is naturally bright and intelligent and highly pleased with his new surroundings.

FILLMORE OUT.

Prominent Official of the Southern Pacific Resigns.

San Francisco, July 9.—Jerome A. Fillmore has resigned as manager of the Pacific system of the Southern Pacific company. He said:

"President Hays and myself have made an arrangement that is satisfactory to both of us. In fact I have a verbal arrangement with him as to the future of myself that shows a fair and just spirit on his part to me. I am not at liberty to divulge the nature of this arrangement and must decline to talk further on the subject. The relations between President Hays and myself are friendly and will continue so."

Mr. Fillmore has been at the head of the operating department of the Southern Pacific on this coast for nineteen years. It is understood in railroad circles that Mr. Fillmore will be succeeded by E. H. Fitzhugh, who resigned the position of general manager of the Vermont Central road and is now here on waiting orders.

FOSBURG

On Trial For Murder of His Sister Ida.

Family Say Burglars Did the Killing.

Pittsfield, Mass., July 9.—A trial began here yesterday which is expected to solve one of the most mysterious cases known in the criminal annals of the country—the murder of Miss Ida May Fosburg. Her brother Robert is the man accused of the crime, and it is to determine his guilt or innocence that the efforts in court will be made.

Either the Pittsfield police have made the most amazing and unwarranted error in charging young Fosburg with the murder of his sister, or the Fosburg family have perjured themselves in a manner unprecedented in criminal history.

If the police prove their charges, R. L. Fosburg, the respected and wealthy contractor of Pittsfield, Mass.; his wife, the gray-haired mother of his children; his 13-year-old daughter, his son's wife, his murdered daughter's friend, Miss Sheldon, a society girl of Providence, and the accused man himself have banded themselves together to thwart the ends of justice.

Each of them has sworn to the statement that burglars entered the house where they were living on Aug. 20 last, and in a struggle that ensued one of them killed May Fosburg, the eldest daughter.

The police maintain that no burglars entered the house, and that the shot that killed May Fosburg was fired by Robert Stewart Forburg, her brother, probably in some sort of a family altercation.

From end to end of the country on Aug. 20 there flashed the news that May L. Fosburg, the pretty daughter of the wealthy contractor, had been murdered.

The first story, spread to every corner of Pittsfield and the surrounding towns, was that three ruffians had broken into the Fosburg house for the purpose of robbery.

Mr. Fosburg, suddenly roused out of a deep sleep, had been beaten down by a sandbag, while his daughter May, having rushed to his assistance, had been mercilessly shot.

The news of the crime threw the whole of Western Massachusetts into a state of the wildest excitement. The air was full of mutterings and demands for vengeance. Fifteen hundred dollars was offered by Mayor Russell for a clew that would lead to the capture of the ruffians. Armed posses, under command of Chief of Police Nicholson, patrolled the country roads throughout the Berkshire hills.

No one seemed to enter more eagerly into the search than Mr. Fosburg himself. He doubled the sheriff's reward for the capture of the burglar. Yet the days passed and the clews found were of the scantiest sort.

They consisted of a mask discovered about a mile out of the Fosburg place, a pair of trousers, a brown Derby hat of peculiar shape, a pair of men's socks and a patent leather shoe of good make and quality, footprints on the lawn before the house, and bloody finger marks on the piazza post.

May Fosburg's funeral took place, the posse gradually dispersed without having been able to discover a trace of the burglars, and the country settled down once more to its summer pastimes, both fashionable and laborious.

The murder of May Fosburg was not forgotten, but the murderer was still at large.

Not since the murder of May Fosburg had anything startled the town so intensely as the news that Robert Stewart Fosburg, her brother, had been arrested and charged with the crime of manslaughter.

"If my son killed his sister," said Mr. Fosburg, "there is no punishment too great for him; he should have been indicted for murder in the first degree. I should have been indicted for murder in the first degree, and all of my family should have been prosecuted for perjury. It is outrageous and absurd. Why am I not as guilty as my son?"

Very soon Mr. Fosburg learned why his son had been indicted for manslaughter and not for murder.

It was a clever move of Charles Y. Gardner, district attorney of Berkshire county.

In Massachusetts there is a law permitting a man charged with murder to demand the names of witnesses against him before the grand jury. The crime of manslaughter is vested with no such privilege.

The state has the advantage of being able to keep the defense in the dark as to the line of prosecution until the trial comes off.

Meanwhile, the accused was admitted to bail and welcomed back into the bosom of his family with open arms.

With double reason—to free a suspected son and avenge a murdered daughter—the family now redoubled their efforts to trace the burglars. Mr. Fosburg raised the reward for clews to $10,000.

As a result they came in from all sides now contradictory, now promising. The family and their friends were kept at a fever heat of excitement.

In the house on the night of the murder were Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Fosburg, their son, Robert Sewart, and his wife; May, the daughter who was killed, and Beatrice. The other son and daughter were away, one in New Haven and one visiting friends at Adams.

Miss Bertha Sheldon, the daughter of a well known Providence architect, was a visitor in the house. She had left immediately after the murder. At one time it was said that her testimony would be damaging to the accused man and that therefore she had been kept by his family out of the case. She has, however, since then, denounced the indictment of Robert Fosburg as an outrage upon justice.

"I never saw a more loving, kindly devoted family in my life," she has said. "I heard no quarrels or bickerings among its members. I went there intending to stay one week, but remained eighteen days. On the Sunday evening before the murder, which occurred between 1 and 1:30 Monday morning, we played and sang and read aloud. It was a charming family gathering. I remember the last song that May sang was 'The Plains of Peace.'

"After that every member of the family kissed each other and then retired to their rooms.

"A little after 1 o'clock I was aroused by hearing a shot. I lay still, listening, for about half a minute. Then I opened the door and saw May Fosburg lying on the floor of her room, with her mother and Beatrice trying to rouse her. Young Mr. Fosburg was lying in May's room, too, I think unconscious.

"Mr. Fosburg, the father, seemed seriously hurt.

"Beatrice said burglars had entered the house and killed May."

Mrs. Fosburg, the murdered girl's own mother, a woman of rare culture and gentle bearing, aroused herself after the second terrible shock of her son's arrest and spoke of the peaceful, happy Sunday evening they had all spent together, of her daughter May's singing, and of how they at last kissed one another good night, after their unfailing custom, and retired.

"Robert's wife first heard burglars in the house," said Mrs. Fosburg. "She awakened my son, but he assured her that her fears were the result of nervousness.

"Not long after that I was awakened by a light in the hall outside the room in which I slept with my husband. I called out and awakened Mr. Fosburg. He imediately knew that an intruder was in the house, and sprang from the bed just in time to grapple with two men who came in the room.

"He screamed and awakened my daughters and son. Mr. Fosburg carried two burglars to the floor with him. In the fight he received a bad blow across the face, one rib was broken and another injured, and he was hurt otherwise.

"While the fight was in progress our youngest daughter, Beatrice, now 14 years old, was fumbling at the switch, trying to turn on the light.

"She succeeded just as May entered the room from her bedroom, which was opposite ours. The third burglar, who was stationed in the hallway outside the door, fired at May, and she fell into the arms of Robert, who rushed into the room at that moment. He let her sink to the floor and sprang to the assistance of his father, who was still struggling with the two men.

"By this time there had been created such an uproar that the burglars retreated. One rushed down stairs and escaped through a window, the other two stepped out into a porch and jumped 12 feet to the ground. Just before they jumped one turned and fired at Robert. Fortunately the bullet did no other harm than to bury itself in a bureau drawer.

"This bullet was afterward recovered, and was found to be similar to the one that killed May.

"Now, Robert had a revolver carrying such bullets, but it was in a bureau drawer in the attic. We found later that the burglars had gone up the back stairs to the attic and evidently stolen this revolver, which they carried away with them. During the scuffle with my husband they dropped a revolver, an old hat and two masks formed from pillow cases. One of them left behind an old shoe.

"Their travels through the house were followed by burned matches of a manufacture not sold here."

Little Beatrice supplemented her mother's story, telling what a happy evening they all had till she heard her mamma scream.

She said that as May, who was sleeping with her, sprang from the room she stopped to turn on the electric light. Then, said the little girl, "I saw papa struggling on the floor with two men, wearing white masks.

"Mamma was trying to help papa, and in the door was a third man. Toward him May advanced, and then he raised a revolver and seemed to take deliberate aim at my sister, and May stopped.

"Just then brother Robert rushed past me from his room. He caught May in his arms and let her sink to the floor; then he jumped to the assistance of papa. The men ran away, one of them firing again just as he stepped from the window to the porch.

"Papa ran to the window and began calling for help. The neighbors answered, and very soon we had plenty of assistance."

These two stories from the lips of the murdered girl's mother and little sister seemed straight enough until rumors of the way the police intend to riddle them at the trial of Robert Fosburg filled the air.

The members of the grand jury were somehow convinced that May Fosburg came to her death from a pistol held in the hands of a member of the family, and that she was not shot by a burglar. An array of incriminating facts and inferences was presented to the grand jury. They will be presented again at Robert Fosburg's trial.

It has leaked out that the police questioned in the first place the Fosburg account of the shooting.

They declared it to be impossible.

The girl, the family stated, fell right in the doorway of her own room—shot in the heart. The hall at that point is only about a yard wide, and if the burglar shot her there the pistol must have been almost against her and the powder would have scorched her skin. The autopsy proved that there were no powder burns.

Another flagrant discrepancy, the police maintain, came from the lips of the innocent-eyed 14-year-old sister. She says she turned up the light in time to see the burglar fire at her sister.

Why should desperate men, intent upon burglary, stop to shoot at a woman while two men were advancing on them? They would realize that the dangerous point was the men, not the girl.

Also, if Robert Fosburg was struggling with one of the burglars, as he and his whole family stated, could he at the same time have been near enough to his sister May to be able to catch her as she fell? And why were the footprints on the lawn leading toward the house and none leading away from it?

According to the Fosburgs, the burglars first opened an unoccupied room, where they made masks of pillow slips. One of these masks was afterward found on the premises.

The prosecution will recall at the trial of young Fosburg that those were professional burglars, or at any rate men engaged in a most hazardous crime, ready for any violence and desirous of concealing their identity.

Is it fair to suppose, it will ask, that they should have waited until they were inside of the house before making the masks?

The police maintain that after it had been established that the material in the masks came out of the Fosburg house the family explained it by suggesting that the burglars had halted upstairs.

This theory was further bolstered up by assertions from young Fosburg and his wife that they had heard noises some time before the discovery of the burglars, but had dismissed them as mere fancies.

Another strange coincidence to be brought out is that all the articles left by the burglars came from the Fosburg house except, possibly, the hat and the much disputed shoe.

The pistol with which the murder was committed has been admitted to be young Fosburg's.

The pillow cases for the masks have been recognized as coming off the spare bed.

The trousers found outside were young Fosburg's.

Now each of these things, according to the prosecution, tells a story of its own.

A serious rumor holds that the state will charge that Robert Fosburg shot his sister in an effort to slay his own wife during a frenzy of drunkenness, amounting really to temporary insanity.

The theory is that his father came to the young wife's rescue and May Fosburg also ran out of her room to her sister-in-law's defense, and that the weapon was accidentally discharged, as the son was trying to shoot his father or his wife.

Again, it is conjectured that father and son had a quarrel, that the son, enraged past endurance, fired the shot that miscarried so fatally.

To bear out these theories the police believe that the family then sat in solemn conclave and agreed upon the burglar story.

IS A WRECK.

Steamer Delmar Ashore at Newfoundland Filled and Sank.

St. Johns, Nfld., July 9.—The British steamer Delmar, from Dundee, June 29, which struck on a reef in Black Head cove yesterday, during a dense fog, and then went ashore at Renews, on the east coast of Newofundland, is a total wreck today. She listed and sank during the night and is now full of water. The crew left her at midnight. The captain and chief officer remained after the others, but were forced to abandon the vessel later. The crew will be taken on board the steamer Glencoe, due to arrive here this evening.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Investigation of Handling of Endowment Funds.

Chicago, July 9.—Behind closed and carefully guarded doors the supreme lodge of the Knights of Pythias today met in special session to consider alleged "injudicious handling of the funds of the endowment rank of the order."

Members of the fraternal organization, both in United States and Canada, are said to be intensely interested in the outcome of the investigation, a report of which will be made during the meeting by President C. F. S. Nead of the board of control of the endowment rank. It is said $500,000, the entire surplus of the endowment rank, is unavailable for use except at a great sacrifice.

A special assessment on insured members, and an increase in monthly payments on insurance, are said to be probable.

ARCHITECTS MEET.

Consider Construction of Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

St. Louis, July 9.—A commission of architects after whose plans and under whose supervision the building of the Louisiana purchase exposition will be erected, held their first meeting today. The commission is composed of Isaac S. Taylor, director of works; George P. Kessler, Kansas City, landscape architect; Julius Pitz, landscape engineer; Eames & Young, Barrett Haynes and Barnet Weidman and Walsh and Bolssel and Theo. C. Link, all of St. Louis; Cass Gilbert and Carrere and Hastings, New York; D. H. Burnham & Co., Chicago; Van Brunt and Howe, Kansas City, and Walker & Kimball, Omaha.

Two other important world's fair meetings were held today. One is that of the executive committee which President Francis says will submit a report to the directors on the scope of the fair, that is, what kind of exhibits shall be made. It will be arranged to have exhibits from all over the world, of course, but the work of scope includes the character of those exhibits.

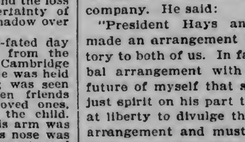

Following this a meeting of the directors will be held.

BACK FROM SUMATRA.

San Francisco, July 9.—F. W. Dyson, an astronomer from the Greenwich observatory, England, who went to Sumatra to take views and make observations of the eclipse there in May, has arrived here, being the first member of the various eclipse parties to reach this country. He says the best photographs of the eclipse were obtained by American astronomers. He will make a tour of the observatories of this country.

FELL IN LOVE

With the Voice of a Church Choir Contralto.

Cleveland, July 9.—This is how it happens that Miss Hallie Genevieve Thomas, of this city, will wed Robert Stewart Tiernan, of 226 West Seventy-eighth street, New York, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Edward Strang, 32 Lucerne street, tomorrow morning.

Miss Thomas, now the leading contralto of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, also sang in Trinity church, Brooklyn. Tiernan heard her sing one day, and immediately fell in love with the voice. He wanted an introduction to the possessor of the voice, and mutual friends soon came to the rescue. A long correspondence ensued, after Tiernan and Miss Thomas parted, and Cupid did the rest.

Miss Thomas is a daughter of Dr. W. E. Thomas, a retired physician of Sherman, Ohio. She made her home with her sister on Lucerne street. Four years ago she went to New York o complete her musical education. She was formerly in the choir of Unity church.

Tiernan's father is Francis Tiernan, president of the Utah, Nevada & California railroad.

REPAIR OF AVENUES

That Mooted Question Brought Up at Council Meeting.

Owners To Be Notified That City Cannot Make Repairs.

Will Be Requested to Petition For Permanent Improvement.

The bad condition of the avenues of the city is a source of worriment not only to the mayor and the board of public works, but even the aldermen have been considering the question and the matter of paving the avenues was a subject of much discussion at the meeting of the council last evening. Ever since the recent heavy storms the avenues have been in a deplorable condition and as yet the board of public works has taken no step toward making repairs to any extent, the street force having been put at work on the sewer repairs. The idea of re-graveling the avenues has been talked over and decided as impracticable and the general opinion among the city officers is that some paving must be done if the avenues are expected to be kept in good condition. The idea advanced by the city officials is to use macadam or other heavy material on the roadway and to construct stone gutters of ample size. Permanent improvement of this kind cannot, under the charter, be charged up against the city, but the expense must be borne by the owners of the abutting property and the council can only order it done after a petition is presented signed by 25 per cent of the property owners along the line of the proposed improvement.

A special meeting of the council committees on finance, drains, sewers and parks, and street, alleys and sidewalks, was held last evening preceding the regular council meeting, and the following recommendation was prepared and offered the council last evening:

"In the opinion of your committees it is not advisable in many cases on the avenues where the grades are steep, to repair the same by filling in with material that will wash away in each recurring storm. To do so would cause the same damage again, and the material so washed out would be a serious and constant damage to the sewer system of the city.

"We therefore recommend the adoption of the following resolution: That the board of public works is hereby directed to cause an inspection to be made of the avenues of the city, and to notify the owners of the property assessable for the cost of the improvement of the avenues that are deemed to be in such condition that ordinary repairs will not suffice. That, in the opinion of the council, such avenues should be permanently repaired, at the expense of the property, by placing thereon stone gutters, and by improving the same with some material not subject to washouts by the storms which periodically visit the city, and which is otherwise suitable for the grades on such avenues. The board is also directed to request them to petition the council, under the charter, for such improvements."

The resolution was adopted.

Mayor Hugo said yesterday that he has already asked the city engineer to make estimates of the cost of covering the avenues with macadam and of putting in stone gutters. This information the mayor will give the property owners along the avenues.

The request of the board of public works for permission to exceed its July appropriation in the street and sewer repair work was granted. The board may exceed its appropriation by $900. Even with this excess of the regular amount for repair work, the board will not be able to cover the entire expense, for the damage caused by the storms was about $25,000.

The finance committee introduced a resolution authorizing the appropriation of $1500 for the establishment and maintenance of the free labor employment bureau. The fund provided for is to be used to pay the salary of two clerks, a man and a woman. Under the rules, the resolution was laid over for a week.

Alderman Johnson's resolution for the improvement of West Michigan street between Eighth and Eleventh avenues west was the subject of some discussion, and was finally withdrawn, as the city lacks funds at the present time to carry out the improvement. The resolution provided for paving with tar macadam on the south side of the street car tracks, but the abutting property is owned by railroad companies and the entire cost, about $900, would fall on the city. The road between the avenues mentioned is in bad condition for the hauling of heavy loads and there were two petitions presented in connection with the resolution, one from the wholesalers and another from the West End commission men, asking for an improvement of the street from Eighth avenue west to Fortieth avenue west.

A liquor license was granted Boyle Bros., after some opposition. This license was held over from the previous meeting.

Alderman Rothchild last evening introduced a resolution for the extension of Jefferson street from Thirty-ninth avenue east to Gilliat street. The resolution was laid aside, however, until the city treasury is in better condition.

The council ordered paid to Watterworth & Fee, part payment on the Michigan street paving, in the sum of $11,638.28.

Telegraphing to Mars.

The experiments in wireless telegraphy have met with such success that we can soon hold communication with our planetary neighbors. Science made wonderful strides in the last half of the nineteenth century, and probably will advance further in the next few years. There is one thing, however, that science cannot improve upon, and that is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is the best remedy in the world for stomach, liver and bowel complaints. Fifty years of cures stand back of it, and a fair trial will convince you it has no equal as a cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness or liver and kidney troubles. It also prevents malaria, fever and ague. Be sure to have the Bitters always on hand, and thus avoid any serious illness.

STATE CONVENTION.

Wisconsin Labor Federation Meeting at Superior.

The annual convention of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor met at Union hall in the Hammond block at West Superior today. One hundred delegates are entitled to seats in the convention, and almost every trades' assembly in the state was represented at the opening session. This afternoon the meeting place was changed to Maryland hall, and all members of union organizations holding cards were admitted, but only delegates had a voice in the deliberations. Tonight a banquet will be given at Maryland hall. The convention will close Wednesday evening.

CONCEDED.

Thomas Lowry Grants Most of Superior's Demands.

Thomas Lowry and his legal advisers met the members of the common council of the city of Superior at the city hall yesterday, and the proposed extension of the street railway franchise was thoroughly discussed. The aldermen were successful in securing nearly every concession asked for, and instead of the submitted franchise and the numerous amendments agreed upon, a new document will be written incorporating all the changes agreed upon yesterday. Mr. Lowry will bind himself to extend the lines in different parts of the city, and the company will cover more territory in Old Superior, as well as at the Steel Plant. On Tower avenue the speed of the cars is to be limited to ten miles an hour between Belknap avenue and Third street. In the thinly-settled portions of the city no attempt will be made to limit the running time.

Mr. Lowry was asked if he would be willing to pay a certain amount to the city, in view of the fact that the ordinance, if passed, would extend the franchise of the company twelve years. He replied that he would be willing to pay a certain amount to the city per annum for every car in operation after the lines were on a paying basis, which he thought would be within five years. At St. Paul the company is now paying $10 per car annually to the city government. There was no apparent clash at the conference; all was harmony at the end. When the ordinance is up for passage it is known that some aldermen will vote against it, however, no matter what the conditions.

IS ARGUED.

Motion For New Trial In Virginia Fire Case.

Judge Dibell has under advisement a motion for a new trial in the case of Ole Halvorson against the Moon & Kerr Lumber company. The motion, which was made on behalf of the company, was argued before him in chambers yesterday. It was based on the usual grounds of errors in law occurring at the trial, and on the further ground that the verdict was not justified by the evidence. Halvorson got a verdict for over $600 for the loss of his meat shop in the fire that destroyed the old Virginia hotel, July 1, 1900, the jury holding the company responsible for the fire. The importance of the matter is not particularly in this verdict, but in the fact that there are several other suits pending, and that if the verdict holds most of the sufferers from the fire will the list of delinquents on 1900 taxes, and L. Washburn is attorney for the sufferers, and Billson, Congdon & Dickinson represent the company.

Delinquent Tax Payers To Be Vigilantly Pursued.

The board of county commissioners yesterday afternoon decided to get after personal property delinquents, particularly those in the so-called Bruner list. Commissioner Kugler read a list of some of these delinquents, disclosing a lot of people that are supposed to be able to pay up, including some that hold public offices and are drawing their salaries regardless of the fact that they owe the public money. There were many well-known names on the list, and its reading created some amusement.

The list was turned over to the county attorney with instructions to push collections to the limit. The board also revised probably present claims for damages. J. directed the clerk of the district court to issue citations. These will be pushed also, and some of the people who have money to pay and have not will find that they have trouble on their hands.

Evidence Taken.

The old case of the West Duluth Light and Water company against the city of Duluth will come up at the October term of the United States court in Duluth. A number of depositions have been taken in the case before A. A. Farrington, whom Judge Lochren appointed as referee. Among those testifying are former Governor Merriam; City Engineer Dundelett, of St. Paul; Maj. Bement, a civil engineer; Manager Harrison, of the Stillwater plant, and other experts. The suit has been pending three years. City Attorney Oscar Mitchell returned yesterday from St. Paul, where he has been in connection with the case.

JOBBING GROWTH

Duluth's Prestige In Wholesale Trade Is Steadily Advancing.

The New Grocery House Will Be a Valuable Addition.

Excellent Openings For Other Lines of Wholesale Trade.

The announcement that Duluth is to have another wholesale house, made in last evening's Herald, was good news to all Duluth people. It is also good to know that the large building occupied formerly by the Marshall-Wells company is not to remain vacant long. It was a foregone conclusion soon after that company left the building, however, that it would not be long before it would be occupied, for propositions had been made for it before this one. A wholesale hardware house, now located in another city, was soon bidding for a location here and was after the building. For some reasons, however, the projectors changed their minds and decided not to come. Shortly afterward it was rumored that another concern was seeking a lease of the building. Now it has been secured by a strong company, which will engage in the wholesale grocery business.

It is a matter of special congratulation that home capital is largely going into this new company, the money of men who live here and who have confidence in the business future of the city in which they live. That three houses will thrive in Duluth there is little doubt. It will mean a widening of the territory covered, a more aggressive pursuit of business, and, of course, this will mean greater prestige for Duluth as a jobbing center. For every new energy that comes into the field must increase the importance of the jobbing interests of the city.

There are in Duluth today, in the opinion of conservative men, many more good openings in the wholesale trade. It is a fact which is often stated that two houses in the same line are better than one, that one makes business for the other, a curious condition, but one that is generally conceded. When the Wells-Stone Mercantile company was merged into the Stone-Ordean-Wells company it left out one house here in that line of business, and to most people it looked at first consideration as though it would have things its own way. It was predicted by many, however, that it would be better for the company itself to have another house here, and whether it is true or not is a matter easy to determine, but the fact remains that the Wright-Clarkson company did not apparently diminish the business of the other house, but both have prospered finely.

There are some men in Duluth, and shrewd ones too, who believe that another wholesale hardware house would prosper here, and that while it might not duplicate the immense success of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, it would, nevertheless, build up a fine trade.

F. A. Patrick & Co. will go after the wholesale dry goods trade energetically and will doubtless build up a great house. If successful, as none doubt that it will be, it will undoubtedly pave the way for more houses in that line.

Wholesale men say that other lines are needed here. Another shoe boot and shoe house would prosper in the opinion of most of the jobbers. A clothing house, hat and cap house, crockery house, etc., would all do well and would increase the business of all lines, for to be a jobbing center it is necessary to have many lines rather than a few.

LARGE GRIST.

Many Criminal Cases In Municipal Court Yesterday.

The municipal court had a large calendar of criminal cases yesterday afternoon. John Duffy and James Sweeny pleaded guilty to petty larceny and were sent to the county jail for ninety days. The men were first arraigned on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree, it being alleged that they held up a woodsman, Matt Webb, and relieved him of $28. The county attorney had doubts as to the sufficiency of the evidence and stipulated that if the men would plead guilty to petty larceny, the charge of grand larceny would be dismissed.

Cato Stevens, the colored man, who is charged with touching Matt Erickson for $80, and who was brought back from West Superior on requisition papers, was examined yesterday and held to the grand jury, the charge against him being grand larceny in the second degree.

D. C. Lindsay's case was continued until July 15. Lindsay is the alleged corn locater who was arrested on the complaint of T. E. Hollister. The charge is fraudulent dealing on the part of the defendant.

James Fulton, who is charged with cutting Cook W. Herforce of the Zenith restaurant, was held to the grand jury.

Harry Young, who was arrested in the room of Tony Schulte, over Campbell & Doran's, was arraigned on the charge of burglary. His examination was set for today. He was unable to procure bail for $250, and was committed.

Mrs. Kate Gasiewicz, who is charged with infidelity, was arraigned and her examination set for today. In default of $250 bail, she was committed.

Ole Ellingson, who was arrested on suspicion of having broken a saloon window on Lake avenue, was fined $5 for carrying concealed weapons. The evidence against the man from Ely, as to the window-breaking, was not very strong.

FIREWORKS.

Nerve Racking Suspense Becomes a Thing Almost Unbearable.

It will be a blessing to everybody concerned—and that includes everybody in town—when the fireworks are all shot off and the suspense is over. At the rate things are going now half the town will be on the verge of nervous prostration in a few days if the unsettled condition does not cease. It is almost impossible for anybody to keep track of the arrangements and the fact that on one or two occasions the members of the committee have not got together but have told different stories has contributed to the bewilderment that afflicts the public. Things will not settle down to their accustomed basis until the fireworks are over and the longer the suspense continues the worse it gets.

Yesterday afternoon things were very much involved, and they were not straightened out until it was too late to have any fireworks and then all anybody knew was that there were none last night. The morning the weather was fine, and the outlook was that the fireworks were to be set off last night. But about 3 o'clock, the time when it was necessary to begin to set up the pyrotechnics, rain set in, and when it ceased it was too late to do the necessary preliminaries. But after that it was fine, and many people who did not know that time in the afternoon was needed, thought the fireworks would surely be set off, and they went out to Thirteenth avenue east in large numbers, despite the fact that notices to the contrary were given in The Herald and posted up about town.

While The Herald was coming out with the announcement, and a bulletin of it was flaming on The Herald's bulletin board, a couple of boys threw the town into a fit of confusion by marching up the street westward with a big banner announcing that the fireworks were to take place last night. Who sent them out is not known, but they succeeded in mixing things up merrily. When they came back someone had placed an addition to the banner so the announcement was for tonight, and that mixed thinks up some more.

To add to the trouble, one of the members of the committee was busy yesterday afternoon and did not hear of the postponement, and to all that called up him, he announced that the fireworks were to be last night. Some of the telephone girls took this up and for a time distributed misinformation, but later they were giving the correct announcement, that the fireworks were postponed.

The final arrangements were to be that the first day the conditions were right, the fireworks will go off. When it is clear and promising well at 3 o'clock, the work of setting up the fireworks will begin, and —weather permitting—they will go off that night. When they are going off the Third Regiment band will march from the city out to Thirteenth avenue east.

So people that wish to see the fireworks should watch the skies and listen for the band. If the above conditions prevail tonight the display will be given then.

THE CASE CLOSED

Pearson Suit Against Great Northern Goes To Jury.

Wellington, Attorney For Defense, Makes Strong Argument.

C. D. O'Brien Makes Closing Argument For Mr. Pearson.

The case of Herbert W. Pearson against Great Northern railroad was in the hands of the jury last evening, having been submitted during yesterday afternoon. The trial has been a long one. The Dispatch says of the morning session yesterday:

"The case of H. W. Pearson against the Great Nothern Railway company, action brought to recover $1,500,000 for services in discovering and locating coal areas in Washington and Montana went to the jury late this afternoon. The trial of the case commenced three weeks ago today.

"Judge Kelly, who has sat patiently through the case during the three weeks, was determined to give it to the jury today, and the jury itself was anxious to be done with their prolonged tour of duty.

"The day was entirely occupied by the closing arguments of the lawyers, together with the charge of the court to the jury.

"The morning hours were allotted to Cyrus Wellington, one of the solicitors for the Great Northern Railway company, and when court opened this afternoon Christopher D. O'Brien, senior counsel for Mr. eParson, the plaintiff, began his closing address.

"Mr. Wellington's address was worthy of a larger audience. He is one of the experienced and proficient advocates of the St. Paul bar and his argument was celar, smooth, incisive and forcible. He spent but little of his allotted time in scathing words aimed at Mr. Pearson, but did denounce his theory as a shameless falsehood. He spoke without hesitation as a man might speak who committed his speech to memory, although it is not at all likely that he had memorized it. He declared that Mr. Pearson's theory was a weak and infamous falsehood, and that there was no such law as that under which the plaintiff had pretended to act.

"The knowledge that Mr. Pearson had acquired he had gained by his visits to coal mines already in operation by the defendant. He had communicated no fresh information or intelligence to the officers of the company. The company was in possession of all the facts which he had communicated.

"Mr. Pearson had gone to Montana not to search for coal, but rather to learn from known conditions what his law or theory might be worth. He was to receive a stipulated salary while engaged in his search for coal and making his tests, and if he determined the existence of his law to his satisfaction he was then to go on the main line of the railway and, if he could, locate a coal field and share in the results.

"Mr. Wellington became scornful when he came to comment on the "currents" which prevailed during the epochs of the primeval submergencies as testified to by the plaintiff, and which currents play an important part in his theory.

"When inquired of, counsel said, as to the nature of these currents and his hypothesis concerning them, Mr. Pearson had answered that that was his secret, and had refused to disclose the secret.

"Mr. Wellington drew a parallel between this position of the plaintiff, as he claimed that position to be, and the Keely motor invention. When Keely had constantly refused to disclose his secret, and it only appeared to be no secret, but simple charlatanism after Keely was dead. Keely during his life formed a syndicate for the purpose of making money, and Mr. Pearson had done the same thing, and he named some members of this syndicate—Greatsinger, Payne, Denfeld, Woolman, Hanks and Farrington. And yet, remarked Mr. Wellington, Mr. Pearson says that he never had any capital back of him.

"As to his theory of beaches counsel took no stock in it and geologists famous throughout the country had testified to the jury that there was no such beach in Cascade county.

"Mr. Wellington closed his address at the time for the noon adjournment.

"Whatever the jury may decide the fact will remain that the seasoned old lawyer made an admirable and interesting and impressive close for his side."

THE DAKOTAS.

Burglars Get Rich Haul From Deadwood Jewelry Store.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Some time during Sunday night the jewelry store of S. Solomon, in this city, was entered by burglars. They succeeded in escaping, after securing, it is said, $5000 worth of diamonds. Three men have been apprehended and are held pending investigation.

Pierre—Monday was the climax of the rot, wave here. The great record was 104 and it was hotter on the streets. Business was practically suspended.

A young man by the name of Johnson was brought to the hospital in this city from Laurel, Sully county, suffering with anthrax. He was caring for a herd of cattle which was afflicted with the disease and contracted the disease in handling them. His recovery is doubtful.

Woonsocket—During a heavy wind storm the tent of the Beach & Bowers Minstrel company blew down. There were about 500 people in the tent at the time, but, luckily, no one was seriously hurt. People in the reserve seats found it almost impossible to get out and a panic ensued. Women and children were knocked down and others jumped from the high seats. The tent was torn to pieces.

Yankton—Many new residences and business houses are being erected in Yankton this summer. Harry Katz is erecting a large 3-story brick building on Third street for his clothing business.

Masons and bricklayers are getting $5 and $6 per day, and are scarce at that wage. This is a difficulty which is bound to grow worse as the season advances and men are required in the harvest fields. It is next to impossible to get a common laborer for a job of any kind.

Sioux Falls—Governor Herreid, while in the city, pardoned from the Sioux Falls penitentiary Mrs. Belle Halstead and Albert Hawley, and the famous prison is now without a single woman inmate. Mrs. Halstead was sentenced by Judge Bennett of the Watertown circuit to serve a term for a statutory offense. The circumstances which led to her conviction were such that even her husband forgave her. Her pardon is due largely to the efforts of Mrs. W. E. Kidd, of Aberdeen, who recently visited the penitentiary and conversed with Mrs. Halstead, who will now return to her home.

Aberdeen—Plans for the $15,000 Carnegie library have been completed. The structure will be a classic colonial style, in the form of a Greek cross, about 55 by 75 feet in dimensions. The front will be on Nicollet avenue and will have a porch with four large columns across the front. It will be two full sctories high, with a high basement, and will be finished after the most modern ideas.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Veterinarian Carver and his wife have been divorced, the husband securing the decree in the county courts. Their troubles have caused much comment around Kindred, where they lived, and led to the conviction of the station agent of Dwyport of improper relations with Mrs. Carver, for which he is now serving a term in jail.

Grand Forks—The hardware store of Brant & Edwards was robbed of over $300 worth of goods.

Professor Morrison of the State university, states that the average annual rainfall for North Dakota is nineteen inches, but that during the past thirty days over eleven inches has fallen.

Po-ru-na an Invaluable Tonic for Women in the Summertime.

Miss Marie Coats, president of the Appleton Young Ladies' club, writes the following concerning Peruna:

Appleton, Wis.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"I find Peruna an excellent spring and summer medicine and am glad to call the attention of my friends to it.

MARIE COATS.

When that languid, tired feeling comes over you, and your food no longer tastes good, and small annoyances irritate you, Peruna will make you feel like another person inside of a week. I have now used it for three seasons and find it very reliable and efficacious."—Marie Coats.

Mrs. Emma A. Bell, Fort Pierce, Fla., writes:

"In June, 1898, I was taken very suddenly with what I thought to be acute dysentery and swelling of stomach and bowels which was both distressing and very painful. I began doctoring, and have had three doctors. They gave me relief, but I was growing worse. I could not eat anything. Everything soured on my stomach. Before I could get away from the table my mouth and stomach was raw as a piece of beef. I was starving to death.

"One day I had almost despaired and had been crying. I picked up a paper and looking over it saw where Dr. Hartman's Peruna had been doing a lady so much good I decided to try it, so I wrote the doctor and he pronounced my case catarrh of stomach and bowels. I began to take Peruna at once.

"After taking half of one bottle my mouth began to get better and my stomach was so I could eat several things. When I had taken two bottles I had got so I could stand up long enough to wash the dishes, and my bowels had given me but little trouble. The numbness left my limbs and I could walk quite a little way.

"I have taken only five bottles and can truthfully say that I am well, and can and will always praise Peruna."—Mrs. Emma A. Bell.

Summer Catarrh.

The exceedingly hot weather of the present summer is producing an alarming fatality from diarrhoea, cholera infantum, cholera morbus and dysentery, and other catarrhal affection of the abdominal organs.

Every family and person ought to be provided with an effective preventive and cure for these diseases.

Peruna never fails when used in time to cure the most severe cases of them.

Thousands of lives are saved by this unfailing remedy in all catarrhal diseases of the stomach and bowels.

If you are not already acquainted with the wonderful virtues of Peruna in summer complaints, send for a free book written by Dr. Hartman, president Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio, on diseases peculiar to summer, which contains a description of the causes, symptoms and cure of these dangerous and prevalent diseases.

SAYS IT IS SILLY.

Criticism of a Sunday School Hymn.

Detroit, Mich., July 9.—Dr. Francis Wayland Parker, of the Chicago institute, says it is folly to stand up and say: "I want to be an angel," and urges the young people who attend Sunday school to show more common sense and practical ingenuity in the expression of their desires.

Dr. Parker made this declaration while lecturing here before the Society of Religious Education. His subject was: "The Sunday School as it Should Be."

In Dr. Parker's ideal school the children will not be so silly as to stand up and ask for such impossible things.

The Case of Lieut. Townley.

Some men are not satisfied with a good thing and are not content to "let well enough alone," but are constantly reaching out for something better. The case of Lieut. Townley, of the navy, is a good illustration of such a condition. Townley was placed on the navy retired list in 1897 for ill-health and was allowed a life pension of $1500 a year. He hails from Nebraska and held for a while, in addition to his pension, a good position under the state government. In an ill-starred moment he secured legislation a year or two ago authorizing the employment of retired naval officers on active duty, an act not wished for by Secretary Long, and especially distasteful to navy men on the active life, as it endangered the holding of shore jobs, a monopoly which they solely enjoyed. So Townley, having had his law passed, was forthwith packed off to the Philippines, where he was assigned to work at Cavite. He became mixed up in the commissary fraud recently exposed at Manila, and by his own testimony acted as a go-between for the contractors and Commissary Capt. Reed, who has since been convicted and degraded by a general court-martial. Strange to say, Townley volunteered his testimony and he seemed to think that he had acted all right and not in any way contrary to what was entirely correct and honorable. But his testimony resulted in a court-martial for himself and he is now on his way home under sentence of dismissal from the service. His name goes off the pension roll both for himself and his widow, if she survives him, and, as Mr. Townley is 50 years old, he will find his dismissal a severe handicap to his future prospects in more ways than one.

The Rice and Tribute in China.

China will not find it difficult to raise the indemnity demanded by the powers when once the financial system of the empire is reformed, and the thievery of the officials is abolished or at least curtailed. According to information received from China an enormous saving can be made by doing away with the tribute rice system. At present two great rice-growing provinces, Anhai and Kiangsu, are obliged to send up to Peking annually something over 1,000,000 tons of rice. This is supposed to be collected in kind from the farmers, but the officials really collect the tax in money, fixing the rate at which the farmers commute at about two and one-half times the market price. The required quantity of rice is then bought in the market by the officials, and here the government begins by losing three-fifths of the money actually paid by the farmers. This rice is then shipped in junks by the Grand canal, and in steamers by the sea route to Tien-Tsin, and 30 per cent is allowed for waste and damage on the way. A further loss accrues to the government in that the crews of the junks always take a quantity of general cargo on their own account, on which they pay no duties, the junks being protected by the imperial flag. When it gets to Pekin, the rice—what is left of it—is put in the imperial granaries and is freely pilfered by the officials, good rice being taken out and old grain, mud and rubbish of all kinds being substituted. The pensioners of the government and the troops do not get this rice, as they are supposed to do; they get warrants for a certain quantity, which they are obliged to exchange at the rice shops, where they are given, perhaps, 30 per cent of the face value of the warrant. The ingenious can calculate what the government would save if it still collected the tax in money in these provinces, and then paid its pensioners and troops in money, allowing them to buy their rice in the open market. A much larger saving could be made if the present system of taxation and distribution of salt were abolished and the salt were bought by the government where it is cheapest and sold at the present average price. At present enormous "squeezes" are made by the officials out of salt as well as rice. There will be another great economy to the government when the likin is merged in the duties collected by the imperial maritime customs as will, it is hoped, be arranged.

DRAINAGE OF THE NORTHWEST.

The State Drainage association of North Dakota, which will meet at Fargo this month, will give attention to the subject of Red river floods and how to prevent them. As one half of the Red River valley is in Minnesota, this state is equally interested with the Dakotas in the subject. The spring floods along the valley, from Wahpeton to Pembina, are caused, primarily, by the fact that the mouth of the Red river is in a much higher latitude than its source. This results in ice gorges, which back up the water until it overflows the high banks of the stream. If a scheme can be found to arrest the water at or near its sources the problem is solved, as the flat country along the general course of the river will prevent any alarming rise of the river from local rainfalls or melting snow. From the surveys it is found that most of the water which produces the spring floods can be turned into Big Stone lake and there impounded until such time as it is safe to let it out. Then by retaining the waters of the Red Lake river, at the lake itself, the second great addition to the waters of the Red river would be prevented. Beside preventing the floods in the spring of the year the water in these great reservoirs could be used for irrigation purposes with wonderful results.

It may not be generally known that the Red River valley was once the bed of a great inland lake, larger than Lake Superior. It extended from the headwaters of the Minnesota river to and including Lake Winnipeg. Geologically it is known as Lake Agassiz. With the deposition of silt and the gradual rising of the surface of the earth it became dry and developed into the "bread basket" of the world. Lake Erie in time will be such a valley. It needs but the wearing back for a few miles of Niagara Falls to drain the whole lake as dry as the valley of the Red river.

This brings to mind a unique theory of the formation of the great lakes. It is the general theory that the lakes were formed in some mysterious way by glacial action during that remote but chilly period. Catlin, the Indian painter and Western traveler, thought differently. Noticing that the great water systems of the North American continent all flowed from the great lakes instead of toward them; that the rivers which flow into any one of the chain are short and small of volume, and further noting that in many cases the dip of the rock near the lakes was inward, and that farther away it was the opposite, he concluded that instead of being scooped out during the glacial period, the lakes were once a mountain chain, which at a remote time, but not until the general contour of the continent was formed, were by some seismic action sunk, leaving immense craters, so to speak, where once were the peaks of a rugged chain of moderately high mountains.

This theory may not be true, but it is interesting, and presents many plausible points. The rock about this city and in the Wisconsin copper range shows evident signs of volcanic action.

Referring again to the matter of drainage, it might be well to call the attention of the state drainage commission to the fact that a drainage system which does not provide for storing the water that is taken from the level fields is apt to be of greater harm than good to the section where it is employed.

A SCHEME THAT FAILED.

It has become evident, as the trials of the census enumerators in Maryland for fraud have proceeded, that the one aim of the promoters of the crookedness was to so increase the population that additional representatives in the state legislature could be secured. Every county in Maryland is entitled to one senator and to two representatives, while if it has a population of 18,000 or more, it is thereby entitled to three representatives. Somebody accordingly conceived the idea of raising the count enough in counties bordering on 18,000 to give this added representation in the legislature, and in the conventions of both political parties. The principal cases which have been already tried arose in St. Mary's county, which had a population of 17,000, and, by stuffing the returns, succeeded in reaching 18,000. The enumerators did their work extremely well to all outward appearances, when it was reported to the supervisor that there had not been a complete count, whereupon he sent them blank schedules in which to add the names of such persons as had been omitted on the first canvass. The enumerators then began to get everybody they could find. Four of them made fictitious returns, consisting partly in the duplication of persons who had been already enumerated and partly of people who were dead or had moved away from the county at some time within the last twenty years. And they also included a few persons who had never lived there, at least in the district from which they were reported.

As a result they added 1138 names in St. Mary's. Suspicion was aroused, men were sent from the census department at Washington to make a house to house canvass. As a result of this canvass, which showed the fraud plainly, the grand jury indicted four enumerators and Joseph Ching, chairman of the Republican county committee, who engineered the scheme. They were tried before the United States district court. One of the enumerators, named Guither, confessed; in the case of another the jury was instructed to render a verdict of not guilty. The intention of the man was evidently honest, but he had been falsely advised, and the case against him was so slight that it was thought best not to press it. On the charge of conspiracy the jury acquitted the other two enumerators. Ching, the engineer of the affair, was sentenced to two years in the Baltimore county jail, but his attorney claimed errors in the trial on the part of the judge, and so he entered an appeal to the United States appellate court, which sits at Richmond in the fall. He is at large on $5000 bail. Two other enumerators were arraigned on charges of falsifying the returns, one pleaded guilty and the other was tried and the jury disagreed and he will have to be tried again.

SOUTH AFRICAN PRIVATEERS.

The South African war will be recorded in history as one of the most remarkable contests of ancient or modern civilization. It seems hardly credible that two small republics should be able, single handed, to withstand the onslaughts of the most powerful nation on the face of the earth. For nearly two years England, nay, Great Britain, has hurled legion after legion upon the little band of devoted patriots with seemingly small effect. Today the end of the war, so far as the Boers are concerned, seems as far distant as when the first gun was fired. To the unprejudiced observer it now looks as if Great Britain must, in the end, acknowledge the absolute independence of the Dutch republics.

Why this unlooked-for result of what appeared to be a most unequal contest? The answer is found in the peculiar circumstances. In the case of England her strength is her weakness, and in the case of the two republics their weakness is their strength. The great power of England—that which gives her her vast international influence—is her gigantic navy. Secure from invasion on account of her splendid isolation, her navy goes forth the absolute mistress of the sea; a menace to the commerce of the world; an arm that can strike a crushing blow and strike quickly. Had the Boers a navy, a commerce and seaport cities, the tale would already be told. That commerce would have been swept from the seas within a month, her seaports would be in the hands of the enemy or heaps of ruins, and her navy sunk. But this weakness was a tower of strength to the Lilliputians in their contest with the giant. The giant could not use his giant weapons. There was but one point vulnerable to the attack of the giant, and that was guarded by the forces of nature.

This the Boers knew from the beginning. Their strategy was superb. A bold attack upon the extended and necessarily weak lines of the British was their first move. How well taken was that position was seen by the fact that it came pretty near being a success. As it was, the prestige of British arms was lost in the first months of the struggle. Then began a series of masterly retreats, guided by a policy as profound as the Fabian maneuvers of Washington in the dark days of the revolution. The rest is history. Rumors of surrender and rumors of peace negotiations have been invariably followed by Boer victories. England is tired of the contest. If it were not for the national pride, such terms would be offered as the Boers could accept. Such is the status of the contest at the present time.

Up to this point the Boers have expected some kind of intervention. They have hoped for European complications which would create a division in their favor. That hope is about gone, and the last card which they have to play is being made ready to turn. England's commerce is her weakness. Her navy can protect it to some extent, but a great navy can not be at all places at all times. The Boers have no navy and no ports of entry. This has enabled the British to secure and ship to South Africa with impunity the munitions of war which would have been subject to seizure had there been any one to enact the seizure. Why the Dutch republics did not issue letters of marque to privateers to prey upon British commerce and intercept contraband goods and munitions of war is not well understood. Those republics were not parties to the treaty of Paris, which abolished privateering, and they might have added to the discomfort of England by covering the seas with these commerce-destroyers. It is now reported that Oom Paul still refuses to issue commissions for that purpose. What his reasons are cannot be divined. A few swift private cruisers would raise havoc with the commerce of Britain. True, it is risky business to place one's self in opposition to the British navy, but the rewards are equally great.

There is no denying the fact that the world at large is heart and soul with the Boers in their struggle. But as there is no way of intervention except by force of arms, the governments look quietly on, each fearing to become embroiled with a nation which could in a few short months bring her navy to bear on the commerce of the offender and utterly destroy it. But with a privateer it is different. He does not embroil his country—the risk is his alone.

Should the de facto governments of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State determine to commission privateers, there would be such a howl go up from commercial England that would compel Chamberlain to submit terms of peace involving autonomy or independence. By fitting out privateers is the only way the people of civilization can aid the Boer cause. If this had been done in the beginning, very few mules would have reached South Africa from the United States, and the little Dutch republics would have been today absolutely independent.

A new feature is added to the strike problem by a suit for damages against a labor union. The metal polishers' organization at Dayton, Ohio, has been sued for $25,000 by the Cash Register company of that city, at whose works it precipitated a strike. If the case is given standing in court, perhaps it will be followed before long by a suit on behalf of a labor union where its members have been locked out.

The second trial race between the American yachts has clearly demonstrated the vast superiority of the Constitution over both the Columbia and the Independence. Both the Hereshoff boats outsailed and outpointed the Independence. Mr. Lawson's yacht failed to develop any weatherly qualities and must be a severe disappointment to her friends.

The machine newspapers in Iowa, finding that their friends are badly beaten, are now claiming that in view of the fierce fight it would be unwise to nominate for governor any leader of a faction. This, of course, means Mr. Cummins, who has had the successful fight against the machine. But the convention will hardly accept that advice.

The United States government is being robbed right and left. In Cuba postoffice funds are stolen, in the Philippines the commissary stores are looted, in Guam Uncle Sam's whisky disappears mysteriously and in this country the mint itself suffers a loss of $30,000 in gold coin.

Seventeen years ago Germany, under Bismarck's lead, established the state system of accident insurance and old age pensions for workingmen. It has grown to be a vast machine, and its payments to disabled, sick and aged wage-earners agerage $250,000 a year.

COUSIN ALMIRA ON SAILING.

BY CAROLINE TICHNOR

(Copyright, 1901, by W. R. Hearst).

I've been down at the seashore visiting Cousin Sarah Stone, and I must say I'm glad encught to get back to the Corners.

I've always thought it would be splendid to be right close to the salt water, where you could step into a boat and sail clear out of sight of land, and where you could float around and quote these lovely lines about "roll on, thou dark and deep blue ocean, roll." Well, I have had that opportunity and I have come to the conclusion that while you're in this world there's just one satisfactory place to stop, and that is on dry land.

I guess there are plenty of folks who feel about as I do, not to dwell on famous historic characters lie Noah and Jonah, as well as Moses, who showed his people that the true way to cross a dangerous sea was on dry ground.

The ocean's well enough to look at, provided you're feeling well when you inspect it, but if you're feeling as if you'd rather die than not, it may be blue as indigo and just as sparkling as soda water without your caring one single straw.

Sarah Stone was delighted to have me there to visit, because she said she should enjoy my first impressions of the sea so much. Well, I don't think she did enjoy them as much as she expected, though I guess she enjoyed them a good sight more than I did.

Sarah Stone said to me, "Almira, is it possible you've lived to be—well, never mind how old—and haven't set foot in a sailboat?"

And I felt kind of mortified to think I was a sort of curiosity, who had lived on so many years without enjoying the ordinary advantages.

Sarah declared that sailing was one of the most perfect sensations a human being could experience, and that to skim along lightly across the bay with the blue water rippling around the boat was just as good as flying. She said, moreover, it was pitiful to think of all the fun I'd lost in years gone by, which never could be quite made up to me.

At 2 o'clock upon a nice afternoon I stepped into a sailing boat for the first time, and I was just as pleased as Punch to think of all the pleasure that was in store for me.

There were about a dozen young folks on board, and everybody was in high spirits, and off we skimmed as gay and happy as could be.

"Who'd be on land if they could be out on the water," Sarah Stone said, and I agreed with her, not knowing any better just then.

I heard somebody saying that we were going to sail around the "Outer Light," and when my cousin Sarah pointed out a big lighthouse and asked me how I'd like to go and see it, I said I thought it would be most delightful, poor ignorant mortal that I was.

I don't know when I've felt so talkative and lively as I did when we first sailed off in that boat. I said I thought that sailing was finer than anything I had ever imagined and that I'd rather see a lighthouse than anything I knew of.

Oh, how a person's point of view can change in a short space of time! And how things that we think fine at 2 o'clock can be just hateful to us at a quarter of 3! So much for being poor, weak critters.

Well, first that sailboat skimmed along as smooth as satin, and I said to myself, "I guess this way of traveling is all that it's cracked up to be," then she began to dip a little up and down. "A very pleasant, soothing motion," I said, feeling quite quiet and contented, but not so much like talking. Then we began to roll a little from side to side as well as dipping up and down, and I said to myself, "give me simplicity of motion, either the dipping or the rolling is all right by itself, though I could suggest pleasanter methods of recreation, but just excuse me from the combination, "its too hard work adjusting my equilibrium.

I've never thought there was much comfort in steam cars, electrics or anything that moves on wheels, but I declare the meanest thing on rollers is certainly ahead of any sailboat.

You may be jarred and shaken in the steam cars or the electrics, but nevertheless you're traveling on a level, and you're not tipped way up on one side or sunk down on the other as you are in a sailboat, and which is the unpleasantest position is very hard to tell, for on the "up" side you're clinging to the rest to keep from sliding off, and on the "down" side you're sitting almost in the water and momentarily expecting to be submerged.

Then just as you get settled in your place somebody screams out "heads!" and down you have to duck unless you want to have your neck instantly broken, and then a big pole comes whizzing over, and if it doesn't hit you, you feel you've had a merciful escape.

Well, we sailed further away from land that boat "dipped" more and more and each time that it dipped it rolled from side to side as well, and every time that it went sliding down over a great big wave I felt just as I do when I am in a big elevator that's starting to go down. A most unpleasant feeling!

I looked at Cousin Sarah, but she seemed to be having such a good time that I hated to tell her I wasn't more than half enjoying myself.

Then great, huge waves began to splash all over us, until I felt as cold and shivery as if I'd been dipped bodily into the ocean, while all the others seemed delighted to get a wetting, and kept exclaiming, "Oh! this is nice!"

"I don't think it's much fun to have salt water running down your back," I was just going to remark, when swash, a great big wave struck on the edge of that old boat, and drenched me and filled my mouth full of salt water, and I could only choke and splutter, while all the young folks laughed as if it was a real good joke.

"Now this is more like sailing," two or three cried out gleefully, as we began to rock and tip more violently among a lot of angry looking waves.

"Then it's not much like flying, Sarah Stone," I murmured feebly, wiping the salt off of my lips.

"Oh, you don't mind a little motion, Cousin Almira," she called to me while the boat pitched so much I thought it would tip over any minute.

"A little motion, Sarah," I said indignantly, "no, I don't mind a little but if that's what you call these awful ups and downs I guess our definitions of words are just as different as our ideas of having a good time."

While I was hoping that it might be time to head the boat for shore I heard some one exclaiming, "We're half way to the lighthouse already!"

When they said that I felt my heart, which had been right up in my throat for a long time, sink down into my boots, for I supposed we were right near that lighthouse, and almost ready to turn around.

"Don't go way out to it on my account," I said, wishing that lighthouses had never been invented.

"Oh, we're not going just on your account," they all assured me, "we want to see the surf, which is so fine outside the light."

"It's fine enough for me right here," I said, "trying to smile and speak up lightly, but no one seemed to notice the effort I was making to be a little cheerful, and Sarah Stone was so intent upon trying to splice a piece of rope that she never so much as looked in my direction.

And on they went, and I just sat and kept my lips pressed together and watched that long pole on the front end of the boat sink down, down, till it dipped into the waves and then rise up, up until it pointed clear to mid-heaven, and no words that I have at my command can half describe just how I felt inside.

I don't know how I looked, but I daresay I showed my feelings somewhat, for pretty soon somebody said, "Why, Miss Almira looks very pale," and then they all began to stare at me as if that could mend matters.

"I hope that you're not feeling seasick Cousin Almira," Sarah Stone had the effrontery to call out in a careless tone, as if it was a laughing matter.

"I was just hoping so myself," I answered through my closed lips.

"Perhaps you'd like to lie down in the bottom of the boat," someone suggested, and I was just about to say indignantly that I should certainly do nothing of the sort, when suddenly I changed my mind and said I guessed I would.

So I was stretched out flat upon the hard, uncomfortable boards with a wet overcoat rolled up under my head, and I was so glad to lie down I never thought whether the boards were hard or soft.

As I lay there rolling from side to side, I seemed to take leave of all Christian feelings and I'll confess I fairly hated my cousin Sarah Stone, sitting there way up front and singing "Nancy Lee."

While I was lying there helpless and miserable, two or three people called out to me "We're at the lighthouse, Miss Almira, you really must get up and see it, it's such a splendid one."

Get up to see a lighthouse! In all my life I never heard of anything quite so preposterous! Why, if they'd said they had the pyramids of Egypt, yes, and the Sphinx into the bargain all stuck up there together, I wouldn't have turned my head to look at them.

"Almira, you don't know what you're losing," Sarah Stone kept persisting while I could only murmur, "Don't talk to me of losing anything."

It's well enough to talk of "skimming like a bird over the bright blue sea," in books of poetry, but the real thing is quite a different affair.

I've had one rocking in the cradle of the deep, and I don't want another in a hurry. First, we were rocked in high short waves that kept us tumbling up and down, and splashed all over us and then the wind stopped blowing, and we began to be rocked in long, slow, glassy waves.

Somebody said that we were having a "ground" swell, and if I hadn't felt quite so bad I should have risen up long enough to cry out, "Don't you maalign the land."

Yes, we did finally get back to shore. When shall I ever forget my feelings as I set both my feet on land once more. It was the happiest moment of my life when I felt mother earth so firm and so reliable beneath me. I could have bitten the dust just for pure recreation. No, you can't make me think that Christopher Columbus, Americus Vespucius or any others of that class were any gladder to see land than I was after my first experience in a sail boat.

My first and last. I've had enough of "skimming" and "flying" through the waves. The sea is not so bad to look at provided that you view it from the land, but don't ask me to "rock" in any such objectionable "cradle."

And if I cannot say with Byron, "roll on, thou dark and deep blue ocean, roll," it is because I fain would breathe a prayer to restless Father Neptune to cease from rolling altogether, and if he still persists in this unpleasant line of action, I will just add, "then roll without Cousin Almira upon your billowy surface;" some people are ambitious, but I am not. I'm satisfied with just the earth.

CAROLINE TICKNOR.

When Giants Buckle To.

Cleveland Leader: If an effective combination of the soft coal interests of the United States can be brought about, that monopoly will underlie all other big industrial trusts. It will control the fuel which they must have in vast quantities and at low prices. So huge corporations will be compelled to live on intimate terms with one another and the prospect for the single government monopoly which the Socialists expect and desire will be brighter than ever.

A Shabby Rake-Off.

Minneapolis Times: The government must be making quite a little pile on its unredeemed revenue stamps. It would be no more than fair to let small holders trade theirs in for postage stamps.

Time to Move Them.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: There are now in the world thirty-one persons to the square mile. At the same rate of increase there will be 1000 persons to the square mile in the year 2260, or an aggregate population in the world of 52,073,600,000. This would give each person in the world an average of two-thirds of an acre, taking in mountain and arid land. The world will then be full of people.

For Small Favors, Thanks.

Hartford Courant: Uncle Sam's own, home-made little "stamp act" is now history. It was of about as much real consequence to this very plethoric nation as a mosquito bite and to some citizens of a fretful temperament it was just about as irritating. It disappears with the disappearance of the volunteer army. Can you make it seem real to you that only three years ago this summer this country was at war with a European kingdom?

Sore Spots Out of Sight.

Saturday Evening Post: Nowadays the English critics who try to prod Uncle Sam manage to touch the places that tickle instead of those which hurt. They should run across the pond and get better acquainted with the prosperous old gentleman's sore spots.

THE COAL COMBINE.

Buffalo Express: Another rise in the price of anthracite coal of 10 cents a ton is in line with the policy which, it was reported, was adopted by the so-called coal trust several months ago. There was a rise of 10 cents in June and there will be other rises until the 50-cent reduction announced in April is made up. Nor is there anything to indicate that the prices in the fall and winter months will not be still further increased. It is reported in New York that coal dealers are counting on securing a good deal of winter trade by this gradual process of raising prices. They figure that when persons get their annual supply in early and the bill paid, they will become careless in the use of coal and be obliged to buy more before the season ends.

Whatever the protestations of the coal trust that anthracite coal cannot be sold cheaper at a profit, the public cannot be fooled. This is the season when coal should be cheap and there is no reasonable excuse for advancing its price. The fact is that the association or trust is in practical control of mines and railroads, and may fix its prices about as it wishes. There certainly is no important competition in this branch of the coal business which would regulate prices. A recent computation made in New York indicated that about $1 of the ton price of anthracite coal is due entirely to lack of competitive railroads. The consolidation of the various anthracite companies and the carrying roads afforded excellent opportunities for the owners to show fair dealing by giving the public a share in the economies effected. Instead prices remain as before, with prospects of being higher than usual in the winter months.

Exactly the same situation is developing in the bituminous trade, only there it will be much more difficult to build up a monopoly, owing to the wide extent of soft-coal deposits. The plans as published contemplate the combination of the fields north of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi. This, of course, includes the greatest soft-coal fields thus far developed in the United States, but there is soft coal in nearly every state west of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio, so that an absolute monopoly would be impossible. Nevertheless, there can be retriction enough to add largely to the running expenses of plants using bituminous coal.

Wireless Telegraphy In Operation.

Philadelphia Press: The Farallone Islands, lying about thirty miles out as see from the entrance to the harbor of San Francisco, offer an admirable opportunity for the establishment of a system of wireless telegraphy for the protection of vessels approaching that fog-bound coast. The secretary of the interior has authorized the weather bureau to erect the necessary stations for the installation of the wireless system and there can be no doubt that when it shall become operative it will prove a valuable safeguard for life and property.

Elements of Party Success.

Louisville Courier-Journal: A political party, after all is said, is but an agency for the accomplishment of certain things which its members consider desirable. Unless it has some prospect of attaining the ends in view it will fail to command support. A party to be successful must be intensely practical. It must know its own mind, must be sure it is right and must understand what it may attempt and what is beyond its powers. It must adopt the best means for the attainment of good ends. If that be counted expediency, as it is in the highest sense, then expediency is always a duty.

A Credit to the Administration.

New York Sun: After four years of admirable service Commissioner Evans is well prepared to withstand the attacks of the professional old soldiers and the claim attorneys behind them. He was never stronger in the confidence and esteem of the public generally. He has been and is a credit to the present administration and it is likely that he was never appreciated more highly than now by the secretary of the interior and the president.

Checking Place of Land Grabber.

Kansas City Star: The warning of the interior department against those who have expressed an intention to defy the provisions of the president's proclamation for the opening of the Indian lands should have a cooling effect upon the hot-headed objectors. The department may not be able to satisfy the wishes of all who are interested in the settlement of these reservations, but the government is abundantly able to carry out its plans whatever they may be.

Woll Accuses the Lamb.

Philadelphia North American: An "invasion by neighbors actuated by greed of territory" is Lord Salisbury's latest description of the Boer war, and he has the magnificent nerve to call upon Englishmen to repel the invader and "defend the sanctity of their frontier." British hypocrisy has achieved some notable feats of cant in efforts to justify British piracy and sordid brutality, but all previous exploits in that line are commonplace in comparison with Salisbury's masterpiece of the solemn humbug.

To the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

The most popular railway from the Northwest to the great show at Buffalo will be the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

It runs, every day, five beautiful trains from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Chicago, connecting directly with all Eastern lines.

Its celebrated Pioneer Limited (the famous train of the world) leaves Minneapolis 7:30 p. m. and St. Paul 8:10 p. m. daily, arriving Chicago 9:30 next morning.

Special features of the "Milwaukee's" service are the observation, buffet parlor cars on day trains, private compartment and standard sleepers on night trains, as well as buffet smoking cars and the best dining service in the world.

Tickets at cheap rates will be on sale every day at all points on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway to Buffalo and return, and the maximum comfort can be obtained by using this line.

Write to J. T. Conley, Ass't Gen'l Passgr. Agent, St. Paul, for the "Milwaukee's" Pan-American folder (one of the completeat and most comprehensive guides yet published of the exposition) and all information concerning rates, etc.

NATIONAL COUNCIL

Of Education Holds An Interesting Session at Detroit.

Dr. Harris Speaks In Favor of Isolation In School.

Educational Progress During the Past Year Is Discussed.

Detroit, July 9.—A meeting of the National Council of Education in Y. M. C. A. hall yesterday and the first session of the department of Indian education in Central M. E. church opened the fortieth annual convention of the National Educational association. The first session of the general body will not be held until this afternoon. The national council of education is a coordinate body of the national association, being composed of a limited number of the foremost educators who, through the council, lead the thought of the general association.

The paper of the morning before the council was read by William T. Harris, national commissioner of education, on "Isolation in the School, How It Hinders and Helps." Mr. Harris' advocacy of isolation precipitated a lengthy discussion from the floor, led by Col Parker, of Chicago, and Mrs. Ella F. Young, of Chicago university. Col. Parker opposed the idea of isolation and said the true life was community life. Among the other speakers on the subject were J. W. Cook, of De Kalb, Ill.; Louis Souldan, of St. Louis, and J. M. Green, of Kansas City, who declared that a large percentage of the home influence of this country was not good and must be eliminated when the child enters school. He favored isolation.

At the afternoon session Elmer E. Brown, of the university of California, read a paper on "Educational Progress During the Past Year." He said:

"The characteristic word of progress during the past year has been expansion. Educational expansion has been the accompaniment of political and industrial expansion. The great accumulators of wealth have been giving largely to educational institutions.

"These great benefactions have raised again anew the question of liberty of teaching. It is commonly believed that in the Ross case at Stanford university such liberty of teaching was abridged. But it should be remembered in all such cases that a university, like other institutions, must take account of the co-operative usefulness of its members. It is doubtful whether there is any general or serious danger threatening real and reasonable academic freedom. The discussion of scientific temperance instruction has brought forward the question of freedom of teaching in another form. Universities are concerning themselves increasingly with the scientific content of instruction in the lower schools and with the preparation of teachers for these schools.

"New educational movements in the South are closely bound up with political and industrial changes. The negro is making his own contribution to the solution of the problem, and the Tuskegee school has been one of the centers of educational interest during the year.

"The organization of American systems in Porto Rico and the Philippine islands is now fairly begun. The movement of American teachers toward those islands is one of the best forms of educational expansion."

The session of the Indian department was given up entirely to addresses of welcome and responses. Mayor Mayhury, state superintendent of public instruction, of Lansing; Superintendent Martin of the Detroit schools, and others voiced a welcome to the visitors. Responses were made by educators in the Indian schools of the country.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Salvis Janero, a Mexican torreador, engaged in the bull fight at South Omaha, was tossed by an infuriated bull, about forty feet, his side being gored and two ribs broken. He was removed from the arena unconscious, but is not thought to be fatally injured.

The preliminary hearing of John W. and Tom Considene, charged with the murder of former Chief of Police W. L. Meredith, was begun at Seattle, Monday. From evidence introduced it is evident that the state will try to prove at the trial that some one not yet named began the fatal affair, by firing a pistol at Meredith in the street before he fired upon John Considine.

Two unknown men were burned to death and eleven injured in a fire that destroyed the Occidental hotel at Forsyth, the county seat of Rosebud county, Mont., Monday morning. The men were employed as section hands.

The forest fires southeast of Buena Vista seems to be growing in volume. The fire started Sunday and was at first reported to be in the vicinity of White Pine, but word came that it was not threatening. White Pine was near Garfield, in Chaffee county. It is believed much timber has been destroyed.

Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, the evangelist, who has been critically ill at Warsaw since July 4, became somewhat better. His physicians are much encouraged.

CABLE FLASHES.

The London Times publishes the following dated June 28 from Gerlogubi in the Sumi country: "The Abyssinian army campaigning against the Mad Mullah has failed to find him. Provisions have been exhausted and the troops are now living on the camels and other transport animals. Unless food is procured in a few days many must starve to death."

The Vienna Post, avers that the projected European commercial combination against the United States, which has until lately been but a vague idea, has constituted a subject of practical negotiations between Russia, Austria and Germany. The Post also asserts that the rumored visit of Count Von Buelow to St. Petersburg is in connection with this combination.

According to the Shanghai correspondent of the London Standard, more than 4000 persons have been drowned by recent floods in the province of Klang Si.

"It is reported," says the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Mail, "that John D. Rockefeller and J. P. Morgan have decided to establish a banking house in Paris with a capital of $10,000,000."

Twice Every Day to Cincinnati and Louisville.

Mornings and evenings—10 a. m. and 8.40 p. m.—is when through trains leave Chicago for Louisville and Cincinnati, via Pennsylvania Short Lines. Morning trains have vestibuled cafe parlor coach and Pennsylvania standard coach. Night trains have vestibuled coaches and compartment sleeping cars—the new kind in which passengers enjoy the seclusion of private rooms. Ask H. R. Dering, 248 South Clark street, to reserve space for your next trip in that direction and enjoy the comforts of first class traveling.

depend on the Kidneys and Liver. If you have pains everywhere and at all times in your back, sad in your head, a dull, heavy, tired sensation, you are sick and miserable—cross and unhappy.

Your pains indicate trouble—growing trouble. They may be the forerunner of Rheumatism, or Lumbago, or Diabetes, Jaundice, or Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Statistics prove that nearly all ills originate from a disordered Liver or diseased Kidneys, or both. These much abused organs are unable to perform the work imposed upon them until they have regained their normal condition of health.

In the effort to obtain relief, don't use liniments or lotions. Rubbing the muscles and joints may temporarily ease the pain or drive it into some other part of the body. You are not curing the disease by external applications. Constitutional treatment is necessary.

Take a vegetable remedy only. Mineral remedies, that are almost universally prescribed, fail to cure, because they weaken the digestion, thus impairing instead of building up.

DR. McLEAN'S LIVER AND KIDNEY BALM

cures Kidneys and Liver, and tones the stomach. During the one-half century of its use it has cured hopeless cases. If you are one of the many who have become disheartened by repeated failures with other remedies, don't despair. A bottle ($1.00) will convince you that Health and Happiness can still be yours. It's purely vegetable. It's absolutely safe. At your druggist's.

WORRIED BY BRYAN

Eastern Democrats and Republicans Disturbed By His Silence.

His Refusal to Be Crushed Gives Them Concern.

They Still Fear That He May Become President.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, July 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eastern Democrats, as well as the Republicans in this section of the country, are still greatly worried because William Jennings Bryan maintains his position before the public without their advice and consent. Many of these Eastern Democrats, as well as all of the Republicans of the country, are a little doubtful about what Col. Bryan proposes to do in the next campaign. The Republican leaders, at least, are endeavoring to belittle him whenever possible, and the program mapped out by these leaders is unanimously followed by the Republican newspapers of the United States.

The reason for all this excitement among the Republican politicians, the so-called Democratic leaders, and the newspapers referred to above, is that it appears an impossibility to crush Col. Bryan, from a political viewpoint. Notwithstanding the fact that he is making no effort whatever to advance his own political interests at the present time, he is nevertheless assailed by the newspapers opposed to his views on national and international affairs; and he is likewise opposed by the Republican leaders of the country for the reason that they still fear that he may become president, and further, because the Democrats of the East, at least the majority of them, are anxious to dispose of him as a presidential possibility in 1904. But at this time they cannot see just how they are going to accomplish their purpose.

The political enemies of Bryan, both in and out of the party, are making a hullabaloo because Bryan is lecturing throughout the country for money, and further, he is running a newspaper, out of which he expects to add largely to his personal income, and in addition to this, has a splendid farm in Nebraska upon which he proposes to erect a residence which will be modern in every way and will probably cost a considerable amount of money, in the minds of Nebraskans, at least.

The principal thing which is bothering the anti-Bryanites both in and out of the Democratic party, at the present time, is the fact that Bryan has not yet positively stated whether or not he will be a candidate for the presidency in 1904. It is probably apparent to others, as well as to Mr. Bryan himself, that it is not necessary for him to discuss something which may or may not come to him three years hence. It is still believed, however, that if he is assured in 1904 that he can capture the Democratic nomination for the presidency with a unanimous vote of the delegates to the convention, he would believe it to be his duty to make the presidential race for a third time. If, however, he discovers that the Democratic party is anxious to select some other man than he to head the national ticket in 1904, he will, his friends say, not make any opposition to the national ticket, but will still remain an aggressive advocate of the principles which he advocated in 1896 and 1900.

Any amount of interest is displayed here regarding the successor to the late Senator Kyle as chairman of the industrial commission. Though chairman of the commission, Mr. Kyle did not attend all of its sessions, but he was more regular in his attendance than any other of the congressional members. Senator Kyle had given the subject much attention, and as chairman of the commission and a member of the senate he would have had a great deal to do with shaping its recommendations to congress. The summer is to be devoted to this work and the whole subject presented to congress in December.

Now that he is dead, the commission is temporarily without a head, although ex-Representative Phillips of Pennsylvania, who has been vice chairman and acting chairman for a greater part of the time, will doubtless act in that capacity until Mr. Kyle's successor is selected. The act creating the commission provides that it shall consist of five members of the senate, five of the house, and nine commissioners from civil life. It also stipulates that should any of the congressional contingent be so unfortunate as to lose his seat in congress while serving as a member of the industrial commission, he shall continue as a civilian member and draw $5000 per annum. Senator Kyle, however, died while in the senate, so that it is expected that his successor will be appointed from the senate by Vice President Roosevelt. The position will be largely an honorary one, as it is scarcely probablee that a senator appointed at this late date would have the opportunity to do more than play a passive part.

The Baltimore Sun's Washington correspondent, however, is of the opinion that the commission must choose a new chairman, and it is probable, should the choice fall on one of the senatorial members, that the new chairman will be Penrose of Pennsylvania. He and Senator Bard of California are the remaining Republican senators on the commission, and Senator Bard's financial interests in California are such that it is scarcely probable he would care to act as chairman of the commission. On the other hand, although Mr. Penrose has not been assiduous in his attention to the work, he has been present at a number of meetings and has taken more than a desultory interest in the subject. As Pennsylvania furnished more witnesses for the commission and more corporations for investigation than any other state, Mr. Penrose's constituents are deeply interested in the subject, especially in the investigation of the relations between the trusts and the tariff.

Should Mr. Penrose be passed over or decline to serve, the choice will most likely fall on Mr. Phillips, vice chairman of the commission. It was largely due to his efforts, it is said, that the bill erecting the commission became a law. He has taken the deepest interest in the work, and has been a constant attendant on the sessions of the commission. He was chairman of the house committee on labor, and has always been interested in labor matters.

As a preliminary to the work of drafting the final recommendations to congress, a sub-committee will go over all the testimony taken by the commission, as well as the immense amount of additional data at hand, and compile it in such a shape that the final recommendations may be made from it. The review itself will not contain any recommendations. The subjects will be treated under ten heads: Summary of, progress of and conditions of industry generally; agriculture, mining, manufacture and general business, industrial combinations, transportation, labor, immigration, the negro problem and taxation.

Consul General Richard Guenther writes from Frankfort:

"In connection with the much-mooted coal question, I have already, in reports to the state department, called attention to the fact that the time seemed to be ripe in Germany for the introduction of smoke-consuming furnaces, which, as is well known, are great fuel savers. The high price of coal has made the German manufacturers disposed to listen with favor to proposals to replace their old-style furnaces by apparatus in which low-grade coal and coal dust can be burned, and which, through almost complete combustion, are smoke consumers.

"A German imperial commission has been making experiments in the consumption of coal dust in furnaces, and a recent report makes special mention of the 'Schwarzkopff' apparatus. The Journal of the Society of Arts has also given a brief description of the same. The managers of state institutions have been instructed to do all they can to prevent or to consume the smoke from their fires, and, if necessary, to have smoke-consuming appliances constructed. Municipal authorities have been asked to do the same. It would seem a propitious time for American builders of smoke-consuming devices to appear on the field. I think it can be easily demonstrated that at least some American devices successfully prevent the formation of smoke and make it possible to use low grades of coal, screening and dust, so that the cost of the plant is covered by the saving in the cost of fuel in two years. It seems to me advisable for our manufacturers of smoke-consuming furnaces to have experts investigate conditions here. I am convinced that a large and lucrative business can be established."

Schlitz

For fifty years Schlitz beer has been brewed at Milwaukee. From this city it goes to the remotest parts of the earth. The sun never sets on Schlitz agencies. Civilized men do not live where Schlitz beer is not standard.

Schlitz beer has made Milwaukee famous. It has given Milwaukee beer the distinction of purity, and purity is everything, but all Milwaukee beer is not Schlitz beer. People now demand a beer that is healthful, and that demand calls for Schlitz.

Schlitz purity is absolute. Every process is cleanly. Every drop of the product is cooled in filtered air. Every barrel is filtered—every bottle is sterilized.

A beer that is aged and pure is healthful. That is Schlitz.

TO CHANGE

Place of Meeting of Labor Leaders to Washington.

Pittsburg, July 8.—Local labor leaders claim to know nothing of the proposed meeting in Chicago this week of leaders in the metal trades to form an alliance for united action in dealing with the United States Steel corporation. A call was issued some weeks ago by President L. R. Thomas, of the Pattern Makers' league of North America for a convention in St. Louis July 22, but through a blunder in print, some papers announced that the meeting would take place in Chicago. An effort is now being made to change the place of meeting from St. Louis to Washington on the same date and circulars to that effect have been sent out to all the organizations affiliated with the metal trades.

AT MADISON.

Librarians Make a Trip to the Capital.

Waukesha, Wis., July 8.—Delegates to the annual convention of the American Library association went to Madison today by special train. They will inspect the new building of the Wisconsin State Historical society and will hold a session there this afternoon. Papers on European and American libraries will be read. The party will return this evening.

FLOOR FELL.

Twelve Firemen Buried in Debris, But Rescued By Comrades.

Chicago, July 8.—Twelve firemen fell with a floor and were buried under the wreckage at a fire here today, but were rescued their comrades. The fire occurred at 190-92 Washington street, occupied by Merle & Heaney, dealers in saloon and store fixtures. While handling a heavy lead of hose on the first floor the support gave way and the men were precipitated into the basement. Their cries alarmed their companions who rushed through the smoke with ropes and ladders and assisted the injured men to the street. Estimated loss $50,000, partially insured.

MIMIC WAR.

Navy Department Arranges Program to Be Carried Out.

Washington, July 8.—The navy department announced today the program to be carried out by the naval war college at Newport during this week. Monday and Saturday will be taken up solely with the subject of strategic game on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Capt. C. F. Goodrich will present the important subject of coast defense and the four committees will take up the topics of battle problem, main problem, tactical situation, tactical game and duel game. The North Atlantic squadron left Newport Friday to prepare for the mimic warfare which is to put the theories of the college to practical test.

TO OCTOBER.

Postponement of the Case Against Colonel Heinstand.

Washington, July 8.—Lieut. Col. Heistand has been assigned to temporary duty at San Francisco until the department ascertains the desire of the committee on military affairs in the senate which is to make an investigation of certain charges against Col. Heistand concerning the Manila hemp trade. It has been determined to postpone the investigation until some time in October and it is probable that the committee will so inform the war department in a short time.

KILLED ONE.

Young Man Was Mistaken For a Burglar.

Akron, Ohio, July 8.—Charles Waltz was shot and instantly killed by John W. Edwards, a Barberton photographer last night. Waltz, with some friends, stopped at Edwards' house during the night and demanded admittance. A window was broken and Edwards fired through the opening, believing the crowd was burglars. No further sound was heard. Later a policeman found Waltz dead, with a bullet through the heart. No arrests have been made.

MAY SETTLE WAR.

Freight Association Will Try and Adjust Matters.

Chicago, July 8.—Tomorrow's meeting of the Western Trunk Line Freight association probably will settle the rate war in freights precipitated by the recent open reduction made by the Santa Fe. In case the matter is not settled further cuts are likely. The Great Western's position in the matter is said to be the center of disturbance and the action of its representatives at the meeting here will, it is expected, decide whether harmony is restored or a disastrous rate slashing inaugurated.

Chicago-St. Paul lines have agreed on a rate of one fare plus $2 for the round trip on G. A. R. encampment business from St. Paul to Chicago. From Chicago to Cleveland a rate of 1 cent a mile already has been granted.

INSANITY TRUST.

Investigation Begins By Indianapolis Grand Jury.

Indianapolis, July 8.—The grand jury here today began taking sensational testimony as to the so-called Indianapolis insanity trust. It is alleged that a clique of doctors and officials have taken part for two years in hundreds of insanity inquests and large fees have been collected. One of those pushing today's inquiry says fully one-fifth of those committed are perfectly sane.

A Travel Point

Pan-American Exposition

THE Pan-American, to be held at Buffalo, N. Y., May 1 to Nov. 1, will be one of the greatest and most beautiful expositions the world has known. To enjoy its beauties will be worth any effort. The question of traveling to and from Buffalo is one to be carefully considered. You will desire to travel by the route affording the most comfort and interest. The return trip, too, must be considered, as after you have done the Exposition, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and vicinity, you'll be tired and wish to reach home quickly.

The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway

as the leading line to Buffalo by reason of the frequency of its trains and the certainty and punctuality of their movement will best meet this requirement. It is the only double track line, and the completeness of its service—eight through trains daily among them the only daylight train, places it at the forefront among Eastern roads. The country traversed is the fairest and richest of the Middle States—the most interesting on the way to Buffalo.

All tickets over this route afford use of steamers either way between Cleveland and Buffalo, also stop at Chautauqua on return trip with in limit of ticket. Our "Book of Trains" contains full information. Sent free on request. Look it through carefully.

LOSES ITS ADVANCE

Wheat Starts Out Weak and Then Bulges Sharply.

Strength Was Short Lived and Close Was Weak.

Lower Cables and Liberal Receipts---Corn Very Strong.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 9.—Wheat started out weak this morning but rallied and showed a good advance during the morning. It looked as though the market was under way for an advance, but shortly after noon it again turned weak and declined as rapidly as it had advanced. Receipts were liberal both at winter wheat primary points and in the Northwest. A decline of ¾d at Liverpool aided in the opening weakness and was ascribed to heavy offerings in that market. Bradstreet's report of the world's visible showed a decrease of 4,300,000 bus. Primary receipts of wheat were 508,600 bus, last year 379,000 bus. Shipments 858,000, last year 634,000. Clearances of wheat and flour were 666,000 bus.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 193 cars, against 271 last week and 104 last year. Chicago receipts, 174 cars, 101 of contract grade.

Trading in futures was fairly active on the Duluth board. September wheat opened ⅜c off at 63c, sold up to 63⅝c at 9:50, reacted to 63¼c at 10:02 and recovered to 64¼c at 10:35, that was the high point, and from there it declined steadily selling at 63¼c at noon, 63¼c at 1:10, and closing at 63c, a decline of ⅜c. Chicago declined ¾c, and Minneapolis, ½-⅝c.

Cash sales were 25,000 bus at 1¼c over September. The new crop flax futures were weaker today. September closing 3c off and October, 2½c. Cash flax was 3c up. The oat price was up ½c and rye ¼c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard—Cash, to arrive and July, 67¾c; September, 64c. No. 1 northern—Cash, to arrive and July, 64¾c; September, 63c; August, 63½c. No. 2 northern, 59¾c. No. 3 spring, 55¾c. Oats, 27¼-27½c. Rye, 47c. Flax—Cash, $1.83; September, $1.47; September Northwestern, $1.48; October, $1.42½.

Car inspection—Wheat, 108; corn, 2; oats, 5; rye, 6; flax, 20. Receipts—Wheat, 76,357; corn, 984; oats, 1445; rye, 1259; flax, 10,197. Shipments—Wheat, 314,955; corn, 50,009.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Weak Opening In Wheat With Subsequent Rally.

Chicago, July 9.—Lower cables and liberal receipts caused a weak opening in wheat today, but rallied on covering caused by an export demand. September opened 1⅛@1¼c lower at 64c and rallied to 64⅝c. Northwest receipts were 193 cars against 271 last week and 104 a year ago. Local receipts were 174 cars, 101 of contract grade.

After declining to 63¾c, there was a rally to 64⅝c on covering. The remainder of the session was firm until near the close when another break occurred. The close was ⅛@⅜c lower at 63⅞c.

Dry weather in the West gave marked strength to corn. September opened ⅝@⅝c higher at 48¼c and rose steadily to 49¼@⅝c. Receipts were 352 cars, 16 contract.

Under heavy buying the market held firm and the close was an even cent above yesterday at 49¼c.

Oats opened excited and higher on hot, dry weather in the West. September opened unchanged to ½c higher at 30c to 30½c and rose to 30⅝c. Receipts were 131 cars.

Provisions opened easy on lower hogs but turned extremely dull. September pork opened 10c lower at $13.90; lard was a shade lower at $8.57½ and ribs 2½c lower at $7.92½.

Close: Wheat, July, 63¼c; September, 63¾c; October, 64½c. Corn, July, 47⅝c; September, 49@49¼c. Oats, July, 29½c; September, 30⅜@⅝c. Pork, July, $13.10; September and October, $13.90; January, $14.10. Lard, July, $8.47½; September, $8.52½; October, $8.50; December, $8.25; January, $8.17½. Ribs, July, $7.85; September, $7.87½@7.90; October, $7.52½; January, $7.37½. Flax, cash Northwestern, $1.83; No. 1, $1.83; September, $1.48; October, $1.40½. Cash wheat, No. 2 red, 64¾c; No. 3 red, 63@½c; No. 2 hard winter, 63@⅝c; No. 3 hard winter, 62c; No. 1 northern spring, 65½@66c; No. 2 northern spring, 64c; No. 3 spring, 60@62c. Corn, No. 2, 47½c; No. 3, 46½@⅝c. Oats, No. 2, 30@½c; No. 3, 29⅝@30c. Rye, July, 48¾c; September, 48¼@48c. Barley, cash, 40@53c. Timothy, September, $4.50. Clover, cash, $3.50.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Chicago, July 9.—Wheat opened weak on lower cables and favorable weather in the Northwest, but on covering of several large lines by local operators advanced ¾@⅞ per bus, but did not hold the advance, declining slowly of its own weight and closing ¼c under last night. Our advices from the West are of a free movement of this wheat and we do not believe that the market has yet felt the pressure of cash wheat to any great extent. We cannot see anything on which to advise the purchase of wheat, but believe that sales on every hard spot will make money.

Corn has been strong all day. Advanced sharply on the opening in spite of ¼c decline in Liverpool. The feature of the day has been the heavy buying from Iowa, Nebraska and the Southwest generally. Iowa has been especially a free buyer today for almost the first time, and reports from that state are coming in quite freely of crop damage. While we will have constant recessions and possible some sharp breaks on rain or reports of rain, we believe that corn should be bought on every weak spot and that we cannot under the most favorable condition raise more than half a crop of corn in Texas, Kansas and Missouri, and that the crop in Iowa and Nebraska is already suffering severely.

Oats have been very firm all day being influenced by corn and by the constant reports of crop damage that are being sent in from the country. The country are also free buyers of oats. We believe that oats will sell higher and that purchases on weak spots will make money.

Provisions opened firm on light receipts, hogs and higher prices at the yards, but soon gave way to weakness and closed decidedly lower. Armour and Cudahy Packing companies were very heavy buyers all day and prominent grain men sold long lard heavily and packers generally bought far futures and sold nearby futures. The damage to corn is expected to send hogs in freely, but in the end is figured as a big bull argument. The whole local crowd are playing this theory, but we believe them wrong for we are convinced the hog crop is short and the short line of nearby futures already very large and they have not the money to play it through. We advise purchase of October ribs and lard. Estimated hogs for tomorrow, 25,000.

CROP CONDITIONS.

Weekly Summary of Weather Bureau.

Washington, July 9.—The weather bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions is as follows:

The northern and central districts east of the Rockies have experienced two consecutive weeks of intense heat and while the average daily temperature excess for the week ending July 8 was not quite so marked as in the previous week in the central valleys, it was more so in the Middle Atlantic coast districts. No seriously injured effects to crops from this period of intense heat is reported from the Middle Atlantic states but from Texas northward to Nebraska, including Missouri, Arkansas and portions of Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee crops have suffered to a greater or less extent. The weather conditions on Pacific coast and in the plateau regions have been favorable, although frosts caused some injury in Utah and Wyoming on July 5.

In Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas corn has been seriously damaged by intense heat and drying winds, although late corn in Kansas is in fair condition. The bulk of the crop in Nebraska and Iowa, has so far escaped injury except in a few Southwestern counties in Nebraska, where corn has been slightly injured, while in Southeastern Iowa it is threatened, in the states of the Ohio valley corn has suffered no injury from heat and has generally made good growth, but continues in need of cultivation in portions of Ohio and West Virginia.

Winter wheat harvest is finished in Kansas, Missouri and in the lower Ohio valley and is in progress in the more northerly sections. Rains have interfered with harvest in portions of Ohio and West Virginia and reports of damage from fly continue.

In the Dakotas, Minnesota, Oregon and Washington, spring wheat continues generally in a very promising condition, although areas in Northern Minnesota have been flooded and the crop has suffered from drouth in portions of South Dakota. In Iowa the excessive heat has impaired the quality of corn by causing it to ripen too rapidly.

The oats crop in the states of the Upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys, has suffered farther injury from intense heat, but in Southern Minnesota and portions of South Dakota, it is in a very promising condition. In the Ohio valley and Middle Atlantic states the crop has ripened rapidly under the high temperature, fair to good yield being indicated from these districts. A large crop of hay is being secured in New England and New York and haying continues with fair to good results in the Ohio valley and lake region.

The intense heat has materially reduced the crop in Central Missouri and Lower Missouri valleys but the condition in the Dakotas is excellent.

RECOVERY OF STOCKS

Nervous Feeling In Market Relieved By Powerful Support.

Large Buying Orders From the Bankers and Syndicates.

Their Projects Would Have Been Endangered By Liquidation.

New York, July 9.—The nervous feeling caused on the stock market by yesterday's violent slump in prices was relieved by the prompt recovery after the opening dip this morning. The recovery was due to powerful support in the shape of buying orders from bankers and syndicates whose great projects would be endangered if liquidation were forced. As a result of eagerness to sell and the strenuous efforts from others to buy, there were wide openings in the stocks of the grangers, Pacifics and Southwestern roads. Louisville lost 3⅜, Southern Pacific 2⅜, Baltimore & Ohio 3¼ and others a point or more. The opening prices were generally lowest and the determined buying lifted prices steadily to well above last night, where they were held quite firmly with much less selling to be absorbed.

New York, July 9.—Heavy blocks of stocks were thrown on the market at the opening on outside orders as a result of yesterday's slump here, and further declines in London this morning, but supporting orders were on the market which resisted the decline. Louisville was the severest sufferer, with a loss of 3⅜. There were wide openings in the grangers, Pacifics and Southwestern. Six thousand shares of Union Pacific sold at 101 to 101½, compared with 102 last night; 3500 shares of Atchison sold at 80¾ to 79½, compared with 80⅝ last night; 1400 shares St. Paul sold at 162½ to 163¼, compared with 163¼ last night, and 1000 shares Southern Pacific sold at 52½ to 53 compared with 54¼ last night. Supporting orders were evident in United States Steel in which the opening quotations on the sale of 10,000 shares were 43⅜ to 43¼ compared with 43¼ last night. Losses were about a point. The secondary quotations showed the effect of the support, rallies running to 1 to 1½ in Louisville, Southern Pacific and Texas & Pacific.

Very large buying orders for both accounts were executed in some of the Western, Pacifics and Eastern stocks, causing material rallies in which St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Louisville figured for 2 to 2¼ points. United States Steel rallied 1¼ each. Meanwhile, there were some declines at other points, conspicuously weak issues being Rock Island, St. Louis Southwestern and Baltimore & Ohio, which lost 2 to 3¼ points. By 11 o'clock speculation had acquired a good tone all around and the Southern and Southwestern roads were rising strongly. Illinois Central advanced 3¾ on the new stock issue and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred 1¼ on the dividend declaration. The average level of prices was then well above last night.

Trading continued in good volume and there was no impairment of the advances. The rise over yesterday's close reached nearly 2 points in Union Pacific, St. Paul, Sugar, Atchison preferred, United States Steel and the local tractions. A factor in sustaining prices was the easier tone of money, call rates ruling at 6 per cent. There were price concessions before noon running to a point in Missouri Pacific. Bonds were weak.

Louisville took the leadership of the market in the final hour and spurted to 110, an extreme rise of 7¼. St. Paul made its recovery 5 and Union Pacific, Atchison and Missouri Pacific from 3¾@4. Prices generally rose in sympathy, but gains were less in other cases. Room traders' profit-taking clipped the tops from prices, but the closing was quite active and firm at slightly below the best prices.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Wall Street Journal—The rapid decline yesterday will raise the question whether some stocks are not low enough to buy, without undertakign to answer this question we can say that the causes which are affecting the market seem likely to affect some stocks more than others. The effects of dear money would be felt all through the list but the effects of corn damage in Kansas would not necessarily hurt Southern Railway. Reading or New York Central. Probably the money situation is the important factor but declines of from 3 to 6 points in leading stocks Monday will soon bring a better money situation through a curtailment of money requirements. Hence a decline in prices is remedial in that respect. The market ought to begin to adapt itself to facts as far as crops are concerned. Stocks of roads liable to lose earnings might properly decline while others might show more strength. Atchison, Missouri Pacific and St. Louis & San Francisco have most mileage in area of corn damage. St. Paul, Great Northern, Chicago Great Western, Illinois Central, Louisville & Nashville and Southern Railway are not in the area of damage. There are no unfavorable indications for the anthracite roads nor for the Eastern trunk lines aside from the single question of money.

Town Topics to Baker—Yesterday's sensational decline has resulted in the passing of stocks from weak to strong hands and was as much the result of manipulation as of unfavorable developments. The failure to rally with money down to 2 per cent reflects the absence of support, but Morgan interests were buyers on the late trading, especially of St. Paul and Steels. Money will work easier from now on, the corn crop has not been destroyed, the rate war will not become effective until Monday, if at all, and the steel strike will be settled before the close of the week. The community of interest movement has gone to pieces but traders fail to see any encouragement and we can expect some further selling during the early trading to be followed by a sharp rally later in the day.

Waldorf gossip to Edwards, Wood & Co.—Fears of serious labor troubles and apprehensions of higher money continue to dominate the speculative sentiment, but leading commission houses feel that the conditions have been much improved by the decline in prices. They remark, however, that money is distinctly easier; that loans are being liquidated on a large scale, and that danger of a serious pinch is past. Crop advices also reflect improvement and operators closely identified with prominent Western railroad officials tell their followers that so far as the corn belt is concerned in Nebraska and Iowa, a region of importance to railroads the corn ha been greatly benefited by rains. On the other hand it is to be noted that the cutting of rates by the Atchison has seriously impaired confidence in the community of interests of which so much has been hoped.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 9.—Cotton opened steady 4@6 points higher, on poor response to strong English cables and more drouth reports from the Western belt. It was evident that in a small way, the cotton had acquired a good tone all around and the Southern and Southwestern roads were rising strongly. Illinois Central advanced 3¾ on the new stock issue and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred 1¼ on the dividend declaration. The average level of prices was then well above last night.

Trading continued in good volume and there was no impairment of the advances. The rise over yesterday's close reached nearly 2 points in Union Pacific, St. Paul, Sugar, Atchison preferred, United States Steel and the local tractions. A factor in sustaining prices was the easier tone of money, call rates ruling at 6 per cent. There were price concessions before noon running to a point in Missouri Pacific. Bonds were weak.

Louisville took the leadership of the market in the final hour and spurted to 110, an extreme rise of 7¼. St. Paul made its recovery 5 and Union Pacific, Atchison and Missouri Pacific from 3¾@4. Prices generally rose in sympathy, but gains were less in other cases. Room traders' profit-taking clipped the tops from prices, but the closing was quite active and firm at slightly below the best prices.

VARICOCELE.

MASTER SPECIALIST.

The Disease An enlargement of the veins of the scrotum, causing a knotted or swollen appearance of the scrotum most frequently.

Its Cause —Often indiscretion, but sometimes blows, falls, strains, excessive horseback or bicycle riding or excessive dissipation.

Its Effect A dull, heavy, dragging pain in center of back, extending down through loins, low spirits, weakness of body and brain, nervous debility, partial or complete loss of vigor and often failure of general health.

Its Cure —If you are a victim of Varicocele, come to our office and let me explain to you my process of curing it. You will then not wonder that I have cured to stay cured hundreds of cases of Varicocele during the past twelve months. Under my treatment the patient improves from the very beginning. All pain instantly ceases. Soreness and swelling quickly subside. The pools of stagnant blood are forced from the dilated veins, which rapidly assume their normal size, strength and soundness. All indications of the disease and weakness vanish completely and forever, and in their stead comes the pride, the power, and the pleasures of perfect health and restored manhood.

We also cure to stay cured Stricture, Nervo-Sexual Debility, Contagious Blood Poison, Rupture, Kidney and Urinary Diseases.

MONARCH SNUBBED

No Decorations To Be Given King William of Wurtemburg.

He and King Edward Are Not on Friendly Terms.

They Severely Criticise Each Other's Manners and Morals.

London, July 9.—Semi-official announcement has been issued to the effect that it is not proposed to confer the Order of the Garter upon the king of Wurtenburg. This constitutes so grave an affront to this German monarch that it has created a sensation in official and court circles, and is likely to make no end of noise on the continent, as being an almost unprecedented manifestation of ill-will between two brother sovereigns. Queen Victoria had intimated her intention of conferring the garter upon King William, and the latter had expressed his keen gratification at the compliment thus paid to him, for the garter is the most highly prized of all European orders, even among crowned heads, especially among those who are the rulers of second or third-class powers.

Queen Victoria was anxious that the king should be invested with the order with proper pomp and ceremony, and delegated her second son, the late duke of Coburg, to proceed to Stuttgart to invest the king with the garter. The duke, however, fell ill and died, and then it was arranged that Queen Victoria's third son should go to Stuttgart for the purpose of attending the festivities at Berlin in connection with the bi-centennial of the birth of the Prussian kingdom.

It will be remembered, however, that the duke was summoned back from Berlin in hot haste by his mother's illness to which she succumbed. It was, however, believed that after a time King Edward would fulfill his mother's intention with regard to the Wurtemburg king. But he declines to do so.

The king of Wurtemburg is an object of particular animosity on his part, and since the jubilee in 1897, when the king made himself unpleasant to the prince of Wales on the subject of precedence, the relations between them have been most unfriendly.

King Edward denounces King William as coarse, boorish, gross in the matter of both food and drink and entirely lacking in breeding and refinement. King William, on the other hand, has been even still more free in his denunciation of the behavior of King Edward, while still prince of Wales, especially with regard to his relations to the fair sex and to his fondness for cards.

The bad blood between the kings excites the more attention owing to the fact that they are near related; that King William is in the line of succession to the throne of Great Britain and that at the time of the ascension of Queen Victoria the king of Wurtemburg of that day was one of the married princes who were next to the crown of England.

CRUCIFIX FOUND.

Which Locates Burial Place of Pere Marquette.

Frankfort, Mich., July 9.—Workmen on the new Ann Arbor hotel yesterday unearthed a golden altar crucifix eleven inches in length, with arms five inches long, set in a base two inches square, supposed to have been the property of the Jesuit priest, Father Marquette, who was buried here 225 years ago. Some time ago a skull was found on the same spot, which created great excitement here. hTe finding of the crucifix proves beyond a doubt that Pere Marquette was buried on this spot. It is of French design, bears the letters "I. N. R. I." and is heavily plated with gold.

POSTHUMOUS HONORS.

Conferred Upon Chinese Who Were Killed.

London, July 9.—A dispatch from Pekin says: Posthumous honors have been bestowed upon a large number of civilians and soldiers who were killed in the attacks on foreigners, their deeds being commended by the court. Honors are likewise bestowed upon their families. In this and other ways the court still shows its belief that the war against foreigners was legitimate, notwithstanding foreign condemnation of the outrageous methods employed. The progressive officials are doubtful as to what treatment they will receive when the court returns.

THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO., Atlanta, Ga.

BIXBY ON VAN SANT

Tams Says That the Governor Will Be Renominated.

Is In Favor of Sam Iverson For State Auditor.

Discusses the Choice of the New Bank Examiner.

Minneapolis, July 9.—A Washington special to the Journal says: "Van Sant will be renominated without any opposition, as he should be. The Republicans of Minnesota will not think of trying again the experiment of 1898, when Governor McGill was refused a renomination."

So says Tams Bixby, chairman of the executive committee of the Minnesota state Republican campaign committee. Mr. Bixby has been in Washington several days on business connected with his position as a member of the Dawes Indian commission. He leaves for Minnesota at once, and intends to take his family with him to Colorado Springs for a month, after which he will return to Indian territory to take up his official duties again. Mr. Bixby said:

"Van Sant is making many friends and his administration is successful in every way. Naturally, he could not satisfy everybody in the matter of appointments, which the people now understand. In all probability, the Democrats will nominate John Lind, notwithstanding much talk to the contrary, and Van Sant is a strong man as we could run against him. Lind's going to Minneapolis is, in my judgment, merely a preliminary to his future political plans. He, perhaps, would not run again were he to consult his personal wishes; but the party will make a demand which he cannot in honor fail to meet. "There is a strong sentiment in favor of the renomination of Bob Dunn for state auditor. Dunn could have the place again by simply saying the word, but at present it looks as if he would not be a candidate. Should he hold to his present ground, the nomination will probably go to Sam Iverson, deputy auditor. Sporadic opposition to Iverson because he lives in the First district will not cut any figure when it comes time for the convention to meet. The office of state auditor is in many ways the most important one within the gift of our people, and geography never should be permitted to control it. Fitness should be the only qualification required, and as the point of fitness there is nobody, after Dunn, in the entire state, who can touch Iverson.

"Van Sant will have an important appointment to make at the end of this year. The bank examiner holds for three years. The present incumbent, appointed by Governor Lind, held during the whole of the Lind administration and is lapping over one year into the Van Sant administration. The man who is to be appointed next January will serve after its close. I do not know whom the governor will appoint. In fact, there are only a few candidates in the field. I have no personal interest in any of them, and have taken no part in the contest. It is highly important that the governor pick out the best man he can find, and if he does this, everybody will be satisfied. If the Republican party does not contain the proper man and the Democratic party does, the governor ought to appoint a Democrat. In no sense should this important office be considered from a political or semi-political point of view. It is purely a business position and has to do with the financial interests of the state in a very direct way. The ideal bank examiner combines a number of rare qualities of mind, and is hard to find. There are not many people in the state who would fill a satisfactory definition of the term. The governor should be let alone by the politicians when it comes time for his appointment. Everybody should keep hands off in the interest of a selection of a man who, should another crisis come, will come fully up to the demands of the public."

Mr. Bixby says that he has made no recommendations, and shall not make any. Several men have asked him to write the governor in their behalf, but he has declined.

Somebody in the Third district has been having some fun by talking Mr. Bixby as a candidate for congress next year. As a joke, this is all right, but the gentleman from Muskogee hopes nobody is taking it seriously. He says he does not want to go to congress, and would not accept a nomination, if offered.

Generally speaking, the Republican outlook in Minnesota seldom has been better than it now is, in Mr. Bixby's opinion. The legislature made a great party record last winter, and was one of the very best in the history of the state. The governor is wearing well, and will be stronger and stronger with the people as he nears the end of his term. The party is united and ready for a great contest in the off year. There is no reason why there should not be another old time Republican victory. Mr. Bixby believes there will be one. It is quite likely that he will not be able to give any of his time next year to the campaign. Last year, against his business judgement, he gave up his work in the Indian Territory and spent several months in Minnesota as head of the Van Sant campaign committee. The time he lost from his work was important. It will be out of the question for him to take another long vacation next year. He did not ask me to say this for him in the interview, but I put it in by way of timely warning to those who may be expecting that he will be on hand to lead the fight next year, as usual.

UNDER ADVISEMENT.

State Pardon Board Takes Petition of Youngers.

St. Paul Minn., July 9.—The state pardon board yesterday considered a long list of applications for parole, the most important among them being those of Cole and James Younger, who are now serving life sentences for their connection with the Northfield bank robbery in 1876. Their application is made under the provisions of a law enacted by the last state legislature, which gave the state board of pardons power to pardon life prisoners who have served twenty-five years. The state board consists of Governor S. R. Van Sant, Attorney General Douglass and Chief Justice Start. A unanimous vote is necessary in the granting of a parole under the law. The board considered the application, but took the case under advisement, and reserved its decision. Considerable doubt is expressed as to whether the parole will be granted.

PAUL NEUMAN DEAD.

Well Known Citizen of the Hawaiian Islands.

Honolulu, July 2, via San Francisco, July 9.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Paul Neumann died early this morning of paralysis of the brain, aged 68 years. He was one of the best known and most liked citizens of the islands, and his sudden death was a great shock to the community here. He was a very popular member of the bar, and had been mentioned as a gubernatorial possibility.

Mr. Neumann, represented the Hawaiian government at Washington and in various other capacities before annexation. In 1893 he represented Queen Liliuokalani at Washington during the troubles that followed the overthrow of the monarchy. Under King Kalakaua he held the post of attorney general before coming to Hawaii he lived in California, where he served three terms as a state senator. Neumann was born in Prussia. One of his sons is a cadet at Annapolis.

The new income tax went into effect yesterday assessing a tax of 2 per cent on all incomes exceeding $1000 per annum. It is said that suits will be brougat to test the law in the courts.

AT CLOQUET

Cloquet, Minn., July 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ball game between the Freimuths, of Duluth, and Red Caps, of Cloquet, on Sunday afternoon resulted in a victory for the latter club. Score, 12 to 6 in favor of Cloquet.

M. T. Mongovan, a pioneer settler of Cloquet, died Sunday morning after a long and tedious illness. The deceased was an old army veteran and has had a long and varied experience in many climes. He came here in the early days, when the town was first started, and his familiar face will be missed by his many friends.

Mrs. Joseph Peacha is very dangerously ill again.

Dr. Whettemore has returned from his home in Glenwood. His holiday was marred by witnessing the death, by accidental drowning, of two of his intimate friends.

S. Osborne, of Chicago, spent Sunday with his nephew, A. Cox.

William Kelly went to Carlton yesterday to attend a meeting of the county commissioners.

Rev. J. W. Heard went to Floodwood Monday to conduct the funeral of a Mr. Wolfe, one of his parishioners.

A special meeting of the library board will be held this evening at 8 o'clock.

S. W. Myers, of West Superior, was here Monday looking up a location to start a merchant tailoring establishment. He will start business Aug. 1.

Dr. James Fleming left this morning for points in North Dakota. He will be absent about ten days.

Anna Larson went to Moose Lake yesterday to attend summer school.

AT CASS LAKE

Cass Lake, Minn., July 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first annual meeting of independent school district No. 3, which embraces only the village of Cass Lake, will be held on July 20, for the purpose of electing officers and for borrowing sufficient funds to pay the current expenses for the ensuing year.

P. H. Wall has disposed of his property in Cass Lake and gone to Chippewa Falls, Wis., for a brief visit, after which he will leave for Idaho to make his future home. Mr. Wall was the first mayor of Cass Lake. He is an experienced logger and lumberman, and will enter the employ of an Idaho lumber company.

Judge Wilcox of Larimore, a member of the district judicial bench of North Dakota, is enjoying an outing in Cass Lake and making some phenomenal catches of fish. The judge claims to have hooked 150 pike in one afternoon recently.

TOOK HIS LIFE.

Son of Ambassador White Committed Suicide.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 9.—Frederick D. White, son of Andrew D. White, United States ambassador to Germany, committed suicide at 5:30 p. m. yesterday at his home in this city. Prolonged ill health and a persistent and exhausting nervous disease is given as the only possible explanation of his act. Mr. White had appeared in usual health during the day and had attended to matters of business in the management of the White estate. He was alone in the house with the servants during part of the afternoon, Mrs. White returned shortly after 5 o'clock and found Mr. White dead in the bath room. A bullet from a rifle passed through his brain and death had been instantaneous. No one heard the shot. Some eighteen years ago on completing his course at Columbia law college, Mr. White had a severe attack of typhoid fever from which he never recovered. Stomach and intestinal troubles resulted. Later his nervous system became weakened and within a few years neurasthenia developed. About a year ago he suffered a severe attack of the complaint. During the recent hot spell another attack of the disease came on, leaving him in a state of acute nervousness.

HAVE ESCAPED.

Hope of Capturing Train Robbers Is Abandoned.

Butte, Mont., July 9.—An Intermountain special from Malta says all hope of capturing the Great Northern train robbers has been abandoned. One by one the men who accompanied the authorities in the chase to the southward have returned, and the general opinion appears to be that the robbers have made good their escape. The men composing the sheriff's posse sent out from Glasgow have despaired of capturing the men, and the chase has been given up from this end of the line. Hopes are entertained that the robbers may be apprehended while on their way out of the state by the authorities of the southern counties in Montana. Experienced trailers are firm in the belief that the riders scattered as soon as they were near the southern boundary of the state and reached the Hole-in-the-Wall by circuitous routes.

FELL INTO MUD.

Serious Accident to Two Women in Yellowstone.

Helena, Mont., July 9.—Mrs. W. W. Wylie, just in from Mammoth Hot Springs, brings the report that two women whose names were unknown met with a shocking accident while inspecting the boiling mud "Paint Pots" at the Thumb on Yellowstone lake in the National park Saturday afternoon. The women, a mother and her daughter, who entered the park by Monida route, fell into the natural cauldron, where the boiling mud was waist deep and could only be rescued with difficulty. They were taken by boat to the Lake hotel, where a physician said their injuries might prove fatal. A German tourist who was parboiled by an eruption of "Old Faithful" while looking into the crater, is recovering. The accident occurred five weeks ago and for a time it was thought he would die.

STRONG AS A LION BUT GENTLE AS A LAMB

Smith's Green Mountain Renovator in its medicinal energies is as strong as a lion, but as gentle as a lamb.

It is powerful in removing disease from the body and despair from the brain. It cleanses the blood of every taint of Malaria, Scrofula, Rheumatism, or Catarrh, and cures all diseases of the Liver and Kidneys—all ill-weariness, weakness, backache, nervousness, etc. Smith's Green Mountain Renovator, instead of permitting disease to prey upon the body, preys upon the disease, and exterminates it. It searches the blood, and purges it of every impurity. It rescues the despairing dyspeptic, assists his stomach, liver, kidneys, bladder, etc.—assists them to prepare, digest, and distribute food to the body and to carry off that which is rejected. It pursues disease wherever it may be located, and promptly arrests and destroys it. It takes possession of the blood, and with masterful skill eradicates its every impurity, and surcharges it with buoyancy and rich, vigorous nourishment. It will not permit disease to exist in the same body with itself.

Smith's Green Mountain Renovator gives power to those who use it, muscular power, brain power, nerve power—power to achieve, power to endure, power to be and to do.

All this it accomplishes with the gentleness of a lamb. As the bereaved are comforted by the tender words and gentle touch of a loving friend, so are the sick, the debilitated, and the weary comforted, benefited, strengthened, built up by the gentle, insidious, soothing influence of Smith's Green Mountain Renovator. It is never harsh; it never whips or drives any part of the body or brain into action, but goes with it and kindly smooths its way. The part that is diseased is acting abnormally and under unnatural conditions. Smith's Green Mountain Renovator removes the disease, soothes the part into natural, healthy action, and assists in its duties. Weak and debilitated women and children are especially benefited by its wonderful medicinal properties.

Smith's Green Mountain Renovator makes pale, sickly women look bright and beautiful and strong. It seems to be possessed of the power to renew youth, and many a fagged woman has been made to look ten to twenty years younger by its use, it makes the sallow cheek ruddy with health, the tired eye bright with youthful vivacity, the lagging step elastic, and the shrunken features plump and round and full.

Menominee River Drive Will Be Out Last of Week.

Menominee—The Menominee river log drive will be out the latter part of this week. The rear of the drive was at Niagara Saturday night, and at the rate the logs have been floating for the past week the drive should be out by July 12. There are about 100,000,000 feet of logs in this drive.

A floater was found in the Menominee river Saturday afternoon. It was first seen at the upper bridge on the Frenchtown side. The body had been in the water for some time, and it was clothed in a good suit. The dead man seems to have been about 45 years of age. There was nothing about his garments giving a clue as to his identity.

Escanaba—Escanaba now boasts a golf club, Onaweonawa by name. It has twenty-eight members and it has built a 9-hole links near the Delta county hospital. The first games of the season were played the latter part of last week. Golf promises to obtain a good foothold in Escanaba, and it is expected that the membership of the new club will be largely increased.

In all probability the Escanaba city council will be asked, at its next regular session, to grant the Escanaba & Lake Superior railroad a franchise permitting it to extend its tracks down Thomas street to the Stephenson dock. The advisability of making this request at last week's gathering of the aldermen was considered, but it was decided to wait until a few more options on properties included in the proposed right-of-way were secured. It is regarded as almost certain that the franchise will be sought early next month, the greatest number of the preliminary details having been completed.

Gladstone—Joseph V. Perry, one of Gladstone's best known citizens, while crossing the bay to his home in a sailboat, was run down by the steamer Huron, which was just coming into port, and drowned. Perry saw the Huron almost upon his boat and jumped into the bay, thinking that was his only chance of escape. The remainder of the party, including Perry's wife and several other women, kept their seats and remained unharmed, as the sailboat being struck at the bow was simply cheered off and did not capsize. For a time it was thought that every one, ten in all, would drown. Perry leaves a widow and several children.

REPORT IS MADE

To Council of Education on Proposed National University.

Educational Lessons of the Paris Exposition Discussed.

Papers By Miss Anna T. Smith and Howard J. Rogers.

Detroit, July 9.—The report of the committee on the proposed national university, submitted to the national council of education this morning, was the feature of the session.

Dr. William R. Harper, of Chicago, the chairman, submitted the report of the committee of fifteen which considered the questions of a national university. It was stated in the report that at one of its earlier meetings the committee adopted the following declarations:

"It has been and is one of the recognized functions of the federal government to encourage and aid, but not to control the educational instrumentality of the country.

"No one of the bills heretofore brought before congress to provide for the incorporating of a national university at Washington commends itself to the judgment of this committee as a practicable measure.

"The government is not called upon to maintain at the capital a university in the ordinary sense of the term."

After referring at length to the various questions that enter into the erection of a national educational institution the report continued:

"The committee have been advised of a plan for a non-governmental institution at Washington which may be able to supply all that is desired. This plan is the outcome of action taken by the Washington Academy of Sciences and by the George Washington Memorial association. Both organizations have agreed to co-operate to found an institution in the city of Washington, as a memorial to George Washington which shall be maintained to promote the advanced study of the sciences and the liberal arts. Concerning the proposed institution it is assumed:

"1. That it will be independent of government support or control, as it will also be independent of the support or control of existing institutions.

"2. That its objects will be: (A) To facilitate the use of scientific and other resources of the government for research. (B). To co-operate with universities, colleges and individuals in securing to properly qualified persons opportunities for advanced study and research now obtainable only to a limited extent in Washington and not at all elsewhere.

"3. That its oversight and control will be in the hands of trustees and officers representing the educational experience and ideals of the existing institutions for higher education."

The committee submitted a resolution to the effect that a plan is approved for a non-governmental institution known as the Washington Memorial institution, to be maintained i Washington, D. C., for the purpose of promoting the study of science and the liberal arts at the national capital, and of exercising oversight of the advanced studies of duly qualified students in the governmental laboratories and collections.

The report occupied two hours of hot debate on the subject which ended by the adoption of the following resolution: "Resolved, that the report of the committee be received and the committee discharged; and that while we express our appreciation of their labors, we are not prepared to abandon the position taken by the National Educational association in favor of a national university." This was adopted by a vote of 22 to 4.

Miss Anna Tolman Smith of the bureau of education, Washington, D. C., who was a member of the international jury of primary education at the last Paris exposition, spoke of the "Educational Lessons of the Paris Exposition." She said in part:

"The education section of the Paris exposition was crowded with material, but in judgment of the jury abundance was of value only so far as it was necessary to a complete presentation of processes and ideas.

"Measured by this standard the exhibit was remarkable. It expressed with great distinctness three orders of ideas, aesthetic, educational and national. The first arose from the arrangement and decorative schemes, in which respects the exhibit of the United States achieved a signal triumph.

It was presumed at the outset that the educational factor would weigh most in the final decisions of the jury and under this expectation there was a momentary apprehension that the most conspicuous features of our own exhibit might obscure what was of deeper significance. Pictorial representations, which were lavishly employed, give an adequate idea of school buildings and equipments, and a vivid sense of school life and activities; but on the other hand only subordinate exercised as manual training and physical culture, or the inferior processes of training that relate to the sensuous view of things can be presented by this means. Equally incomplete are detached specimen exercises which also formed an important feature of our exhibit. However excellent in themselves, they are merely fragmentary hints of little value, unless their rationale is shown by a systematic process of which they are a part. So far as the jury was concerned the interpretation of these hints was furnished by the bound volumes of pupils' exercises showing the entire development of subjects through the successive grades of the school period. The comments of foreign critics who judged only by the more novel and effective graphic displays, show that they missed the full comprehension of our school work.

"Although the jury examination was extremely critical in respect to the educational elements of an exhibit, their final judgment was largely determined by its national impress. This fact indicates the intimate relation between popular education and current politics in Europe. It explains the appreciation shown for even a feeble effort at popular education in countries like Italy, Portugal and Russia, where the idea is little more than a patriotic hope.

"As a revelation of national ideals the exhibit of the United States made the most profound impression. It showed an inherent principle of unity working onward and upward from the kindergarten to the university. It expressed the deep conviction of our people that technical or specialized training should rest upon a broad basis of general culture. Above all it revealed the orderly impulses and rational intentions which give stability to our national life."

Howard J. Rogers, of Albany, also spoke. After reviewing the exhibits of the different countries at the exposition and comparing them to the exhibit of the United States, Mr. Rogers concluded by saying:

"The greatest lesson of the exposition is contentment. I do not mean contentment with everything but rather that the foreigner has little that is new that we need. We have a live, virile system of education in this country at present and let us not jeopardize it by trying to introduce into it conditions that were created for schools in countries abroad."

In the department of Indian education, the first speaker was Dr. Winship, of Boston. Congressman Smith, of Michigan, followed with an address congratulating the teachers on their work and commending it.

"The Need of Compulsory Education for the Indian" was discussed by Superintendent George W. Nellis, Sac & Fox agency, Iowa; Superintendent H. B. Peairs, Haskell school, Kansas; Superintendent E. G. Nardin, Mount Pleasant school, Michigan, all of whom advocated compulsory education.

A paper on "Resolved, That the Reservation Day School Should be Made the Prime Factor in Indian Education," by Agent F. G. Getchell, Fort Totten, N. D., was discussed by Superintendent J. B. Brown, Pine Ridge, S. D.; C. C. Covey, Pine Ridge, S. D.; C. S. Scovell, Cass Lake, Minn. The consensus of opinion was that the day school should be made the prime factor in Indian education.

Everything is in readiness in the Light Guard armory for the first general session of the association this afternoon.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Fort Wayne Lumberman Arrested On Serious Charge.

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 9.—Charles Dunn, the aged and wealthy lumberman held by the coroner's jury on suspicion of having killed 10-year-old Alice Cotrell, whose body was found in a cistern beneath Dunn's residence at Wallen, a village six miles west, was arrested on a warrant charging him with murder of the girl by choking her to death. An intensely bitter feeling exists against Dunn in t he neighboorhood of Wallen. Medical evidence adduced at the inquest showed an attempt to assault the little girl had been made.

JUMPED TRACK.

Train Wrecked at South Hamilton, Ohio.

Hamilton, O., July 9.—Southbound C. H. & I. express No. 41 jumped the track during the night at South Hamilton. The engine and two passengers coaches turned over. A number of passengers were injured, none seriously, however.

Postal Clerk Connor, of Hamilton, was severely cut and bruised.

THE TURK HAS SETTLED

The State Department Has Received $95,000 In Full Settlement of Claims For Indemnity Against Turkey.

Washington, July 10.—The state department has received the amount of the American indemnity claim against Turkey, $95,000, through the American legation at Constantinople.

The money was paid by the Turkish government to Mr. Leishman, our minister at Constantinople, was by him placed in the Ottoman Imperial bank and drafts remitted for the amount. These drafts have just reached Washington. As is always the case, the claims in the aggregate considerably exceed the amount of the indemnity actually paid, but our government has expressed itself satisfied with the payment. It assumes full responsibility for the distribution, the Turkish government paying down the lump sum of $95,000, and leaving it to the state department to distribute this among the claimants at its discretion and after its own fashion. It is stated that as soon as the department officials can prepare their list they will communicate directly with the claimants.

MAKES BETTER SHOWING

The Independence Sails Well In Heavier Wind But Cannot Head the Herreshoff Boat---Shamrock II Wins.

Batemans Point, R. I., July 10.—Weather conditions for the third race for 90-foot yachts under the auspices of the Newport Yacht Racing association are very similar to those that prevailed upon the occasions of the two preceding races and seem to favor the America's cup defender, the Constitution. The wind at 10:25 a. m. was light from the southeast, not over three or four miles an hour, while the same long roll of the sea prevailed as on Saturday and Monday. The yachts at the hour indicated had come out of the harbor and were heading towards the lightship together with the committee boat. Thin mists overspread the sky, but a good observation of about six miles can be obtained from this point. The judges' boat is flying the signal for a thirty-mile windward and leeward race and a beat to the outer mark of fifteen miles. The race will not be started until some time after 11 o'clock, because of lack of wind.

Besides three lower sails, all three boats had large club topsails set, that on the Independence being for the first time laced to the top of the mast. The time limit of the race is six hours.

At 1:35 p. m. the judges' boat signalled that the race will be a fifteen-mile beat to windward to the south and a run home. The warning signal was fired at 12:45, the preparatory at 12:50 and the starting gun five minutes later. From this point it looked as if the Independence crossed the line first. The start was one of the prettiest that has been seen for a long time, all three being bunched on the line and crossing on the starboard tack only a few seconds after the gun shot.

The Constitution was about four seconds behind the Independence and the Columbia four seconds later than the Constitution. Very little of the race will be seen here as the weather off shore is quite thick. The wind is blowing now about four or five knots an hour.

After crossing the line, Independence was given a good full and seemed for the first five minutes to outfoot slightly the two Herreshoff boats. She seemed, however, to fall off to leeward as in the two previous races. In the first ten minutes of sailing the Constitution did not put out any on Columbia. The wind at the start was south, blowing not much over five knots. The Columbia tacked to starboard at 1:21:30, and passed a short distance under the Constitution's stern. The Constitution tacked to starboard on the Columbia's weather quarter at 1:24, being then about an eighth of a mile ahead of the Columbia and over a quarter of a mile away from the Independence. The Independence also tacked to starboard at 1:24:20. During the first half hour of sailing, owing to the wind being fairly strong, Independence made a better showing than at any time during her racing with the two Herreshoff boats.

At 1:35 the yachts had completely disappeared in the fog, but a fine eight-knot breeze was blowing and the race should be sailed in quick time.

Rothesay, Firth of Clyde, July 10.—Another open trial of the Shamrocks was started at about 11 o'clock this morning, off Bogany point, island of Bute. The challenger allowed the cup boat to get well away to windward and several lengths ahead, thus permitting her to get the first of the fresher offshore wind. The Shamrock I maintained all her advantage to Kilchattan, but the challenger then picked up rapidly and passed the ex-challenger clear to leeward after a clever bit of sailing.

In Kilchattan bay the two Shamrocks had a couple of windward trials of eight and seven miles respectively. The cup challenger finished the first race half a mile in the lead. In the second she started to leeward, but worked out to windward, and won by a minute.

SWEPT AWAY

The Town of Corbin, Mont., Deluged By Rain.

Big Peck Concentrator and Houses Destroyed.

St. Paul, July 10.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: A deluge of rain, amounting to a cloud burst, washed away nearly the entire town of Corbin, twenty miles south of Helena, and the Big Peck concentrator there last night, according to messages received in Helena. So far as is known there was no loss of life, but the damage to wires renders details unobtainable. The tracks and trestles on the Northern Pacific and Great Northern were washed out, and both roads were unable to get trains through last night. All that the local offices received were brief messages telling of washouts and asking for wrecking crews.

Brief messages received from the deluged section contained the information that the town had been inundated to a depth of eight feet. Nearly all houses were washed away and practically all the concentrator was carried off, a mass of debris. A great mass of water poured from the hills upon the town and struck the buildings with terrific force. Practically the entire town and concentrating plant were in the path of the water and nearly everything was washed out in a few minutes. The concentrator alone is worth thousands of dollars, and to this loss is added the dwelling houses and other buildings of the town. Those familiar with surroundings believe that it would be almost impossible for every one to escape, and the general opinion is that there will be loss of life.

Andrew Carnegie Still Has Two Hundred and Eighty Million Dollars to Give Away In Public Benefactions.

New York, July 10.—The Herald says: Andrew Carnegie still has £56,000,000 to give away in public benefactions. Mr. Carnegie himself is authority for this statement, which he made recently at Skibo Castle to a member of the New York chamber of commerce committee, who is now in the city, but wishes his name kept secret.

According to Mr. Carnegie, he is still undecided in what manner to dispose of his wealth. He wishes the public to obtain the best results from his future benefactions, and for that reason has not yet formulated any philanthropic statements.

Mr. Carnegie admitted that free libraries and other educational institutions would undoubtedly obtain a portion of the millions in question, in order that the plans he had previously adopted should be fully developed. His hearers judged from what he said that he was considering the advisability of directing his wealth toward endowing and supporting art galleries, scientific museums and similar institutions.

WILL AVOID COLLISION

All Chinese Troops Will Be Withdraw From Manchuria to Prevent Any Possible Trouble With the Russians.

London, July 10.—A dispatch from Pekin says: It is reported that the Russians are rapidly completing the Manchurian railroad and that they will employ 50,000 troops for the defense of the line.

Li Hung Chang proposes to withdraw all the Chinese troops from Manchuria, with the object of avoiding all chances of collision with the Russians. If this is done, Russian troops will be needed to preserve order in the province, as only Chinese policemen will be employed there, according to the definition now given to the Russo-Chinese agreement regarding Manchuria.

It is stated that the Chinese troops have combined with bandits to plunder the people and resist the Russians. It appears that no control is exercised over the Chinese soldiery there.

Pekin, July 10.—The Protestant missionaries here have received a letter from Chou Fu, special commissioner on the missionary question, in which he accuses Chinese converts of seeking revenge by violence and of plundering and extorting. He concludes by asking the missionaries to assist in the restoration of order. His request will be granted.

TO A TREE.

Crazy Chinaman Hanged For Assaulting a Lumberman's Wife.

Bakersfield, Cal., July 10.—Young Fook, a Chinese cook employed at a boarding house at Mt. Breckenridge lumber mill, thirty-five miles east of Bakersfield, in the mountains, was lynched by lumbermen. The Chinaman attacked Mrs. Kenney, wife of the foreman of the mill, with a butcher knife, inflicting a serious wound on her face. He struck Mrs. Kenney's little daughter but the injury is slight. The screams of the woman brought the lumbermen to the scene. Mr. Kenney was the first to reach the house. He was attacked by he Chinaman, and sustained a severe cut on the wrist. The lumberman knocked the Chinaman down, placed a rope around his neck and hanged him to a tree. It is believed that the Chinaman was insane.

NOT IMPORTANT.

Steel Trust Officials Not Worried About Strike.

New York, July 10.—The Herald says: Indications in this city are that the high officials of the United States Steel corporation do not regard the strike in the sheet steel mills as of great importance or likely to prove difficult of settlement. E. H. Gary, chairman of the executive committee of the company, and C. M. Schwab, will both remain in New York for the present, and minor officials, comparatively speaking, will meet the representatives of the Amalgamated in Pittsburg. A prominent steel man said that the strike was not a wholesale attempt to introduce unionism into the mills of the steel trust companies. The Amalgamated association, he declared, controls only about 15 per cent of the employes of the trust.

A HANDSOME MAJORITY.

New York, July 10.—The Salisbury government succeeded in carrying its educational bill by the handsome majority of 333 votes against 215, says the Tribune's London correspondent.

"JINGOES" MEET.

Enthusiastic Meeting of Government Supporters.

London, July 10.—At the Guild hall today a meeting was held in support of the government's war policy. It was a great success from the "jingo" point of view. The idea originated on the stock exchange and was intended as an offset to the recent pro-Boer gathering at Queen's hall. The lord mayor, Frank Greene, and the other city magistrates did their utmost to assure its success, and the result was the great hall of the Guild hall, having a capacity of 4000 persons, did not suffice to contain the crowd, which necessitated an overflow meeting outside, where the pro-war enthusiasts made a demonstration of an even more pronounced character than that of the stock brokers within. Patriotic songs broke out at intervals both within and without the hall.

BROKE HIS BACK.

Battalion Fire Chief Thrown From a Ladder.

New York, July 10.—Thomas Langford, chief of the fifth battalion of the New York fire department, was thrown thirty feet by the breaking of a ladder at No. 88 Prince street, today. His back is so badly wrenched that the surgeons at St. Vincent's hospital do not expect him to live. It is feared his spine is broken.

The fire, which burned for an hour before it could be located, caused damage of at least $40,000, though it was confined to the Ostrich feather establishment of Julius Sauk & Co., in which it started.

WOMEN WILL BE THERE.

Peeresses Want to Hear Trial of Lord Russell.

London, July 10.—The trial of Earl Russell before the house of lords, July 18, on the charge of bigamy, has occasioned the issue of all kinds of quaint notifications. None of them, perhaps, is more curious than the latest, relating to the admission of women. The notice announces that 100 places have been reserved for peeresses.

QUESTION OF UNIONS

Is the Only Topic to Be Discussed at Coming Conference.

Men Demand That Sheet Steel Mills Shall Be Unionized.

Wages and Other Disputed Points Will Not Be Considered.

Pittsburg, July 10.—The steel strike situation was quiet today, pending the conference called for tomorrow in this city. Everything is ready for the meeting, all details have been arranged and the indications point to a short session and an amicable adjustment of the differences.

When the conference opens it will be ready for work at once. It is tacitly understood by both sides that all minor matters are to be laid aside. Even the matter of pay will not be discussed, as both companies have consented to pay the rates of the new scale. There will be but one point presented—whether all the mills of the two companies shall be unionized or not. For this reason the Amalgamated people will not enter the conference for the purpose of adjusting wages, but as executive officials to outline the policy of their organization.

Who will represent the steel companies at the conference has not been learned. Officials, who spoke for the companies at the previous conferences, say they do not know whether they will be sent to the new conference or not. It is likely that the companies will have a number of new faces there, but it is not thought that President Schwab or any of the other general officials will take part. Although the American Tinplate company is not a direct party to the conference, one of its mills, located at Monessen, Pa., is involved, an agreement having been made that if the American Sheet Steel company would do likewise. By this means a strike was averted and the scale signed for all the tinplate mills but the one at Monessen.

A dispatch from Wellsville, Ohio, says that at a meeting of the new Amalgamated lodge there last night a dozen new members were taken in, increasing the membership to fifty. Three of the men discharged from the mill were reinstated, and it is believed that the other nine who were let out will be taken back.

Two more signatures to the Amalgamated scale were received today. They were the Standard Chain company, Columbus, Ohio, and Monongahela Iron and Steel company, Homestead, Pa.

Reading, July 10.—Everything is quiet in strike circles today. The Reading Railroad company shop hands are still out, and they declare the strike will spread, probably to Philadelphia. They received information today that the company will give them a few days' grace before attempting to fill their places. They reply that they will stand for their original demands.

The situation in the Reading Iron company's strike continues favorable to a speedy adjustment. Vice President Smink and General Superintendent Schumann were in conference almost all the morning, considering the changes in the new wage schedule which the committee of the strikers suggested. They have altered the wage scedule and it will now be submitted to the committee at another conference this week. Unless other complications arise, the strike probably will be settled at this conference.

INCREASING

Records Show Average Length of Human Life Is Greater.

New York, July 10.—After eight years of work on the mortality records of 608,000 persons, the actuaries of England and Scotland declare that the average length of human life is increasing. This agrees with the conclusions of the great American companies. The Mutual Life Insurance company, of New York, by far the largest and strongest institution of the kind in the world, demonstrated some years ago that the average duration of human life had increased notably over what it was in America at the beginning of the nineteenth century. Officers of the Mutual say its records of more than 1,000,000 lives on which the company has written insurance, if analyzed today, would undoubtedly show the same result as is set forth by the British investigation.

The Mutual Life reports an increasing demand for investment insurance, particularly for its 5 per cent gold bond policies, which, apart from the protection they give, yield a much larger net return than government bonds and are just as safe. Increased expectation of life is believed to be one reason for this popular favor, and not alone the lower premium rate and higher guarantees of the Mutual.

OLD COLLIERIES

To Be Opened Up By the Reading Company.

Pottsville, Pa., July 10.—The Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company has started a large coal operation in the Heckscherville valley, near here. A large shaft is to be sunk on the site of the operations of five colleries twenty-five years ago, which had to shut down because of a fire. The veins in these abandoned operations will all be cut by the shaft. One of the largest breakers in the anthracite region will be a feature of the development of this new coal tract.

PAROLED

The Younger Brothers Will Be Released.

Favorable Action By State Pardon Board.

Minn Hist'l Society

St. Paul, July 10.—The state pardon board at noon today approved the parole of Coleman and James Younger, who have been in the Stillwater penitentiary for the past twenty-five years for complicity in the robbery and murders at the time of the raid on the Northfield bank.

The friends of the Youngers have never ceased their work on behalf of those well-known characters, and for over twenty years have used all possible means to secure their legal release from the state prison. Each succeeding governor was requested repeatedly to grant a full pardon, but the opposition to such action was strong and active, and denials always met them. It was largely to get rid of the repetition of this request that the pardon board was created ten years ago, but it proved to be simply a shifting of the burden, for the petitions for pardon did not cease. Four years ago the friends of the imprisoned men undertook a new movement, trying to secure legislation that would permit the parole of the men instead of the pardon which had previously been the only relief possible for them, the parole law not extending its provisions to life prisoners. The movement was headed by former Attorney General Wilson, who had officially prosecuted the Youngers when they were convicted and sentenced. However, the proposed measure failed to become a law in 1899, the house failing to pass it. Its friends revived it last winter and first secured its passage through the house, its enactment in law soon following that, although the question of constitutionality was raised and for a time bade fair to block the entire matter. The new law provides that the state prison board may parole life prisoners who have served thirty-five years, less good time allowance, which makes about twenty-four years' actual time served, but it is necessary to secure approval of the pardon board to such parole, and the prisoners so paroled may not leave the state. The prison board several weeks ago took the first step toward paroling the Youngers, and today's action by the pardon board is the necessary step to give them their liberty. The two men are 56 and 53 years of age, the third brother, Bob, having died six years ago in prison.

HEAD ON

Disastrous Collision Near Norton, Mo.

Eight Killed and Twenty-Five Injured.

Kansas City, July 10.—Chicago & Alton passenger train No. 7, west-bound, collided head on today with the second section of freight train No. 88, going east, near Norton, Mo., 100 miles east of Kansas City.

Eight people were killed outright and about twenty-five more or less injured. In a fire that started from the demolished engine the dining car and one chair car were partially burned. It is feared other victims are in the wreck. The dead are:

DANIEL McCANN, conductor of freight, single, Slater, Mo.

D. J. ANDERSON, engineer, freight, Slater, Mo., leaves widow and three children.

Three unknown men, supposed to be tramps on blind baggage.

Old woman, unidentified.

Young woman, dark hair.

FRANK BRIGGS, engineer passenger, body under wreck, Slater, Mo.

I. S. ROGERS, United States Express messenger, Chicago.

The injured, so far as known, are: E. C. Bray, Chicago, salesman, en route to Denver, bruised about head; Miss Clara Golden, Topeka, right hip hurt, not serious; Miss Gusta A. Nelson, Topeka, slight cuts on head; George B. Hill, Gilliam, Mo., bad cut on knee; George Adams, colored, New Frankfort, Mo., hurt on side, not serious; Joseph Whittie, Gilliam, Mo., cut on the left arm, head, leg sprained; Mrs. Zolo Harry, Hoopeston, Ill., scalded, not serions; Mrs. J. S. Adsit, Hoopston, Ill., scalded; H. Y. Jones, Kansas City, scalded about head and body; Dr. J. S. Adsit, Hoopeston, Ill., hands badly scalded, head slightly; Gus Williams, colored, New Orleans, porter; Mrs. C. W. Snyder, Jasper, N. Y., hands and face badly scalded; Mrs. Frances Walker, Flatbush, Brooklyn, face, breast and hands badly scalded, inhaled steam; Mrs. Lottie Still, Hornellsville, face and arms scalded; G. R. Dixon, Fairbury, face bruised, both legs scalded; Professor S. A. Harry, superintendent schools, Hoopeston, Ill., hands badly scalded, face slightly, artery in army broken; Mrs. A. D. Harry, scalded about head, arms and chest; Miss Julia M. Hayslip, Chenoa, Ill.,face and arms scalded; M. L. Hayslip, Chenoa, hand and face scalded; O. S. Sanborn, Chenoa, Ill., hands badly scalded, face slightly; Anna Morrison, Valparaiso, Ind.; Ora E. Tallman, Valparaiso, Ind.; Lulu Rider, Kenland, Ind.; Mrs. J. A. Miller, Bloomington, Ill.; Leon G. Miller, Bloomington, Ill.; Levy Arch, Crumwell, Ind., serious; Dora Wickwire, Goodland, Ind.; T. J. Elliott, Farmer, Mo.; Mary Bird, Vandalia, Mo.; Sadie E. Taylor, Wilmington, Ill.; Mrs. S. L. Ray, Wilmington, Ill.; L. S. Colburn, Pawpaw, Mich.; Dan Donnelly, fireman freight train; C. E. Null, Mexico, Mo., United States express helper; Emma Dixon, Wilmington, Ill., scalded.

Relief trains were started from Slater at 1 a. m. and from Kansas City at 12:30 p. m., each carrying a corps of physicians.

The trains collided while going at a rapid rate. Both engines were demolished and the forward cars telescoped. Both engineers, the freight conductor and Baggageman Racer were killed outright, as were three passengers. Most of the damage appears to have been done in the combination smoker, following the baggage car, these cars being pushed into the space of one car by the terrific impact of the collision.

Among the passengers was B. L. McLain, general agent of the passenger department in Kansas City of the Chicago & Alton road. Mr. McLain escaped unhurt and immediately after the crash set about organizing systematic relief. In a message to the local office, McLain recited simply the fact of the wreck, adding that the train took fire soon after the collision and that at the time his message was sent the cars were burning. Nothing has been received from him since, and at the office of the superintendent, it is stated that owing to confusion at the wreck it has been impossible to obtain details. The dead will be brought to Kansas City about 3 p. m. The injured will be taken temporarily to Marshall, the next station west.

TANK SHIPS

Ordered By the Independent Oil Producers of Texas.

Philadelphia, July 10.—The independent oil producers in Texas, headed by James M. Guffy, have contracted with the Neafie & Levy Ship and Engine Building company, of this city, for the construction of two steel bulk oil steamships to carry their product from Sabine Pass to any part of the world. The vessels are to be of 800,000 gallons carrying capacity each. It is likely that the new vessels will be put in the coasting trade as soon as completed, and other vessels of larger carrying capacity secured to supply the demands of the European markets.

The steamship M. S. Dollar, which is approaching completion at Camden, N. J., was recently sold to the same syndicate.

HOT IN CHICAGO.

Little Humidity and No Prostration Reported.

Chicago, July 10.—This was the hottest day of the summer in Chicago, the mercury at 12:30 p. m. being at 99. There was little humidity, however, and no prostrations were reported.

BANKS IN TROUBLE.

Russian Institutions In Last Extremities.

London, July 10.—Mail advices received from Moscow report that two well known banks are in the last extremities, their paper being quoted at a third of is nominal value. It is added that the failure of these banks will certainly result in the ruin of many commercial houses. There is a general belief that a number of shaky concerns are sure to collapse. A recent ukase from the ministry of finance, instructing public companies to lodge their surplus cash with only first class banks is considered wise and necessary.

HIS CALL WAS CLOSE

Two Jurors Saved Jim Hill From a Heavy Verdict.

Ten Were In Favor of Finding For H. W. Pearson.

His Geological Theories Evidently Carried With the Jury.

Ten for H. W. Pearson and his floodwood coal theory and two for Jim Hill and orthodox geology.

That was the way the jury stood in the case of H. W. Pearson, of this city, against the Great Northern railway, when a disagreement resulted yesterday afternoon and the court dismissed the jury. It was very close to a victory for Mr. Pearson, but the two refractory jurors prevented its being a complete one. The result means that it will be necessary to try the whole case over again, involving the exertion and expense of a three-weeks' trial.

Many Duluth people, aside from those financially interested with Mr. Pearson, who had heard his explanation, have become converts to his geological theories, and for this and other reasons there was great interest in the case in this city. Its proceedings were followed day by day, and there was much speculation as to the result. It is generally accepted as quite an achievement for Mr. Pearson to go into the enemy's country and come so close to a victory, especially in a case involving a theory so radically opposed to accepted ideas as that of Mr. Pearson. The sneers of the eminent scientists who testified for the Great Northern, and the abruptness of the departure from generally credited theories apparently did not weigh so much with the jurors as the sincerity of Mr. Pearson and the plausibility and reasonableness of his theory.

The report of the case, and of the disagreement of the jury, without a statement of how the jury stood, will be found on another page. Those who are interested with Mr. Pearson, who has not yet returned from St. Paul, say that the case will certainly be tried over again.

THE POLICE COURT.

Several Offenders Get Doses of Justice.

In Judge Gearhart's court, this morning, Louis Oreckorsky was found guilty of damaging Jacob A. Zinsky's countenance to the extent of $5, the incident happening in the store of Albert Polinsky on the Bowery, on the evening of July 3. The defendant was given until tomorrow morning to pay up.

Wallie Mack and Mat Newman plead guilty to drunkenness before Judge Edson, this morning, and were committed to the county jail for ten days. Leonard Doane's euphonious name did not save him from a similar fate. John Kelly, who also pleaded guilty to intoxication, had his sentence suspended. William Locking was arrested for begging and was fined $1 and costs.

George Probeck appeared in municipal court this afternoon on learning there was a warrant out for him, and pleaded not guilty to the charge of beating his wife, Lena Probeck. His examination was set for next Tuesday, and the defendant was released on his own recognizance.

Thomas Marks was this afternoon fined $2.12 for using words not found in the dictionary, when he wished to express his opinion of Detective Bates. Marks is one of the linemen concerned in the strike and claimed persecution on the part of the complaining witness. In view of the probable provocation, the sentence was made light, the statutory costs being remitted.

This afternoon the case of the state against Louis McIlroy, for violation of the new labor law which makes it an offense for an employe to defraud his employer by refusing to do work after having his transportation charges paid out to a job, is being tried in municipal court. The complaining witness is George Bartlett, of Winton, who claims to have hired McIlroy to cook in a camp, paid his fare from Duluth to Winton, kept him at a hotel for a time, an dthe latter left without working or reimbursing the witness for the money he had spent. The outcome of the case will be watched with interest as there are other employers said to be ready to commence similar actions. The law is for the protection of the employers of labor against the practice of men jumping their jobs after having their railroad fare paid. Porter J. Neff is defending McIlroy.

WILL FILL PLACES.

Zenith Company to Send For Men.

An outrage was perpetrated by some miscreant on the Zenith Telephone company at a late hour last night, a brick being hurled through the window of the operating room and narrowly missing one of the young lady operators. There is no clue to the person that did the act, but if he is detected the company will use every attempt to have him punished.

Manager Kritzer is very much provoked at this and other overt acts against the Zenith company. He says the fact that the strikers will work for one telephone company on a 9-hour workday and hold out for an 8-hour workday from another company, indicates that spite work is at the bottom of the trouble. Therefore the Zenith company will not hesitate longer in sending out of the city for linemen to fill the places of the strikers.

PARDONED.

Claude Harrison Given His Freedom By Pardon Board.

A telephone message today from Attorney General Douglas at St. Paul conveyed the intelligence that a pardon had been granted to Claude Harrison, who was sent to the reformatory several months ago after conviction in district court of St. Louis county. The message came to Harrison's sister. C. O. Baldwin, Harrison's attorney, returned yesterday from St. Paul, where he went to argue the case. He was supported by a petition from this city.

If you smoke a "Tom Reed" you smoke the best cigar on the market.

Mr. Smith of Jones' flats drinks Weiss beer.

The ladies of Pilgrim Congregational church and friends will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Paddock, 18 West Third street, Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Milne will give an informal talk on the Alhambra. A fine musical program is promised.

H. A. Mayhew, of Grand Marais, is in the city on a business visit. Mr. Mayhew has been a resident of this section since 1857. While walking up Superior street with a Herald reporter he pointed out a place where he pitched his tent some years ago. His old camping ground was where the Palladio building now stands.

A telegram was received from the son of A. Hemminger saying that he would be in Duluth tomorrow morning to view the body that was found by the crew of the Spokane Monday noon. The captain of the Spokane says that he is sure that the body found is that of A. Hemminger, the captain of the Fern, and wired his son to that effect.

Edward A. Michaud, the 2-months'-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Michaud, of 28 West Second street, died on July 9 of convulsions. Interment was made at Calvary cemetery.

The following deaths were reported at the health office yesterday afternoon: Henry Penny, the 17-year-old son of Henry Penny, of 2018 West Eighth street, of diphtheria. Interment will be made at Park Hill cemetery. August L. Johnson, 26 years of age, died at his late residence, 4024 Oneota street, of consumption. Interment at the Lutheran cemetery. Joseph Williams, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Williams, of 125 First avenue west, died yesterday of gastritis. Interment will be made at Forest Hill cemetery.

An employe of the steamer Argo brought to the city a speckled trout weighing three pounds and two ounces. The fish was taken from a stream on the north shore of Isle Royal.

The voluntary petition of Michael C. Sausser, that he be declared a bankrupt, was received at the office of the clerk of the United States district court today. Sausser is a general merchant at Princeton, Mille Lacs county, Minn. His liabilities are placed at $6,953.28, with assets of $10,106.26, of which about $3000 is outstanding accounts. O. C. Merriman of Minneapolis was named as referee in the case.

Miss Jessie Campbell entertained a few of her friends yesterday afternoon with a very enjoyable launch ride up the St. Louis river. The following young ladies were present: Misses Jessie Campbell, Cleo Phelan, Belle Farrell, Louise Chapelle, Margaret Ryan, Katherine Hoopes, Edith Searle, June Carr, Bess Hoopes, Florence Brown and Jessie Ames.

The Delta Mining company filed its articles of incorporation with the register of deeds yesterday afternoon. The incorporators are Joseph N. Miller, William W. Brooke and Carl H. Stein, all of Duluth. The capital stock is $100,000, the par value of the shares being $1 each.

A marriage license has been issued to Henry Williams and Bessie Trevillyan.

County Commissioner Patterson was at the court house this morning making arrangements to have the roof of the court house over the county treasurer's office repaired. This is because the recent rains have been flooding the office of the treasurer regularly through large leaks in the roof.

The Northern Pacific Railway company began this morning to excavate on Garfield avenue for the concrete work to be used in connection with that part of the viaduct over the railroad tracks to be constructed by the railway company. The city has made considerable progress with its preliminary work on Garfield avenue above Michigan street.

The baseball game between the Duluth Grays and the Board of Trade team will come off tomorrow afternoon at the driving park and a very good exhibition of fast ball is expected.

KILBOURNE IS NAMED

As the Democratic Candidate For Governor of Ohio.

Nomination Made By Acclamation With Great Demonstration.

Anthony Howells Was Selected For Lieutenant Governor.

Columbus, Ohio, July 10.—At the Democratic state convention this afternoon, after the adoption of rules and order of business, the report of the committee on credentials was submitted by Chairman Saltzgaber, seating the Dowling delegates from Montgomery, the McCloud delegates from Union, the Buckley delegates from Portage, and Mason delegates from Butler county. E. H. Moore presented a minority report, signed by seven members of the committee to seat the anti-Dowling delegates from Montgomery. Animated discussion followed over the contest, which involved the local power of J. H. Dowling, and which has been brought into the state conventions for several years.

Thomas Galvin moved, as a substitute for both reports, that both delegates be seated with half a vote each, which motion was lost. The minority report was then adopted as a substitute for the majority report.

Ex-Congressman J. F. Follette reported in favor of making permanent the temporary organization. This was adopted. Chairman Salen acknowledged the honor with a bow.

Hon. M. A. Dougherty then presented the platform, which was adopted. The reading of the Johnson planks on taxation were loudly applauded.

W. L. Finley offered a substitute for the preamble, reaffirming the Kansas City platform an dexpressing gcontinued confidence in W. J. Bryan. Finey's motion was overwhelmingly dcicated. When the resolutions were adopted, there were again three cheers for Tom Johnson.

The order of nominations was then reached.

When Clark county was reached, J. M. F. Hogan, of Springfield, presented the name of John L. Zimmerman.

M. A. Dougherty, of Lancaster, presented the name of Col. James Kilbourne, of Columbus.

John L. Zimmerman then withdrew his name and moved the nomination of Kilbourne by acclamation. This carried with repeated cheers and a demonstration lasting several minutes.

Col. Kilbourne accepted in an address on pending issues.

For lieutenant-governor, the names of John F. Cassady, mayor of Bellefontaine, and Anthony Howells, of Massillon, were presented. Just before the ballot was completed Cassaday's name was withdrawn and Howells was named by acclamation.

BRITISH RETREATED.

Found Boers Were Surrounding Their Camp.

London, July 10.—A Yeomanry trooper in a letter describing the Vlakfontein affair May 28 (when the garrison of Vlakfontein in the Johannesburg-Durban railway had 124 men put out of action by the Boers under Gen. Delarey) adds the startling intelligence that the British, the night after the fight, discovered that the Boers were surrounding their camp and were obliged to retreat leaving their tents standing and their wounded behind them.

TO BECOME A MILLER.

L. W. Brundage Has Quit the Railroad Business.

Minneapolis, July 10.—The announcement of the resignation of L. W. Brundage as assistant passenger and ticket agent of the Northern Pacific railway in Minneapolis will be received with surprise by his numerous friends in and out of railway circles. His resignation became effective yesterday and he leaves today to take a position with the Dwight Milling company of Moorhead, Minn.

Mr. Brundage occupied the position of assistant city ticket agent of the Northern Pacific road in this city for the past four years. Previous to that time he was traveling passenger agent for about four years for the St. Paul & Duluth. He has been in the railroad business for many years, having accepted a clerical position upon leaving school.

PARKS AT CAPITAL

The Plan of Maj. L'Enfant Has Been Largely Ignored.

Now Decided to Return to Its Fundamental Principles.

Committee of Experts Now at Work on Its Report.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, July 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—A story is printed here to the effect that at the annual convention of the American Institute of Architects last year attention was directed to the fact that the scheme of Maj. L'Enfant, the French engineer who prepared the topographical plan of the city of Washington, under the direction of President Washington and Thomas Jefferson, had been ignored in the treatment of parks and the artistic grouping of public buildings. Maj. L'Enfant is understood to have taken as the basis of his design for the American capital the topography of Versailles, the seat of the government of France. The founders of Washington contemplated a capital of ample proportions, and they provided for the future wants of a swarming population as well as for the embellishment of the fine natural features of the city by the aid of art.

The Institute of Architects, impressed by the grandeur of Maj. L'Enfant's plan and the artistic effects that might be obtained by returning to its fundamental principles, decided that the best results could be accomplished by a commission appointed by congress. The institute was fortunate in securing the prompt co-operation of the senate committee on the District of Columbia. The senate passed a resolution empowering the committee to employ experts to report on a plan for the future development of the parks in Washington. Among the most important elements in the development of parks are the ornamental approaches and the grouping of buildings and statuary. On the recommendation of the institute the senate committee appointed a commission of architects, composed of D. H. Burnham, of Chicago; F. L. Olmstead, Jr., of Brookline, Mass.; and Charles F. McKim, of New York, to report on the subject. The Quarterly Bulletin of the American Institute of Architects states that this committee is now at work on its report, and expresses confidence that when it is presented "it will so command itself to congress that it will be adopted as the system on which the future development of the city will be executed."

In the preface to the "Senate Document on the Improvement of Washington City" it is stated that the original plan of the "Federal City," as it was first called, as laid down by L'Enfant and approved by President Washington, was "so comprehensive, so adequate and so fine that could it be realized completely today little would be left to be done besides adding adornments and developing the outlying parks in conformity with those included in the original boundaries of the city." Unfortunately, it is said, the spaces allotted to the public have been encroached upon as the growth of the capital seemed to demand the sacrifice of grounds too expensive to be improved by past generations. Hence the problem today is "not alone one of expansion, but also of recovery." The Quarterly Bulletin regards the selection of sculpture and painting, and the design of landscape and its combination with buildings, which may be erected or acquired by the government of the United States, as the most important element of this country. The commission which is to give congress the benefit of its advice and experience in this matter is composed, according to this authority, of men of "education and refinement, in love with art and nature."

Very recently Frederic Harrison, one of the leading English men of letters, visited Washington, and spoke in high terms of the beauties of the capital and of its possibilities in the future. Europeans who come to the United States and visit Washington compare it most favorably with the capitals of the old world.

The Baltimore Sun prints an editorial upon what it terms "A Solution of the Provincial Question." It says:

"Recently Professor David Starr Jordon of Stanford university suggested, in view of the conditions in Hawaii, that the island be made a political division of California. The white population of Hawaii is divided into factions which cordially detest each other on account of the distribution of the offices in accordance with what the Honolulu Republican terms a "family compact." What with their fighting and squabbling over the patronage, conditions in the island are not of an ideal character. When annexation was first proposed it was assumed that those who advocated closer relations with the United States were animated solely by patriotic motives. If the Hawaiian newspapers are correctly informed, their real purpose, it now appears, was to secure a perpetuated monopoly of the official loaves and fishes. It is not easy to understand how the situation would be improved by making Hawaii a part of the state of California. It is 2000 miles from San Francisco to Honolulu, and although the Californians have long been noted as expansionists, it is doubtful whether their desire for territorial acquisitions would induce them to extend their boundaries far enough into the Pacific ocean to take in the volcanoes, lepers, Japanese coolies and untutored natives of our Hawaiian possessions. The men of California have never shrunk from deeds of daring, and their enterprise knows no limits. But even they flinch at the idea of making Hawaii a part of their state. There is far more desirable territory near the Golden Gate than the volcanic islands of the Pacific.

A New England contemporary suggests that if it is practicable to annex Hawaii to California, it might be well to make Guam a county of Rhode Island. Guam has its troubles as well as Hawaii. A year or two ago it was put through a severe reformatory process by the naval governor of the island, who found that the matrimonial customs of the natives were not in keeping with the more rigid system in vogue in the United States, outside of Illinois and the Dakotas."

It is believed here that while a plan for arbitration of boundary and other questions of like importance may not be accepted by the Pan-American congress when it meets in October, the authorities are hopeful that a resolution will be adopted providing for the adjudication of all personal and property claims.

In the formation of this court it is proposed to observe the precedent established at The Hague. Each nation will be given the right to nominate a certain number of delegates, who should be jurists of high standing. From the list of all delegates the two nations having claims which they desire disposed of will select a court of three or five members. This court will receive the arguments of the two countries and give each an opportunity to make answer to the contention of the other. Its decision will be binding. In order to remove any other objection that might exist to the organization of such a court, it will be expressly announced at the time the plan is proposed that its acceptance will not compel nations to refer all claims to arbitration.

Officials here believe the organization of such a court would be of great Pan-American advantage. The United States does not care to force in the matter countries to pay claims, as such action is apt to cause enmity and in the end be embarrassing to the North American republic; yet it is often necessary for it to take strong measures to obtain reparation for outrages suffered by American citizens because of their nationality.

One hundred and nineteen vacancies exist in the grade of ensign in the American navy. This serious shortage in the number of watch officers available for duty, shown by the midsummer naval register, which will be published shortly, will cause Secretary Long and the chief of the bureau of navigation to make earnest recommendation to congress that the number of naval cadets at Annapolis be largely increased. There are 126 ensigns in service, and most of them are at sea.

Great Northern Earnings Show a Decrease.

St. Paul, July 10.—Great Northern gross earnings for the fiscal year just ended, according to an official statement obtained yesterday, were $29,055,620, as compared with $29,490,298 for 1900, a decrease of $434,678.

The earnings of the various roads comprising the Great Northern system for eleven months are as follows: St. Paul Minneapolis & Manitoba, $21,089,419; in 1900, $21,515,226; Eastern Minnesota, $3,288,987; in 1900, $3,363,474; Montana Central, $1,982,193; in 1900, $1,897,716; total, $26,370,599; in 1900, $27,076,416. The earnings for May were $2,685,021, an increase of $271,139.

Both the old St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba and the Montana Central showed a good increase in May according to the official figures, while the Eastern Minnesota fell behind upwards of $55,000. The same condition is understood to have been met in June. The system as a whole, however, is conceded to have done remarkably well in view that the grain tonnage represents between 50 and 60 per cent of the earnings.

Unless the forthcoming net earnings statement affords striking lessons in operating economy the ambition of the Great Northern management to keep pace with the Northern Pacific will receive a serious blow. The gross earnings of the latter up to the third week in June as given in last Monday's Times were $38,022,516, and for 1900, $30,021,317, an increase of over $3,000,000. By his last issue of $25,000,000 stock Mr. Hill has now to pay a 7 per cent dividend on $125,000,000, which amounts to about $8,750,000.

ORE RATES.

Question of Jurisdiction Argued Before the Commission.

St. Paul, July 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The question of the jurisdiction of the railroad and warehouse commission over iron ore rates was argued before the commission today in two addresses by Frank B. Kellogg for the Iron Range road and G. Wellwood Murray for the Missabe company. Testimony offered by the company to show that the iron ore shipped was wholly interstate traffic was practically completed late yesterday, excepting for a few questions put in cross-examination by Col. Clapp for the state today.

Mr. Murray commenced the arguments and took up the broader questions of law, citing innumerable cases from the United States reports bearing on similar contingencies. Later in the day Mr. Kellogg applied these cases to the ones directly before the commission, and showed where the traffic of the iron ore roads was wholly interstate business, solely under the control of the federal government.

Mr. Murray declared that interstate traffic, while not dependent upon bills of lading or way bills or other documents for its identity, that its identity may be conclusively established nevertheless by the use of such documents.

WON EVERY MATCH.

Victorious Trap Shooters Return From England.

New York, July 10.—Ten of the American trap shooters, who went abroad several weeks ago, and won every match in which they took part, while in England and Scotland, returned to this city today.

Every one of the shooters was the recipient of hearty congratulations on the remarkable success of the trip and a match was at once arranged by the new Utrecht Gun club, to be shot under the same conditions as the match against the Englishmen. At least four of the trans-Atlantic team will not be able to take part in this match as Marshall, Parmalee, Tripp and Rudd, will leave for their homes in the West tonight. The remaining six, however, will shoot a team of the New Utrechts under the conditions named next Monday afternoon.

TEARING THEM UP

Street Railway Tracks on Superior Street Are Coming Up.

Passengers Are Being Carried on the Temporary Tracks.

The Double Truck Cars Run Down Lake Avenue Now.

This morning the street railway company began to tear up its tracks on Superior street from Third avenue east toward Lake avenue. The company is taking up but one track at a time, and the track on the upper side of the street will be left for traffic until that on the lower side has been taken up to Lake avenue. There is a suspicion among the city authorities that the company could have commenced tearing up its tracks last Saturday, and some have no hesitation in saying that if the fireworks had been postponed a few days or evenings longer, the street railway company would probably have postponed its operations. The company did a tremendous business last evening, in fact, it is said that the business from 6 o'clock in the evening until nearly 12 o'clock last night was heavier than during any of the palmiest circus days seen in Duluth.

Contrary to the expectations, the people traveling on the cars on Superior street will not have to walk over the three blocks through which the pavement and street car tracks have been torn up, for the company is maintaining its service regularly over a temporary track laid on top of the ground, next to the curb on the lower side of the street. The motion of the cars might, in some instances, cause the uninitiated to become seasick, but the cars are run slowly and there is said to be very little danger of spreading rails.

No attempt is being made to run the heavy double truck interstate cars over the temporary track to the Third avenue east switch. The cars are run down Lake avenue instead, to the "Y" at the end of that line. The regular Lake avenue car service has been discontinued as the interstate cars will give a ten-minute service on that line. The company is removing the old rails to the yards at Twenty-sixth avenue west. As soon as the track on the upper side of Superior is taken up work of laying the new rails will start at Third avenue east.

BY LAWS AMENDED.

Oliver Mining Company Makes Some Changes.

The by-laws of the Oliver Iron Mining company were amended at a recent meeting, and the amendment, made necessary by the big steel merger, was filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds. It is also provided that the elections shall be made by the directors, and that all except the secretary, the treasurer and the assistants to each must be directors.

SUDDEN END.

William H. Carey Dies After a Few Hours' Illness.

William H. Carey, the youngest son of Judge John R. Carey, and a member of the real estate firm of J. R. Carey & Co., died somewhat suddenly at 4:30 o'clock this morning of an intestinal inflammation, after an illness of less than seventeen hours. He had suffered somewhat from the complaint before, and had been worse recently. Yesterday noon he was taken severely ill, and though Dr. Stewart and Dr. Graham attended him most of last night he died at the above hour.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, from the Masonic Temple, and it will be under the direction of the Masonic orders, of which the deceased was a member.

Mr. Carey was a well known and popular young man, and had been a life-long resident of Duluth. He was born here May 18, 1869, and was, therefore, 31 years of age. He studied law and was admitted to the bar, but recently he has been associated with his father in the real estate business. He was a member of the Masonic order, and was a Knight Templar, having attained the thirty-second degree. He was also a member of the Spanish-American war veterans. He had been a member of the state militia for about twelve years. He joined Company K, of the Third regiment, the crack militia company of the state in the latter '80s, and when the organization was transferred to the Third regiment as Company A he continued with it. At the outbreak of the war the Third regiment was taken into the volunteer army as the Fourteenth Minnesota, and Mr. Carey went to Chickamauga as first lieutenant of Company A. Soon after the arrival of the Minnesota troops there Lieut. Carey was appointed brigade quartermaster in the medical department, which position he filled with great credit until the regiment was mustered out. He returned to Duluth somewhat later than the rest of the regiment, and later resigned from the militia.

IS DUE TO DAMPNESS

Considerable Diphtheria Appearing In City at Present Time.

Health Officer Attributes It to the Stormy Weather.

Damp Cellars and Excavations Breed the Disease.

There is another serious condition of affairs existing in the city at the present time that is due, it is believed, to the very damp weather experienced during the last four weeks, and outside the damage to sewers and streets. This condition is the prevalence of diphtheria among the children in the city, the rate of increase, considering the time of year, being somewhat alarming.

During the month of June there were four cases of diphtheria reported at the health office and quarantined. Out of these four cases there was one death in June. Since the first of July there have been seven new cases reported to the health office, and there have already been three deaths from the disease, two deaths occurring in the same family. Considering the spread of other infectious diseases the rate of increase of seven new cases in nearly the same number of days would not be regarded as anything out of the ordinary run of things, but by the medical fraternity diphtheria is regarded as a disease more peculiar to the winter and spring months of the year rather than to the summer season when the weather is, as a rule, very much dryer.

The city health commissioner, Dr. Robinson, said this morning that the prevalence of diphtheria at the present time is probably due to the stormy weather of the past four or six weeks. He says that the ground is thoroughly saturated with water, and a condition of dampness prevails all over the city. There are hundreds of cellars that were flooded during the recent hard storms which either have a little water left in them or are damp and moldy. Dr. Robinson believes that the cellars, together with the excavations about the city, in which there is water standing at the present time, are to a great extent responsible for the disease. He says that there are no schools at the present time to increase the danger of infection, and some of the diphtheria cases reported are isolated from each other. There is only one instance where there were two in the same house, and both of these were fatal. On case was brought to the city. The health officer says that there are doubtless scores of cases of tonsilitis at the present time that have not been reported at the health office, and which are directly traceable to the damp weather.

During the month of June there were six cases of scarlet fever and no deaths, but during the current month there has been only one new case in the city and one death. Scarlet fever is a more infectious disease than diphtheria, and the lessening of the disease during the current month is said to be due to the fact that there is no school and the children are not so liable to be brought in contact with it.

Some of the physicians have been predicting a serious outbreak of typhoid fever since the heavy rains, but there are very few new cases known. Duluth's water supply comes from a point too far out in the lake to be affected by the surface water caused by the heavy rains, and typhoid fever is said to be the most liable to break out in those localities where shallow wells are in use.

GROWING.

Twenty More Teachers Added to Summer School Roll.

Twenty more teachers are in to attend the summer school which is being held at the High school and an increased enthusiasm is noted in the work of those who are studying in the classes. A. T. Park, the county superintendent, has classes in which he outlines the courses of study which have been adopted for use in all of the smaller rural schools and will place all of the smaller schools on a uniform basis, grading each school. The Illinois state system is being used until the county superintendent prepares a new one for this county. All teachers will be compelled to acquaint themselves with this system and the work that they will be required to do, and any failure on the part of a teacher to understand the duties and responsibilities incumbent upon her will be sufficient grounds for a suspension of her certificate.

Thursday will be the last day of registration and it will be necessary for any teacher desiring to enter the work after that time to secure special permission from the conductor, Professor Denfeld.

The first period beginning at 8:30 and lasting until 9, is taken up with music and opening exercises. Quotations from leading men along the line of literature history and science, with discussions of inentions and ideas take up this time. Prof. Denfeld is one of the best conductors of opening exercises in the state and a great deal of pleasure is derived from his work in that line.

The attending teachers were enabled to see the Fourth of July pyrotechnical display last night and are delighted that the rainy weather kept it over.

DETERMINED.

Health Officer Will See the Careless Scavenger Punished.

"Somebody is going to be punished for that outrage on Superior street in the East End," declared Health Commissioner Robinson, this morning.

"There were two licensed scavengers working over that route on Monday night and the blame must be laid to either one or the other of those two men. Of course it is difficult to get the evidence necessary to convict either, but I have a good notion to have both of them arrested and a charge preferred against them. The matter is being thoroughly investigated and if we can locate the blame on the right man he will be punished. It is evident that the scavenger responsible for the nuisance was careless, but then, too, it should be remembered that the end boards of the scavenger wagons are loose and Superior street is very, very rough."

Dr. Robinson has issued an order that every night scavenger shall hereafter have painted on the side of his wagon his name and the number of his license; furthermore, he shall carry attached to his vehicle a lamp with the number of his license painted in large black figures on the glass. There is a city ordinance requiring this light, but the health department has not required a strict compliance with the law. Dr. Robinson has given the scavengers just twenty-four hours to get the lights and if any run their wagons without light from now on, they will be arrested. This enforcement of the light ordinance, it is believed, will prevent the repetition of any more incidents similar to that which occurred at the East End, in that it will render the scavenger more liable to detection if he is careless in his work.

AT WEST DULUTH

Nearly all the people of West Duluth, who could secure tansportation, witnessed the exhibition of fireworks last night. This end of the city was deserted, and the crowds carried on the street cars were far in excess of those moved on any previous occasion. The people began to leave for the East End at an early hour, and at twilight it was almost an impossibility to get aboard a car unless one was at the starting point. It is known that several of the cars from this end of the city carried more than 100 passengers, but the people were not at all strenuous in demanding first class accommodations, and were content if only they could reach their destination in time. All felt well repaid for their trouble after witnessing the magnificent artificial illumination of the heavens, and viewing the artistic set pieces. After the exhibition came the problem of reaching home, and this was accomplished by the successful ones with even more difficulty than was experienced in eaching the East End. Nearly all were at home, however, by 1 o'clock a. m., although some remained in Duluth from choice, while others did so because there was no other alternative.

COWS MAKE TROUBLE.

Unfettered bovines foment more trouble in West Duluth than all other causes combined. The cows in their innocent wanderings destroy lawns and gardens and violent sentences are framed when the interested parties compare notes and facts in reference to the circumstance. This morning Judge Stone's court was crowded with people, either called as witnesses or jurors in the latest case. Mr. and Mrs. Woolan, and Mr. and Mrs. Benson were arrested on complaint of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Petruschke, charged with using abusive language. The trouble was caused by a trespassing cow. After the first charge is tried a civil action will come up. Mr. Petruschke alleges that in the alleged rhetorical assault she was libeled by Mr. Woolan.

GETS WORST OF IT.

The city is badly handicapped in the cases which come up for trial in justice court at West Duluth. The defense is generally represented by an attorney, while the prosecution must depend on the authorities and police alone to secure a conviction. It has been suggested that Lieut. Briggs might act as prosecuting attorney, but as yet the omcer has modestly declined.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Alfred Osterberg, D. M. D., late of Stockholm, Minn., has located at Twentieth avenue west.

The street railway company has a large force of men at work repairing the track on Oneota street, which was damaged by the late heavy rains.

Officer Stahl is busy looking up unlicensed dogs, and he is discovering all sorts and conditions on which no license has ever been paid. This ferret work on the part of Officer Stahl is adding considerable revenue to the city's account.

The baseball nine from Proctorknott was defeated recently by the White Eagles. The score was 10 to 9 in favor of the local team.

A horse owned by Jens Dangaard, and attached to a bugy, was hitched on Central avenue yesterday, and not liking the appearance of a lineman who was at work on one of the poles, it ran away. After dashing around through the alleys for a short time the animal became quiet again. No great damage was done, but some of the women in the vicinity were very much alarmed.

Charles Greeves is home after a trip through Oregon, where he has been looking up land. He reports business lively in the coast state.

Dr. C. R. Keyes writes to William Spencer from Chautauqua, N. Y., that he and Mrs. Keyes will probably reach home Sunday. They left Buffalo July 8 by boat. The letter was dated July 7, at which time it was cold and wet in Western New York.

The funeral of William Simpson, who died Tuesday morning, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Presbyterian church, instead of his late home, as was at first announced.

New Ferry Arrives.

The sixty-foot steam yacht belonging to Laframboise & Dixon, of Park point, arrived in port this morning from Detroit, where the yacht was purchased. It will soon be put in ferry service between Fifth avenue west dock and the various docks along Park point. The boat was designed for the use of a family and is a model of strength and beauty and is said to develop considerable speed. Its capacity will be about fifty people.

HORSE RACE FOR LOVE.

How a Kentucky Man Wins a Bride.

Louisville, Ky., July 10.—"Ben" Altmont's Kentucky thoroughbred beat James Graves' blooded mare in a race across country, and so won a bride for Altmont. The men had for two years been rivals for the affections of Miss Mayme Tipton, of Mount Sterling. They met with such equal favor that Miss Tipton yesterday gave each a note to the county clerk asking that license be issued for his marriage to her. The one that reached the clerk's office first and returned with the license was to be the happy man.

The clerk lives ten miles from Mount Sterling, and each man started for the clerk's home, driving at the best pace his horse could set. Altmont won the race by 100 yards, and when Graves reached the clerk's office he found that the license to marry the girl he loved had been made out with the name of his rival upon it. Altmont drove at a run back to Mount Sterling, and married Miss Tipton in the Episcopal church.

Offer One Thousand Two Hundred Fine Cotton Shirt Waists, Newly Made, at Less Than Half

Because of the maker's desire to sell all of their remaining summer stock and be in full readiness for fall business (which for manufactures is already in full force), we were able to make a large purchase of these beautiful waists, at less than half of their real worth, and will put them on sale tomorrow upon the same basis. One thousand two hundred waists in all, or 100 dozen, made of fine imported lawns and dimities, in all of the season's best colors, including pink, blue, rose, navy, hello, gray and black and white, with rich designs, all made with the much wanted sailor collar of white, prettily tucked, and with bishop sleeve and stitched cuff, and sailor tie of white, edged with self material, sewed in the very best manner and perfect fitting. We believe this to be the most remarkable shirt waist offer ever made in Duluth for entirely new goods, and coming at a time when they will be most wanted. The sale commences tomorrow morning, at 9 a. m., waist department, second floor.

The Zenith City Bird store, of West Duluth, has established a branch store at No. 129 West Superior street, Duluth.

FAILED TO AGREE

Jury In Pearson vs. Great Northern Case Disagrees.

They Deliberated a Night and a Day Without Result.

Closing Argument For Plaintiff and the Judge's Charge.

The jury in the case of Herbert W. Pearson, of Duluth, against the Great Northern railroad, which has been on trial at St. Paul for three weeks, has disagreed. After deliberating all of Monday night and all day yesterday, they reported to the court that there was no likelihood of their reaching an agreement, and they were discharged.

The action, as is generally known here, was to compel the payment of $1,500,000 claimed to be due under a contract which Mr. Pearson made with James J. Hill for the railroad, under the terms of which Mr. Pearson was to share in the profits of coal lands that he was to locate. He claimed to have located lands for the company which are now being worked in Montana and Washington.

Attorney O'Brien, of St. Paul, who represented Mr. Pearson, said last evening that he will get a second trial of the case as soon as possible.

THE CLOSING SCENES.

Argument and Charge of Much Interest.

The closing argument for the plaintiff and the charge to the jury Monday afternoon in the case were interesting and there was at least one sensational incident when Attorney O'Brien representing Mr. Pearson exasperated by the interruptions of the attorney for the Great Northern turned on him fiercely and addressed him in a manner forcible enough to call for the remonstrance of the court. The Dispatch tells the story of the last day's proceedings as follows:

"By the time the court house clock had struck 5 yesterday afternoon the jury were settled in their consultation room with the celebrated case of Herbert W. Pearson against the Great Northern railway company.

"When Judge Kelly came to give his charge to the jury he readily disposed of much superincumbent matter and held the plain issue up where the jury or any other man might see it clearly. He first, as is customary, briefly reviewed the pleadings calling the attention of the jury to the claims of either party. He reiterated what he had ruled during the trial—that the alleged discoveries of coal-bearing areas in Washington were not in in the case and that the issue turned only on the coal fields alleged by the plaintiff to have been located in Cascade county, Montana.

'It was not disputed, said the court, that a contract was made to search for coal at a compensation of $200 a month and if coal lands were discovered Mr. Pearson was to be allowed further compensation. There was no dispute as to the search for the coal fields. Plaintiff claims that lands were explored and that he did locate lands in the Cottonwood district. Defendant says that what was done in Montana by Pearson was merely exploration to illustrate his theory, at no compensation whatever.

"If that was merely an experiment then that ends his case, except for the $200 a month. But if what he did in that country was a part of his contract another question demanding examination arises.

"Mr. Pearson says that in his exploration he found the ancient beach at 4000 feet level and concluded that coal if found must be lower than that. He found no indications of prior discovery. He prepared a map for Stocket and recommended that sections 1, 31, 36 be acquired as coal fields. Drill holes formerly sunk he found to be outside this area. His claims seem to be corroborated by the acts of the defendant or his agents.

"The burden of proof was on the plaintiff. If the plaintiff had been of no service to the defendant he was not entitled to more than $200 a month, although his theory might be correct.

"The principal question in the case was —did Pearson in 1896 for the first time indicate to the defendant the location of the Cottonwood mines? While he might have discovered them for the first time for the defendant, under his contract, if the Cottonwood mines were already known to the defendant, Pearson could not recover, and this was true, although the defendant might not have known the full value and extent of the mines.

"It was immaterial whether the scientific theories of Mr. Pearson were correct or not, if he did, in fact, point out coal lands or which defendant availed itself and of which defendant had no previous information. If he had indicated these lands he might recover, even if his theory is incorrect.

"The alleged contract with the defendant appeared to be big coal, big pay; little coal, little pay; no coal, no pay; and the court had therefore allowed evidence of the output of the Cottonwood mines. Defendant said that the output had been 285,000 tons; and that the tract contains 30 acres of coal lands, with 5000 tons an acre.

"C. D. O'Brien, always one of the popular orators of the St. Paul bar, drew a considerable company together in the court room to listen to his closing address, which occupied the greater part of the afternoon. His address, delivered with all his old-time vigor and eloquence, sarcasm and pathos, made an evident impression on the tired jury, who put themselves in an attitude of listening as the attorney warmed to his work.

"The company might, said Mr. O'Brien, have gone so far as to express its willingness to pay what was fair and just. But they did not do that. They denied everything. They denied the contract, and when that was no longer possible they denied further, and finally were driven to the extreme of denying that there was any coal at all.

"Those prior drillings were not known to them. They had turned these coal lands down. But now since Pearson had been there and had done his work, what followed? Mines, towns, branch lines, extensive operations, swarming miners and more than a million tons of coal.

"The story of the defendant," counsel said, "rings false. If Hill did not send Pearson out under that contract, why does he not come here and say so? Why does he leave it to his hired men? This issue is important to engage your time and mind and that of the court, and still Hill does not come. I ask, why has he not sent a letter? Why has not his deposition been taken?

"'Oh, where was Roderick then?
One blast upon his bugle horn were worth a thousand men.'

"Are not you sitting here at $2 a day worthy to hear from Mr. Hill? Is Pearson so poor, so cheap, that Hill cannot stomach him? He had him on his steamboat three days and at his house. They denied that the Montana Central and the Great Northern were one, and we proved that they were. They denied that the Cottonwood mines and the Great Northern were one, and we showed that they were. Ward told the truth. I respect him as one of the men who spoke the truth every time.

"Hill said that for fourteen years he had been looking for coal, and had expended $100,000, and had not found it.

Proceeding to tell the jury what the Great Northern had gained through the work of the plaintiff, Mr. Wellington interrupted, and Mr. O'Brien shouted at the top of his voice and in considerable excitement:

"I will not be interrupted.

Mr. Wellington retorted: "You will be interrupted when you state what is not true."

"Mr. O'Brien turned on him fiercely, and said: 'If you say that I am not stating what is not true, you lie.'

"Judge Kelly interposed sharply, and warned counsel that he could not allow such language in court.

"Mr. O'Brien, after making some scornful allusions to the high-salaried advocate on the other side, and treating the situation humorously, made his apology to the counsel and the court very quietly.

"Mr. Wellington said, 'all right,' and that he had intended to say that what Mr. O'Brien stated to the jury was not, he thought, warranted by the evidence.'

"Sounds of controversy can be heard issuing from the room where the jury in the Pearson case is confined, and it is plain that a spirited argument is going forward in the effort of the jury to reconcile its differences and arrive at a verdict as the legitimate and proper conclusion of their three weeks of work.

"The men of the jury are perhaps not as well known in a popular way as many juries which sit in the district court, but that they are intelligent men was made plain when they came in this morning to ask the court to read again a passage in his charge and that certain missing exhibits be placed before them.

"Several of the jury addressed the court on the subject of the lost exhibits and their manner and style of address indicated clearly that they were by no means lost in the maze which occasionally overtakes the juryman and prompts him to ask questions little short of the idiotic.

"The jury seems to have itself well in hand, and according to its lights to know what it is doing. They asked the court to give again that passage in his charge which related to the original discovery of the coal fields, and Judge Kelly read the following passage:

"'The principal question for you to decide upon the evidence is—did the plaintiff in 1896 for the first time indicate to the defendant company, or its agents, the existence and location of the coal mines known now as the Cottonwood mines and situated at Stockett. On this subject, I instruct that while it may be true that plaintiff himself discovered for the first time these mines in 1896 it does not therefore follow that his indicating them by this map was any new discovery to the defendant company. To discover these mines and point them out to the defendant company, or its agent, within the meaning of the contract between plaintiff and defendant required that plaintiff should locate or point out to the defendant company, or its agent, coal mines which before that time were unknown to the defendant, or its agents.

"'For, if you find that the Cottonwood mines at or near Stockett, were, prior to September, 1896, already known to the defendant company or to its agents to be coal mines, the plaintiff cannot recover; because it is plain that the plaintiff could not at that date point them out to the defendant within the meaning of plaintiff's contract with Mr. Hill. For that contract obligated plaintiff to search for and locate unknown coal fields and not to point out those already known. Nor can the plaintiff recover if these mines were known to and their location fixed by defendant prior to plaintiff's coming in 1896, even though you find defendant did not then know the extent or value of those mines and had not up to that time fully explored them.'

"The jury, after going back to their room, indulged in another symposium, and the echo of the talking came through the door in animated fashion."

THE CROP REPORTS.

Heavy Rains Do Some Damage to Wheat.

The North Dakota crop report for the week ending Monday, tells of heavy rains that have damaged crops somewhat. The report is as follows:

"The heaviest rains of the season fell the past week, and coming just after the previous heavy ones of June, have completely saturated the soil in all parts of the state, and in portions of the Red River valley, as well as some other scattered sections, have flooded the low lands to such an extent that they look like small lakes, and have damaged the crop considerably.

"Wheat is still doing well, although the stalk is getting a rank growth, and is beginning to lodge in some parts. The early sown wheat is mostly headed out, but no reports as to the size of the heads have been received.

"Flax still continues poor and has further deteriorated during the week, the wet weather being very unfavorable for it. In some sections it is being plowed under, and at the present promises a very poor crop.

"Corn is about the poorest of everything this season; it came up thin, and on account of continued rains and cool weather has made but slow growth, while the land has been so wet that it was impossible to get on it to cultivate, with the result that it is being overgrown by weeds.

"Oats are only fair; rye and barley good, as are fodder crops, as a rule, while the hay crop promises an abundant yield.

"Some slight damage has been done by hail at widely separated places. Grass hoppers continue numerous, but have done but little damage."

The Minnesota report is as follows:

"The weather was warm in southern portions on July 2, 3, 4 and 5, with the thermometer reading from 90 to 97 degrees in the southern half of the state on July 3. The latter part of the week was cool. There were frequent showers except on July 1 and 5; these were lightest in the southwest and heavy in the northern half of the state. Newfolden, Marshall county, reports 10.22 inches of rainfall (measured in a government gauge), from July 2 to 5 inclusive.

"In the Red River valley all the low lands along the water courses are overflowed, and large areas of grain are standing in water. On the higher and better drained lands the small grain crops are fine, but there is diversity of opinion as to the amount of injury to the crops that have been standing in water. Flax is very uneven, and much of the late crop has been injured by grasshoppers.

"In central and southern portions the small grains are fine, though there are reports of lodging and slight rust in very small areas. Rye harvest is well advanced, and in the southeast, barley and winter wheat are being cut. Oats are generally a fair crop. Corn grew very rapidly during the hot and moist weather, but many fields are grassy because the soil has been too wet to cultivate. The wild grass crop is large, but it cannot be secured till the water in the meadows is lower. Considerable clover has been cut during the week, but some of it is spoiled by showers. Chinch bugs are injuring wheat and corn in southern counties."

BERDIE IS SULKY

Pouts and Won't Play Unless He Has His Way.

Range Commissioners Wanted Three-Fifths of Road Money.

The Tax Levy Is Fixed at $181,700, or 4.2 Mills.

A wrangle over the distribution of road money took up most of the time of the board of county commissioners yesterday, and it showed the effect of giving the ranges two more commissioners, which effect was pointed out when the matter was first under discussion. The demands of the three range commissioners out of this year's levy amounted to three-fifths of the total, in spite of the fact that nine-tenths of the farmers of the county are in the Duluth districts. When it came to dividing next year's levy, the three range commissioners voted against the division that gave them two-fifths of the whole, though it was generally agreed that the division made by the board was a very liberal one to the range. The road levy made yesterday for next year was $35,000, and, according to the division made by the board over the negative votes of the range commissioners, the ranges will get $14,000 for their roads.

The most important business done by the board was the making of next year's levy, but the wrangle over road matters made a more interesting feature. In the morning the application of Commissioner Berdie for $1300 road money and of Commissioner McInnes for $1600 were turned down, because the rest of the commissioners wished to find out how much was available before they passed out any more money. As a result of that action Commissioner Berdie was balky all the afternoon. He refused to vote for a tax levy, because he said if there was no money raised there would be none to fight over.

In the afternoon, when it was found that there was still money in this year's levy, Commissioner McInnes' request for $1000 was taken up and passed on his motion, and Commissioner Kauppi cut his request down to $1000 and got it.

Then Commissioner Kugler suggested that Mr. Berdie's request be taken up again, but Mr. Berdie was sulky. He said they had cheated it down and he was not going to bring it up again. For a time it seemed that it was going by default, but finally Commissioner McInnes moved the adoption of the resolution.

Then the other commissioners refused to consider it unless Mr. Berdie seconded the motion. He pouted and refused. The commissioners told him he could have the money if he would second the motion, but he absolutely refused to do so, muttering that he was not afraid to go before his people, and that the commissioners would find there were some votes up there.

A motion to adjourn was made and seconded, but the board's attorney, Mr. Crosby, had a matter he wanted to talk about, and thirty minutes were spent in other matters. Then Commissioner Berdie melted and seconded the motion and he got his road money, cut to $1000.

There will be no such wrangling next year, thanks to Commissioner Patterson, who has no road district, but who has to take part in the wrangling against his will. He submitted a resolution dividing up next year's levy, so that when the time comes to spend it each commissioner will know his limits and will act accordingly. This year the trouble lies in the fact that each commissioner having a road district is jealously watching proceedings, fearful that some other commissioner will get more than his share.

The division, which went through over the votes of the range commissioners, is as follows: District No. 2, Commissioner Kugler, $6000; District No. 4, Commissioner Morcom, $3000; district No. 5, Commissioner Kauppi, $8000; district No. 6, Commissioner McInnes, $4000; district No. 7, Commissioner Berdie, $7000; Fond du Lac cut-off, $2000; Miller trunk road, $5000.

The tax levy, made yesterday afternoon, was a little more than The Herald said it would be. It was expected in the morning that the total would be about $176,000 or 4.1 mills, but it was $181,700, or about 4.2 mills.

This is figuring in the levy for poor purposes at $30,100, the limit allowed by law. The county board has nothing to do with this levy, as it is made by the poor board. The levy made by the county board was $151,600, divided as follows: County revenue fund, $44,000; poor fund overdraft, $44,000; special road fund, $35,000; bonds and interest, $28,000. The total, $151,600, is $28,600 more than last year's levy, which included the poor levy.

The bond of Register of Deeds Lofgren as registrar of titles under the Torrens law was fixed at $2000 and a surety bond was required.

LEISSNER IS HELD.

Must Answer to the Grand Jury.

The examination of George E. Leissner on the charge of embezzlement of $31 from the firm of Panton & White, was concluded in municipal court yesterday afternoon and the defendant was held to the grand jury. Leissner's bail was fixed at $250, in default of which he was committed.

Harry Young, who was caught in the room of Tony Schulte, a few nights ago, was examined yesterday and also held to the grand jury on the charge of burglary in the third degree. Young's case is a little peculiar. He was arrested last Friday in West Superior, by Detective Dill, of that city, on suspicion. At that time he had about a dozen gold watches on his person that he was trying to dispose of at the pawnshops. None of the watches were of much value. After holding him until Saturday and no complaint being made of watches missed, Young was released. The following Sunday night he was arrested in Schulte's sleeping room over Campbell & Doran's. His excuse for being in the room was that he was looking for a friend named Smith.

JULY FASHIONS FREE AT DRESS GOODS DEPT.

First of the new fall fabrics.

Fall fabric fashions were settled long ago. We have been buying for months back and this week the first arrivals have come to hand. Little early to show them, but they had better be on sale than packed away somewhere. Since putting them on the counters several dress patterns have been sold. Plain and highly finished materials will have the call this fall. Reds will be prominent, as will also blues, browns, grays, etc. Three tables full of new dress goods for fall, as follows:

Fifty-two inch Kerseys.

In tan, brown, blue, red. High grade of wool used in the manufacture of this Kersey. Appearance and quality of the modern Kersey depend on the way it is finished. Our buyer is conversant with wool goods values, and he gives the assurance that the finish of these new Kerseys equals that of any $2.50 and $3.00 grade we have ever had. It is firm, yet pliable, with a highly lustrous, satin face, and one not liable to rough up or wear threadbare. Price $2.00

Satin finished whipcords.

Made by the celebrated Broadhead Worsted Mills, from whom we buy direct, and have the exclusive sale for their products in Duluth. These fabrics are essentially reliable. Wear and durability not excelled for the price. These whipcords are highly finished, as all the better grade goods are for fall. Color or wear proving unsatisfactory will be satisfactorily rectified. These are rich, new, and exclusive with us—in blues, red (extra fashionable) and modes—price..... $1.15

Extra wide Venetians

Very wide, a yard and a half, 54 inches, in handsome shades of blue, brown, reds, tans, greens, navy and black. These fabrics are reliable and fashionable, and considering quality, style and width are values seldom found, even when the season is far advanced. The price for these Venetians per yard is only..... 59c

This is the first showing of authentic fall dress goods styles.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. (Central time) July 10.—Barometric pressures continue rather stagnant as regards movement and with no very decided areas of energy. The Dakota low pressure area is apparently dissipating but the barometer continues relatively low over Nevada and high over Oregon, Manitoba and Eastern states. The warm wave continues over Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas without abatement and it is somewhat warmer in the Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the lake region. Showers fell over Western Montana, the Western Dakota, upper lake region, Massachusetts and gulf states, being moderately heavy at Charleston, S. C. The winds in the lake region are mostly southerly and fresh, the chief exceptions being brisk winds from the southwest at Milwaukee and Chicago.

The Mule Having His Innings.

The much-abused mule is having his day, especially the Missouri quadruped with the gentle disposition and willing ability to perform a solid day's work on very abbreviated rations. United States officers who have had a strong prejudice in the past and repeatedly declared that mules were not adapted to hauling artillery have changed their minds and admit that they are valuable animals. All this is due to the experience of the British in South Africa. Thousands of mules have been shipped from Missouri and they have proved a success. A report of a British field officer in regard to the Boer campaign showed that, while the mules followed the troops easily, it was with great difficulty that the horses kept with the line, even when they had no draft. He reported that for draft purposes the mule is a superior animal to the horse and that guns can keep up with mounted troops more easily when drawn by mules than when drawn by horses. An objection to the mule is his well-known obstinacy and tendency to bolt in the wrong direction. It is also said that they do not stand up as well as horses under shell fire. Taking it all in all, they are regarded, however, as better adapted for severe field service than the horse. It is not improbable, therefore, that the mule may supersede the horse to a certain extent in the American artillery service.

The Increase of Slang.

Anyone who has followed the progress which slang has made in securing recognition in the English language, during the past few years will no doubt wonder what the end will be. It is useless to wonder. The mere fact of toleration has worked the mischief and the dictionary makers, eager to be progressive, have done the rest. The situations is most aptly put by Observer in the July issue of the Literary Era, who says: "A curious speculation might be started as to what words now in current use, but unknown to the dictionary of today, will force acceptance from the dictionary of tomorrow. The accident of the Transvaal war brought into our daily speech a number of South African words of Dutch origin, such as 'kopje' and 'veldt,' which previously had found meager tolerance only in books of travel. The latest supplement to Webster's dictionary, issued about six months ago, opened wide its doors to a large number of these. The Century, the Standard, and other dictionaries, of course, do not contain the majority of them. The popularization of golf and of bridge whist has invited lexocographical sanction to a number of verbal barbarities. Science almost daily spawns novelties of nomenclature which may or may not be fecundated through the general lust for exact expression. Slang, the garbage of speech, often possesses the fertilizing qualities of the manure heap. So it will be seen there are ennumerable avenues of all sorts through which new words may arrive to knock at the portal of the dictionary. Talking of slang, here is an American word that is something like half a century old—it occurs in Hallburton, if I am not mistaken—and is of widespread use among Uncle Sam's nieces, yet has received no recognition from any authoritative dictionary issued in America. I refer to 'conniption fit.' Bartlett's 'Dictionary of Americanisms' has a short entry under this head. So has Murray's great English dictionary, the latter classing it as 'vulgar U. S.' Now, although the term be slang and an Americanism, it has passed out of the province of the merely vulgar. Sure am I that I have heard it from lips whose dainty refinement would stir delicious tremors in the blood of the dullest pedant. Neither Bartlett, by the way, nor Prof. Murray has made any attempt to trace the word to its origin. Full well do I know that the path of the amateur teymologist, though rosy to the eye, is thorny to the feet. Nevertheless, with barefaced and barefooted effrontery, rushing in where Bartlett and Murray have feared to tread, I shall make the amateurish suggestion that conniption is a corruption of catnipian, and results from feminine observation of the way of a cat with the catnip leaf. Any thorns which good friends of keener acumen may choose to strew before me will be howlingly acquiesced in as righteous retribution for unrighteous presumption. Look you, I put my best foot foremost, and challenge the world, the age, and the Literary Era."

DULUTH AS AN IRON CENTER.

Changes in industrial methods and in commercial routes make and unmake cities. Commerce will follow the line of least resistance. The same is true of material industries. Sentiment has little to do with business. Great corporations cannot build and maintain a city against the natural laws of trade.

When Constantinople was the metropolis of the world and Venice was the great maritime city of the west, there was on the island of Gothland a commercial center second only to the mistress of the Mediterranean. But Wisby has fallen from her high estate and ruined walls alone mark the site where the caravans from India and China used to unload the merchandise of the East. The doubling of the Capo of Good Hope, by furnishing a cheaper route to the Ind, destroyed the overland trade of Moslem and Christian alike, and Paris and London and Amsterdam rose on the ruins of the cities of the Mediterranean, and of Wisby, the island city of the Baltic.

The organization of great industrial and commercial combinations is bound to revolutionize the city building of the United States. No longer will each little city in the interior have its factory turning out this or that product. The little will have to give place to the big. To those that have shall be given, and to those that have not, that which they have shall be taken away. The tendency of the new era is to make the cities larger and the hamlets smaller, unless the hamlet lies in the direct current of trade or possesses such natural advantages as to attract the vigilant eye of the management of great enterprises. When glass was first manufactured in the West, a young Belgian came to the state of Illinois looking for a location. He went to Ottawa and found there the sand required for his enterprise. But Ottawa had not coal. He went a few miles down the river to La Salle, where abundant coal was at his hand. The rival cities each desired the plant. One had the sand, the other had the coal. The promoter chose La Salle for his enterprise because it was cheaper to transport the sand to La Salle than the coal to Ottawa. That young man knew his business.

Will Duluth under the present conditions become an iron manufacturing center? At its back door it has an abundance of ore—the ore that is taken through its harbor and shipped East to be smelted and made ready for the market. If Duluth had the coal to do the smelting the problem would solve itself. The iron industry would be obliged to come here in self defense. The coal, however, must come from the East. Will it be cheaper to ship coal to Duluth where the iron is, than to ship iron ore to Pittsburg where the coal is? This is the paramount question. If this question can be answered in the affirmative, all that is necessary is to wait for the advantage to make itself felt and the smelting works will come.

It takes one ton of coal to produce one ton of pig iron. It takes one and two-thirds tons of iron ore to produce one ton of pig. It costs 40 cents to bring one ton of coal to Duluth. It costs 80 cents to take one ton of ore back. Here is the basis on which to frame the answer to the question of the iron future of Duluth. The difference in freight rates results from the balance of commercial trade between the East and the West. Like money exchange, freight depends upon the relative trade of the two points. More freight goes East from the head of the lakes, and always will, than comes from the East to the head of the lakes. The conclusion is obvious. Coal can be brought here cheaper than ore can be shipped to Pittsburg. As the matter stands now, a saving would be made by turning iron ore into pig iron and shipping the product East. How about the manufactured product? That is another story. At the present time the market for the bulk of the finished iron and steel product is East. For years Pittsburg will be nearer the market, because that market will tend more and more to consist of foreign demands. When, however, there is a deep water channel to the sea, Duluth will have an advantage over Pittsburg in handling the finished product which the city of Matt Quay can never meet.

Already Duluth is the business center of the greatest iron producing section of the world. True, it is now a sort of funnel through which this iron trade runs, but the time will come when the very forces of nature will compel the making of pig iron at this point, and when the lake regions come into their inheritance, a deep water channel, Duluth will be the Birmingham of the West.

Another favorable condition is the combining into one management of the mining, shipping and the manufacturing interests. Now there is no rivalry, and as has been said, there is no sentiment in the matter. These corporations have no pride of locality. When events demonstrate that the annual dividends can be increased by using the location of Duluth, it will be used. It is simply a matter of dollars and cents.

A computation made at the internal revenue bureau shows that $307,556,116.88 was collected under the war revenue act during the last fiscal year. The commissioner of internal revenue estimated for congress that the reductions made at the last session in war revenue will amount to $40,000 pr annum. However, the increased production of whisky, cigars tobacco and other taxable articles have been such as to lead to the belief that the gross reduction next year will not exceed $25,000,000. The war revenue act went into effect July 1, 1898. The collections have been enormous; in 1899, $273,484,573; in 1900, $295,316,107; in 1901, $307,566,116.

A sweet girl graduate in a Missouri city thus describes the manner in which a goat butted a boy out of a front yard: He hurled the previous end of his anatomy against the boy's afterward with an earnestness and velocity, which backed by the goat's avoirdupois, imparted a momentum that was not relaxed until the instigator of the vehement exasperation landed on terra firma beyond the pale of the goat's jurisdiction."

Patti, the great singer, is about 60 years old, but is said to look no more than half that age, which she attributes to following this advice, given her in her youth by Maurice Strakosch: "Keep the mind clear of unnecessary worry and the body clear of unnecessary food; live with great regularity and moderation." Patti followed this advice, all but moderation in the price of admission to hear her sing.

And now there is a report that President McKinley will appoint Pension Commissioner Evans to be comptroller of the currency. A dispatch says the "salary is larger and the term longer." The salary may be larger but the term is not longer because the pension commissioner has no fixed term—he serves until he resigns, dies or is removed.

The attendance at the Buffalo exposition has not so far been up to expectation, and the managers lay the blame chiefly upon the railroads which, they claim, will not make rates low enough to induce people to visit the exposition. Another reason is that the exposition was not nearly completed when it was opned.

Perhaps the Shamrock II and the Independence might have a race to see which would cover the course in slowest time.

St. Louis should take warning by the misfortunes of Buffalo and have her world's fair ready on time.

A Bible chair has been established at the university of Kansas. Probably the nucleus of a heresy trial.

Why make Mr. Evans comptroller of the currency? Is he not an able and honest pension commissioner?

The shirt waist man will cause his own demise if he puts on frills.

Naturally the ice man is opposed to an income tax law.

Did you see the fireworks?

TURNED DOWN

Superior Grants No Extension of Street Railway Franchise.

The street railway controversy at Superior, is about as far from settlement, as it was one year ago to all appearances. At the special meeting of the city council last night, called by Mayor Parkar for the purpose of discussing the street railway ordinance, action on the matter was indefinitely postponed.

Immediately after the meeting was called to order, an alderman moved that action be indefinitely postponed, and the motion was promptly seconded. Then followed a long drawn out flow of oratory, aldermen, as well as citizens, who were invited to speak, giving vent to their opinions. The clause of the postponed ordinance, providing for a 12-year extension of franchise, was the object of continued attack. Local politicians, representing all the parties, were there to give publicity to their thoughts on the subject, and some probably entered the forensic arena at a time when they knew that at least a portion of the audience could not escape and they were free to work their will.

At the close of the discussion, an amendment was proposed to the original motion, by which action would be delayed until the regular meeting of the council. Upon a vote being taken, it was found that only three aldermen out of the fifteen present, were in favor of that.

General opinion at the meeting seemed to lean toward the idea that Mr. Lowry would carry on the work of improvement, already commenced, without an extension of franchise being granted.

At the meeting last night, a prominent citizen, in his address, claimed that the extension of the franchise was worth $100,000 to the company.

NOT FOUND.

Scavenger Who Littered Superior Street Still at Large.

The city health and police departments have not yet been able to locate the scavenger responsible for the condition of Superior street in the East End yesterday morning. The board of health has offered a reward of $5 for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person. The city authorities believe that the person doing the scavenger work was not licensed, for diligent inquiry among the licensed scavengers of the city fails to throw any light on the matter. Some of the members of the health department are inclined to the belief that some person was doing the scavenger work, without license, on the quiet.

The citizens residing in the East End, along Superior street are still very much incensed over the nauseating condition that prevailed all day yesterday in spite of the precautions taken by the spreading of lime, and there are a number of men that seem willing to offer a personal reward for the detection of the offender.

THE LABOR CONVENTION.

The annual convention of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor convened yesterday at Labor hall in West Superior.

Every large city in the state is represented by delegates. After a short executive session yesterday, the convention adjourned until this morning, when the business of the meeting was taken up for final disposition.

The delegates and local labor leaders enjoyed a banquet at Maryland hall last night. Secretary Brockhousen, of the state association, says that the organization is in excellent condition. Seventy unions of various trades, with a membership of 5500, being affiliated. While the organization has sustained some losses during the year, this has been overcome by gains in other directions, and the general condition is very satisfactory.

A GREAT DISPLAY

The Fourth of July Fireworks Are Finally Sent Off.

Fully Twenty Thousand People Witness the Brilliant Exhibition.

Heavens Aflame With Brilliant Colors---Handsome Set Pieces.

The most magnificent exhibition of fireworks ever seen in Duluth came off last evening when the delayed Fourth of July display was put on, and the immense crowds that filled the entire district around Thirteenth avenue east and London road were fully repaid for their trip out. The spot itself is an ideal one, and in no other place in the city could there be one found that would give more general satisfaction and make a better display. The evening was perfect, and it seemed that the fireworks committee had only to announce their decision to give the display, rain or shine, than the weather man took pity on them and gave the Duluth populace a chance to enjoy the superb display.

Only a few criticisms can be offered. The set pieces should have been placed nearer the lake, and some of them ought to have been placed on raised platforms. It seemed, too, that the band was put under the hill to bury its music. It sounded as though in a circus tent a mile away from the scene. Had the band been placed in the center of the field back of London road, the music could have been heard with much better effect.

The exhibition opened with the sending up of two fine balloons that floated heavenward until finally lost from sight. Then there was a shower of rocket torpedoes that exploded with great noise high in the air and made an effective opening salute. Rockets there were in great numbers and of every kind. Especially effective were the chain rockets, exploding and leaving brilliantly colored balls floating in the air. But of all the features none equalled in beauty or effectiveness the bombs which shot into the air with a loud report and a whirling ball of brilliant light exploding with another loud report and sending a myriad of beautiful stars of a variety of colors downward.

At the start there was a large quantity of red and green fire burned, and the smoke from this swept over the crowd, the wind being off the lake. The crowd pressed close up to the ropes caught the full benefit of this, and there was choking and sputtering galore when the thick heavy smoke poured over them, making it impossible to get a breath of fresh air for fully five minutes. The "flying pigeons" device, which is one of the most amusing pyrotechnical displays made, was invisible to most of the crowd because it was started so low down. The "pigeons" are on the order of wheels, with rockets in them, which, after they are started, whiz along the wires, stop a moment and come shooting back in a manner very realistic and amusing.

When the stars and stripes were lighted the crowd went wild with enthusiasm, and the boats on the bay saluted with a deafening blast of whistles. The pictures of George Washington and Mayor Hugo were among the features of the evening.

A balloon ascension always takes an American public, and the stiff necks that are noticeable today are only a mark of the old-time patriotism elicited by the balloons that, carrying magnesium lights, sailed away into space until they were lost to view among the clouds.

The committee deserve great credit for getting such a display with the money at its disposal, although the county may be forced to care for some of them whose nerves are shattered from that ceaseless question, "Hello! When are you going to have the fireworks."

H. Ferguson, of Minneapolis, was in charge of the firing of the display, while the following committee had charge of them: F. W. Kugler, chairman; Harry H. Lamont, secretary; M. W. Ryan, Frank Leslie and J. T. Armstead.

Now that the display is over Duluth will settle again until the next Fourth, when the eagle will be given another chance to scream.

No accidents were reported, and the crowd was very good natured, and elbowed each other and stepped on each other's feet with the greatest of equanimity. About 20,000 people saw the display.

Park Point was a pretty sight, too, for all along the beach camp fires were to be seen. They extended from one end of the point to the other.

PLEADED GUILTY.

Former Officer Admits Passing Bad Check.

n New York, July 10.—Edward S. Martin, formerly lieutenant in the United States army, pleaded guilty before Recorder Goff yesterday on a charge of passing a bad check for $45 on the Gorman Manufacturing company. Martin was recently dismissed from the army on account of irregularities in his canteen accounts. Martin will be sentenced Friday.

HAWLEY COLE DEAD.

Milwaukee, July 10.—Hawley Cole, aged eighty-three years, one of the best known horsemen in the west, died in this city yesterday. Mr. Cole was for a number of years local general agent for the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. He has owned and driven scores of fast trotting horses and was a national figure in horse race affairs.

POSTMASTER DEAD.

New Orleans, July 10.—Judge Ferdinand B. Earhart, postmaster at New Orleans, is dead. He was civil judge in the 70's and deputy collector of the port in 1890, and United States district attorney under Presidents Harrison and Cleveland. He succeeded the late J. R. G. Pitkin as postmaster in January, 1901.

BLOWN TO PIECES.

Dubuque, Ia., July 10.—A would-be bank burglar was literally blown to pieces Monday night at Benton, Wis., by the explosion of nitro-glycerine, which he carried in his hip-pocket. He was breaking into a creamery to get tools with which to force an entrance into the bank. As he was climbing through an opening into the creamery, a trapdoor fell and struck him on the hip, exploding the nitro-glycerine. The body was dismembered, intestines, the heart and other organs blown out and parts of the body were scattered all over the creamery.

CITY FUNDS.

Statement of Treasurer Voss at Close of June.

The report of the condition of the city's finances at the end of the month of June has been issued by City Treasurer Voss. FITZSIMMONS DEFEATED.

New York, July 10.—Gus Ruhlin and Bob Fitzsimmons in a Graeco-Roman wrestling bout attracted 2500 people to Madison Square Garden last night. Ruhlin was both cleverer and heavier than the Cornishman and won two falls in succession with a quarter of an hour's rest between them. Ruhlin showed that he knew a great deal more about the game than Fitz did, and it was the latter's agility that prevented him being thrown much more quickly.

WORK WILL GO ON.

Investigation of Seventh National Will Be Complete.

New York, July 10.—Gen. Henry L. Burnett, United States district attorney, was in consultation yesterday with W. S. Ball, his assistant, who was designated to examine into the affairs of the Seventh National bank. Subsequently Gen. Burnett said:

"I do not care to say at this time whether or not anything has been discovered by Capt. Ball of a criminal character in the manipulation of the affairs of the Seventh National bank. Nothing will be done until the investigation is completed. The investigation will be continued by this office despite what the board of directors may do. Whether or not the bank is reorganized the work of investigation will go on, and I have written to the department of justice in Washington asking that an expert accountant be designated to assist Capt. Ball in this work."

DUE TO HEART DISEASE.

Indianapolis, July 10.—Mrs. Sarah Belle Tanner Taylor, wife of William S. Taylor, ex-governor of Kentucky, but for more than a year a resident of Indianapolis, died yesterday of hemorrhage resulting from heart disease. She had been ill for a number of weeks, but her death was unexpected. She was forty years old and was born at Morgantown, Ky.

A LARGE DEFICIT

Endowment Rank, K. of P. Funds Are Short $225,267.

Must Be Made Up Before Continuing Insurance Business.

Misappropriation By Past Officers Is Freely Charged.

Chicago, July 10.—The endowment rank of the K. of P. has a deficit of $225,267.

This announcement was made by Supreme Commander Ogden H. Fethers yesterday to the supreme lodge of the order, which has been assembled in this city for the purpose of looking into the affairs of the rank. Mr. Fethers' announcement was based on the official report of the Insurance commissioners of Illinois, Connecticut and Kansas, who made an exhaustive examination of the condition of the order and copies of these reports were issued in the hands of the representatives. Before the rank can legally continue doing business as an insurance institution, this deficit must be made good, and the question of how this is to be done and the greater one of how the funds of the organization are to be safeguarded in future occupied the attention of the lodge officers and representatives all day today and far into the night.

That there has been misappropriation of funds by the past officers was freely charged in the reports, as well as in the meetings today, and there was said to be little doubt that after the supreme lodge had finished dealing with those who are thought to be responsible the evidence will be laid before the state's attorney with a request that it be submitted to the grand jury.

At the session tonight a motion was made to expel John A. Hinsey, who was president of the endowment rank during the period in which some of the funds of the organization are said to have disappeared and others to have been invested in poor securities, but the motion was laid on the table when it was represented to the meeting that Mr. Hinsey has expressed his intention of appearing before the supreme court at its meeting tomorrow for the purpose of defending himself against any charge that might be made of misappropriation of funds or of having made investments which he had not previously assured himself were safe and amply secured.

The work of investigation by the supreme lodge was not finished last night, and will be resumed today. It is stated that charges of reckless financiering, juggling of accounts and misappropriation of funds were made by the report of the board of control. July 1, it is asserted, the rank found itself with a half million of unpaid death claims, and only $135 in the bank with which to pay them, while little more was available from $480,000 of investments, most of the property represented by them being in the hands of receivers.

The Knights of Pythias, however, regard themselves as being legally responsible, the endowment rank being a part of the order, its control being vested in the supreme lodge, and will devise plans for making good the deficit, paying off the claims, and putting the insurance rank on a firm basis, with adequate rates and a good business system.

FARR TO BE RELIEVED.

Talked Too Much About What He Did.

Washington, July 10.—Special Agent Farr, who commenced the rescaling of timber cut on Minnesota Indian reservations last winter, is soon to be relieved. It is said at the interior department that Farr talked too much about what he was doing and the great frauds he was unearthing. Farr's retirement is something of a victory for the contractors who made complaints against him.

Special Agent McComas was wired to proceed from Yankton at once for Milwaukee, there to join State Senator O'Neill, of Bayfield, and then proceed to White Earth for the purpose of rescaling logs. Special Agent Jenkins, who has recently been promoted, will go to Yankton and continue the investigations against Agent Harding. He will also take up the charges against Indian Trader Rose, at Standing Rock agency. Indian Commissioner Jones said yesterday that he desired to have everything relative to timber investigations cleared up before Aug. 1.

THE OHIO PLATFORM

Democrats of Buckeye State Set Forth Their Principles.

No Mention Made of Previous Platform or of Bryan.

The Johnson Men Won Out on the Taxation Issues.

Columbus, Ohio, July 10.—The Democratic state convention convened here today under peculiar circumstances. All the more conservative elements had combined in the preliminaries against the friends of Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland, but the combination was not maintained after the committees were selected, and during the all-night session of the committee on resolutions, it was claimed the McLean and Kilbourne men were no longer co-operating against the propositions of the Johnson men on the platform and organization. The contest was in the committee on resolutions and on both national and state issues. The Johnson men won on their favorite views on state matters, and the others on national issues.

There is no reaffirmation of the Kansas City or any other platform. There is no mention of previous platforms, or of Bryan. The sub-committee of seven that drafted the platform stood four to three in favor of the conservatives, but the full committee rejected both the majority and the minority reports and then picked out such parts of each as were voted on section by section. The full committee did not stand the same on all sections or planks. The three planks of the Johnson men on franchises, steam and electric railroads and corporation taxation were adopted as amendments.

Previous to the assembling of the convention today there was unusual agitation among delegates. C. P. Salen, a member of Mayor Johnson's cabinet, has been continued as permanent chairman, and other friends of Johnson had secured the taxation resolutions that were wanted. There was much talk about the Kilbourne and McLean men having differences, but it became evident later on that the Johnson men had won on the taxation issues without any other changes.

CHAIRMAN SALEN'S SPEECH.

The convention was not called to order until nearly 11 o'clock by Chairman Brucker. Hon. Charles P. Salen was heartily cheered when he was introduced as temporary chairman. He spoke in part as follows:

Your are gathered in state convention not alone to nominate a ticket which shall command the respect of the voters of the state, but also to define your attitude upon questions which to them are of the most vital concern. It is for you to decide whether this gathering shall be the commonplace kind which nominates a ticket, indulges in platitudes, and adjourns, or whether it shall take action so forceful and so productive of results as to entitle it to a page in history.

In this election, our first concern is with state affairs, and the Democratic principle which settles national questions right can do so with local ones as well. But, while holding that national issues should not control this campaign, as one of the great representative bodies of the American democracy, we are deeply concerned in those which now are uppermost and which relate to domineering trusts at home ando the subject colonies abroad.

The party in power fosters mammoth monopolies as its domestic policy, and its foreign policy imitates the crown colony system of Great Britain. Against both policies the Democratic party must be unswerving in its hostility. When our party ceases to oppose these policies, it ceases to be Democratic. And let no one protest that this opposition is negative and reactionary. In fact, it is affirmative and progressive.

By opposing trusts, we promote liberty. In fighting against them, we fight for the just rights of property, for an equitable distribution of wealth, for industrial peace, for social order, for individual and national advancement. The trust stands like a dragon in the path of American progress. It must be destroyed or our country cannot go forward. Though some classes flourish where trusts are fostered, the great masses, the people, for an equitable must soon realize the words of Goldsmith, when he describes the conditions where "wealth accumulates and men decay." The Republican policy of feeding and fostering the trust is a policy of negation and reaction.The Democratic policy of destroying trusts is the true policy of progress.

What the trust question is to our domestic policy, such is imperialism to our foreign policy. To make new feeding for trusts, crown colonies are established under the American flag. Our country once boasted the Monroe doctrine, which guaranteed the independence of all American republics. But that beneficent doctrine has been bartered away for ignoble ambitions to be a grim world power. From being the great protector of American republics, we have become a confederate of the war lords of Europe. Once the world's exemplar of the Jeffersonian doctrino of self government, our beloved republic is now embarked upon a shameless career of conquest. It has abjured the fundamental principles of the grand old Declaration of Independence, and set up the British system of crown colonies and making obedient subjects of unwilling people. It is not progress, whether British Tories do it in South Africa or American Republicans do it in the Philippines. This Imperial foreign policy must be reversed. A democratic foreign policy must be substituted for it.

Am I told that the Democrats have no foreign policy? Whether they have or not depends upon what is meant. It is true that they have no dishonorable policy of conquest. It is true that they have no autocratic policy for governing subjects by military power. But it is not true that they have no foreign policy. They have inherited one from Washington and Jefferson, which is as far in advance of world-power politics as the twentieth century is in advance of the middle ages. The foreign policy of the Democrats of this country is to make our republic the model of political and commercial progress. They would again have the American flag upon every sea; not by subsidies wrung from the labor of the people, but through commercial freedom. They would inspire all mankind with confidence in the fidelity of the nation to its pledges—not its money pledges alone, but also its pledges to abstain from conquest; not only its promised to European bondholders, but also its promises to Cuban patriots. The Democratic party would have this nation give to world an example of self government, of equality of all men before the law, of equal opportunities for all men in the race of life, of orderly freedom—such an example of democracy as would make the American nation a world power of transcendant influence. No nation should dare or even wish to attack it. All nations should seek its trade. Its word to the humblest should be as good as its bond to the greatest. Under every government upon the globe the democratic masses should watch our glorious example should study our inspiring history should consider our unsullied reputation as a great and faithful remocratic republic. Our splendid realities should be their noble ideals. And pointing to our flag as the beautiful symbol of it all, they should exclaim—as at times in the past, liberty-loving men of other lands have exclaimed—"By this sign we conquer."

With such a foreign policy, this foreign policy of the Democracy, the United States would grow in true republican strength and true democratic equality. And as it grew, it would make that conquest with which no grasping of territory can compare, that conquest which military conquerors have never known, and sanguinary swords can never achieve—the conquest of the confidence and affection of the masses of mankind.

Without detracting from those great questions, there are in this campaign in Ohio, questions of such transcendent importance to the people of the state that they overwhelm all other issues, and foremost of all is the adoption of an equitable system if assessing and collecting tax burdens. If we can win for the people of Ohio at this election relief from the inequalities of steam railroad taxation alone it will be a lasting blessing. The steam railroads are paying less than a fifth of their just share of taxation by comparison with the owners of farms and other small properties. Every county in the state loses greatly by this scheme of injustice and through it every citizen in every county in Ohio is paying more than his just share of taxes.

Much of the inequality could be corrected by the fidelity of the county auditors. It has developed largely from the favors distributed by railroads to state and county officials. Not only this convention but every county in the state should rise in arms against this iniquity and install as auditors, men who will respect their oath of office and stand for truth and justice in the assessing of railroad property.

The whole taxation scheme is foul with inequalities. It vitiates public trusts and completely defeats the ends of justice. Can we do the people of Ohio any greater service than to correct these inequalities? Can we do more for our party than to earn the gratitude of the people for destroying such abuse?

Five hunudred million dollars of steam railroad property in Ohio today escapes taxation. It is not an idle duplicate. The home, the farm, the little industry hopelessly struggling against the privileged trusts are there, listed frequently above their saleable values. You who own them have no favors to offer. You have not learned the art of bribery. Your protest is unheeded. You must pay the tribute to injustice or lose your home. You must simply endure.

The Republican convention, while trying to conduct this campaign on national issues and avoid state issues as questions, was forced to make a vague reference to this issue. If the Republicans are successful the people may expect legislation as vague and unsatisfactory as the platform. Let our declaration be so clear that the people may realize its meaning.

Let us not, as many Democratic conventions have done, merely meet and parcel among individuals a few nominations. Let us, by decisive action, start the movement that will establish a reign of justice in our civilization, that will among the masses substitute contentment for despair, and love for hatred.

THE PLATFORM.

The report submitted by the committee on resolutions contained nearly 2000 words. It consists of a preamble and sixteen articles under the following subheads: Municipal government, taxation, conduct of state affairs, etc., people's rights, tariff reform, monopolies, merchant marine, imperialism and expansion, the Boers, Monroe doctrine, the navy, civil service, election of senators, agriculture and labor, Republican responsibility and boss rule and political corruption. The preamble follows:

"The Democrats of Ohio reaffirm their belief in equality of taxation and other public burdens; their advocacy of the equal rights of all people with special privileges to none; their hostility to the monopolization of industry, with its tendency on the one hand to crush out individual enterprise, and on the other to promote a socialistic spirit among the people as the only refuge from oppression; and their faith in that theory and practice of constitutional government which brought the nation into existence and has preserved it to a present generation. The subjects above mentioned are then taken up. It is declared that the municipalities of the state should be radically reformed. The denial of home rule is declared to have fostered special legislation and the imposition of burdens and taxes. It is demanded that no franchise, extension or renewal thereof shall hereafter be granted except upon the vote of the people."

On the subject of taxation the platform says:

"The acceptance of free passes or other favors from railroads by public officers or employes shall be made adequate grounds for vacating the offices held by them. All public service corporations shall be required by law to make sworn public reports, and the power and duty of visitation and public report shall be conferred upon the proper state and local auditing officers, to the end that the true value of the privileges held by these corporations shall be made plain to the people.

"Steam and electric railroads and other corporations possessing public franchises shall be assessed in the same proportion to their saleable value as are farms and city real estate.

The proceedings of the Republican majority of the state board of equalization are a scandal. Property values, instead of being equalized, were increased or diminished at the dictation of political bosses, pursuant to corrupt combinations and conspiracies."

Regarding the conduct of state affairs, the Republican administration and majority of the general administration are denounced.

Centralization, "which would destroy the rights of the people," is condemned.

Tariff reform is demanded on the ground that the production of the country far exceeds its power of consumption.

The enactment and rigorous enforcement of measures to prevent monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade and commerce is demanded, as is also the suppression of all trusts and a return to "industrial freedom." As a means to that end the platform declares that all trust products should be placed on the free list, and the government should exercise a more rigid supervision of the transportation.

Restoration of the merchant marine is favored, without subsidies, however.

On the subject of "imperialism and expansion," the platform says:

"Powers granted the federal government were not meant to be used to conquer or hold in subjection the people of other countries. The Democratic party opposes any extension of the national boundaries not meant to carry speedily to all inhabitants full equal rights with ourselves. If these are unfitted by location, race or character, to be formed into self-governing territories and then incorporated into the Union of states, they should be permitted to work out their own destiny.

"Only territorial expansion demanded by the national welfare and the national safety is at any time to be favored—the objection which should should have prevented certain of our recent accessions being that they imperil the national safety without promoting the national welfare; tend to embroil us with European powers, weaken our claim to supremacy on the American continent and furnish a dangerous opportunity and temptation for the disregard of the self-evident truth of universal application, that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed.'

Maintenance of the Monroe doctrine is demanded; a navy adequate to the protection of American citizens and property the world over; election of senators by direct vote, and the right of labor to combine for the assertion of its rights and the protection of its interests. It is declared that the burdens of the "unjust and discriminating laws for which the Republican party is responsible fall chiefly on those who till the soil or labor at other forms of production." The Democratic party pledges its efforts to relieve them of the burdens which class legislation has laid upon them. On the subject of "Republican responsibility" it is declared that the "Republican party always has upheld class interests and cannot be trusted to deal with evils of its own creation."

On "boss rule, etc.," the party pledges itself to "rescue our government from the grasp of selfishness and corruption and restore it to its former fairness, purity and simplicity."

"Widespread corruption," the article declares, "now threatens our free institutions and menaces the destruction of public virtues."

Under the caption "The Boers," the platform says: "The obvious sympathy of the national administration is with the British government in its efforts to destroy the South African republics and the policy which has made the ports of the United States a basis of supply for the British army, without which the war could not be successfully carried on, are condemned by the Democracy of Ohio."

LOST FOR EIGHT YEARS.

Mystery of Marie Mentis Formerly of La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., July 10.—Mrs. C. A. Shreppie and Mrs. D. A. Mosher arrived here from Boston expecting to visit their sister, Marie Mentis, sister of Albert Mentis, of this city, but learned that she had been missing for eight years.

Forty years ago Charles Mentis, then a resident of Boston, moved to Wisconsin with six children, two remaining in the East, where they since married and are now Mrs. Shreppie and Mrs. Mosher. Ten years ago the father died and soon after Marie Mentis, his daughter, who was then 30 and a dressmaker, said she was going to St. Paul to open a dressmaking establishment. No objection was made to her plans and since that time nothing has been heard from her, and all efforts to find her have proved futile.

The police of that city have searched incessantly for her, but without success. It is believed by her brother that she is dead, while her sisters are of the opinion that she will be found.

HURRAH FOR THE NINTH OF JULY!

FIREWORKS COMMITTEE---"Thank Heaven, They Are Off."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Last Day of the International Convention Was Busy.

Every Hour From Sunrise Had Its Meetings and Services.

Twenty Years of Christian Endeavor Formed the Subject.

Cincinnati, July 10.—Today being the last day of the International Christian Endeavor convention events have been crowded in upon each other, making it really the busiest day of the session, which lasted five days. There was not an hour from sunrise until the time for the farewell meetings tonight but what was marked for meetings and services. The music hall auditoriums were the centers of most activity. The action of the local committee in dispensing with Auditorium Ohio and consolidating the meetings scheduled to occur there today with the two meetings in Auditoriums Endeavor and Williston, caused a revision of the program as far as speakers were concerned. The assignments to these two halls were made before the convention and as the speakers who were to have participated in Auditorium Ohio are here, they were included on programs in the other auditoriums.

The usual quiet hour meetings at the Second Presbyterian and Ninth Sireet Baptist churches, ushered in the day's program, and the Endeavorers then adjourned to the big auditoriums where the first two big meetings of the day were conducted. They were devoted to a discussion of the twentieth anniversary session. Secretary John Willis Baer, of Boston, presided in Endeavor hall, and Bishop B. W. Arnett, of Wilberforce, Ohio, in Williston hall. After the devotional exercises six ministers were given five minutes each on "Twenty Years of Christian Endeavor."

Rev. A. B. Curry, of Birmingham, Ala., then spoke on "The Element of Obligation in the Discussion of What Made Christian Endeavor a Success and Why." Rev. John Shape, of Wilmington, Del., followed on the "Power of Testimony." Tracy McGregor, of Detroit, "The Joy of Service;" Rev. Henry DeMcEwen, of Amsterdam, N. Y., "The Spirit of Consecration," and General Secretary Baer, of Boston, "The World's Christian Endeavor Union." What has been gained in twenty years of Christian Endeavor was treated by Rev. George B. Stewart, of Auburn, N. Y., and Rev. J. G. Butler, of Washington, D. C. Rev. Butler spoke in part as follows:

"Christian Endeavor, yet in its infancy, is a new discovery among religious forces, and is of limitless application. The church of the living God has always cherished childhood and youth; but it remained for this generation to make childhood and youth a trained force in the kingdom of God. It supplements the work of the Christian home and of the Sunday school, and of the church itself, by organizing and equipping our boys and girls, our young men and young women for the 'firing line,' in the ever present battle for God against the powers of darkness. And there is no work for the kingdom, whether in the home, in the state, in the church, in Christian or non-Christian lands for which the army of Christian Endeavor is not being prepared. Three fundamental principles are emphasized. It does not strike its tap root in the dogmatic, but in the spiritual and Christian life of our common Christendom. hTe polemics may fight along hair-splitting theological lines. The true Endeavorer recognizes every man as a brother whom Christ accepts. It emphasizes loyalty to one's own denomination. So strongly is this emphasized that we see no use for any organization of young people in any denominations other than Christian Endeavor. May we not cherish the hope that all our churches will swell our ranks? It is hastening the answer to our Lord's prayer for the oneness of all believers by cultivating interdenominational and international fellowship. We are all one in Christ Jesus, and with our slogan, 'For Christ and the Church' we march to victory."

The new field secretary, Clarence Eberman of Lancaster, Pa., and Rev. W. S. Ament of Pekin, China, spoke of Christian Endeavor fellowship. Rev. Harland E. Freeman of Sheridanville, Pa., then followed in an address on the subject, "It is International," in part as follows:

"Other evangelical agencies have done much in arousing Christian fellowship, but the Endeavor movement has had this as one of its distinctive features and has attained to a splendid success. Christian Endeavor has made it fashionable among the churches to keep an open front and let the world know that while there is a difference of tastes and methods, there is a common purpose. Twenty years of this influence has made quarreling among the churches unpopular. It has been discovered that a far deeper interest in one's own church and a more willing service is secured by agreement in essentials rather than a disagreement on non-essentials. This has been a schooling in Christian courtesy, so that we have learned how to treat each other, and delight in putting Endeavor etiquette into practice.

"'International' seems to have been too sweeping a word for most of our English dictionaries, or perhaps a word of too much latitude and longitude for any one language. It signifies a world-wide mission and it has reached a world wide result. Our fellowship has meant pentecostal refreshment. The members of the Christian world have been singing 'Blest be the Tie that Binds' to one another, but of later years they have been singing it with one another. Not only has a fraternal feeling been diffused around the globe, but also an aggressive spirit of world enterprise has been aroused, and is the signal service of interdenominational fraternity. The development of fellowship has laid before us some special opportunities. Christian citizens banded together from the various churches have learned what a mighty stroke can be wielded for good government."

The farewell meetings to be held this evening will be the greatest of the day. Rev. J. Campbell Morgan of Baltimore, Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins of Philadelphia, are the only two speakers who will be heard. The Endeavorers will assemble in groups from each of their states and as the roll is called will reply with short addresses on the purposes they have in view for the extension of Christian Endeavor during the coming year.

IN MICHIGAN.

Iron Mountain Miner Killed By the Mine Cars.

Iron Mountain.—Sam Merzack, a miner employed at the Quinnesec mine, was killed while running cars to the pocket. He was bringing down the cars and they got from under his control. He was thrown to the track and three cars passed over him, cutting off his left arm at the elbow and both legs above the knees. He lived about twenty minutes after the accident. He was about forty years of age and is supposed to have a wife and one child in Poland.

Iron Mountain is completely run over with tramps, and they are so numerous the police have a hard time in keeping them in line. Women folks must keep their doors locked during the day, as the hobos, on more than one occasion lately, have walked into houses, without knocking, scaring the women almost to death. At Vulcan, a few miles from Iron Mountain, the night watchman was approached by four tramps the other night, each of them armed with a gun, and commanded the watchman to deliver his valuables. The tramps stop delivery wagons on the country roads, and help themselves to the goods, and hen roosts are also suffering. There is talk of organizing a pose and running them from the county.

Escanaba—Rev. Father Hubert Kalt of Detroit, for fifteen months the assistant pastor of St. Joseph church, has been recalled to Cincinnati by the order of St. Francis and Rev. Father Pierce of Cincinnati will be his successor here.

Menominee—A Gladstone Finlander named Anderson Larson has been acting strangely for several days and he is now confined in the city jail. He has made several attempts to kill himself, once with a knife, once by drowning and once by jumping from a two-story window. In his jump he broke his collar bone. He will be sent to Newberry.

Ironwood—Fireworks in Jussen & Triers' store caught fire and the interior of the place and the stock, including confectionary, fruits, tobacco and a soda fountain, were destroyed. The fire caught from firecrackers which were being set off on the sidewalk by boys. It is supposed a lighted firecracker went through a hole in the window setting fire to the window display. The loss was $4000. Plate glass in adjoining stores was shattered by skyrockets.

THE DAKOTAS.

Explosion of Gasoline Burns Several at Parker, S. D.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Parker—An explosion at the gasoline gas factory seriously burned two men and a boy. The injured are: P. L. Blodgett, of Yankton, proprietor of the factory, burned about head and face. Frank Ely, inhaled afimes and serious burns. Ira Jones, a boy, face and eyes severely injured. All will probably recover.

Huron—While A. E. Colman and George W. Nicholl were riding their wheels from Hitchcock to Crandon, they were caught in a wind storm. They were driven by the wind at terrific speed for two or three miles, gathered up bodily and sent over the prairie several rods, landing in a rasture near a barbed wire fence. Both escaped serious injury, although bruised and scratched.

Aberdeen—The county commissioners, at their last session, decided to submit to the voters the question of issuing bonds in the sum of $65,000 for the erection of a courthouse. The vote will be taken at the November election.

Woonsocket—The First National bank of Woonsocket is being organized with a capital of $25,000. The stockholders will buy the Citizens' bank building with the good-will, fixtures, etc. The new bank will commence doing vusiness about the first of August. The promoters are E. F. Spor, Sr., E. P. Spor, Jr., and C. W. Keller, of Emmetsburg, Iowa, and R. O. Richards, of Huron.

Canton—Edward Hall, a workman on the railroad, became overheated and, as a consequence, is insane. His brother will take him to his home at Des Moines.

Yankton—Sheriff J. W. Laughlin, of Hughes county, reached Yankton and left at noon with Carl Thompson, who was arrested by City Marshal Pierson a few days ago, upon request of Sioux Falls officials, and who is wanted at Pierre for embezzlement. Thompson was in the employ of F. B. Roll at Westover, across the river from Pierre. Early in June Mr. Roll gave him $250 in cash and checks amounting to $900 to take to Pierre and deposit. Thompson went to Pierre, had some of the checks cashed, probably forging Mr. Roll's name, and skipped the country.

Sioux Falls—After a bitter controversy with his half brother, Lawrence Halbritter, aged about 60, employed in Carl Look's meat market, killed himself with a rifle.

Pierre—It has been discovered that the new celebrated artesian well recently sunk by the authorities of Pearl township, Sully county, is some distance over the township line, on land belonging to Andrew Thorp, a farmer.

Parker—The Parker Leader has been purchased by George H. Henry, of Dell Rapids. The paper will support the policies of the Democratic party. F. I. Shoop, the retiring editor, has purchased the plant of the Lennox Independent.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Henry P. Berg, of Wimbledon, was instantly killed by a stroke of lightning. He was sitting up in bed when the bolt killed him. The house was set on fire, but the blaze was put out. Berg was 22 years of age.

Wahpeton—A series of burglaries took place Wednesday night. At the house of Daniel Patterson, the robbers secured a gold watch, valuable clothing and other things. Several other residences were entered, but nothing of importance was taken.

MONSTER MACKEREL.

Lively Leviathan Captured In Rhode Island Pond.

Westerly, R. I., July 10.—A horse mackerel weighing probably 600 pounds was caught in the pond yesterday, off the east beach at Watch Hill. The fish was a lively one, eight feet long and five feet in circumference, and is the biggest on record for the Rhode Island shore.

Its captors had a merry time getting it. Capt. W. H. Davis of the Watch Hill life saving station and Capt. J. B. Young of the light house, were nearly swamped. Finally Charles Chapman sent a raft with a line attached into the fish and it was hauled ashore.

TO MINE HIS OWN ORE.

"Golden Rule" Jones Circumvents the Pipe Trust.

Chicago, July 10.—Because the "pipe trust," which controls the iron pipe industry of the country, will not allow the delivery of iron ore to "Golden Rule" Jones' big factory at Toledo, the Ohioan will mine his own ore. Chicago men have been investigating localities in many states for months past, and they have at last settled upon establishing a community on 72,000 acres of land in Texas, where mineral and vegetable riches are marvelous. The syndicate, of which Mr. Jones is the principal stockholder, is formed by the Ohio man almost entirely because of the difficulty he has experienced in getting ore from the mines that are subservient to the powerful combination of metal pipe manufacturers.

The Skin AN INDEX TO THE BLOOD
Millions of little glands or tubes connect the blood with the skin, and through these small drain pipes perspiration passes out, carrying with it the impurities that are thrown off by the blood. Should the pores of the skin be entirely closed for even a brief space of time, and the poisonous matter forced back into the circulation, instant death would result. In addition to the sweat glands, the skin is provided with certain others which pour out upon it an oily substance, keeping the skin pliable and soft and protecting it from heat and cold. The blood and skin are so closely related that whatever affects one seriously interferes with the functions of the other. Not only health, but life itself, depends upon perfect harmony between the blood and skin. When, therefore, the blood becomes poisoned from any cause, it quickly manifests itself upon the skin in the form of sores and ulcers, pimples and various eruptive diseases. By the character of the sore we are enabled to determine the nature of the poison or humor in the blood, as every disease originating in the blood has its own peculiar sore or pimple. The skin is not only affected by the poisons generated in the system, but poisons from without enter through the open glands or pores and quickly infect the blood. Mercury rubbed upon the skin will produce Rheumatism, and Poison Oak and Ivy and other wild plants gain easy access to the blood through the skin. As so-called skin diseases originate in the blood, the application of powders, soaps and washes can do no permanent good, but often do immense damage by closing up the outlet to these little tubes and interfering with the natural action of the skin. The treatment must begin with the blood, and the acid or other poisons antidoted or neutralized. S. S. S. does this and purifies the circulation, builds up the blood and flushes the little glands or pores with pure, new blood, and restores healthy action to the skin. The use of cosmetics never yet brought health and beauty to a rough, red, pimply skin or sallow complexion. What is needed is rich, pure blood, such as S. S. S. makes. It not only relieves you of all disfiguring blackheads, blotches and irritating, itching eruptions, but improves your general health. S. S. S. contains no mercury, potash, arsenic or other mineral, but is a purely vegetable remedy and the safest and best in all blood and skin troubles. Write our physicians for advice or information; they have made a study of blood and skin diseases, and you can have the best medical advice without cost. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free.

SARATOGA OIL & PIPE LINE Co

Beaumont, Texas.

14 GUSHERS WITHIN ½-MILE OF OUR WELL.

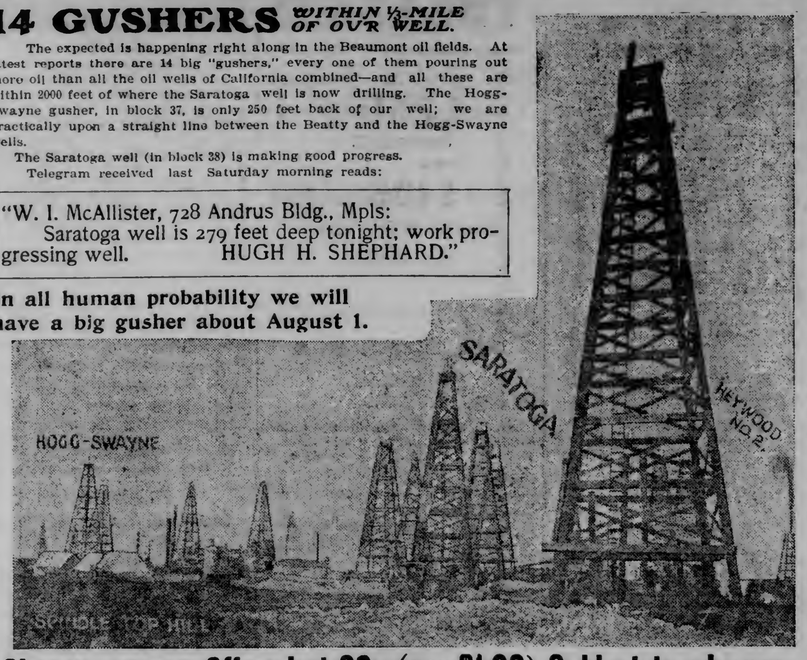

The expected is happening right along in the Beaumont oil fields. At latest reports there are 14 big "gushers," every one of them pouring out more oil than all the oil wells of California combined—and all these are within 2000 feet of where the Saratoga well is now drilling. The Hogg-Swayne gusher, in block 37, is only 250 feet back of our well; we are practically upon a straight line between the Beatty and the Hogg-Swayne wells.

The Saratoga well (in block 38) is making good progress.

Telegram received last Saturday morning reads:

"W. I. McAllister, 728 Andrus Bldg., Mpls: Saratoga well is 279 feet deep tonight; work progressing well. HUGH H. SHEPHARD."

In all human probability we will have a big gusher about August 1.

Shares are now Offered at 30c (par $1.00) Subject to advance.

The Saratoga Oil & Pipe Line Co. is incorporated under the laws of Texas. Capital stock $1,000,000, fully paid and non-assessable; owning in fee simple and in leases 1041 acres of land in the Texas oil fields. In order to supply funds to build tanks and pipe lines and lease cars for the transportation of this oil to market, 100,000 shares of stock are now offered at 30 cents per share (par value $1); not less than 100 shares sold. CHARLIE CULVER

Was on the Great Northern Train Recently Held Up.

He Tells a Thrilling Story of the Exciting Event.

People Dropped to Floors When Bullets Whizzed About.

Tacoma, July 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles W. Culver, of Duluth, who recently arrived on Puget sound, was a passenger on the Great Northern train held up east of Great Falls on the afternoon of July 3, and he tells a thrilling tale of the event.

"I was in the buffet car playing a game of whist," said Mr. Culver, "when the big game opened. We noted that the train had slowed down and we heard several shots. They sounded more like firecrackers to us than anything else, and one of the gentlemen in the party made some remark about the celebration of the Fourth. It was then the afternoon of July 3.

"Just then a woman came running into our car from the tourist to the rear of the car in which we were seated and inquired to learn if there was a physician on board. She said a little girl had been shot. She seemed much excited and returned to the tourist car on learning that there was no physician in our party.

"Meantime the popping of rifles continued, but on the train kept running, although it had almost come to a stop. The conductor entered our car and announced that the train had been held up and was even then in the hands of bandits. There was a wild scramble among the passengers in the car in an attempt to hide their valuables. I confess I was among those that manifested a sudden and wild desire to place in hiding somewhere, anywhere, all that I had about me of value. I had lots of company. That was some satisfaction. I never saw such excitement. The porter went to the rear door of our car and I was right behind him. The train was not quite at a standstill. As the porter opened the door a bullet whizzed past his head. We both dodged back into the car.

"We learned that at Malta, just before the train pulled out, the conductor had noticed a man he had taken for a tramp on the platform of the blind baggage car. He ordered him off, but the fellow did not get off. Instead of doing so he pulled out a big revolver and told the conductor to get back away from him or he would kill him. The conductor obeyed and started out with his train. He knew the sheriff of the county was on board, and concluded to make the run to Exeter, a flag station, five miles further west, and then to signal the engineer to stop, where he would have his man arrested. As we neared Exeter the conductor gave the engineer a signal to stop, but the train did not stop.

"The supposed tramp had crawled over the tender and into the cab of the engine, where he stood covering both the engineer and the fireman with his revolver. When the signal came to stop he told the engineer if he attempted to stop the train in response to the signal he would kill him. The conductor, fearing all was not right in the cab, went forward, but as the train kept running he found it impossible to reach the men in the cab, the blind baggage car effectually cutting off communication.

"The two pals of the man who had boarded the train at Malta and held up the engineer and fireman, boarded the train when it came to a stop. They had been in hiding beneath a small bridge. We had just crossed when the train came to a standstill.

"The fireman and engineer were marched off a short distance from the train where they were held under cover of the man that had kept them under the gun from the time he entered the cab. The express messenger opened his car door when the train came to a stop and the two other bandits entered his car, after one of them first covered the messenger with a rifle. They directed the messenger to open his local safe. He did as commanded, but the bandits secured nothing from this safe. They knew their business, however, for they did not ask the messenger to open the through safe. They knew he did not have the combination to it. After opening the local safe they marched the messenger out to the point where the engineer and fireman were being held under a gun and left him. But they took the fireman back with them and made him help them in the work of wrecking the through safe with dynamite.

"Three terrific charges of dynamite were used and the safe was completely wrecked, as well as the roof and sides of the car. The bandits seemed to show a consideration for the lives of the passengers and the train employes that was, under the circumstances, almost wonderful. They used rifles and smokeless powder, and in every instance where they put a bullet into a person it was done evidently with the intention of "winging." The shot that shattered the arm of Brakeman Woodside hit him as he stood on the rear platform. He had hardly remarked to Traveling Auditor Douglas of the Montana Central, 'I have been shot,' when Mr. Douglas received a bullet in his arm.

"The aim of the bandits seemed unerring. Gertrude Smith, of Tomah, Wis., the young girl that was shot, would not have been injured had she been satisfied to keep her head inside. She had just ventured to look out of the window when a bullet whizzed past her head, and before she could regain her seat another bullet pierced her shoulders, making only a flesh wound fortunately.

"Their consideration for the passengers was again shown when the charges of dynamite were exploded. Before this was done they warned all passengers in the two coaches next the wrecked car to vacate them and to go back into the rear coaches, but not to dare to leave the train. They also took the engineer and express messenger to a point of safety.

"They had undoubtedly intended to hold up the train at this point, about 8:30 o'clock in the morning, as we were due there at that time, but we had been delayed by a washout, near Minot, N. D., and did not go through Exeter until about 2:20 in the afternoon.

"When the excitement was over and the bandits had secured the booty they were after from the through safe, they backed away from the standing train to a point on a knoll near by where three horses were in waiting. They mounted the animals and disappeared a little later in a sort of ravine. We watched them, however, for at least ten minutes before they disappeared from view.

"Just before our train was stopped, and while it was slowing down, we all noticed a cowboy loping along the roadway, near the track, and we had supposed he was one of the bandits until we noticed him suddenly turn his horse and strike out over the prairie and over a little hill away from the train. We subsequently learned one of the bandits had put a bullet through the fleshy part of the rump of the man's horse, and that the man who held up the engineer and express messenger had remarked to them: 'We do not want to kill anybody, but we must get that horse.'

"The cowboy drove on as fast as he could to Wagner, perhaps three miles to the west of where the hold up took place, and there gave the alarm to the operator at the station, and went on over to his ranch near by, where he secured a rifle for himself and three other cowboys, all well armed. When we pulled into Wagner we saw them coming into town riding wildly and swinging their rifles in the air. There were few of the passengers who witnessed these cowboys coming down the street who did not feel that we were about to be held up a second time, or that it was a part of the gang that had already held up the train. We breathed easier when we found they were peaceably disposed toward us.

"I became acquainted with two horse-buyers on board the train who were familiar with many of the characters in and about the district where we were held up. When it was announced that our train had been held up, both of them started for the rear end of the train, and when we were ready to start on again they were found lying flat on the floor of the car between two seats. One of them said he had two revolvers in his grip, and remarked significantly that it was probably a fortunate thing that they were still there. He meant that it was fortunate for himself that he had made no show of resistance.

"Men, women and children hugged the floor of the cars while the bullets whizzed about. It seemed the only place that afforded any degree of safety."

Anglo-American Copper Mining Company,

of Parry Sound (Limited).

We now offer another small series of this valuable stock at the very low price of Twenty-five Cents per Share, payable in five equal monthly payments of five cents each. The work at the mines is being pushed under the superintendence of Captain A. Le Duc, with a full crew of men, and the results are most flattering. New bodies of ore are being opened up; values are increasing as we gain depth, and the smelters are bidding for our ore. Owing to an accident to our smelter in the final test, a delay of several weeks will be caused. You remember, the company do not pay for the smelter until the builders have satisfied the directors it will save the values in our ores. A site at Parry Sound for the smelter has been secured, and we hope to be smelting our own ores soon.

This is one of the most promising stocks ever offered in this market, and we confidently expect a rush for this small series.

Remember this company are actual miners, not speculators.

Orders by Mail will Receive Prompt Attention.

A second series of the stock of this company will be offered in a few days at the office of the company, 4 Exchange Building, Duluth, Minn. The company are now in possession of their mines in Calaveras County, California, and our consulting engineer says we can be producing gold from our mill within thirty days.

Fuller information will be given at the office—call and secure an early place in the list of shareholders. The stock will have a rapid sale.

ORE RATE HEARING

Roads Claim That They Are Doing Interstate Business.

Docks an Inseparable Link In Chain of Through Traffic.

The Two Companies Refuse to File Their Tariffs.

St. Paul, July 10.—The iron ore roads of Minnesota yesterday commenced the introduction of testimony before the state railroad and warehouse commission to prove that the state has no legal control over the rates charged for the carrying of ore from the mines on the Mesaba range to the ore docks at the head of the lakes. As the question involved concerns each of the ore roads, the question of jurisdiction is being tried by all simultaneously, and a witness for one company is accepted as a witness for all.

The first thing done was the filing by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and the Duluth & Iron Range of their written answers to the order of the commission. The two companies refused to file their tariffs, on the ground that the commission had no jurisdiction. The answers are practically identical, varying only as to the location of lines, stations, etc. The Missabe company admits that its lines run to certain iron mines near Hibbing, Mountain Iron, Virginia, Eveleth and Biwabik, but denies that the mines are situated at the stations named. They are located at some distance from the stations and are reached solely by spur lines built by the company. Testimony was subsequently introduced to show that these spur lines were built only under a contract between the mine owners and railroad company, and that the company was under no legal obligation to construct the lines. The rates in effect, therefore, could be controlled by the company as desired, as the road over which the ore was hauled was built by private agreement only.

The companies admit that they operate docks for the handling of ore hauled from the mines on their lines, but declare that these docks are operated solely to facilitate shipments from the mines to the consumers on the lower lakes. The traffic is therefore interstate. The docks, railroads and steamship companies are all operated directly one with another in the through shipment of this ore. The steamships carry the ore to ports in New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

The roads further deny that any of the ore is now or has for a long time been shipped to any point or points within Minnesota, but is, on the contrary, forwarded by the railroad companies and steamship lines as interstate commerce, under a common control, management and arrangement for a continuous carriage to the ports in the states named. The answers declare that neither the state of Minnesota nor the railway commission has any control or jurisdiction over any shipments in this manner, to points without the state.

As to the claims of other mining concerns, the answers declare that there are no owners or shippers of ore on or along the lines who are shipping or who desire to ship ore to points within the state.

Another point made is that the attempt to exercise control of interstate rates of iron ore is contrary to article 1, section 8, of the constitution of the United States.

The companies assert that in so far as they have been advised, all of the owners and shippers are satisfied with the present manner of doing business, and that no complaint has been filed with the commission. In conclusion, the three companies asked that the order to show cause be vacated and that the proceedings instituted Nov. 9, 1900, be dismissed.

Mr. Grover, for the Eastern Railway of Minnesota, asked permission to intervene, as his road was interested. He made the same points the other roads had urged.

The testimony subsequently given by Joseph B. Cotton, secretary for and a director of the Missabe road, was in support of the claims as set forth in the above answer.

Mr. Cotton testified that all the present year every pound of ore would go to lower lake ports in the ships of the Pittsburg Steamship company, for use by the Carnegies or other consumers.

Mr. Murray asked Mr. Cotton what percentage of all the ore mined on the Iron ranges was consumed by Minnesota furnaces.

Mr. Cotton said it was less than one-twelfth of 1 per cent. The total shipments of iron ore over all the roads last year was 31,000,000 tons, and it all went down the lakes excepting 25,000. In 1892 about 4000 tons of sample ore was delivered to consumers in this state. The only ore which has not been shipped out of the state since then was 488 tons, shipped to the old stone furnace in Duluth in 1893 and 14,000 tons to the same institution since then. The furnace is not now running, and not a pound of ore is smelted in Minnesota. There is no local market whatever, there is no local traffic in this commodity.

In the afternoon Mr. Cotton continued his testimony. He said that the railroad companies' share of the carriage of ore included unloading the cars into the dock pockets and loading of the ore into vessels. Ore which does not go outside the state does not go to the docks. It was transferred to the St. Paul & Duluth for delivery to the Duluth blast furnace, and the railroad paid the switching charges.

When the docks are full the traffic of the railroad is blocked. When the company has 150,000 tons in the three docks hauling ceases. As high as 600,000 tons per month go through the docks and up to 40,000 tons per day.

Senator Clapp took Mr. Cotton for cross-examination. Attorney General Douglas sat at his elbow. He established the fact that the docks are in the state. Mr. Cotton said the railroads' proportion of the carrying charges had always been the same, though lake rates fluctuated during the "wild season," near the end of navigation.

"You don't claim the right to ship all ore delivered from your road over the line of the Pittsburg Steamship company, regardless of the wishes of the owner of the ore?"

"No. All shipped this season goes by that route, however. It is designated by the owners of the ore."

W. A. McGonagle, assistant chief engineer of the Iron Range, testified that the ore docks cannot be used for storage and that all the ore they handle goes down the lakes.

J. H. Chandler, general solicitor, also testified. A. H. Viele, auditor and general freight agent of the Iron Range, stated that all but a fraction of the traffic is billed to South Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, Conneaut, Milwaukee, Ashtabula and a small portion to Ontario points.

Because the hearing was upon an order to show cause the commissioners introduced no evidence. The cross examinations by Gen. Clapp were brief, the only indication of their intent being that they brought out definite admissions that the entire lines and docks of the ore roads are located within the jurisdiction of the state.

Cure For Cholera Infantum—Never Known to Fail.

During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. It took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days' time the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail.—MRS. CURTIS BAKER, Bookwalter, Ohio. ADVANCE IN WHEAT Market Opens Stronger and Continues Its Upward Course.

Covering By Shorts Helps Price---Minneapolis the Leader.

Higher Cables and the Strength of Corn Bullish Influences.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 10.—The wheat market started out strong and higher this morning and made a further advance during the early part of the session. The cause of the strength was a rise in wheat prices at Liverpool and reports of damage to the crop in the Northwest by the continued rainy weather. The Liverpool market closed at an advance of ½d. Short covering was also responsible for a considerable portion of the strength of the price. Corn also gave sympathy to wheat though the advance in corn was checked by the forecasts of rain.

Primary receipts of wheat were 749,000 bus. last year 410,000. Shipments, 570,000 bus. last year, 226,000. Clearances of wheat and flour equalled 346,000 bus.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 199 cars, against 138 last week and 165 last year. Chicago receipts, 66 cars, 27 of contract grade.

There was fairly active trading in futures on the Duluth board. September wheat opened ½c up at 68¾c, sold up to 63⅞c at 10:30, reacted to 68¾c at 11, recovered to 63⅞c at 11:30, fell off to 63⅝c at 12:07 sold at 64¼c at 1 and closed at that price, which was an advance of ⅝c. Chicago advanced ⅝c and Minneapolis 1c.

Cash wheat was stronger in this market today, selling at 1½c over September, an advance of ½c over yesterday.

September flax was 1c up and October ½c off. Oats advanced ½c and other coarse grains were unchanged in price.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 68¾c; to arrive, 63⅝c; July, 63⅜c; September, 64¾c. No. 1 northern, cash, 65¾c; to arrive, 65¾c; July, 63¾c; September, 63¾c; August, 64c; October, 64c; December, 65c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Cables and Markets Gave Wheat Firm Opening.

Chicago, July 10.—Strength in cables and in the Northwest markets caused a firmer opening in wheat today. Sept. opened ⅛c to ¼c higher at 64½ to 64¾, and further advanced to 64⅝c. Northwest receipts were 199 cars against 138 last week and 165 a year ago. Local receipts, 66 cars, 27 of contract grade.

September closed strong on covering ⅛c higher at 64⅝c.

Corn opened excited and strong on weather conditions. There was an enormous demand early and a limited supply. Later the market quieted down and prices eased off on profit taking. Sept. opened ⅝@⅞c to ⅞@1c higher at 49¾ to 50c rose to 50⅝c and reacted to 49¾c. Receipts 195 cars, 28 of contract.

On predictions of showers, September broke to 49½@⅝c, but continued reports of damage caused a rally and the close was ⅝@⅝c higher at 49¾c.

In sympathy with corn and on poor crop prospects, the opening in oats was higher. Sept. started ¼@⅜c to ⅝@¾c higher at 30⅜c to 31½c, adanced to 31¾c and reacted to 30⅜c. Receipts were 3 cars.

Provisions were strong with corn and on higher prices for hogs. Sept. pork opened 10 to 25c higher at $14.00 to $14.15. Lard opened 12½ to 17½c higher at $8.65 to $8.70. Ribs were 5c higher at $7.62½@7.85.

Close: Wheat, July, 63⅞c; September, 63⅝c; October, 65⅜c. Corn, July, 47¾c; September, 49⅝c. Oats, July, 30¼c; September, 31¼c. Pork, July, $14.20; September, $14.40. January, $13.35. Lard, July, $8.60; September, $8.67½; October, $8.65; December, $8.37½; January, $8.30. Ribs, July, $7.50½; September, $8.02½@8.05; October, $8.00; January, $7.50. Flax, cash Northwestern, $1.88; No. 1, $1.88; September, $1.48; October, $1.42. Corn, No. 2, 47½@48c; No. 3, 46¾@47c. Oats, No. 2, 31@31½c; No. 3, 30¼@31c. Rye, July, 43¾c; September, 43¾@45c. Barley, cash, 40@68. Timothy, September, $4.80; October, $4.75. Clover, cash, $8.50.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Chicago, July 10.—Wheat—Liverpool was fairly strong today, closing ¼d higher in sympathy with the firmer tone here. There was no special reason for the strength in our market, except the strength in corn and oats, which induced the covering of a number of short lines of wheat. There was some talk of damage by rust in the Northwest, but it could not be verified and up to this time seems to have no basis. All reports from the West and Northwest continue the most flattering. Unless some damage develops during the next two weeks to the spring wheat crop, we can see no reason to look for any high prices for wheat.

Corn—Liverpool was also higher for the day. This is in sympathy with the advance in our market. Reports from the country are of continued high temperature and dry weather. Some showers are predicted for tomorrow with slightly cooler weather throughout the corn belt. The local crowd as well as the country are bullish and will continue buying it and putting up the price until there is some relief to the present weather conditions, but if at any time we should get rain we are liable to see a bad break.

Oats have been very strong all day on continued bad reports from the harvest fields and closed at almost the highest point. We have also seen reports indicate a very poor crop of oats not only for the United Kingdom, but also for France and Russia. We consider oats cheaper than corn on basis of present prices.

Provisions opened very strong on further advance in hogs. The local crowd were caught short and became panicky and a material advance resulted. Armour and Cudahy were very heavy buyers all day, and there is no doubt now but they are on the long side. Other heavy traders were buyers also and general trade is swinging into the bull side. We advise buying October ribs and lard. Estimate hogs tomorrow 25,000.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecast Official.

T indicates inappreciable rainfall.
*Minimum temperature for yesterday.
Maximum for twenty-four hours ending 8 a. m., 75th meridian time.

Note—The average maximum and minimum temperatures and the average rainfall are made up at each center from the actual numbers reported. The word "state of weather" is that prevailing at time of observation.

IS PAINSTAKING.

Testimony of War Correspondent Undoubtedly True.

New York, July 10.—The London correspondent of the Tribune declares that Edgar Wallace, the correspondent in South Africa of the Daily Mail, whose articles touching the conduct of the war are attracting attention, is known as a painstaking correspondent, and the war office will not find it easy to invalidate his testimony. The colonies, the Tribune's correspondent continues, are especially interested in his exposure of the senseless vagaries of censorship, since one of the principal efforts of the mutilation of his dispatches was an injustice in withholding credit from the colonial troops.

MARQUAND & COMPANY.

Assignee Will Issue Statement Very Soon.

New York, July 10.—Frank Sullivan Smith, assignee of the firm of Henry Marquand & Co., said today it was true that certain stocks held by the firm for customers had been re-hypothecated. He further said that to some extent the firm's difficulties were caused by an attempt to secure control of the Chicago, Shawmut & Northern road. Marquand & Co. were employed as agents to sell the bonds of the road and were to have 40 per cent of its capital stock for floating the bonds. Mr. Smith said that he had received no statement of any kind as yet from the Seventh National bank.

"It is not certain as yet that before the beginning of next week, I shall issue my statement anyway. It probably will be made public Tuesday."

WANT TEN-HOUR DAY.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 10.—All freight handlers in the employ of the Milwaukee road here went on strike today. They do not ask for increased pay, but want working hours limited to ten hours per day. Superintendent Beardsley has arrived to adjust the matter.

TOOK NO ACTION.

New York, July 10.—The directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad were in conference for more than an hour today but apparently took no action on the threatened Western rate war.

WILL NOT RETURN.

Newport News, Va., July 10.—The striking machinists were in session this morning two and a half hours and voted not to return to work tomorrow morning. A telegram was received from President O Connell of the International Association of Machinsts promising assistance.

EPWORTH CONVENTION.

The North-Western Line Official Route for Coference.

The North-Western Line—Omaha road—is the official route of the Minnesota conference to the fifth international Epworth league convention, July 18 to 21, at San Francisco. By this line a number of inexpensive side trips may be made to places of historic interest and to world-renowned scenic resorts.

Rates for round trip from Duluth, by way of Omaha, Denver, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, Garden of the Gods, Royal George, Salt Lake City and Ogden, $50.00; same trip going, returning via Northern Lines, $62.

A grand opportunity to cross the Rocky Mountains and see California and the Pacific ocean.

For choice of routes, tickets, illustrated folders and all information, apply to G. M. Smith, general agent, 405 West Superior street, Duluth, Minn.

$24.50 Pan-American, Buffalo

Until further notice the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets, all rail, via Chicago, to Buffalo and return, for $24.50. Good returning ten days from date of sale. For full information call at city ticket office, 332 West Superior street, or Union depot.

Notice.

July 6 to 13, the Northern Pacific railway will sell first-class tickets Duluth to Helena, Butte and Anaconda, Mont., and return for $35; to Spokane, Wash., $40, going transit limit July 15, return up to and including Aug. 31. Stop overs allowed in both directions within limit. For tickets and full information call at city ticket office, 332 West Superior street, Union depot or Fifty-ninth avenue, West Duluth.

REACTION IN STOCKS

Prices Opened Slightly Higher But Weakness Soon Developed.

Heaviness Produced By News of Gold Export Engagement.

Figured This Would Produce a Firmer Money Market.

New York, July 10.—Opening prices of stocks were better than last night, being assisted by an active demand in London for St. Paul, Union Pacific, and Atchison. The opening prices of these stocks here was not up to London parity and the tendency was reactionary after the opening. St. Paul after opening a point fell back a quarter. St. Louis & San Francisco showed a gain of half.

The relapse in prices were soon checked by good demand for Louisville, St. Paul, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Sugar which sold 1@1⅝ above yesterday's close. Stocks of local corporations were also absorbed heavily and advanced from 1 to 3 points with Manhattan leading. Recoveries elsewhere were small and considerable U. S. Steel, Atchison, Erie and Amalgamated Copper were offered on the rise. Lackawanna jumped 5 points on a few transactions. The leading stocks yielded again to the extent of a point for Louisville, St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Manhattan, New York Central and B. & O.

Heaviness developed all round on announcement of a gold export engagement of $750,000. Professional traders argued that this withdrawal from the small reserves of the banks would produce a firmer money market and they put out short lines of the active stocks causing reactions running to 2½@3⅝ points. Manhattan, Atchison, St. Paul, Rock Island, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, and Baltimore & Ohio scored the largest declines. General Electric improved 5½. Bonds were easier.

The lowest prices of the day were made in the final hour, which from the highest made Rock Island's decline 5, St. Paul 7¼, Lackawanna 7, General Electric 4¼, Louisville, Union Pacific, Atchison and Missouri 5¼ to 6 points, Consolidated Gas 5 and other leading stocks between 2 and 3 points. There was a slight rally in the late dealings, caused by covering by room shorts, and the market weakened. The close was quiet at the lowest.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf gossip to Edwards, Wood & Co.—The rally in the stock market is attributed to buying by Morgan interests and it is the belief of well informed brokers that the big financiers personally responsible for the main portion of the buying orders in the stock. Erie and the Readings showed good advances. Whether the Standard Oil people are in sympathy with a bull movement at this time is another question and one in which current views conflict. While conditions for ex ample railroad earnings, the state of general business of the large wheat crop are still regarded as very favorable the treasury continues to take money from the banks at the rate of $500,000 to $1,000,000 a day together with the facts that the bank surplus reserve is smaller than it has been at this season for many years makes the average trader cautious. Commission houses, too, while bullish for the pull are generally advising their clients to buy only on the market's weak days. They lay considerable stress on the disappointing form of the financial situation and the continued apathy of the public. On the other hand, the forthcoming government report is expected to exert a favorable influence on the wheat carrying roads. The condition of corn proves to be lower than the average as some grain men anticipate.

Town topics to Baker—Some further improvement may be expected this morning, but profits should be taken on stocks bought yesterday as reactions are certain from time to time until the corn crop is out of danger and money is easier. There will be no repetition of Monday's slump, but stocks should only be bought on weak spots. A traders' market is probable for a week. The bank statement should be good. The strike will be settled later in the week, and the rate war has been averted. Stocks have gone into strong hands and all that is needed is rain in the corn belt. With rains in the Southwest, the market will take an upward start. Higher in August may be looked for.

Ennis & Stoppain to Edwards, Wood & Co.—The big men have been buying stocks again. The market will probably continue a little feverish but it should improve. With earnings showing a material increase over the great increases of a year ago the companies with large surplus and on hand business prospects should be brighter than ever, the value of railroad and well established industrials' shares should keep pace with the increased value of real estate and banks' shares.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 10.—Cotton opened easy. July 3 points higher and other months 1 to 7 points lower under selling for both accounts and almost total absence of bull support. Prompted by reports that a heavy rain storm had appeared on the Texas coast. Before 11 a. m. August had rallied to 7.80, October to 7.61 and January to 7.65 on profit taking by shorts. Trading was active during all the forenoon with the markets extremely feverish and irregular.

Cotton spot closed dull, ⅛c lower; middling uplands, 8⅛; middling gulf, 8⅜; sales, 5256 bales. Cotton futures closed easy; July, 823; August, 773; September, 750; November, 751; December, 753; January, 755; February, 755; March, 758; April, 759.

REFUGEE RELEASED.

Escaped Boer Prisoner Was Merely Fined.

New York, July 10.—The Boer refugee, David Stephen Duplooy, who was held by the immigration officials as a stowaway immigrant, was released today by the board of special inquiry, after examination into the case. Duplooy came here on the Trinidad, aftr escaping from Darrel's island, Bermuda, British West Indies. The case was treated as that of a stowaway immigrant, no weight being given to the fact that Duplooy had been a prisoner of war. H. Von Waay, owner of an apartment house in this city and a ranch in Yuma county, Col., assured the board that he would look after the Boer, and that there was no danger of his becoming a public charge. The board then disposed of the case by imposing a fine of $10, which was paid by Charles D. Pierce, the representative in this city of the former Orange Free State.

NO LEAGUERS ABOARD.

San Francisco Specials Behind Wrecked Train.

Chicago, July 10.—In response to many anxious inquiries the Chicago & Alton officials have announced that Epworth League specials, bound for San Francisco, which left Chicago yesterday, were run after the second and third sections of the train that was wrecked. So far as they know, there were no Epworth Leaguers from Chicago or the East on board the first section. Their trains will be delayed several hours.

BLOWN AWAY.

Port Lavaca Struck By a Fierce Storm.

Austin, Texas, July 10.—Private telegrams state that Port Lavaca, Calhoun county, was swept away last night by a storm.

Nearly all the houses were blown away and a large number of boats were wrecked, but no lives are known to have been lost.

Port Lavaca is on Lavaca bay, Gulf of Mexico.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Steel Freight Steamer Colonel to Be Launched Saturday.

Detroit and Buffalo Line Boats Will Then Be Built.

Good Demand From Chicago Shippers With Good Rate.

Detroit, July 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steel freight steamer Colonel, built at Wyandotte, for Detroit parties will be launched at noon Saturday. The steamer is 276 feet over all and 50 feet beam. As soon as this boat is in the water the keel of the first Detroit and Buffalo line boats will be laid. The first of these boats will be launched in November. This will give the builders time to get the cabins completed by the opening of navigation next spring.

GOOD DEMAND.

Chicago, July 10.—(Special to The Herald).—There was good demand from shippers today and on cargoes in Chicago river rates were quoted at 1⅝c on wheat. From South Chicago this rate was shaded.

THIS IS THE MONTH OF THE PARASOL

Sunshades This Year are Gorgeous to Behold--- How to Carry Them Is What Every Woman Does Not Know.

New York, July 8.—There may be nothing new under the sun, but a decidedly novel exhibition is to take place this month under the patronage of the queen of the Belgians. It is to be a competition of parasols and sunshades decorated in all sorts of fanciful and artistic ways with flowers and jewels. This is certainly a novel idea and will doubtless attract the feminine world of fashion. Speaking of parasols, the latest sunshades that are carried by the daughters of Midas are gorgeous to behold, especially those of silk trimmed with lace applique and fluffy puffings of tulle. The panels are treated with floral Watteau designs, or Vandyke motifs of lace sprayed in the center with embroidery. The ribs inside, once so unsightly in parasols which were otherwise objects of perfect beauty, are hidden by means of narrow bands of moire silk. Sometimes the whole interior is exquisitely puffed with cloudlike tulle.

Jewels frequently illuminate the base of the handles.

July is the month of the parasol. Without the parasol there might be no summer girl at all. Browned and burned, freckled and tanned, perspiring, drooping and faded, she would drag herself along, a poor specimen of womanhood, a feeble representation of her present high self.

There are all ways of carrying a parasol. The favorite way to carry it is as a baby is carried, resting upon the arm with its top or head over the shoulder, the rest supported by the lower arm. This graceful and becoming method has been generally adopted as being not aggressive nor yet at all awkward.

To carry the parasol folded over the shoulder is to present a warlike attitude as though the parasol were at "right shoulder." To carry it under the arm is unpardonable, a sure mark of a "jay," man or woman. To point it out backward, with the end pointed upward, is just as bad. To carry it crosswise, horizontally, with the ends in both hands, is not pretty, and to carry it by the middle is never to be admired. No, there are only a few graceful ways of carrying the closed parasol, and these should be diligently studied by the girl of the summer.

The woman who can seat herself with a parasol over her head with any degree of grace is a rare avis. She will want either to rest it on one shoulder or to twirl it, or tip it, or do something with it beside the right thing, which is simply to do nothing at all.

The sitting attitude, with the parasol over the head, is the one to be adopted for the grand stand, whether it be to witness a ball game or a turf event. Properly seated, with the parasol held at right height over the head, the young woman makes a very pretty picture. The attitude is a restful one and a fashionable one. This is called the cup race pose. It is the one that will be adopted this September by the young woman who goes to see the Constitution beat the Shamrock.

To put down the parasol with any degree of grace requires an amount of practice not to be expected. It is easy enough to reach out at arm's length and haul down the parasol by pressing on the spring and pulling the framework shut.

But that isn't all that is needed to insure grace. Taking one attitude with another, there is nothing more surely ungraceful than the one that is employed by a young woman who makes up her mind to haul down her sail and sets out with the determination to do it. She stretches out her arms at full length, as though she were afraid her parasol would fly apart and hurt her. The spring is touched gingerly, and, often, with a grimace as though she were afraid of it. Finally, when the ribs begin to hold together, the structure is pulled into shape with a snap that is far from graceful.

There is a pretty pose possible to her who would put down her parasol as it should be put down. But she will have to practice it very often before she can acquire it. To do it well she must draw the parasol toward her, instead of reaching out at arm's length after it. She must tip the handle, lower the top, pull all toward her, and, finally, reaching into the mechanism, touch the spring that releases it.

The opportunity for the pretty pose comes just before the spring is touched. The top is lowered and the eyes of the girl are peeping at you over it. Her fingers press the steel lightly, while her eyes dance at you. You know that the moment is only a fleeting one, a mere second, but what a beautiful second it is, with those eyes before you and those dimples in the cheeks tempting you above the parasol. That is the way to lower a sunshade, the only one.

It is said that Mrs. Langtry has a wonderful trick with a parasol. She is as clever with it as with a fan, and talking to her one absolutely cannot see her face, unless she so wills. She laughs, she flirts, she coquettes, she becomes grave, all sheltered behind her shade, and you can only guess her mood. But, the insatnt she wills, with a twirl the parasol is raised, or lowered, or flung upon one shoulder or the other, and her lovely, long, oval eyes look at you. She is a "winner" in the matter of looks and no one to dispute it.

One of the newest fads in portrait painting is to portray the fair sitter, under the shade of her parasol. She must seat herself in a garden chair and must hold her parasol over her head, so that its shade falls upon the face. None of her features are hidden, but she is as under a becoming canopy. A famous society painter of England is making a specialty of these portraits, having done one of the Princess Victoria and another of a famous court beauty.

FIGURED LIBERTY SATIN.

These gayly figured waists keep their seasonable character by having white grounds and white irregular bandings on the collar fronts and wrists. There is in this one a little vest of kilted white mousseline.

FOR A TOT OF FOUR.

This little dress is a beautiful example of this summer models for baby girls of 3 and 4. It is of white mull trimmed with Valenciennes lace and has a blue silk mousseline ribbon sash.

Any kind of a parasol will do for the summer's coquetry, for it is not at all the parasol, but the handling of it that makes the sensation.

To go without this summer adjunct is a sad bit of thoughtlessness, a thing of which the summer girl is never guilty, and for the consequences of which she would not be responsible. It is one of the few very useful things that are also very beautiful.

Is it possible that the shirt waist is going, even a wee bit, out of vogue? This has been a great buying and selling season for shirt waists and shirt waist talk has filled the waking hours of most women to the exclusion of other absorbing subjects. And yet streets, depots, shopping districts and street cars tell tales of shirt waist decadence. Three out of every five smart looking women in town wear muslin frocks. Not for many years—in fact since before the shirt waist era—have so many muslin gowns been worn in the street by well-dressed women. Five years ago the so-called blazer suit and a shirt waist were worn for warm-day shopping. Before that fancy ginghams were re digueur. The blazer suit was followed by the old skirt and shirt waist as a costume. Then came the short skirt and shirt waist. Last year every woman managed to look cool, trim and not too informal in a shirt waist gown of silk or linen. This year started in as a pongee and white shirt waist season, but the muslin frock has certainly "won out" with the best-dressed class of women.

A new notion in glove buttons applied to a driving glove in cape kid are three dome buttons in varying sizes, the largest at the top.

A stocking luxury is the pineapple lace clox, copied from a seventeenth century stocking. The ornamentation begins well up the calf, and is carried down on to the instep.

A new comb is semi-circular shape, specially useful for low hairdressing, after the order of a horseshoe, which admits of one coil coming round the top and one below. Blonde and dark tortoiseshell side combs, ornamented in the Nouveau art style, for the first time display cat's eyes or brilliants, and are inlaid with gold. Then there is the cork-screw hairpin, invaluable in riding, dancing, or any other active exercise, for it cannot possibly fall out. Instead of pushing it in, as the ordinary hairpin, it is screwed into the hair.

Stripes are in high favor, the ground preferably white, with black, dark blue and red, the favorite color of the stripe. All white material with a raised cord running over the surface, or a satin stripe, are being sold for shirt waists, as well as entire gowns. Mercerized zephyrs in all the leading shades are seen on the counters. Black mercerized fabrics are very popular, both on shirt waists and petticoats.

Black, white and blue make one of the most fashionable combinations. Thus, while muslins, spotted with black, are trimmed with blue embroidery. Swiss muslins in great variety are displayed in the shops, some with very realistic designs in large flowers; others embroidered with white, black or the same color as the garment, and without limit as to patterns.

Very elaborate linen gowns in the paler shades of blue trimmed with Irish lace or white embroidery, the former making the entire blouse, is one pretty model seen. Rather a coarse threaded and glossy linen is employed for gowns and waists, but it is nevertheless soft and pliable.

A new make of glace silk is particularly well suited to the fashionable blouse of the day, for in buying it you buy the trimming also. It is the ordinary silk width. The white and black have alternate stripes of open hemstitching and a stitched satin braid bordered on either side with a double row of stitching, which makes a simulation of the tooth edge in architecture—a continuous vandyke, in fact—standing up in relief. In gray silk and other shades the open hemstitch forms the center of the stripe, interthreaded with silver, with the same vandykes on either side, alternating with a floral scroll-work in tambour carried out in silver thread.

The empire style is the chief feature in the summer tea gowns, the draperies either of lace over satin or sun-ray plaited chiffon, as well as oriental satins, tucked and profusely trimmed with lace scarves.

Even to the children has the fancy for reviving old fashions been extended, and now the square-cropped, familiar in pictures of children taken forty years ago and seen occasionally during the last year, has been generally adopted in smart circles. It is said that its renascenca is due to the French painter and illustrator, Boutet de Monvel, whose pictures of children are highly popular in Paris. His favorite type is the chubby faced, snubby nosed, piquant and smiling boy or girl, with the hair cut straight behind the ears.

If the boy has a low forehead, his head is adorned by what the grandmothers of the present generation termed a top-knot. This is a lock of hair rolled and tied into a puff by a podgy bow of ribbon. If the forehead is high, it is more likely to have a fringe nearly to the eyebrows, cut as square as the hair behind.

The dress of the same period has returned also, and the fashionable child seems to be all body, as the waist of her dainty frock reaches almost to her knees, the skirt being a mere ruffle not more than six or seven inches deep.

A wide sash with a vast bow surmounts the skirt and short white stockings and "ankle ties" clothe the little legs and feet. The effect, as a whole, is quaint and picturesque.

A FEW OLD-FASHIONED PLAIN DISHES.

When all is told, there is a relish in the old-fashioned dishes made from recipes handed down with religious care from some well-beloved grandmother, who in her time, possessed with her many other virtues the knowledge of good cooking. Many of these recipes, to be sure, need a considerable amount of good judgment on the part of the modern housewife in order to get them just right; for while our grandmothers gauged to a nicety the proportion of liquids and solids necessary, they did not always give a formula with directions for mixing the materials together. Then, too, while the quality of materials may not have changed, the mode of preparation of such commodities as flour, gelatine, tapioca and many other materials in common use, have been greatly improved upon. Of quite recent years, and since we have stirred up an interest in our colonial history, we have revived and rediscovered many delightful old-time dishes; while others have been with us and handed down from generation to generation. Among the old-fashioned meat dishes, we have a variety that may be classed as stews and fricassees. These dishes are really more appetizing for hot weather dishes than when meats are roasted or baked.

IRISH STEW.

This is a dish that is appetizing and not greasy which is the objectionable feature of so many meat stews. Have six loin chops cut from the neck of mutton; flour them well and lay them in a stewing pan with a medium-sized onion sliced, a level tablespoonful of butter and place over a quick fire, where they will brown nicely; turning the chops and stirring the onion to prevent burning. When the onions and chops are a little brown add a pint of cold water. If fat arises to the top of the pan, skim it off carefully. Add a level teaspoonful of salt and a quarter of a teaspoonful of white pepper; cover the stewing pan and set where the meat will simmer gently. Cook one and one-half hours and skim again. Add a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce and see if the gravy is well seasoned. Pare and add eight or ten rather small potatoes cut in half, lengthwise; cover closely and simmer again until the potatoes are done. Let the potatoes lie on top of the meat so they will steam. Do not cover them with the liquid, as this will make a quantity of broth and not a good, rich gravy.

Arrange the chops in the center of a hot platter, with the potatoes around the edge. Pour the gravy over the meat and sprinkle a little minced parsley over it all. A carrot cut into cubes and boiled separately in salted water may be mixed with the potato border to add color as well as flavor to the dish.

A SIMPLE HARICOT OF MUTTON.

Take nice rib chops and trim off nearly all the fat. Flour them well, lay in a stew-pan with a very little fat, and brown them well without burning them; when done add one carrot and one turnip cut into cubes, an onion sliced, quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper, a teaspoonful of salt, and water enough to just cover. Cook very gently for two and one-half hours. Skim off every particle of grease. Take up the chops; arrange them around a mound of string beans, which have been cut in two-inch pieces. Form a border around the chops of the carrots and turnips, and set the dish where it will keep hot while you prepare a brown sauce from the strained liquor. Season this and pour over the meat and serve.

STEWED BEEFSTEAK.

Take a round steak weighing two pounds and cut up into pieces the size to serve. Dredge each piece well with flour; put into a stewpan with a little vegetable oil and brown on both sides; then add two dessert spoons of good vinegar, sprinkle each piece with salt and pepper, cover closely and place the stewpan where the meat will cook at a gentle simmer for one hour. Remove cover, add one small onion sliced, a small carrot, a small turnip and one cupful of hot water. Cover and let simmer for two hours longer. Take up the meat and keep hot, skim off any fat that may appear on top of the liquor; add to the gravy such sauces and catsups as you may have that are suitable. Worcestershire sauce and mushroom catsup preferred. Rub all the vegetables you can through a sieve, add to the gravy and thicken with a little browned flour. Season to taste, let boil up and pour over the meat. A pretty border for this may be made by pressing plain boiled spinach into small cups or molds, filling about two-thirds full, then turning them out, flattening the tops and placing a slice of hard-boiled egg or spiced beet, cut into fancy shapes, on each mold.

A NICE POTATO PUDDING WITH MEAT.

Boil the potatoes, as for mashing, rub through a calendar or put through a press; make a thick batter with milk and beaten eggs, cut underdone roast beef or steak into rather large pieces, and lay in bottom of the dish; then a layer of the batter; then more meat, seasoning well; more batter, and so on until all is used, having top layer of the batter. Bake a nice brown in moderately hot oven.

MACARONI PUDDING.

Simmer two ounces of macaroni in a pint of milk until tender, with a bit of lemon peel and a small piece of cinnamon; then put into a pudding dish with milk the yolks of two eggs, white of one, sugar, nutmeg and a little candied ginger root. Put a border of paste around the edge of the dish and bake a nice brown in moderate oven. A layer of orange marmalade or raspberry jam may be used instead of the ginger.

APPLE CHARLOTTE.

Cut as many very thin slices of white bread as will cover the bottom and line the sides of a baking dish that is rubbed thick with butted. Then put apples in thin slices into the dish, in layers, till full, strewing sugar and bits of butter between. In the meantime soak as many thin slices of bread as will cover the top in warm milk. Lay over a plate, to keep the bread close to the apples. Bake slowly for three hours. To a middling-sized dish use half a pound of butter.

FRESH APPLE PAN-DOWDY.

Butter a deep, brown, earthen pudding-dish; peel and slice apples enough to fill it; for two quarts of apples, use a teaspoonful each of powdered cinnamon and salt, half a pound of brown sugar, half a pint of cider or water. Thoroughly mix the spice, salt and sugar upon the apples and pour the water or cider over them. Cover with a plain pie paste, place in a moderate oven and bake slowly for three hours, taking care that the oven is not hot enough to burn the crust. This may be eaten hot or cold, with sugar and cream.

BLACKBERRY POT-PIE.

If you have bread dough on hand, use that, if not make a soft baking powder dough with two cupfuls flour, two eggs, one cupful sweet milk, and two teaspoonfuls baking powder. Butter a deep dish, put in a thin layer of the dough, cover with the berries, then sprinkle with sugar; add another layer of dough, then more berries and sugar and a top layer of dough. Make a small, round hole in the center of each layer of dough, except the bottom one. Set the basin in a steamer and steam three hours. Serve with cream. Cherries or peaches may be used instead of the blackberries, and are delicious. Bits of butter added to the fruit is an improvement.

GRANDMOTHER'S CHERRY PUDDING.

Beat three eggs very light without separating them; add to them two cupfuls of milk. Measure three and one-half cupfuls of sifted flour; add to this three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt, and sift thoroughly. Make a hollow in the center and slowly pour in the liquid; mixing in the flour until you have a smooth batter. Then add two level tablespoonfuls of melted butter and two cupfuls of stoned cherries, well drained and dredged with flour. Stir well into the batter, and then turn into the pudding-dish or mold, cover closely and steam for three hours. The water in the steamer or boiler must boil continuously, and if more must be added replenish with boiling water.

INQUIRIES ANSWERED.

(No attention paid to inquiries not giving name and address of writer, plainly written.)

Mrs. W. S. D. writes: Will you please publish a recipe for canning berries without cooking. Also for a sour drink for summer that can be made quickly or kept on hand ready for use?

CANING BERRIES WITHOUT COOKING.

The principle involved in canning fruits is to preserve them as nearly as possible in their natural fresh condition for future. This can be done only by perfect and complete sterilization to kill all germs of life. Therefore a sufficient degree of heat must be used for this purpose.

Many vegetables may be canned by the cold water process, but this will not answer for ripe fruits.

Green fruits and light-colored fruits, such as pears, peaches and pineapples, are put up in clear water in which a preservative is used to prevent fermentation and decay; but these are objectionable, even if not injurious to health, as the qualities which enable these preservatives to prevent the food from "spoiling" also hinder the normal functions of the digestive ferments.

Fruits may be preserved in brandy without cooking, but this is, of course, objectionable.

They may also be preserved by putting fruit and sugar in small glass jars or tumblers and cooking in the hot sun or baking in the oven; but that must be applied in some way to preserve the fruit. It may be canned without sugar; berries may be cooked without any sweetening and just enough water to prevent burning, quickly put into sterilized glass jars and sealed tightly. From ten to fifteen minutes is sufficient for berries. For this purpose the berries must be perfect, fresh and not a day over-ripe. Perhaps article on canning and preserving, which will soon appear, will aid you somewhat.

LEMON SYRUP.

No beverage is more refreshing or wholesome in hot weather than lemonade; if you live "miles from a lemon" and cannot have them fresh at your command, prepare the syrup, which will keep, bottled, for a long time.

Grate the yellow rind from twelve large lemons, and beat up with six tablespoonfuls of sugar. Then squeeze out the juice of the lemons, and to each pint add a pint of water and three and a half pounds of granulated sugar; with that mixed with the grated rind, set over the fire in a porcelain-lined kettle and stir until the sugar is dissolved, and you have rather a thick syrup. A tablespoonful to a glass of water makes a delicious drink. Raspberry vinegar also makes a most refreshing drink.

CONFECTIONER'S SUGAR.

Mrs. S. E. McG. writes: Will you please tell me what you call confectioner's sugar?

Confectioner's sugar is fine white powdered sugar, known as XXX sugar, and is used by confectioners for icing and candy making. It is purer than the ordinary powdered sugar, sweeter and does not lump or cake as does the former.

AT CLOQUET.

John Erickson's Five-Year-Old Boy Instantly Killed.

Cloquet, Minn., July 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Erickson's 5-year-old boy met with a fatal accident Monday afternoon. One of Johnson-Wentworth company's dump carts had been delivering a load of wood, and was coming out of the yard, and the driver, named Murphy, had all he could do to handle the double team. Erickson's child had been playing around the cart unnoticed by the driver, and in some way fell. The wheel of the heavy cart passed over his head, causing instant death, the skull being crushed in. The accident is a peculiarly sad one, as only about a month ago Mr. Erickson's wife died, and this second bereavement has driven the father almost frantic.

Rev. Heard reports a peculiar experience in conducting the funeral of a Mr. Wolfe, of Floodwood, on Monday. The house having been quarantined, the corpse was removed into the street and the services held in the open air.

The funeral of the late M. T. Mongovan took place at the Catholic church on Tuesday morning, and was attended by a large concourse of citizens and friends.

At the meeting of the school board on Monday evening the following members were present: Messrs. Thompson, Hornby, McNair and Leach. After formal business was disposed of, it was resolved to accept Ole Kolsette's offer of $225 for the two lots owned by the board in Eastern division. It was also decided to build an addition to Lincoln school of two rooms, size 24 by 38. Mr. Hornby was instructed to have a new drain put in from Central High School, and to have the building put on thorough sanitary condition. No action was taken looking to the election of a new superintendent.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Murray left yesterday, to be absent about a month.

Miss Ada Chariton, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Harriman, has returned home.

Gus Norman went to Duluth yesterday on business.

John Perault, living on Third street, fell from the roof of the sorting shed, in course of erection, at the Brooks-Scanlon company's mill, straining his back severely and otherwise injuring himself. The attending physician does not, however, consider his injuries serious.

It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—
It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—
As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—
By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

TALKS BY TEACHERS

Fads In Education Are Discussed By Superintendent Soldam.

Extreme Views Which May Lead to Wrong Practices.

Plan of All Play and No Work Is Wrong.

Detroit, July 10.—"Elementary Education" was the general topic discussed under various heads by the National Educational association this morning. There were more than 2500 teachers in Light Guard armory when Bishop Foley, of Detroit, arose to open the session with a prayer. President Green then introduced F. Louis Soldam, superintendent of city schools, St. Louis, as the first speaker. His paper was on "What Is a Fad?" He said in part:

"The wonderful achievement made in public instruction in the last ten years has been attended by certain incidental effects which, while they may neither be serious or extensive, have nevertheless attracted public attention and have aroused censure in public prints. There has been a widespread discussion in regard to what has been called 'fads' in education. The charge is made that in many places public schools undertake to teach what is not necessary to the neglect and disregard of the essentials of common school education. There is the widest possible possible difference in regard to the question 'what is fad?' Anything on which stress is laid in excess of its real educational value, and which it finds in public opinion a necessary and serious educational want, and be an innovation which will take rank among the proper subjects of instruction or educational practices in the school room.

"Drawing, music and manual training have frequently been called fads. They are not fads as long as they are limited to the elements of these arts. To give the child a knowledge of some popular songs, to have the school open and close with music, does not seem open to objection. Drawing, as long as its object is the cultivation of the mind and eye in the elements of form, is a branch which is universally useful and may properly be considered a part of public education. If, however, instruction in drawing or music is carried to an extreme, if the aim is not to educate the powers of each child, but to train atists, these studies, otherwise valuable, may become fads. Any study, or any alleged school room practice will become a fad when exaggerated and carried beyond its true value.

"There are, however, practices which have appeared in the last few years—fortunately in a few places, to which the word 'fad,' 'frill' or 'fringe,' which public opinion applies to them, properly belongs. There are people to whom the love of the new in education is as strong as the love of fashion is in social life. Not enough discrimination is exercised in selecting from new plans and devices in teaching those that are wise and helpful. It is characteristic of most of the fads that they are launched into the world with the loud promise of important results, alleged to be easy of attainment by them at some future time, but no tangible results have flown from many of those innovations, heralded with enthusiasms and perused with zeal.

"There are fads of educational theory as well as of educational practice. The idea that the child is the center of all education, or, on the other hand, the opposite idea that the adult man, his possibilities in and duties in life, form the key to all education, are extreme views which may lead to wrong practices. The truth lies widway between. The aims of all child education lie in the future. The child is to be educated for the sake of the adult, into which he is to grow. On the other hand, spiritual and adult manhood must be fashioned from the material and under the conditions which child life presents. To make education all play and entertainment instead of work, to require the educator to stoop down to the child instead of standing erect and patiently teaching the child to walk with him, is a common educational mistake. The old plan of all work and no play was bad enough, but the plan of all play and no work is not any better.

"Another series of educational mistakes has grown out of the exaggeration of otherwise valid practices. Pestalozzi's thought that illustration and object teaching have an important place in all kinds of instruction has in some few cases been carried to an extreme. So much illustration and explanation is at times furnished that the power of the child to think and work for an understanding of the lesson is not called sufficiently into play.

"Not a few errors, called 'fads,' find their origin in the tendency of modern education to leave everything to individual education and caprice. Where the amount of educational work to be done at each stage in the child's school life has been definitely determined and fixed by a sensible course of study, the teacher works with a feeling of no responsibility, and concentrates his attention and thought on the solid school work. Where the course of study, however, is left to individual choice and caprice, instruction is liable to wander and include educational practices and devices which are ornamental rather than useful.

"Fads, however, are not altogether of the teacher's creation. Not a few originate in the erroneous demands of the community. The idea that common school education should be limited to three R's was a fad of the worst description. The demand that spelling should be cultivated by the old mechanical methods of constant oral drill tends to throw other more important studies—for instance, the ability to write good English, well-spelled and well-arranged composition—into the background. The good sense of the teachers and of the American people are the best safeguard against the prevalence of fads in public school instruction. They both demand that education should constantly adjust itself to the requirements of life and to the development of the best faculties of the child, and that the necessary and useful in education shall ever be placed above the the merely ornamental."

Charles H Richards, of New York, spoke on "How Early May Handiwork be Made a Part of School Work?" He said:

"Every consideration of child nature points to the immense significance of handwork as a feature of instruction from the very beginning of school life. The real question is not how early should handwork be introduced in the school, but how late should it be extended. With the child of the early primary grades, handwork is one of the natural channels through which the inner thought and feeling find expression. Such natural expression through handwork cannot take the form of set courses. It must be a matter of adaptation to the life of each particular school. It must recognize the school and the out-of school interests. It must be a part of life and not a formal drill. Variety of materials and processes are necessary to fully achieve this end. Freedom and flexibility and appropriateness of task are more important than accuracy of form. Great accuracy of result is not truth of expression with the pupil of the early grades. Handwork in the early years of school must, to a large extent be a natural expression of ideas and interests represented by the other school work."

James H. Van Sickle, of Baltimore, in crowded?" said: "The curriculum is overcrowded by whatever it contains that lacks wholly the element of present use to the child. Just to the extent that purposeless work is done, or work with a purpose so far in the future as to be out of touch with the child's life, just to that extent is the curriculum overcrowded. The curriculum from the kindergarten to the university, may be compared to a pyramid with the kindergarten at the base, and the graduate school of the university at the apex; from the base upward there is a gradual narrowing in subject with increase of thoroughness till the apex is reached at which point only can absolute thoroughness be expected. A curriculum thus arranged may seem crowded! but if so, the fault lies with those who administer it.

"Because children, though classed together, come to the school with such varying amounts of general information; because they represent such extremes in their mental furniture, a closely prescriptive curriculum, just extensive enough for classes in one portion of a city might be quite unsuited to classes of the same grade in another portion of the same city. There must be as many courses of study as there are essential differences in population, or else there must be one course extensive enough to meet varying needs. The tendency has been toward the second of these plans."

William K. Fowler, state superintendent of public instruction, of Nebraska, who led the discussion on "What Is a Fad?" said:

"A school fad is a part or a line of school work with which one is not in full accord or sympathy, through ignorance of its purport or on account of an honest difference of opinion. It is a school room innovation in the experimental stage. In many Central states, the consolidation of small rural schools and the transportation of pupils by public conveyance may be considered and is sometimes termed a fad, but it is a fad that will grow in favor as its advantages are better understood by the public. Drawing, music and elementary science are not fads, and they have a distinct value. Manual training in its various phases, domestic, science, etc., may or may not be fads, according to local conditions. Extending the departments from colleges down through high schools into the grammar grades is, I fear, a dangerous fad. We lack the time and the public lack patience to wait for results in uncertain experimentation in the grammar grades. That which the public schools do in the direction of developing and strengthening an earnest desire for better living, for honest labor, for higher citizenship, for independence, for self reliance is not fadism."

NOT UNTIL OCTOBER.

Albany, N. Y., July 10.—There is reliable authority for the statement that the court of appeals, which met here today, will not hand down any decision in the Molineux murder case until the October term of the court.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of twenty-eight hundred thirty-one and 50-100 ($2831.50) dollars, which is claimed to be due, and is actually due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly made, executed and delivered by Andrew W. Eller and Christine C. Eller, his wife, of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to Emily Chambers, of St. Louis County, Minnesota, mortgagee, said mortgage bearing date the 4th day of June, in the year of our Lord, eighteen hundred ninety-six, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 6th day of June, A. D. 1896, at 2:40 o'clock p. m., in Book 155 of mortgages, on page 112 thereof, which said mortgage was executed to secure the payment of one certain principal promissory note of even date with said mortgage, in the sum of twenty-five hundred ($2500.00) dollars, due and payable on the 4th day of June, 1901, with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, according to the conditions of ten (10) interest coupon notes, attached to said principal note, said notes being signed by said mortgagors, as makers, and payable to the order of and delivered to the said mortgagee; and said mortgage containing the provision that the said mortgagors should keep the property described in said mortgage unceasingly insured in some first-class responsible stock company, for at least the sum of twenty-five hundred ($2500.00) dollars, payable, in case of loss, to the said mortgagee, her heirs or assigns, as their interest may appear by providing that, in case the said mortgagors should not effect such insurance, and should fail to pay the premium therefor, then and in that case, the said mortgagee, her heirs or assigns should be empowered to effect such insurance, and pay all such unpaid premiums, and all sums of money paid for such purposes should be tacked and impressed as an additional lien upon said premises and should be secured by and be collectible as a part of said mortgage, and bear interest at the same rate as the indebtedness secured by the said mortgage;

And, whereas, default has been made in the conditions of said mortgage, which default consists in the non-payment of the principal and interest moneys secured by said mortgage, on which said mortgage, there is actually due as principal and interest moneys, the sum of twenty-seven hundred ninety-one ($2791.00) dollars;

And, whereas, the said mortgagors having failed to effect the insurance, as required by the terms of the said mortgage, on the property covered by said mortgage, and the said mortgagee having been heretofore required to effect the same, and having heretofore, on, to-wit, the 7th day of January, 1901, paid and expended as the premium of the insurance so effected, the sum of forty and 50-100 ($40.50) dollars, and said mortgagors have not repaid the same, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or insurance moneys mentioned, and no part of either thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that, by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situated in St. Louis County, Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit:

Lot numbered thirteen (13), in block numbered ninety-one (91), in the Portland Division of Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, to pay said debt, and the interest thereon, and the said sum so paid and expended by the said mortgagee for insurance, together with interest thereon from the date of the payment thereof, at the rate of seven per cent per annum, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, which said principal and interest and insurance amount, at the date hereof, to the said sum of twenty-eight hundred thirty-one and 50-100 ($2831.50) dollars, and for the sum of seventy-five ($75.00) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 24th day of August, A. D. 1901, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

CHALLENGER

Continues to Show Her Superiority Over the Shamrock I.

Rothesay, Firth of Clyde, July 11.—The two Shamrocks had another trial today, going out to windward in a four knot breeze. Though Shamrock I had the best of the start and the weather berth, Shamrock II quickly closed up the gap, passed the older boat and held a clear lead when they were both becalmed off Cumbrae.

Mr. Watson, the designer of the cup challenger, wants the trials continued next week.

STEAMER ASHORE.

Spanish Mail Steamer Mexico Is In Trouble.

Oporto, July 11.—The Spanish mail steamer Mexico from Buenos Ayres is ashore south of Viana. The passengers and crew are being landed. The Mexico is of 1366 tons net and is owned by the Compania Trans-Atlantica of Barcelona. She was built in 1876 at Glasgow, is 331 feet 5 inches long, has 34 feet 3 inches beam and 24 feet 9 inches deep.

YOUNGERS

Terms and Conditions of Their Parole.

Were At First Dazed By the Good News.

St. Paul, July 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Warden Henry Wolfer, of the state prison at Stillwater, said this morning that he did not know when the Younger brothers would be actually released from prison.

"We have not found work for them yet," he said, "and until suitable employment is found, such as the board of managers will approve, they will not be released. I have no doubt that such work can be found, but it may take some time. It is desirable, of course, to find work at which the men will not create any undue commotion, either among their fellow laborers or before the general public."

St. Paul, July 11.—The following are the documents of parole, showing the conditions on which the Younger brothers are restored to liberty:

IN THE MATTER OF THE PAROLE OF COLEMAN AND JAMES YOUNGER.

Upon principle and judicial authority, we are satisfied that chapter 234 of the laws of 1901 become law, although not approved by the governor. We also recognize that it is the exclusive province of the legislature to extend the parole system to life convicts, and it has done so subject to certain conditions and limitations. We are satisfied that the petitioners in this case have, by exceptionally good conduct in prison for a quarter of a century, and the evidence they have given of sincere reformation, earned the right to a parole if any life prisoner can do so. The question of the propriety of extending the parole system to life convicts is not for us, but has been determined by the legislature, and we are disposed to give effect to this declared purpose. The evidence presented establishes the fact that the petitioners are entitled to a parole under the provisions of the law. In view of these facts, we must either consent to their parole or arbitrarily refuse to give effect to the act.

It is doubtful whether the duty of acting in the matter of paroling prisoners can constitutionally be imposed by the legislature upon the chief justice as a member of the board of pardons; but, in view of the great importance of the question, he has decided not to raise the question at this time.

Dated July 10, 1901.

S. R. VAN SANT, Governor.

CHARLES M. START, Chief Justice Supreme Court.

WALLACE B. DOUGLAS, Attorney General.

PAROLE AGREEMENT.

Know all men by these presents, that the board of managers of the Minnesota state prison, desiring to test the ability of T. C. Younger, an inmate of said prison, to refrain from crime and lead an honorable life, do, by virtue of the authority conferred upon them by law, hereby parole the said T. C. Younger, and allow him to go on parole outside the buildings and enclosure of said prison, but not outside the state of Minnesota, subject, however, to the following rules, regulations and conditions, as made and provided by law and by the rules governing the conduct of life prisoners while on parole:

First—He shall not exhibit himself in any dime museum, circus, theater, opera house or any other place of public amusement or assembly where a

GULCH FULL OF DEBRIS

Great Damage Was Done to Corbin and Wickes By Torrent of Water Which Poured Down the Valley.

St. Paul, July 11.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: Debris is piled everywhere in the gulch in which are located Wickes and Corbin. Great damage to property was done by the torrent of water which poured down the narrow valley after the cloud burst. The concentrator of the Peck company, at Corbin, will have to close down because of damage to the machinery. Thirty men spent the whole day digging mud and rubbish from about the machinery. The men say the electrical and other machinery plants are so seriously damaged that it is doubtful whether the concentrator will start again for some weeks. A wave of water, sometimes six feet high and 200 feet wide, sometimes not so deep, but broader, swept down the gulch. Within half a mile of Wickes, toward Corbin, a fill on the Great Northern formed a dam. The water was backed up for a quarter of a mile before the embankment gave way with a roar that rivalled the noise of the thunder storm. Columns of water came down the gulch and the Northern Pacific depot was flooded over the platform. Mrs. Charles Turner and six small children were in their home in Twin Gulch. The torrent of rain started a landslide, and before the occupants suspected any danger the entire side of the house nearest the mountain was crushed in like an egg by an enormous boulder. That no one was struck by the shower of great rocks and earth which struck the house seems almost miraculous. As the wall of water tore down the gulch it practically demolished the Northern Pacific tracks and bridges. At several points great sections of rails and ties were picked up from the roadbed and bent and twisted into a mass of debris. Passengers were transferred all night and day. The flood carrying heavy timbers and debris of all kinds now reached Corbin. The concentrator and an outlying motor building were crushed and all the houses in Corbin were flooded. It is impossible to estimate the loss at present.

THIRD AND FINAL RACE

The Three Ninety Footers Struggle For Supremacy Over Thirty-Mile Course---The Independence Doing Remarkably Well.

Bateman's Point, July 11.—The third and final race of the series between the yachts Constitution, Columbia and Independence under the auspices of the Newport Yacht Racing club was started at 12:25 p. m. The yachts will sail a 15-mile windward and leeward race, the course being south-southwest with the turning mark near Block Island. The wind at this time was south-southwest, blowing a good smart 8-knot breeze.

The starting time as taken on shore was as follows:

Independence 12:25:15
Columbia 12:25:22
Constitution 12:25:28

Immediately after crossing the line, the Constitution tacked to port, all the yachts having crossed on the starboard tack. She was followed at once by the Columbia and a little later by the Independence. While both the Hereshoff boats started with all sails set, including baby jib topsails, the Boston boat was sailing along under three lower sails and club-topsail. At this time the Constitution seems to be leading the Columbia a quarter of a mile, although a little to leeward, while the Columbia had a lead on the Independence of about as much.

At 1 p. m. the yachts were having a close race, the Independence right up with the two Hereshoff boats. She tacked to starboard right under Point Judith and met the Constitution coming down on the port tack. From this point, some six miles away, it seems as if the Boston boat had forced the Constitution about and it looked as if the Independence had caught the two Hereshoff boats.

This improvement on the part of the Independence appears to be due to her sailing without a jib top sail and also to the increasing breeze. Observation from this point at this time was considerably hampered by fog in which the racers were enveloped.

ENJOINS SCALPERS.

Important Order on Purchase of Railroad Tickets.

Cincinnati, July 11.—Judge Rufus B. Smith, of the superior court, has granted an injunction against all the ticket scalpers restraining them from purchasing or selling all forms of non-transferable tickets issued by or reading over the Big Four, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Louisville & Nashville, Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroads. This action is very important to lines in the East.

CAESAR AT PORT SAID.

Port Said, July 11.—The United States collier Caesar, which left Norfolk June 15 for Manila, has arrived here.

WILL NOT UNIONIZE

Steel Combine Will Not Change the Non-Union Mills.

Willing to Sign Amalgamated Scale For All Plants.

Deadlock Probable In Conference Between Labor and Capital.

Pittsburg, July 11.—Surface indications point to the settlement of the strike in the mills of the American Sheet Steel company and the American Steel Hoop company at the conference between the Amalgamated association officials and the steel combine representatives, which began today in this city. The conference was called for 10 a. m., and an hour before that time the national officials' advisory board, trustees and district vice presidents of the Amalgamated association met at their headquarters to outline their attitude before conferring with the representatives of the steel combine. Fifteen of the sixteen members of the executive board were present, the only absentee being Vice President W. C. Davis of Chicago, who was unable to attend. At this preliminary conference the entire ground was gone over, and the campaign of the day was mapped out. The meeting was behind closed doors, but when the members of the board filed out to join in the general conference, there was an air of confidence apparent.

President Shaffer said that if an adjustment shall not be reached he favors a continuance of the conference tomorrow and Saturday, but that the present conference must be final. Under no circumstances would he agree to a postponement for a week or more intervening between the meetings.

Mr. Shaffer said that the executive committee was clothed with discretionary powers with respect to the nature of the settlement, but the intimation was that no deviation whatever would be made from the original stand.

It was 10:26 a. m. when the conference opened. The combine conferees present at that time were Warner Arms, vice president of the American Tinplate company; Veryl Preston, of the American Steel Hoop company, and William Leeds, of the American Sheet Steel company.

The workers' organization was represented by the general executive committee, the highest body in the association. It is composed of the national officers and the vice presidents of the different districts, and this was the second time in the history of the association that it had been called together. The members of the committee are:

President T. J. Shaffer, Secretary Treasurer John Williams, Assistant Secretary M. F. Tighe and Business Manager Benjamin T. Davis.

Trustees J. Pierce, Pittsburg; Elias Jenkins, Youngstown, Ohio; J. H. Morgan, Cambridge, Ohio.

Vice presidents—First district, David Reese, Pittsburg; second district, Walter Larkins, Martin's Ferry, Ohio; third district, Charles H. Davis, Newport, Ky.; fifth district, Clem Jarvis, Anderson, Ind.; sixth district, John F. Ward, Youngstown, Ohio; seventh district, F. J. Williams, Birmingham, Ala.; eighth district, John Chappell, New Castle, Pa.; ninth district, John W. Quinn, Granite City, Ill.

W. C. Davis, of the fourth district, Chicago, was not present. The greatest secrecy was observed, no person being permitted to loiter in the vicinity of the committee rooms.

It was authoritatively stated that the combine offered to sign the Amalgamated scale for all the plants and make the wages uniform, but declined to unionize the plants operated as non-union for years. Trustee Morgan of the Amalgamated said the proposition would not be accepted.

J. V. Jenks, of the American Steel Hoop company, also was present. While it is believed the United States Steel corporation is directing the movements of the representatives of the underlying companies, none present could verify the statement. The combine representatives declare that it would be unfair to the men to force them into the organization if they do not desire to join. They also are willing to concede the right to the Amalgamated officials to enter the mills and organize the men, but will object to compulsory organization. It was nearly noon before the conference got down to business. The situation was gone over carefully. Every one present seemed in good humor and everything pointed to a harmonious meeting, but it seemed there might be some difficulty in getting close together at the opening session, as both sides appeared determined not to yield any more points.

It is intimated that a concession will be allowed the manufacturers that have agreements to the men previous to last year's wage settlement. Those mills, it is said, will be allowed to work out their individual agreements, which expire Jan. 1. After that time these mills will also come under the jurisdiction of the Amalgamated association, or sooner if the men become members of the association previous to the expiration of the annual agreement. The Vandergrift and Leechburg sheet mills are, so far as known, the only ones that will come under the exception clause.

At 12:15 p. m. the conference adjourned for lunch to meet again at 2 p. m. The conferees refused to say anything as to the proceedings except that President Shaffer had been chosen chairman of the joint conference. The Amalgamated conferees expressed themselves as satisfied with the outlook.

LIBERALLY PENSIONED.

San Francisco, July 11.—The Examiner says J. A. Fillmore, who has just resigned the position of manager of the Pacific system of the Southern Pacific road, will be paid $1000 a month by that company until the end of the year and after that $500 a month as long as he lives. The corporation gives him a pension because of his long and meritorious service.

SURROUNDED

Great Northern Train Robbers Corralled.

Guards Await Arrival of Sheriff's Posse.

St. Paul, July 11.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: Reports have reached here that the Great Northern express robbers have been surrounded on People's creek, south of the Little Rockies, with seven men guarding them awaiting the arrival of Sheriff Griffith, who will leave Malta with a posse of forty men this afternoon. It is known that the robbers crossed the Missouri river, not far from Peck Agency, Mont., Monday evening; that they were riding fresh horses, secured either from relays provided in advance or by theft from the ranges which they passed. From the vicinity of the Belknap Agency they headed south, and are in a section of country where they can make good time, but still not be far from the security of the mountains. This information would seem to indicate that the robbers have some other haven in view than the "Hole in the Wall" country, having gotten far east of that section. Sheriff Benner of Great Falls has also organized a posse to assist Sheriff Griffith. They left Great Falls this morning and are expert rifle shots and horsemen.

THE DEATH LIST GROWS

Twenty-one Persons Are Dead and Three More Are Dying as Result of Wreck on Chicago & Alton Railroad.

Kansas City, July 11.—The death list resulting from the Chicago & Alton collision near Norton, Mo., grows with each hour. At this time twenty-one persons have died, three are dying, and the hospital physicians state that others who inhaled steam from the wrecked locomotives may not recover. The dead:

DANIEL McANNA, Slater, Mo., conductor of freight.

S. J. ANDERSON, Slater, Mo., engineer freight.

FRANK BRIGGS, engineer passenger.

I. N. ROGERS, Chicago, United States Express messenger.

DANIEL DONNELLY, Mexico, Mo., fireman freight.

MRS. GILMAN, Goodland, Ind.

D. W. HOOKER, Syracuse, N. Y.

G. L. ROY, Wilmington, Ill., bank cashier.

—— JONES, supposed to be from Chicago, not well identified.

MRS. R. J. CURTIS, Geneso, N. Y.

Young woman, supposed to be daughter of Mrs. Curtis.

MRS. DICKSON, Wilmington, Ill., 67 years old.

MISS LULU RIDER, Kentland, Ill.

MRS. FRANCES WALKER, Brooklyn.

MRS. S. A. D. HARRY, Hoopeston, Ill.

MRS. HILDA HAYSLIP, aged 52, Chicago, face, arms and shoulders burned.

MRS. J. D. ADSIT, wife of Dr. Adsit, Hoopeston, Ill., scalded about head and shoulders.

Aged woman, unidentified.

Two unknown men.

Fatally injured:

Professor S. A. D. Harry, Hoopeston, Ill., hands and face scalded; artery in left arm cut.

Leslie F. Coleburn Pawpaw, Mich., arms burned, face and legs scalded.

At University hospital the most seriously injured are:

E. C. Bray, Chicago, shoe dealer, neck sprained, head cut and internal injuries.

Not all of the other twenty-four patients in Kansas City hospitals are out of danger. Indeed, all of those scalded about the head are probably injured internally by inhalation of steam, and the physicians and hospital attendants say that many of the cases are serious.

The Marseilles French Opera company, on its way to San Francisco, comprising seventeen people, lost every bit of its scenery and baggage. None of the passengers escaped with more than his hand baggage, and were lucky to get away with that much.

Miss Lottie Sills, of Hornellsville, N. Y., and Miss C. W. Snyder, of Jasper, Ill., both in a precarious condition.

No additional bodies have been found under the debris, and it is now believed the list has been completed. Every effort is being made to establish the identity of the five unknown dead. Two have been parfially recognized. A third is a woman about 60 years of age. The fourth and fifth are men about 40 years of age.

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Lieutenant Brown of the Second Infantry Held For Killing a Suspected Filipino Who Tried to Escape.

Manila, July 11.—The trial of Lieut. Brown of the Second infantry, charged with murdering, near Binangonan Infanta province, a native who was suspected of responsibility in the death of a soldier, began today. The soldier referred to was drowned while a detachment of the Second infantry was swimming a river under fire. The lieutenant, at the time of the occurrence, questioned the native, and the latter bolted, whereupon Brown shot him dead.

Capt. Francis H. Fremont, also of the Second infantry, is being tried for striking a soldier. The court has requested that Capt. Wright, now in Washington, be ordered here to testify.

As an outgrowth of the ill feeling existing in some quarters, it developed recently that H. Phelps Whitmarsh, the governor of Benguet (who has been ordered here to have certain charges against him investigated), had a personal encounter with Secretary Otto Scherer, of that province, who disapproves of the governor's administration. The United States commissioners believe Scherer is true to the interests of the natives.

DOORS OPEN ALL NIGHT

Savings Bank In Cleveland Having a Run Caused By Ignorant Woman Is Doing All Possible to Pay Depositors.

Cleveland, July 11.—The run on the United Banking and Saving company, which began yesterday, was continued today. The bank kept its doors open nearly all night in order to permit anxious depositors to withdraw their money. Early today fully 200 men and women were lined up in front of the institution. All demands were promptly met and the officials declared they were prepared for any emergency.

The run was started by a Bohemian woman who called at the bank yesterday before banking hours to draw money. She was told to wait. Failing to understand, however, she immediately went out and spread the report that the bank had no funds. The capital stock of the bank is $100,000. Its deposits amount to $2,000,000.

DEFEATED.

New York, July 11.—A dispatch from Pekin says: The imperial troops under Gen. Lu Pen Yuen have been defeated by the Allied Villagers' society at Chiou, forty miles southeast of Tao Ting Fu.

The magistrate of the department has arrived in Pekin and has asked Li Hung Chang to dispatch a thousand reinforcements under Col. Chigan from Lechien Fu where there are 200 Shan Tung troops waiting the permission of the allies to come to Pekin.

The French, who stopped these troops at Lochien Fu some weeks ago, have now agreed that they can enter any of the districts in the province of Che Foo.

TO MEET HERE

Grand Council of Red Cross of Constantine Tuesday.

The grand imperial council of the Red Cross of Constantine will convene in Duluth next Tuesday. Only one day will be occupied by the business of the meeting and the day will end with a banquet at the Kitchi Gammi. The order is a Masonic one and only Masons who have received the Knight Templar and the thirty-second degree are eligible to membership. Duluth has the only conclave in Minnesota and Mayor Hugo has been at the head of the order for several years.

Among the prominent Masons expected to be present are Gen. John C. Smith, Chicago; Col. George H. Knowlton, Cincinnati; Dr. Winslow, Jacksonville, Ill.; K. Kuhn, Kansas City; F. P. Sargent, Peoria, Ill., and O'Neill, Helena, Mont.

Ingalls-Barker Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Ruth L. Ingalls and Edward Mortimer Barker will take place at the home of the bride's mother, Wednesday, July 17, at 3 o'clock. It will be a quiet home wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Barker will be at home, Wednesdays in August, at 216 East Fourth street.

Will Not Pay.

There is a row at Houghton, Mich., over who will pay the bills for the burial of the victims of the Bon Voyage disaster. Houghton county has refused, according to the following from the Mining Gazette:

"Houghton county will not foot the bills for expenses caused by the burial of the Bon Voyage victims, and the undertakers, coroners and others who have statements in against the county will have to present their claims elsewhere. At last month's meeting of the county board the matter of the payment of the bills was discussed, and as a question arose whether the county was to pay them or not it was referred to the prosecuting attorney. Mr. Larson, after due deliberation, decided that the county is not authorized to allow bills of such a nature.

Delighted With Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Carpenter, of Chicago, are in the city. Mr. Carpenter, who is a prominent member of the Chicago board of trade, came to Duluth to get away from the heat and for the lake trip, and is delighted with the city as a summer resort. He says that he will never grow tired of singing the Zenith City's praises as a place to visit during this season of the year.

Might Have Been Serious.

Through the careless storing of dynamite a serious accident might have occurred yesterday at Second avenue east and Seventh street and, perhaps, have cost several lives.

Several crews are blasting rock near there and after discharging several blasts carelessly stored the explosives, consisting of three and a half sticks of dynamite and one box of caps under the woodshed of G. C. Kohagen, whose 4-year-old son in some manner got hold of the stuff and joyfully came to his father to tell of his find. The father understood the nature of the explosive and finally got it out of the way.

OPTION IS RECORDED.

Mesaba Iron Company Lands Are Leased.

Not long ago The Herald published a report that the Mesaba Iron company, of which former Governor Alexander Ramsey is a member, had given an option on its large holdings of lands in this county. Though the authority for the statement was Governor Ramsey, the report was denied by other members of the company. It was correct, nevertheless, and the option was filed for record in the office of the register of deeds yesterday afternoon.

It runs to the Belliton Mountain Iron company, and the consideration for the option is $1000. It gives the Belliton company a year from June 20 in which to carry out the terms of the option, which are the purchase of the property for $270,000.

The property includes several thousands of acres in 60-12 and 60-13, on the extreme east of the Mesaba range of hills, and east of the Duluth & Iron Range tracks.

Another Fatal Case.

The death from diphtheria of Joseph Malnella, the 7-year-old son of Peter Malnella, of 1110 West Second street, was reported at the health office this morning. The death occurred yesterday and the funeral was held from the family residence this afternoon. This is the fourth death from diphtheria reported at the health office in July, and makes eight new cases for the half month. The death of Emma Mary Walker, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker, occurred yesterday at the family residence, 226 Sixtieth avenue west. Indigestion was the cause. Mrs. Catherine Mathilda Aronson, aged 39 years, died at her home, 117 East Fifth street, July 10, from cancer of the stomach. The funeral was held this afternoon and interment was made at the Lutheran cemetery.

Fraternity Banquet.

Invitations have been sent out by C. B. Miller, of this city, to the members of the Phi Kappi Psi fraternity residing at the head of the lake, for an informal banquet that will be held at the Spalding this evening. This is the first meeting of the kind ever held here, and during the evening an alumni association will be formed. It is said that a large number of persons belonging to the fraternity, which they joined while in various colleges in the country, have come to Duluth to reside, in recent years. Those members residing in West Superior have also been invited, and it is believed that a vigorous organization may be effected.

Brings His Family.

President F. E. House, of the Duluth & Iron Range road, accompanied by Mrs. House and their four children, arrived in the city this morning. Mr. House has leased the old Bunnell residence at the southeast corner of Thirteenth avenue east and Superior street, and while the building is being renovated will reside at the Spalding. They left their old home in Beaver, Pa., near Pittsburg, several days ago, before the hot wave swept over that section. Mr. House says they encountered torrid weather at Chicago, however, the thermometer registering 103 in the shade yesterday. It was an appreciated change for them to experience the fine weather prevailing in Duluth today.

KILLED WIFE.

Farmer Then Ended His Life By Cutting His Throat.

Rochester, N. Y., July 11.—A farmer named McGrath, living near Brockport, this county, killed his wife last night and then committed suicide. Their bodies were found in a field today.

The woman had a terrible wound over the left eye, which is supposed to have rendered her unconscious. McGrath then probably drove through an opening into a lot, took the insensible woman out of a buggy and stabbed her in the back of the neck. He then made a gash three inches in length across her throat, severing an artery. Carefully covering her body with a blanket he drove further into the lot, unhitched his horse and started it toward home, after which McGrath returned to where his wife was lying and cut his own throat from ear to ear. A common two-bladed knife was the weapon used. The McGrath have five children, all under 16 years old.

TO MAINTAIN RATES.

Railroad Presidents Consider Forming a Pool.

Chicago, July 11.—Presidents of Western roads continued in session here today, formally considering the formation of a pool for the maintenance of rates. They are not concerning themselves with the present rate war for freight traffic, but are considering plans for maintaining harmony if present reductions shall be restored at tomorrow's meeting of the traffic managers. It is said these officials already have come to an understanding and that the Santa Fe notice of the reduction will be officially withdrawn tomorrow.

WORKING TOO SLOW

City Asks Street Railway to Make Better Progress.

Company Promises to Get More Men If Possible.

Demand For Labor Sharp and Men Are Scarce.

The street railway company must hurry matters a little in tearing up its old tracks on Superior street and in putting down the new rails. This is the position taken by the city authorities, and notice of this has been communicated to the company officials by City Engineer Patton. He says that the city will not stand for the delay that will be caused in the work if the company persists in taking up but one track at a time and employing a small force of men. The contractors will be thrown too far behind in the paving, and to this they are making serious objections. The company has been notified that it must begin tearing up both tracks.

The operations of the street railway company yesterday in tearing up old trackage, extended for a distance of a block, between Third avenue east and Second avenue east, and today it is expected that the track on the lower side of Superior street will be taken up as far as First avenue east.

The officials of the company claim that it is almost impossible to procure the number of men needed for the track work, the crew thus far consisting of not over thirty-five or forty men. After attention had been called to the delay, Manager Warren met City Engineer Patton this morning and promised that the company would use every effort to increase its working force. Advertisements will be inserted in the newspapers and orders given to the employment companies of the city for men. If it is possible, the company will have 300 men at work tomorrow morning and the rails will come up with a rush.

At the present condition of the demand and supply in the labor market, particularly in this district, it is very doubtful of the street railway company will be able to meet its expectations, as there are orders in the city employment offices for more than three times 300 men, at wages ranging from $1.75 to $2 a day, and the men are not rushing to get the jobs. The company has been paying $1.75 for work on its tracks, this summer, and has been handicapped in getting as many men as it desired at that figure. If it expects to better conditions it will probably have to raise the wages. Common labor in the city at the present time is being paid at the rate of $1.75 and, in some cases, $1.85 a day is paid. The city is paying $2 for common labor. The railroad contract work in the northern part of Minnesota pays from $2 to $2.25 a day, and it is for these wages that the greater number of men seeking employment are holding out for. One crew of twenty-five men was sent out of this city this morning to work for Halvorson & Richards on the Brainerd & Northern extension of the Northern Pacific road, at $2 per day.

It is not expected that the harvesting operations of Minnesota and the Dakotas will have any decided effect on the labor supply at the head of the lake before the middle of August. The farmers in the wheat-growing sections are said to be sending out information to the newspapers, in the labor supply markets, hinting at big wages that will probably be paid, in the attempt to get a large number of men rushing to the fields and thus bear the market and make wages lower. A man who has just returned from the wheat districts of the Dakotas, says that unless there is dry weather from now on until harvest, there are many sections which will sustain heavy loss in crops and men will not be needed. If the wheat crop of the West turns out well this season, there is no doubt that wages will be a little higher, but there is, as yet, no indications of abnormally high wages. Many men are going westward on railroad work for a month or six weeks in order to be near the wheat fields when harvesting does begin.

Telegraphing to Mars.

The experiments in wireless telegraphy have met with such success that we can soon hold communication with our planetary neighbors. Science made wonderful strides in the last half of the nineteenth century, and probably will davance further in the next few years. There is one thing, however, that science cannot improve upon, and that is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is the best remedy in the world for stomach, liver and bowel complaints. Fifty years of cures stand back of it, and a fair trial will convince you it has no equal as a cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness or liver and kidney troubles. It also prevents malaria, fever and ague. Be sure to have the Bitters always on hand, and thus avoid any serious illness.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES PROMPTLY CURED.

A Sample Bottle Sent FREE by Mail.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in promptly curing kidney, bladder and uric acid troubles, rheumatism and pain in the back. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything, but if you have kidney, liver, bladder or uric acid trouble you will find it just the remedy you need.

If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50 cent and $1 sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this great kidney remedy, Swamp-Root, and a book that tells all about it and its great cures, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing, mention that you read this generous offer in The Duluth Evening Herald.

TWO KILLED

And Several Hurt By an Explosion of Dynamite.

Denver, July 11.—A dynamite magazine near the Grant smelter exploded today. Two men were killed and seven hurt. The dead:

DOMENCIO MUTO.
TONY WEST.

These two men were in the magazine getting a supply of dynamite for blasting. The fragments of their bodies were strewn over the prairie for hundreds of yards.

Windows in the Union Stock Yards bank, fully a quarter of a mile away, were shattered. The damage is estimated at $500.

The explosion is believed to have been caused by the terrific heat.

RAISE RATE.

In That Way K. of P. Will Take Care of Deficit.

Chicago, July 11.—The supreme lodge, Knights of Pythias, which has been in session here considering charges of mismanagement by the board of control of the endowment rank, today decided that the most expedient way of meeting the expenses of $500,000 is to raise the insurance rate to the maximum prescribed by the national fraternal congress. If in this way money shall not be quickly forthcoming, it is likely a special assessment of 50 cents will be put on every member of the order for the benefit of the endowment rank. This will speedily raise $250,000.

The board of control will continue to investigate the affairs of the endowment rank pursuant to resolutions adopted yesterday. The only immediate action which will be taken will be the instituting of some foreclosure suits in an endeavor to rescue as much as possible of the money said to have been carelessly invested.

CROPS DESTROYED.

Madrid, July 11.—The severe storms which have been sweeping over the country around Valladolid have completely destroyed the crops in that vicinity.

FASSIG RECOVERING.

New York, July 11.—W. B. Fassig, the horseman, who has been very ill at his country place, Brewster, N. Y., for some time past, is reported on the way to recovery.

SILBERSTEIN & BONDY CO.'S

Sale of Fine Shirt Waists at 75 Cents Continues.

The lot was large, but from present indications will not last a great while. No woman in Duluth can afford to overlook this opportunity for buying fine shirt waists for so little. Not a waist in the lot is worth less than $1.50 and from that to $2.50. All on table at the uniform price of 75 cents.

COLLIERY TIED UP.

Men Struck Because Committee Was Discharged.

Shamokin, Pa., July 11.—Hickory Ridge colliery, operated by the Union Coal company, was completely tied up today by 500 men and boys, employed by the company, going on strike because a comittee of the United Mine Workers was discharged for standing at the head of the slope and insisting on inspecting miners' cards to see if they belonged to the union.

ARE SHORT OF CASH

People of Duluth Average About Two Dollars Each.

Figures Gathered From the Personal Property Assessments.

Duluth's Valuation Raised More Than Half a Million.

According to the statement of personal property assessments that has just been made up in the county auditor's office for the use of the county board of equalization, which meets next week, Duluth is in a deplorable condition financially, for the total amount of money reported in the city is only $2.17 per head of the population, estimating that at 55,000 souls.

The total return of money is $100,775, aside from that of banks, which amounts to $18,553, and makes a total of $119,328 in cash that the people of Duluth admit owning. Still, there are stocks and bonds that will help some, the valuation being $218,284.

Of course, there are people in Duluth that own iron property from which they get royalties. But the total valuation of royalties, franchises, annuities, etc., is $85 in all in the city of Duluth.

The total personal property valuation of the county is $6,134,457, as against $5,383,721 last year, of which $4,726,299 is in Duluth this year. Last year Duluth's valuation on personal property was $4,192,609.

All of these valuations, including those outside of Duluth, are subject to review by the county board of equalization, which will meet at the court house next Monday morning. Objections to assessments can be made then, and when the board raises some of the assessments the parties concerned will be notified and will have an opportunity to make themselves heard in opposition to the increase.

Excursion Next Week.

The first excursion of the year over the Great Northern will arrive in the city Saturday, July 20. A special train will leave Evansville, Minn., 223 miles west of Duluth on Friday, July 19. The train will bring people from Alexandria, Sauk Center, St. Cloud and intermediate points. The railway officials believe that not less than 1000 people will avail themselves of the opportunity to visit Duluth.

ARTILLERY.

Another Increase In Force Took Effect on July First.

Washington, July 11.—An order of the war department provides for another increase of the artillery under the last army law to take effect on the first of the fiscal year, July 1. The arrangements provide that the increase shall be made as fast as the enlistments are completed. For convenience the total increase is divided into sixths. The order authorizing an increase on the first of this month is for one-sixth, amounting to about 1800 men. As the increases are made in the number of enlisted men, there is also an increase in the number of officers, which resulted in promotions of artillery officers now in service.

Vacancies created by the promotions in the first and second lieutenants will be filled by selections by the other arms of service and by men appointed from the volunteers and line. The new batteries to be organized will not be made up fully from the recruits which have been enlisted, but the older organizations will be divided so that there will be about half of each new organization composed of experienced men.

IN CONTEMPT.

Iron Moulders' Union Officers Fined and Sent to Jail.

York, Pa., July 11.—In the county court today, Judge Stewart rendered his opinion in the contempt cases growing out of the molders' strike here, in which George W. Test, corresponding representative of the Iron Molders' Union of North America; John P. Frey, of Worcester, Mass., fourth vice president of the union, and Howard Wilmer, of the local union, were adjudged guilty of contempt of court in violating the court's injunction restraining them from picketing and otherwise interfering with the York Manufacturing company. Test and Frey were sentenced to pay a fine of $250 and costs and to undergo imprisonment for thirty days and Wilmer was fined $25, which he paid, and was released. Test and Frey being unable to pay were sent to jail.

NOT MURDERED.

Defense Claims Applegate Was Kicked By Horse.

Trenton, N. J., July 11.—Prosecution in the trial of Samuel Chinn for the murder of Thomas Applegate, closed this morning with a short cross-examination of Mrs. Applegate. The defense opened with a statement by counsel for Chinn that it will be proved Applegate was not murdered. The theory was advanced that Applegate was kicked to death by a horse. Dr. Johnson testified that he thought this theory to be correct.

THURBER BANKRUPT.

New York, July 11.—Francis Thurber, of this city, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with total liabilities of $315,061, of which there is secured on nominal security $126,814; unsecured, $187,749. The nominal assets are $876,414. The indebtedness was incurred chiefly before 1894.

DAMAGED SEWERS

Repairs Are Being Made As Rapidly As Possible.

Will Take All Summer to Put Them In Shape.

Plea For An Ordinance Requiring Wide-Tired Wagons.

Reports at the office of the board of public works shows that the board is using every resource possible to complete the repairs on the sewers that were damaged by the recent storms. Commissioner Martz said this morning that while satisfactory progress is being made, it will take all summer to put the sewers in proper condition. There are men working underground all over the city patching up holes in the sewers. On the hill, in some localities, big stones have been washed into the sewers that take derricks to remove. The members of the board of public works are unanimous in their support of the sentiment for better paved avenues; in fact, they say that the avenues can never be put in satisfactory condition and kept so unless something is done in the way of covering them with a material that will remain after the effects of the heavy rains.

Commissioner Martz is a firm believer in the wide-tired wagon, not alone in connection with the hauling of loads on unpaved streets, but also on the paved streets. He believes that the time is ripe for the city to consider the idea, because of the new pavement that is being put in now and which will undoubtedly be put in during the coming years. Mr. Martz favors an ordinance requiring wide tires on the trucks in the city that are used to haul heavy loads. He says that there are loads hauled daily by coal companies, commission men and wholesalers that should be pulled on wagons with a tire at least six inches wide. There are said to be very few broad-tired wagons in use in the city at the present time, though most teamsters concede that a heavy load is pulled just as easily on broad as narrow tires, on the pavement, and certainly much more easily on unpaved streets. The idea supported by Mr. Martz is that by the use of the broad tires the new pavement will last much longer. He says that the wide tire will distribute the weight over a whole brick, where the narrow tires will put the weight only on a part of it and thus increase the chances of breakage. The idea of wide tires is not a new one, by any means, and there are very many cities in this country where ordinances are in effect requiring wide tires on the heavy trucks. These are graded in width according to the guaranteed capacity of the vehicle, made by the builders. In New York there are wagons of over 7-ton capacity that are required to have 8-inch tires. This, however, is about the limit in the size of the tires.

Mr. Martzs idea is that the city should pass an ordinance requiring the wide tires, but that the ordinance should not be in effect for a year or two. In this way, he says, there would be no hardship worked on those institutions that are already using the narrow tired wagons or trucks. People would understand that after a certain date narrow-tired wagons would not be permissible, and all purchases of heavy vehicles in the two years would be along the line of wide tires. Then, too, there are but few heavy trucks used in the city that are not sent to the shops for repairs some two or three times a year, and when such repairs were needed on the wheels, wide tires could be substituted for the narrow tires.

Mr. Martz is not the only person in the city that has a word to say for the wide tires, and there are few of the city officials that do not express their opinion that a move along this line would be a good thing for the streets and a saving on the new pavement.

CANNOT COME

Chicago Unions Back Out ---Other Games Are Arranged.

Manager Hansell of the Duluth Baseball club yesterday received a letter from the manager of the Chicago Unions saying that on account of being unable to get a date with Escanaba, Mich., they would go no farther than Green Bay, Wis., and could not play here for the two games Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Hansell immediately telegraphed the St. Paul Athletics for games Saturday and Sunday, but they have the dates filled. The Minneapolis Heywoods are in the same fix, while Superior plays at Ashland, making it impossible to get a game with either of these teams.

As the big fighter, Gus Ruhlin, with his trainer, Billy Madden, and his sparring partner, Denver Ed Smith, are already on their way to Duluth, the Duluth team will play the winner of today's game between the Board of Trade and the Duluth Grays on Saturday afternoon, and the Big Duluths Sunday afternoon.

The game last Sunday was certainly exciting, and the only thing that marred it was the umpiring and the kicking. In these games it is safe to say that what the umpire says goes. It is a certainty that the big fighter will box here, arriving Saturday morning on the Omaha and will umpire both games, giving a sparring exhibition at Superior Saturday evening. This will be the only chance for the Duluth sports to see the big fighter before he goes up against Jeffries in the fall, and it will probably bring out the largest crowd of the season.

NOT THE MAN.

Body Found By Spokane Not That of Capt. Heminger.

F. R. Heminger, son of A. Heminger, of Algonac, Mich., captain of the Fern, a small trader which was wrecked some time ago, was in the city today. It will be remembered that the crew of the Spokane found a body with a life preserver upon it last Monday and brought it to the city. Capt. William A. Williams, of the Spokane, told Coroner Boyer that he thought that the body was that of A. Heminger, captain of the Fern, although the name on the life preserver was that of another vessel. When a Herald reporter called upon Capt. Williams, he was told that the body was that of Capt. Heminger and that it was found about noon last Monday. When asked concerning the life preserver, however, he said that one was found upon the body, but immediately became very short in his answers and absolutely refused to say anything more concerning it. He said that he would not tell anything until he was made to. He is now out of the city so his reasons for the positive identification cannot be discovered.

F. R. Heminger, who has been at Eagle River, saw the notice of his father's death in The Herald and telegraphed Durkee & Crawford to prepare the body of the man for burial. When he came to the city and saw the body this morning, he stated positively that it was not that of his father and even had several men who had known Capt. Heminger intimately during his life time, look at the body. All of them said that there was no possibility of it being that of Capt. Heminger. The captain never used tobacco in any form, while a pipe and tobacco was found on the body. The son says that he does not know Capt. Williams and does not believe that his father did. He cannot understand why he was so positive in his identification.

It is believed that the floater was the steward on the ill-fated Fern as the description of him fits the corpse and some papers found warrant this belief. Mayor Hugo this morning received a telegram from Rev. J. Jerome, of Algonac, Mich., asking for a description of the body. The matter was put in the hands of the chief of police, who answered the message.

TO SHIELD ROBBERS

Was the Occidental Hotel at Forsythe Set on Fire.

Consummation of Conspiracy Growing From the Green Murder.

Several Arrests of Suspected Parties Will Be Made Soon.

St. Paul, July 11.—A dispatch from Forsythe, Mont., says: From evidence now in the hands of the county attorney it looks as if the burning of the Occidental hotel Monday night was the consummation of a conspiracy growing out of the murder of Jim Baker on the night of July 4, by Charles Green. The verdict at the inquest held over the body of Jacob Braun, who lost his life in the flames, is to the effect that the building was set on fire by a person or persons unknown.

No arrests have yet been made, but five or six persons who are witnesses at the inquest were mostly railroad men and the testimony indicates the existence of an organized gang who made their headquarters in the Occidental, also that they shielded Green from the authorities, that one of the number was feared because he might prove a dangerous witness against Green and that the fire served the further purpose of preventing the detection of the rest of the gang in their robberies, as the plunder was stored in the room where the fire started. The conspiracy was successfully carried out. Green has undoubtedly escaped and traces of the robbery have been removed.

Nine men injured in the fire, were sent to the Brainerd hospital yesterday. One man was detained here as the officers wished to keep him under surveillance. He will probably be arrested for murder.

SETTLES IT.

Governor Van Sant Writes That Edward Pugh Is Slated.

Edward H. Pugh, of this city, is to get the appointment as a member of the state board of grain appeals, left vacant by the appointment of Frederick W. Eva as chief deputy inspector. This appointment has been expected for some time, but the first public and definite announcement of it came in a letter to J. P. Johnson, clerk of the district court, received this morning from Samuel R. Van Sant, the governor.

In the letter, among other things, the chief executive of the commonwealth announces that he has made up his mind to appoint Mr. Pugh to the position. The appointment will probably be forthcoming in a short time. A. H. Smith and others were applicants for the place, but Mr. Pugh seems to have had the longest reach, and he has therefore landed the plum. The position carries a salary of $3000 a year.

Chief Deputy Grain Inspector Prodger has received notice from the board of railroad and warehouse commissioners to the effect that Frederick Eva will assume the duties of that position on Aug. 1.

THE MILLS

Daisy and Listman Being Prepared For Operation.

The Duluth-Superior Milling company has had a force at work for the past two weeks repairing the machinery of the Daisy and Listman flouring mills at Old Superior. The workmen have orders to get the mills ready for operation within a short time. The company expects to start these two mills this fall. The Daisy and Listman mills are said to be in better condition than any of the other mills at the head of the lakes that have been closed down since they were absorbed by the trust, hence they will be operated first. Before the Imperial mill can be used it will require the outlay of a large amount of money in equipping it, as much of its machinery was moved shortly after the mill closed down, about two years ago. As soon as the funds are available the Imperial mill will also be fitted out and started.

IS FOUND.

Body of Michael Lalor Is Recovered Near the Canal.

This afternoon about 2:30 o'clock John Lindahl, one of the men in the employ of Charles Stone, the contractor who is putting in the concrete blocks which form the superstructure of the north canal pier, found the body of Michael Lalor floating just off the end of the pier. Lalor disappeared Wednesday of last week, being last seen as he went out on the new pier to wet down some of the blocks. The supposition was that he had slipped, fallen in and was swept out by the strong current. There is no question as to the identity of the body for he was dressed in the oil skins which he wore when he went on the pier. He was a fine workman, a generous man and had accumulated some means, having life and accident policies and some little money in the bank. He was about 37 years of age and has no relatives in the city. A brother came from Illinois last week to assist in the search for the body.

THIRTEENTH SHORT.

Washington, July 11.—Reports received at the war department from recruiting stations show that the five new cavalry and the five new artillery regiments have been recruiting up to maximum strength with the exception of the Thirteenth regiment of cavalry which is short only a few men.

AT LAKE CITY.

St. Paul, July 11.—Governor Van Sant went to Lake City today to inspect the Second infantry and the battalion of artillery in camp there.

THROUGH BRIDGE

Structure on the Nickel Plate Road Gave Way.

Entire Train Pitched Into the Gully Eighty Feet Below.

Conductor and Engineer and Seven Italians Were Killed.

Springfield, Pa., July 11.—A local Nickel plate freight train bound west, containing two cars of stone to be left at a bridge undergoing repairs, went through the bridge which collapsed from the weight of the train, carrying with it the entire train with crew and gang of workmen. P. A. Moore, conductor, of Conneaut, O., and William Griffith, engineer, of Buffalo, were instantly killed. Seventeen men at work on the bridge also were carried down in the wreck and many are believed to be buried in it.

Cleveland, July 11.—At the headquarters of the Nickel Plate road here, it was stated this afternoon that in the collapse of the bridge at Springfield, Pa., while the west bound local freight was passing over the structure, repairs were being made on the bridge when the locomotive and cars went down. A gang of Italian laborers, working beneath the bridge were caught in the wreck. At least seven of the Italians were instantly killed and a number were badly injured.

P. A. Moore, of Conneaut, the conductor, and William Griffith, of Buffalo, the engineer of the construction train were also instantly killed. The names of the dead and injured laborers have not yet been learned by the officials of the company. The wrecked bridge is located seven miles east of Conneaut, O. It spanned a gully eighty feet deep. The dead were taken to Conneaut, O.

The bridge that collapsed was thought to be unsafe and laborers were filling in the ravine which it spanned. The train had backed on the bridge. Three cars loaded with broken rock were standing on the span, ready to be dumped. Conductor Moore was on one of the cars, while the crew of workmen was waiting underneath to level the stone as it dropped. Without warning the bridge gave way. The three cars with their heavy loads were hurled into the gully, a distance of about eighty feet. Into the midst of the workmen the train tumbled and many were crushed into shapeless masses.

Fifteen minutes before the bridge collapsed a heavy passenger train had rushed over it. Special trains from Conneaut and Erie carried physicians to the scene of the accident. The work of recovering the dead and rescuing the injured was difficult as they were buried under the heavy cars.

It appears from later reports from the scene of the wreck, that the engine did not go down with the wrecked bridge. It was at first reported that Engineer Griffith was killed, but this now seems to have been erroneous.

Home From Philippines.

Leo. L. Thomas, of Pontiac, Mich., has been visiting his friend, Dr. W. R. Bagley, since yesterday. He leaves tonight for his home. Mr. Thomas served as a lieutenant with the Forty-fourth infantry in the Philippines and was discharged from the service on account of the muster out of his regiment at San Francisco, June 30. His regiment was in service eighteen months on the islands. Mr. Thomas left Manilla with his regiment in May. He says that organized resistence is practically over, although conditions are very unsettled. Insurgent and robber bands are numerous and in many portions of Luzon it is hazardous for Americans to leave the confines of the military posts.

KITTRIDGE

Appointed to Succeed Senator Kyle of South Dakota.

Pierre, S. D., July 11.—Governor Herreid today appointed A. B. Kittridge, of Sioux Falls, to fill the unexpired term of the late United States Senator Kyle.

URBAN POPULATION.

Five Per Cent Increase Since Last Census.

Washington, July 11.—The census office issued a bulletin today concerning the urban population of the country. It shows that 28,411,698 people people in the United States live in cities and towns of 4000 population. This is 37.3 per cent of the entire population, a gain of almost 5 per cent since the census of 1890, when the percentage was 32.9.

NINE HOUR DAY,

Wanted By Men at Tupper Lake Saw Mills.

Malone, N. Y., July 11.—About 600 men employed in saw and planing mills at Tupper lake are out on strike, demanding a 9-hour day instead of eleven hours. The trouble was occasioned by a factory inspector insisting that a dozen boys under 18 years old should not be compelled to work over ten hours. Threats to burn the mill have been made, and some disturbance has been created by drunken men, but at noon today everything was quiet. No attempt has been made to start the mills.

RECENT DEATHS.

Wife of Justice Brown Dead In Italy.

Detroit, July 11.—Gen. H. M. Duffield has received a cablegram from Justice H. B. Brown of the United States supreme court, announcing the death of Mrs. Brown at Riva, Italy. Mrs. Brown had been an invalid for some years and the justice sailed for Europe soon after the decision in the insular cases was handed down.

Marion, Ind., July 11.—Former Congressman A. N. Martin (Dem.) died in the hospital at the Soldiers' home here today from consumption.

INCREASE INTEREST.

Philadelphia, July 11.—The city council today passed an amended ordinance increasing the interest on the $9,000,000 loan to improve the water supply from 3 per cent to 3½ per cent. The mayor, who is now sojourning in the Allegheny mountains, will sign the measure.

FIRE AT CLEAR LAKE.

Large Part of Iowa Town Is Wiped Out.

St. Paul, July 11.—A Clear Lake, Ia., special to the Dispatch says: A large part of the main business portion of this city was wiped out by fire today with a loss of $35,000. The fire originated in the shoe store of W. H. Broaley, but the cause is unknown. During the progress of the fire Fire Chief Hayden and Capt. Goodwin descended to the basement of the burning store at a great risk of life and brought up 150 pounds of giant powder stored there. Half a dozen buildings were destroyed.

ATKINSON GETS IT.

Another Episode In a Superior Case.

Governor LaFollette, of Wisconsin, today appointed Timothy Atkinson, of West Superior, to succeed J. H. McDonald as timber inspector for the Thirteenth district of Wisconsin. Mr. McDonald's term expired in April of this year. The appointment of Mr. Atkinson is another chapter in the famous fight between himself and Mr. McDonald for the office. About two years ago Governor Scofield, of Wisconsin, appointed Mr. McDonald to succeed Mr. Atkinson, who then held the office. Mr. Atkinson contested the appointment. He first commenced proceedings in district court in Duluth against McDonald, claiming irregularity in his naturalization papers. The case was dismissed, and Mr. Atkinson followed it up with another suit to oust Mr. McDonald in the circuit court of Douglas county, on the ground that he was not a citizen of Wisconsin when appointed to office. He won his suit and scored a second victory when the case was carried to a higher court. Hardly had he succeeded in ousting Mr. McDonald when his term of office expired, and Governor Scofield reappointed Mr. McDonald, who had resided in Wisconsin by that time long enough to gain a residence. The case had been in the courts for over two years.

LAUGH AT IT.

Police Scout Idea of Crazy Finlander at Large.

The police department characterizes the story of a crazy Finlander at large in the city as a pretty strong pipe dream. They say that the department was notified from the Endion depot last evening that a Finlander had come down from Sparta on the Iron Range road, and that the man wanted to go to the Omaha depot, but could not speak or understand English. The department was asked to take charge of him, but as there is no interpreter at headquarters, the best the officer in charge could do was to ask the patrolman on the Lake avenue beat to find a countryman to take charge of the visitor. A bartender at Charles Hill's place was found to act the Good Samaritan, and he brought the man as far as Lake avenue, when for some reason he disappeared.

STRIKE SETTLED.

Perth, Western Australia, July 11.—The railroad strike for increased wages, which began here July 5, and caused a complete tie-up of the roads throughout Western Australia, has been settled.

COMMENCED SENTENCE.

Chicago, July 11.—Dr. August M. Unger, under conviction for conspiracy in the Defenbach insurance case, was taken to Joliet today. Dr. Unger commenced service of his sentence at his own request.

THE YACHTS.

The Big Fellows Putting Up an Exciting Race.

Bateman's Point, July 11, 2:45 p. m.—At 1:45 the Columbia was first, the Independence second and the Constitution third. The boats were very close together and had covered very nearly three-quarters of the windward leg.

Block Island, July 11.—The Constitution turned the windward mark ahead of the Columbia, having passed the old champion by a remarkable burst of speed. The Constitution turned at 2:52 as caught from shore.

Apparently the yachts caught an increasing breeze which the Constitution and the Independence felt first, for, as the new Hereshoff boat passed the Columbia, the Independence came tearing along and the Columbia and the Independence turned so closely together that it was impossible to determine from here which made the mark first. There apparently was not ten seconds difference between them. The fog then shut down again.

ITALIANS LYNCHED.

Vicksburg, Miss., July 11.—National Piazza, Italian vice consul here, received information today of the lynching of two or more Italians at Avon, a small station in Washington county. He has been unable to secure the names or any particulars.

HE HAD PRIVILEGES.

Crow Wing County Sheriff Was Too Friendly.

St. Paul, July 11.—Judge Amidon of the federal court yesterday issued an order for Sheriff Erickson of Brainerd to appear and show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court. Last spring George Volf, of Motley, was convicted in the federal court of trespassing on government land, sentenced to serve three months in the Crow Wing county jail, and pay a fine of $30. He was turned over to sheriff Erickson. The latter and his prisoner were friends, and it is claimed the prisoner was allowed to roam at large and live at a hotel instead of being confined in jail. Volf was brought to St. Paul and placed in jail.

PRICE OF RAILS.

The Steel Pool Will Charge $28 a Ton.

New York, July 11.—Steel rail manufacturers, forming what is known to the trade as the steel rail pool, have formally agreed upon $28 a ton as the price which will be asked for the coming year. This price is $2 a ton higher than that agreed upon at the steel rail pool meeting last fall, when the pool price was announced.

Since May 1, however, a schedule went into effect, and prices were advanced from $26 a ton to $28 a ton. The new price list for next year for standard section rails is, therefore, the same as that which has prevailed for the last two months.

This year, however, the task of agreeing is much simpler than before the formation of the United States Steel corporation, when there were several competitive concerns n th bessnsuel petitive concerns in the business. It is understood that negotiations have been carried on for several days in a quiet manner by Former Judge Gay, chairman of the United States Steel coporation, and President Schwab of the same company, with the Pennsylvania railroad officials, and the result is that the pool price of $28 a ton is announced.

This year there are only two important factors in the steel rail situation, United States Steel corporation and the Pennsylvania railroad interests.

TWO IDENTIFIED.

Kansas City, July 11.—Two of the unknown dead in the Alton wreck were identified this afternoon as Mabel Ross, Kentland, Ind., aged 23, and Mrs. F. L. Ray, Wilmington, Ill. They were en route to San Francisco.

New York, July 11.—Herbert L. Bridgman, secretary of the Peary Arctic club and head of the expedition to the far North by which it is hoped to discover the fate of Explorer R. E. Peary, his wife and his little daughter, left at noon today for Sydney, C. B., which will be his sailing point.

Gen. Harris C. Hobart, who has resigned from the Milwaukee public library board after a service of twenty-five years, was one of the Union prisoners who tunneled their way out of Libby prison at Richmond during the civil war. He is now in his 89th year. He has twice been the Democratic candidate for the governorship of Wisconsin—in 1859 and 1865.

IN WORLD'S PROBLEMS

United States Is Now Regarded as an Important Factor.

Ex-Secretary Day Discusses Our Place In International Family.

Foreign Countries Not Disrespectful of Rights of Citizens.

Put-in Bay, Ohio, July 11.—The Hon. William R. Day, former secretary of state, was the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Ohio Bar association here today. His subject was "Our Place in the International Family," and he said in part:

"The United States is now regarded as a factor, and an important one, in the solution of the world's problems in which she is interested. Foreign governments, which have long neglected claims arising from mistreatment of our citizens, no longer permit disrespectful conduct towards them and are not unmindful of their rights. The world has come to know that to be an American citizen in every quarter of the globe implies the protection of a nation alive to the interests of its citizens however distant, however humble. This by no means indicates that we have become or are likely to be a "world power" in the sense that we shall adopt the policy of promoting our own aggrandizement at the expense of weak and defenceless. It does mean the maintenance of our rights abroad wherever they may be assailed.

"While the advent and results of the Spanish American war in a sense forced us to a seat at the "international council table," where our interests are involved, it did not create the conditions which sooner or later must have brought us into closer relations with the other powers of the world. Modern inventions have so annihilated space; means of communication have so brought the world together, that it was impossible long to avoid the true relation which a strong and powerful nation must sustain to world affairs. Unfortunately the time has not come when a nation can go afield claiming its rights if unprepared to enforce them. Without war this new relation would have led to the building of a navy, begun several years before the Spanish American war, adequate to enforce and support the rights of American citizens and to maintain their treaty rights, that our people might have the opportunity to which they are entitled in competiting for the commerce of the world. The American people have an excusable pride in the influence which our domestic institutions have given this country in enlarging constitutional rights under other forms of government and encouraging people of other countries to insist upon the right to govern themselves. The torch of liberty rightly shines at the gateway of our country.

"While our policy has been one of isolation, it is gratifying to note that we have had an important influence in development and improvement of the world's code of international law, to which civilized people have given their common consent in determining international rights.

"More than any other country, we have taken the lead in enforcing the principle of arbitration of international liberties.

"Nothing can be better settled than the purpose of the American government to maintain the Monroe doctrine in its true interpretation as preventing the imposition of monarchial government upon unwilling Americans or the further extension of European colonization upon American soil.

That our relations to the outside world will be extended and opportunity for trade and commerce greatly advanced cannot be doubted. We shall have an isthmian canal.

"This new touch with the affairs of the world brings new opportunities and involves new responsibilities. Our 'widening horizon' will give us clearer, as well as broader visions. We must prepare to acquit ourselves in those new relations in a manner creditable to our traditions. We must never lose sight of the fundamental principles of our government. This obligation is all the more binding now that a decision of the supreme court of the United States has made the government and disposition of the islands practically one of policy to be determined by the American people."

IN MICHIGAN.

Two Young Women Are Drowned By Capsizing of a Boat.

Iron Mountain—Miss Louisa Tagly, niece of Father Dassylva, of St. Joseph church, and her guest, Miss Alice Donahue, of Ishpeming, were drowned Wednesday in West Lake, Spread Eagle, a summer resort, eleven miles from here. The two girls and Miss Jacobs, accompanied by the priest and another man, were in a row boat which capsized. The two men and Miss Jacobs were saved.

Mayor Hammond of Iron Mountain will have to appear before Judge Stone on Monday, July 16, to show cause why he should not sign the salary warrants of M. C. Gleason, one of the police officers recently suspended by his honor. Papers were served Monday. Gleason and his attorney are working on the theory that when a bill has been properly audited and approved by the council's finance committee and the council itself, it is obligatory upon the mayor to sign the pay warrant, whether the bill is right or wrong.

Escanaba—Chinese Inspector Frank M. Jewell and Immrant Inspector Charles Williams, of the Soo, caused four of Escanaba's eight Chinamen to be arrested and brought before United States Court Commissioner Jennings charged with being in this country without the certificates of residence required by law. The Chinamen are in jail, bail not being permissible, awaiting examination, which will be held as soon as District Attorney Govell can arrive here from Grand Rapids. The prisoners are Charlie Sing, Wong Mow, Moy Do and Hong Hall, and all were employed in laundries. They claim to have been in this country from eight to thirteen years.

Menominee—The floater found in the Menominee river has been identified as the body of Edward Lindberg, who has been working for Holmes & Son at their headquarters for the past four years. It is not positively known whether Lindberg met an accidental or suicidal death, but it is believed that he fell in the river accidentally. He was last seen in Marinette in an intoxicated condition, he having started to celebrate the Fourth. Menominee friends tried in vain to get him to cross the river. It is thought that Lindberg fell from the railing of the Frenchtown bridge Wednesday night, striking a mass of logs and finally getting into the water, where he perished. The deceased was 47 years old. He had lived in Menominee fifteen years.

ARRIVING.

Delegates to Trans-Mississippi Congress Reach Cripple Creek.

Cripple Creek, Col., July 11.—Delegates to the twelfth session of the Trans-Mississippi congress, which begins its session in this city on Tuesday of next week, are beginning to arrive. All work incident to the congress is completed. Delegates whose credentials are received aggregate 100, and it is believed that the session will be the largest in the history of the congress. Among the governors who will be present to take part in the congress are: Stanley, of Kansas; Savage, of Nebraska; Jenkins, of Oklahoma; Sawyer, of Texas; Murphy, of Arizona; Orman, of Colorado, and Van Sant, of Minnesota.

A number of senators and congressmen will take part in the discussions. Minneapolis is a candidate for the next meeting.

SHE SHRIEKED ALOUD

When Told She Must Remain In Asylum.

Evansville, Ind., July 11--Mrs. Louisa Elslein must remain in the Southern Indiana asylum, according to the decision of Judge Mattison, of the circuit court. Mrs. Elslein, through her attorneys, brought habeas corpus proceedings, which were held last week, the decision being withheld until today. Judge Mattison said from the testimony he believed the woman insane, and that she should be kept in the asylum. When the decision was given Mrs. Elslein shrieked aloud and remarked to her daughter: "I must go back to a living death. It will kill me."

The woman was led from the courtroom crying bitterly. The state contends that evidence pointed to Mrs. Elslein as the poisoner of her husband and son. The case will be appealed.

SECRET IS DISCLOSED

Identity of Noted Convict In Virginia Is Made Known.

Held Up and Robbed a Train Six Years Ago.

Is the Son of a Once Famous Southern Belle.

Richmond, Va., July 11.—The identity of Charles J. Searcey, who in 1895 planned and, with the assistance of Morganfield, held up and robbed a train on the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac railroad at Aquia Creek, near the Potomac river, has been established. He belongs to an excellent Southern family.

Since the man has been in the penitentiary he has studiously refused to tell anything about his ancestry or his living relatives. Monday the veil that has hidden the life story of the train robber convict was lifted, his heart secret laid bare.

"His aged mother would be glad to welcome back home our prodigal son, although he be stained by crime." The above is an extract from a letter received by Governor Tyler from Col. James Buckner Barry, of Walnut Springs, Texas. The letter is also signed by the yet loving and aged mother, who is longing for her first born in her far away Texas home. Col. Barry is only the stepfather of the reticent convict, but in his letter gives a complete history of the ancestry of the Searcey family.

Mrs. Searcey, now Mrs. Barry, was one of the belles of the Lone Star state. Her father was a large ranch owner, and was distinguished in the early history of Texas for his intrepid bravery against the Indians. Among the other dashing spirits that made those troublous times famous was Charley J. Searcey. Nothing was too dangerous for him to undertake. He won his bride by rescuing her from a band of Mexicans who were bearing her off. The first born of the union was Charles J. Searcey, Jr., who is now in the Virginia penitentiary.

Col. Barry, in his letter, says that the families of both Searcey's mother and father have been distinguished in the history of the South. He now has an uncle who holds a prominent position in the state government of Texas.

Searcey's father only lived a few years after the marriage, and his mother married Col. Barry.

Young Charles was received by his stepfather and given every advantage. As he grew to manhood he became the popular idol of the community. Young Searcey's adventurous spirit was constantly getting him in all kinds of trouble, and finally he left home, and nothing was heard from him until the story of the Aquai Creek train robbery was heralded from one end of the country to the other. Even then the mother kept quiet, feeling keenly as she did the disgrace.

Finally the longing of a mother's heart has overcome this and she joined her husband in making an appeal for the pardon of her first born. Col. Barry, who says that he loves young Searcey as a son, is known as one of the fathers of Texas. He is a grandson of Gen. Barry, of revolutionary fame, and belongs to the family of that name in Virginia. During the war for Texan independence, Col. Barry served with Gen. Sam Houston and was afterward a colonel in the United States army in the war with Mexico.

He was dangerously wounded at the storming of Monterey, but this did not deter him from entering the Confederate army at the declaration of hostilities in 1861. In his letter to the governor, Col. Barry gives as references ex-Governor F. B. Lubbock, of Texas, an dex-Senator John Reagan, who was postmaster general in the Confederate states cabinet. He is now over 80 years of age and asks that both he and his wife be given the opportunity of seeing their son a free man before they die. Col. Barry closes his letter by saying:

"I have no mitigating circumstances to offer for the crime of our son, but human nature and paternal love constrain me to ask that he be granted a pardon."

The crime for which Searcey was convicted occurred in 1895 near Acquia Creek, in Stanford county. With only one companion he held up and robbed the Southern Express car of a large amount of money. No estimate has ever been made of the amount secured, although it reached far into the thousands. The hold-up was one of he most daring ever committed. At Aquia Creek, Searcey and his companion, Morganfield, boarded the train, one on the express car and the oher on the engine. Shortly after the train pulled out the engine and express car were cut loose. The engineer was covered and the express messenger overpowered. The coach that had been cut loose dashed down the grade, and would have run into another train had not a coolheaded station agent turned a switch. After binding the express messenger Searcey and Morganfield went through the safe.

An effort was made to capture them, but they met the attempt with a fusillade of shots and made their escape. For days the country was in a furore of excitement. The best private and official detectives were placed on the case. It seemed that they would never succeed. Finally Searcey was picked up in Port Royal, where he was seen to be spending gold very freely. He afterward turned state's evidence and implicated Morganfield, who was arrested at Cincinnati, where he jumped off a train and broke a leg.

Searcey was seen in the penitentiary today and admitted that all that was written to the governor was true. He says it was only a short while ago that his mother and stepfather learned of his present whereabouts.

"I was born on horseback," said he, "and served in Texas for many years; then I went to Kansas. For fifteen years prior to the robbery at Aquia Creek, I worked as a carpenter."

Searcey refused to discuss the details of the robbery or to make any reference to Morganfield. Searcey has but seven months longer to serve.

NIPPED IN THE BUD.

An Indiana Elopement That Was Cut Short.

Muncie, Ind., July 11.—After an unsuccessful attempt to elope Edward Leach, 20, and Mrs. Edward Phillips, 35, came to grief at the hands of the officers here.

Mrs. Phillips mysteriously disappeared from home near the boarding house patronized by young Leach. The husband searched in vain and then informed the police, believing his wife had been kidnapped. Leach was suspected and was found at his boarding house unconcerned.

The search was renewed through the city, but without avail. Considerable excitement followed the failure to locate the missing woman, until Monday young Leach was arrested, when, it is alleged, he tried to leave his boarding house with Phillips' wife.

Both were brought before the irate husband, and the wife said that she was with Leach Sunday night, but was hidden in the house. She acknowledged leaving home with young Leach, claiming that her husband was cruel to her and that she admired her youthful escort. She hesitated upon her husband claiming that she could return home and refused until her parents arrived. She departed Monday evening with them, but did not reteurn with her husband and small child.

Friends are interceding and hope to effect a reconciliation. Phillips is well known and came to Muncie recently from Waynesboro, Ohio.

WEALTHY HOBOES.

Foolish Youths Start on Western Trip.

St. Paul, July 11.—A La Crosse, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: A party of young men, sons of the richest men of the city, some of them university boys, left for the harvest fields of the West today to work as laborers and study sociological conditions. They took no funds and left La Crosse tramp fashion in box cars. They are heeded by sons of Rev. McKay, of the First Presbyterian church, and will be gone several weeks.

HID IN HIS PIPE

Was Money and Officer Made Him Smoke.

Springfield, Ohio, July 11.—John Boyles was robbed of $16 on the Esplanade and Sergeant Lawless arrested Dan Sullivan for the job. When searched the money could not be found. The officer was confident that he had the right man, and after watching him for a short time noticed that Dan was guarding his corncob pipe very carefully. He had it in his mouth, filled with tobacco, but it was not lighted, and striking a match, Lawless put it to the pipe and told Dan to enjoy himself. He obeyed the order, but after smoking a few seconds weakened and told the officer that the money was concealed in the bottom of his pipe.

London Experiences the Hottest Day In the Year.

London, July 11.—This was the hottest day recorded during the present year in London. At noon the thermometer registered 88 degrees in the shade, and it was 122 in the sun. There were many cases of sunstroke and prostration from the heat. The ambulances were in frequent request and horses suffered greatly. There were several inquests today at which verdicts of "apoplexy accelerated by the heat" were rendered.

ECONOMIC TEACHING

Of Great Advantage In the Training of All Citizens.

Effective Instruction Demands the Highest Teaching Skill.

National Educators Manifest Intense Interest In the Subject.

Detroit, July 11.—Intense interest among educators on teaching economics in the public school systems of the country was reflected in the attendance upon this morning's session of the National Educational association, which was devoted to it. Fully 3000 teachers were present.

Talking extemporaneously, Professor George E. Vincent of the university of Chicago, made an enthusiastic address on "Social Science and the Curriculum."

"All subjects in the present curriculum, particularly literature, lend themselves to the social point of view," said Professor Vincent, after announcing that he did not want another subject added to the curriculum. Using present illustrations, he showed how all the present studies can be socialized. He also urged upon teachers the necessity and benefits of corrollation of the different studies. Discussing the effect that socialization might have on the moral character of the curriculum, Professor Vincent said:

"At present there are two standards of honesty—one to be used in relations with individuals, and the other to be used in relations with corporations. It is not so much the educational side of socialization we should think of, but the sentimental side. Socialization of American education means much toward increasing the acquaintance of the people with the forces that underlie all institutions, but it means more than that; it means the awakening the students and through them the people to those instantaneous impulses towards right doing and thinking that ought to govern all the United States."

Professor F. W. Speirs, of Philadelphia was the next speaker on "Ideals and Methods of Economic Teaching." In opening, Profesor Speirs emphasized the importance of economic training for the great mass of citizens. "The chief ideal of economic teaching," said he, "should be the training of men and women to think straight and to vote right upon the economic propositions which are an ever-increasing proportion of the political issues in modern democracy. And I do not undervalue the disciplinary importance of economics."

Discussing what economic studies should be given children of a high school age, Professor Speirs said:

"Certain fundamental social laws are as well established as any proposition in geometry. And it is within the pale of established economic truth that the secondary school must work, although the student may properly be allowed an occasional glance into the arena wherein opposing theories are struggling for recognition."

The speaker declared that effective instruction in economics demands high teaching skill, and said:

"The greatest danger of elementary instruction on this subject lies in the fact that the student may absorb half truths of the text book as social axioms, and go out into practical life to make application of his rules which would make their author shudder. The students of economics must be taught that the principles he learns are to be applied with discretion to the varied conditions he will meet."

After telling of what he considered an ideal teacher of economics, Professor Speir said: "If such a specially trained, thoroughly equipped teacher cannot be obtained, omit the subject from the curriculum."

R. H. Halleck, of Louisville, also spoke. He said, in part:

"The teacher who is anti-social commits a crime if he does not immediately follow some other vocation. Those vested with authority in the educational field, whether boards of education, superintendents or principals, who try to rule their teachers by the anti-social feeling of fear are an abomination in this new era, as is the teacher who tries to secure result from pupils by making them afraid.

"The teacher who would be a social-economic power, must learn to apply certain social truths which physicology offers. The most important of these is suggestion, together with imitation, its corollary. An understanding of the basal elements of sympathy is also necessary.

"When a teacher has mastered the law of suggestion on its social side, when he has brought into play the intelligent imitation of the best, when he has developed the potential capacity for sympathy, when he has influenced children to do things for others, when he has ceased to tell them that education consists in knowing where to look for facts and has taught them to set problems of their own to solve, when he has impressed on them that wealth depends not so much on mere saving as upon the use made of that saving, when he has made them understand that intellectual, moral and social culture done in larger measure not so much in learning by rote other people's knowledge in those branches as in drawing knowledge from the living well of experience, when he has taught them to have increasing wants, the result of high ideals—then, and only then does the teacher become the needed social-economic power and raise to a higher plane the world with which he comes in contact. There will come to this republic a loss of Eden unless greater teachers on the social side restore us."

FAT GIRLS

Are a Delusion and a Snare, Said the Judge.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 11.—"My husband doesn't love me, because I am not fat. He told me so," wailed Mrs. Lena Neu in the police court.

"What's the matter with you, Neu?" asked Judge Kennedy, turning to the prisoner, Jacob Neu, aged 25, of 145 Pelton avenue, who was charged with "special intoxication."

"Nothing's the matter with me," answered Neu. "The trouble is with her—she's too thin."

"I advise you to take anti-lean, Mrs. Neu, and get fat," remarked the judge.

Last pay day Neu gave his wife $40 to keep for a rainy day. Monday he took the money from her, and she, angered at his act, had him arrested when he came home Monday night intoxicated.

"Well, what can I do for you?" asked the judge, after he heard the statements of both. "Do you," turning to Mrs. Neu, "want me to send him to the workhouse?"

"That's where heo ught to go," she said, with hesitation.

"Well, I'll continue this case until Saturday," said his honor, "and you two go home now. Come back here Saturday, both of you, and let me know how you settle matters."

Neu and his slender wife went to the rear of the court room and started an argument.

"Here!" shouted the judge. "You folks go home and talk it over. And you, Neu, behave yourself. Let the fat girls alone. They are a snare and a delusion."

L. F. VERDERY—HAD CATARRHAL DYSPEPSIA—CURED.

Tried Physicians, and Visited Springs.

Feels Like a New Person, Thanks to Peruna.

Leonard F. Verdery, real estate and renting agent, of Augusta, Ga., writes:

"With many others I want to add my testimonial to the wonderful good Peruna has done me. I have been a great sufferer from catarrhal dyspepsia. I tried many physicians, visited a good many springs, but I believe Peruna has done more for me than all of the above put together. I feel like a new person. I have taken the Peruna and Manalin together and always expect to have a bottle in my home."—Leonard F. Verdery.

Mr. R. M. Baker, a prominent citizen of Buckhead, Ga., writes in a recent letter his experience with Peruna to build up a broken down system. He says:

"Some time ago I was troubled with catarrh of the stomach and spent lots of money in buying so-called catarrh medicines and paying doctors bills. Peruna was recommended to me by a friend and after taking a few bottles I am happy to say that I am now entirely cured.

"I can recommend Peruna because I believe it to be the best catarrh medicine on the market. My whole system was out of order and my health generally was very bad, but since taking Peruna I am now enjoying better health than I can ever remember, and fully believe that Peruna did the work. I shall always speak a good word in its behalf."

Catarrh assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. In the summer the stomach and bowels suffer the oftenest as the seat of the trouble. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

LEONARD F. VERDERY.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Mayor Hugo's Suggested Park Point Driveway Brings Comment.

City Not Yet Beyond Necessity For Rigid Economy.

Tendency to Acquire Luxuries Beginning to Manifest Itself.

It is a well-known fact that municipal corporations, like many individuals, are unable to stand prosperity. In fact, there is a marked similarity in this respect between municipalities and impecunious individuals. When a man is hard up he scrimps and saves and economizes, sometimes even to the point of miserliness But when fortune begins to smile upon him, and the shekels begin to flow in in an increasing current, he as quickly begins to broaden out and add a luxury here, another there, and by keeping pace with the returning tide of prosperity at first he soon begins to run ahead of it in his enthusiasm, and perhaps a damming of the current somewhere, unexpectedly, leaves him high and dry on the shoals of financial disaster.

A great many people have noticed this tendency in municipalities, and many are noticing a return of it in Duluth. The city is emerging slowly from a tunnel of gloom, and is making rapidly for the blessed light of day that appears not far ahead. These citizens say that its steps should be careful and sure for awhile yet, until it stands in the open again.

The manifestations have not been very pronounced as yet, but they are present just the same. For instance, The Herald the other night reported Mayor Hugo as believing that it would be a good plan to secure land for a driveway along Minnesota point while property is cheap and before it rises out of reach. Other suggestions have been made that look like leanings toward luxuries. The opinion that has been frequently suggested is that the city should confine itself strictly to necessities; driveways are luxuries. The worst thing that could happen to blight the swelling bud of Duluth's future would be a sudden and heavy increase in taxes. There is sure to be an increase in taxes next year anyway. The county has increased its tax rate, the city cannot lower its rate and it is pretty certain to increase it, and the independent school district of Duluth will have to make a larger levy than it did last year. These things all point to the necessity of careful action. The citizens who have expressed themselves fear the result of a too hasty leap toward luxuries for the city. They wish to see every expenditure scrutinized painstakingly to make sure that it is classed as a necessity. In short, any public official who advocates or suggests anything likely to unnecessarily increase the tax rate should look out for squalls.

"We are getting along nicely just now," said one of the citizens who have been watching things pretty closely, "but we do not want to hurry matters and make any drafts on our anticipated prosperity. Wait until it comes. We shall draw on it hard enough when it is here without anticipating it any. We are prosperous now, in a sense, but we have not reached the fullness of our well-being as yet by any means, and until we do we must walk very carefully. Even when we are rolling in wealth, it ought not to be necessary to and we should not act as though it was never to end. We have done that before to our sorrow, yet unless it is carefully watched our lesson will be of no use, and we shall repeat the process all over again."

The tax rate is the most important element in the present condition of the city. If it gets too high it will frighten away a good many industries that are promised, and interfere with the successful growth of those now in existence. Any public officer who is thoroughly familiar with the situation will admit that it will take the most careful and judicious attention to keep the tax rate within reasonable limits next year. There is nothing, therefore, that can be done to better advantage than to keep it down within a proper point.

It has also been suggested that Duluth is not able to keep the driveways it now has in proper condition and that it is folly to think of acquiring more with affairs in that condition. London road is steadily deteriorating and is today in poor shape and yet even though a vigorous effort was made to get a substantial improvement of that much traveled driveway it met with the response that the city absolutely did not have the money to fix it properly.

HAD NO JURISDICTION.

Discovery Made In a Municipal Court Case.

All cases that come up for trial under the new state law, which makes it a misdemeanor for a man to defraud an employer or his agent out of railroad fare, come within the jurisdiction of the district court. This was the conclusion reached by Judge Edson in municipal court yesterday afternoon, when Louis McIlroy was arraigned on the charge, George Bartlett, of Winona, being the complaining witness. McIlroy was arraigned and plead not guilty. The court then proceeded to try the case and found the defendant guilty he was about to be sentenced when it was discovered that the case was without the jurisdiction of municipal court. McIlroy was held to the grand jury, but was released from custody on his own recognizance. The maximum penalty is only a $25 fine, or imprisonment in the county jail for sixty days. The court does not sit until September and as the defendant had but little money, Judge Edson did not think the circumstance warranted the commitment until that time.

Informal Cotillion.

An informal cotillion will be given by the Marshall-Wells Hardware company boys at Oatka beach pavilion next Friday evening, July 12. Dancing will commence at 8:30. W. C. Kennedy, E. D. Burrows, C. R. Fenton and E. A. Thorbus form the committee which has the affair in charge. The evening promises to be a most enjoyable one.

Fell Into Temptation.

Two white women, giving the names of Ada Smith and May Howard, and their home as Virginia, Minn., were arrested by the police of Superior in a raid made on a colored "dive" in that city. They were taken before Judge Hally and put up $10 bail to appear for trial in the afternoon. The bail money was forfeited. Later in the day the Howard woman appeared and told the judge how it happened. She said she was innocent of the charge against her, having been lured to the immoral house by a white saloonkeeper who had promised that the colored women inmates of the place would give a dancing exhibition. While witnessing the exhibition they were arrested. The woman left the court room after promising that she would never again heed the voice of a tempter, either white or colored.

The Convention Closes.

The convention of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, in session the last two days in Superior, ended this afternoon. At 2 o'clock the election of officers took place, and after finishing some routine business the convention adjourned to meet again in one year. Last night a mass meeting was held in Maryland hall and several speakers made addresses. Among the speakers were G. L. Rockwell, of Minneapolis, and J. H. Baker, business agent of the Carpenter's union of Duluth.

CHARTERS NAPOLEON

E. T. Williams & Son Take Big Dredge For the Season.

Will Crowd the Big Machine For a Record.

Some Facts About This Firm's Immense Dredging Plant.

The big dredge Napoleon, which was built last winter by the Duluth Dredge and Dock company, has been chartered for the season by E. T. Williams & Sons, and went to work yesterday on the dredging which that firm is doing for the government under the continuous contract secured by it several years ago and under which the firm has been working for four years past. This is the largest dipper dredge that has ever worked at the head of the lakes, and there is much interest among dredging men to see what it will accomplish. Messrs. Williams & Sons will push the big machine as hard as possible, and have put on it a fine crew.

The Napoleon caries an 8-yard dipper, while the other dredges in the Williams fleet carry only 4-yard dippers. It would appear from this that the Napoleon ought to smash all records with ease, providing, of course, that she has power in proportion to the increase in the size of dippers, and this she is supposed to have. Notwithstanding this advantage in the size of dippers, however, the Napoleon has some fine records to compete with. Dredge No. 7 of the Williams fleet, which burned a few weeks ago, had made some fine records for dipper dredge work. In one day, digging in sand and mud, it removed 5572 cubic yards and in one month 100,234 cubic yards. This is a great record for a 4-yard dipper dredge, and it is doubtful whether it has been exceeded anywhere, working in the same style of material. The Hingston & Woods, of Buffalo, have a big 8-dipper dredge, Pan-American, working down the lakes, and its record is 106,000 cubic yards in a month, a little less than 6000 yards more than the No. 7 with a dipper twice the size.

The Napoleon ought to dig at least 8000 yards a day in order to make a proper showing. It is expected that it will, for the machine is well built and will be well manned.

The firm of E. T. Williams & Sons has three other dredges working in the harbor at the present time. The plant now used is an entirely different one from that which the firm had when it secured the contract on which it is now working. At that time it had six dredges, but all of them were small, had been in use a long time, and were inadequate to carry out the portion of the work which the firm was required to do each year to keep up its part of the contract. The firm knew this, however, and immediately began the rebuilding of the plant. Today not one of the dredges then in use is at work. All are new and are magnificent and powerful machines, capable of doing great work and fully equal to the requirements of the contract which was undertaken. The loss of the No. 7, which burned some weeks ago, was a severe one, for it was a great machine, the record breaker of the fleet. Dredge No. 8 is not far behind, however, having taken out 5226 yards in a day.

Dredging today is a different thing from what it was a few years ago. Up to the time the continuous contract was let, a depth of fifteen or sixteen feet was about the maximum, and the Williams plant was representative of that time. The increase in the depth of channels brought a new era, and the old dredges were entirely inadequate. Channels were to be 21 feet below low water datum, and this meant digging to a depth of 23 and 25 feet and even higher. Now some of the dredges have to go down 27 feet and even as deep as 30 feet.

The dredges themselves are by no means the whole of a dredging plant, however. Thirteen scows are used in this plant to carry off the material and that number is necessary to keep the dredges constantly at work. This must be done, for every minute of time counts on a dredge and the idle moments are the ones that bring the loss to the owner. The precision with which the empty scow arrives at the dredge before the loaded one is ready to depart shows the system which prevails. Of the scows now in use by the firm but one was in use when the contract was undertaken. All of the others are new and are large carriers

Two immense scows have been built for the Napoleon. They will carry about 700 yards each, but there is doubt as to whether that will be sufficient to keep the big dipper moving all the time. If not, of course, another will be provided.

Seven tugs are also a part of the great plant. One of these is used as a supply tug, while the others tow the scows. At the present time all of the dredges are working well up in the St. Louis river and there is a very long tow to the dumping ground. The work of cutting out the channel from Grassy Point upward is in progress and on this three dredges are at work.

The chains which were used for operating the cranes and dippers are rapidly going out of use, wire cables being substituted. The change is proving very satisfactory in more ways than one. They cost less orginally and are time savers. The breaking of a link in a chain always meant a delay of several hours for it always broken when the dipper was in the water and it was a matter of much time to get it up and the repairs made. Now a strand may break in the cable, but the dipper can be raised and the repairing of the cable is a matter of half an hour or so. The chain, too, had to be doped with grease several times a day and a stop of fifteen minutes or so at each time was necessitated by this. The cables can be greased without any stop. Then, too, the cables make very little noise, while the chains could be heard for miles. This may not be an economy, but it is a pleasure nevertheless.

There is spirited rivalry among the men on the dredges and they strive to make the best showing for the machine on which they work. This, of course, works to the advantage of the firm, but it also reflects the good feeling of the men for their employers. The firm has in its employ today men who have been with E. T. Williams, the senior member, for twenty and thirty years. A sort of civil service system is used and when a vacancy occurs if there is a man in the rank below who can fill the place, he gets it. The new men must all begin at the bottom. This system gives encouragement to the men and makes them strive for their own improvement.

CONVENTION.

Finnish National Temperance Society to Meet Here.

The last day of July and the first day of August will see the convention of the Finnish National Temperance Brotherhood of America, at Duluth. The convention will be held in Kalamazoo hall and a large attendance of those interested in the work is expected. Duluth was chosen for the meeting place on account of the large Finnish population that is to be found in Michigan and Minnesota.

On Aug. 3 a celebration will be held at the summer park Thirtieth avenue east, at which the Finnish singing societies will hold a contest. Many valuable prizes will be awarded for the best singing and the affair is expected to be a very successful one.

Although the Finns are comparatively late arrivals in this country, they are rapidly establishing temperance societies, churches, Sunday schools and other educational institutions and have today about 50,000 church members.

The Finnish convention that will be held in Duluth will be a very large affair and many delegates will doubtless be present.

FIRE BOARD.

Increase In Levy For Next Year Is Asked.

A special meeting of the board of fire commissioners was held at the city hall yesterday afternoon for the purpose of estimating the size of the levy needed to take care of the fire department of the city next year. After considerable discussion and figuring a resolution was adopted asking that a levy of $38,380 be made for the department. This is an increase over the levy of last year, but the board deems it necessary on account of the employment of several additional men in the department stationed at eWst Duluth. The estimate will be submitted to the city council and must be approved before its final transfer to the county auditor.

The itemized estimates of the board are as follows: Salaries, $75,000; horse feed, $3500; fuel, $4500; telephone, $70; alarm system, $300; repair shop, $900; building repairs, $1200; laundry, $150; chemicals, $100; shavings, $90; hail, $100; apparatus repairs, $1000; painting houses, $100; harness repairs, $200; painting apparatus, $200; plumbing and steamfitting, $200; sundry expenses, $1000; store room, $1000; contingent fund, $250; horses, $1200; hose, $2700. Calculations are based on the collection of about 80 per cent of the levy.

Chinaman to Wed.

Charley Sing, a Duluth celestial and Mary Knudson, of West Superior, are to be married. A license to wed was secured in this city last night. There was rice and real beef on the festal board, Sing must wait three days longer before he can have Miss Knudson's name changed to Mrs. Sing, and he is receiving the congratulations of many of his Mongolian brethren, who consider him fortunate although in exclusive Chinese society circles the belief is general that he should have chosen a maiden from the Flowery Kingdom. Sing will have no chance to affiliate with the Boxers now, having chosen a foreign woman as the wife of his bosom.

An Oil Factory.

Superior is to have a new industry. John Bannon, of North Dakota, will establish a linseed oil factory. A building will be erected on Banks avenue, and the plant complete will represent an investment of $35,000. It is expected that about twenty-five men will be employed at the factory. Oil cake and linseed oil will be the products of the new plant.

GRAIN-O
THE PURE GRAIN COFFEE

Some people can't drink coffee; everybody can drink Grain-O. It looks and tastes like coffee, but it is made from pure grains. No coffee in it.

Grain-O is cheaper than coffee; costs about one-quarter as much.

NO MAN IS STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

The stomach is the vital center of the body. It is the organ from which all other organs are fed. A weak stomach means a weak man. There never was a strong man with a weak stomach. What is called "weak stomach" is in general a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, which prevents the proper digestion of the food which is taken into the stomach, and so reduces the nutrition of the body. When all food is taken away the body starves. When the food eaten is only digested and assimilated in part it only nourishes the body in part, and so the body is partly starved. And this starvation is felt in every organ of the body dependent on the blood which is made from food.

The great variety of the cures performed by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is due to its remarkable power to heal diseases of the stomach and allied organs. It cures through the stomach diseases seemingly remote, but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and the other organs of digestion and nutrition. "Weak" heart, lungs, kidneys and weakness of other organs is cured with the cure of the weak stomach.

Mr. Thomas A. Swarts, Box 103, Sub-Station C., Columbus, Ohio, writes: "I was taken very sick with severe headache, then cramps in the stomach, and food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble, and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. The more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I had become so poorly I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I got so thin I had given up to die, thinking that I could not be cured. Then one of my neighbors said, 'Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me so I thought I would get another, and after I had taken eight bottles I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) lbs. in about six weeks. I have done more hard work in the past eleven months than I did in two years before, and I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

VARIED COMMENT

Parole of Younger Brothers Freely Commented On.

Duluth Sentiment Divided Like That of Other Places.

Former Residents of Southern Minnesota Are Generally Against It.

The paroling of the Younger brothers has been the subject of as much interset in Duluth as it has been in any other part of the Union. Duluth is a divided camp on the subject, like other comunities, but in general it is safe to say that there is no violent objection to the course that the board of pardons has taken in granting them paroles after a quarter of a century of confinement within the walls of the Minnesota penitentiary.

As might be expected, the matter of the residence of the parties at the time of the arrest of the Younger boys has a good deal to do with the opinions they are expressing. Those who lived in the southern part of the state, in or near Northfield, the scene of the bank robbery and murder that resulted in the conviction of the Youngers, are inclined to be bitter still, and to oppose any release. Such people say that no pardon should be granted, and that the Youngers should consider themselves lucky that they were let off with as light a punishment as life imprisonment.

They say that only a law in effect in those days, providing a remission of the death penalty when the prisoner pleaded guilty to a charge of murder in the first degree, saved their necks, and that this clemency is enough. They argue that if such wholesale murderers as these are to be released, even after twenty-five years, there is hope for any criminal, no matter how vile, and that it is offering a premium on crime.

On the other hand, nobody imagines for an instant that the Younger brothers will not make exemplary citizens for the remainder of their lives. Conditions have changed vastly since they entered the prison walls, and a life such as theirs in the days of Jesse James could hardly be lived now, even if it was their disposition to attempt it. But nobody imagines that this is their disposition. They have been model prisoners. For years they have been granted privileges that no other prisoners have had, and their prison record has been spotless. Both are on the sunset slope of life, and undoubtedly all they desire is a chance to finish their days in peace and decency.

On the whole, therefore, there is little disposition in this city to criticize the action of the board of pardons, except among those whose residence in the section terrorized by the James gang has left a bitterness that rankles after all these years. In addition, there is a class of comment that comes from those who argue theoretically, and who say that it is not so much as a punishment that the Youngers should be confined, but as a warning to others. Such theorists say that no misguided sentimentality should interfere with the complete execution of justice. They say that it is better that the Youngers, harmless and repentant though they doubtless are, should suffer confinement for the rest of their lives, than that sprouting desperadoes should take heart at their merciful release and enter on a career of crime.

THE RACES

To Come Off Friday Afternoon at the Driving Park.

Tomorrow afternoon the races that were billed for the Fourth will come off at Oneota park, and a large crowd is expected to be present to see them. The track, which was very muddy and heavy, is in fairly good condition now, and will be rolled into shape so that some fast work may be done upon it. There will be three races, besides some special ones, in which some West Superior horses will take part, and it will be the best exhibition of horse flesh that Duluth has had an opportunity to see for quite a while.

The free-for-all trot or pace will be the best race, as some very fast horses are entered, one having a record of 2:13 and another of 2:13¼. Some horses were in training in St. Paul and Minneapolis for big races this fall, and when the Duluth committee announced a $250 free-for-all race, the owners of the horses thought that it would be an opportunity to come down and make a little easy money. As it happened, four owners reasoned the same way, and Duluth will get a much better race than she otherwise could have secured. The entries are:

Free-for-all trot or pace:

Ornate, owned by Esther M. D. Wilson, of Minneapolis, with a record of 2:17½.

Rer Strath, C. Turnbull, Minneapolis, owner, 2:13.

Pinta, manager, A. Montbrien, St. Paul. 2:13¾.

Albert H, owner A. H. Powers, Hibbing.

2:30 trot or pace, $200:

Ethel, R. L. Griffen, Hibbing, manager.

Dock, G. W. Davis, owner.

Carrie Eaton, John Jenswold, owner.

Argonand, D. P. Maitland, Jackson, Mich. owner.

Billy M. J. A. Welds West Superior.

Bonnie Lubins, George Phillips, Duluth.

3-minute trot or pace, $200:

Lady Vilante, Mr. Braden, Anoka. owner.

Major Bell, William Randall, owner.

Konewaske, Anton Meisner, St. Paul.

Lucy D. H. Powers, Hibbing.

SOUTH DAKOTA CROPS.

Wheat Progressing and Heads Filling Well.

The crop report for South Dakota for the week ending Monday is as follows:

"The temperature during the week averaged considerably above the normal, with warm days and some quite warm nights.

"Showers, in some localities copious, were fairly well distributed, but there are portions of some middle and upper Missouri Valley counties where injurious drought prevails and small grain and upland grass are suffering, and corn and potatoes at a standstill. There are also localities elsewhere that would be benefited by rain.

Except in the drouthy district, wheat and oats have made good progress, the heads are generally full size, very promising, and the early filling nicely. Barley and spring rye are also very promising, and in many fields are ripening. Winter rye harvest is far advanced toward completion, and good yield and quality of grain is anticipated. There is a little report of the tips of barley heads showing apparent blight from high temperature, but the complaint is confined to limited areas. There is also a little report of rust on oats, but not serious. Grasshoppers appear to be damaging some fields of wheat and oats, but locally.

"Corn, on the whole, has improved very much, cultivation has progressed well, the growth has generally been rapid, and in some Southern localities the crop is nearly up to the seasonal average of advancement, with some in tassel. There is, however, considerable that is poor stand, and in the northern counties very backward.

"Grass continues to afford excellent pasturage. Haying is in progress generally, the yield is very satisfactory, and the quality excellent.

"Flax and potatoes, on the whole, have made thrifty progress, and new potatoes are now in the market, but potato bugs are numerous and ravenous in many fields. The flax crop is very uneven in point of advancement, some being in boll and some not much more than above the ground.

"Flax and millet seeding is about completed. Millet has generally made good progress, and promises heavy yield.

"There appears to be no change in the prospect for fruit, which, while gratifying in some limited localities, on the whole is, at best, only fair.

Eight-Hour League.

G. L. Rockwell, of Minneapolis, the supreme grand secretary of the Eight-Hour Day League of America, is in the city working in the interests of concentrating and making effective the sentiment throughout the entire country in favor of the eight-hour day. He spoke at Superior a couple of days ago before the state labor convention there. Mr. Rockwell says that he finds much interest taken in the league by working men, and that it will be a great thing for them when they shall have perfected their organization throughout the country and secured the needed legislation.

TO BUILD A MILE.

Michael Doyle Gets a Railroad Contract.

Contractor Michael Doyle, of this city, has just closed a contract for the construction of a mile of the new railroad being built at Rice Lake, Wis., for the Chippewa Valley & Northwestern company. Mr. Doyle says there is still thirty miles of the road to be constructed toward Ashland under sub-contracts, Winston Bros. having the contract for the entire line. hTe new road parallels a branch of the Soo road now under construction, for about three miles and the tracks of the two different companies are so close together that one ditch between does for both. Mr. Doyle will ship his equipment to Rice Lake on Saturday. He says there will be work on the new road until late in the coming winter.

THEY STRIKE COAL.

Duluth Men Have Hit It Near Spokane.

Davis & Comstock, well known lumber brokers of this city, have become interested in a coal find in Washington and have organized a company there. W. G. Davis of the firm has removed to that state with his family to look after timber business and while there became interested in oil and later ran across coal lands. The Spokane Chronicle says that he secured the Maj. Routhe ranch about three miles southwest of Valley, Wash., on which coal had been supposed to exist though not necessarily in paying quantities. Mr. Davis, however, prospected the find and is said to have found a seven-foot coal measure with four feet of coal of extremely fine quality. The quality is expected to increase with the depth, too. The Valley Coal company has been incorporated with J. W. Comstock, of Duluth, as president, and W. G. Davis as treasurer and manager.

Good Time to Join the Navy.

Considerable interest is being taken all over the country in enlistments for the navy, as the increased number of ships offers more advantages than ever before for young men who have a liking for such pursuits. Recruiting stations have been established for brief periods in most of the large cities of the North and many men have been obtained, several enlisting from Duluth a few weeks ago. Still they are not coming in fast enough and a warship has been ordered to the South for the purpose of giving the residents of the Southern states an opportunity. The officials of the department say that the time was never better for those desiring an experience at sea to enlist. The increased navy has created a need for petty officers and opened up all avenues of promotion. The recruiting officers will accept not only the men who have had experience, but will take all young men of good habits and with the necessary physical requirements who wish to enlist. Boys between the ages of 15 and 17 years will also be enlisted. The boys must have the permission of their parents. They will be carried in the navy as apprentices until they are 21 years old, at which time they will have an opportunity to enlist, and with their experience of a number of years will be particularly well adapted for the service, and will be in a position to rise rapidly. The department is enlisting men who have had two and four years' experience at sea. The former are enlisted as ordinary seamen and the latter as seamen. Those men must be between the ages of 18 and 30 years, and are examined to establish their familiarity with the sea. The department will send most of the recruits to naval stations for six months, after which they will be sent to ships for cruises. Six ships have been fitted out for training purposes to prepare the young sailors for their work on the fighting ships of the navy. They include the Lancaster, Buffalo, Alliance, Hartford, Dixie and Mohican.

Growing Demand For Lawyers.

There is a prevalent idea that the professions are overcrowded, especially that of the law, and attempts have been made in some quarters to discourage young men from entering the professions. Dr. Harris, national superintendent of schools, does not believe in the declaration that the legal profession is overcrowded. On the contrary he thinks that the trend of business at the present time is creating a growing demand for lawyers. 'According to the statistics of 1899," he said, "there were in the United States ninety-six law schools, enrolling in the aggregate 11,574 students, 167 of these being women. The increase in the last quarter of a century of all students in law schools was 343 per cent, and in France the number of women studying law has increased in twenty-five years from 6 to 147. In former times it happened that the larger portion of persons under preparation for the practice of law were to be found in the lawyers offices reading law and practicing the drudgery connected with it. Now they pursue their preparatory studies in regularly established law schools. This accounts in part for the apparent great increase in the number of students. The lawyer of the present day finds the most lucrative field to be that of counsel, or expert in some special province of jurisprudence. Business men placed at the head of great interests have to advise constantly with their lawyers and the enormous growth of business combinations creates a demand for a large number of experts in law. I know of a young lawyer who made a specialty of state laws relating to the operation of oil wells, and he soon secured a fine position with the Standard Oil people. Another young lawyer of my acquaintance made himself an authority on railway law and he is now in the legal department of one of our most prominent transcontinental railroads with charge of the affairs of the road in Texas. He says that the same company has more than 200 young and capable lawyers in that state."

POLITICAL CHAOS IN ENGLAND.

The division of sentiment in the Democratic party over Populism, Bryanism, Clevelandism and all the other isms, and the growing breach in the erstwhile solid ranks of the Republican party over tariff revision, reciprocity and the trusts, not to mention the administration's policy of imperialism, have their counterparts in old and conservative England. The foreign policy of Joseph Chamberlain, to which is charged the disastrous Boer war, the heavy taxation resulting therefrom and the loss of commercial supremacy, has resulted in a state of political chaos, even worse than that which exists in the United States.

The Conservative party, which gained a decided victory at the last election, and which now holds a safe majority in parliament, is decidedly unpopular with the people. If it were not for the outside presure of the South African war and the dominant national pride, the ministry would not last a week. The party is committed to the complete subjugation of the Boers, but there is a growing minority which is hesitating before a policy which will impoverish the kingdom and bring on the people nothing but national disgrace. If the Liberal party was united and led by a man equal to a great emergency it would go hard with the government. But the Liberals are in as chaotic a state as are the Democrats of the United States—they are without an acknowledged leader. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the nominal leader, is incapable of uniting the forces or of maintaining a policy. The bond that should bind the Liberal party is the opposition to the African war, and on that there is a division. Mr. Asquith, an imperialistic Liberal, has a following, a following which believes in pushing the Boers to the last ditch. That branch of the opposition is with the government on the only great issue between the parties.

The threatened breach in the Liberal ranks, which occurred a week ago, has been patched up, but it is only an armed truce. Meanwhile the war in South Africa goes merrily on, and the Conservatives are losing strength with each passing sun. Lord Rosebery, the only man who can unite the Liberal party, is being urged to throw himself into the breach and not only save the party but save the empire. Many of the Conservatives would gladly follow Rosebery should he consent to take the threatened Liberal helm and assume the management of the ship of state. An audience with the king, which took place the other day, has set political circles in a whirl of gossip. Lord Kelvin, who is a supporter of the present government, a short time since suggested that the political parties of the future would avail themselves of any man who showed great ability, no matter what his party affiliations might be, and named Rosebery as such a man.

What the policy of Rosebery would be were he placed at the head of the government can only be conjectured. It is quite certain that he would bring the Boer war to an end by offering complete autonomy to the two Dutch republics, a concession which Chamberlain now refuses to make. It looks now as if a change of ministry was the only thing which can lift England out of the slough into which the Chamberlain foreign policy has driven her.

VERY SLOW PAY.

Probably there is no debtor in the country, that is, one who ever intends to pay, who is as slow at times as Uncle Sam in settling accounts. Many just claims run on for years and years on account principally of the red tape connected with the various departments. Sometimes there are curious incidents connected with the settlement of claims and in one case, which has just been closed, the honesty of the creditor of the government caused years of delay. One day this week the treasury department sent a check to George T. Roberts, of Tennessee, for $205.45, an amount which has been owed him since 1864, and for which there has been an authorization law since 1870. In 1871 Mr. Roberts was sent a check for $1064.23, but he promptly returned it, with the statement that this was in excess of the amount due him. His honesty led to almost endless investigation on the part of the government, and the final payment to him of a sum less than he calimed was in justice due him.

Early in the civil war Beaty's scouts were organized in the state of Tennessee and throughout the conflict served the cause of the North. The company was never regularly mustered into the service, but did excellent work in connection with regular troops. Many of the men of the command were killed and wounded. In 1870 congress recognized the company by passing a law giving to its members pay as though engaged in the regular enlisted service. In making up their accounts for payment, the treasury department sent to Mr. Roberts a check for $1064.23, being $561.60 for services between 1862 and 1865; $351.20 for use and risk of horse, and $151.43 for clothing money. In returning the check to the treasury department, Roberts said he had been forced into the Confederate army and served with the organization to which he was assigned for a portion of the time for which the government offered him pay. An officer of the department was sent to investigate the claim, and learned that his statement was correct. The payment was altered in accordance with the finding of the investigation, but it was also discovered that, in spite of the accepted belief of his sworn affidavit to the effect that he had furnished a horse, there was no record of the fact, and the allowance on this account was cut off.

HOBSON'S ORATION.

Lieut. Hobson, whom some people may remember as the youth that commanded the abortive attempt ofSampson to block the mouth of Santiago harbor so the Spanish fleet could not come out to be captured by Schley, and who afterward immortalized himself by kissing an indefinite number of female fools, delivered what was called a Fourth of July oration near Boston.

The people always expect something extravagant from a Fourth of July orator. He is licensed to say big things of the country, the anniversary of whose birth he is supposed to be celebrating. But Hobson outdid the worst of them all. He solemnly declared that he expected to be able to see the day when all the nations of the earth would be celebrating the Fourth of July. This statement he made without announcing that he expected to be back on this earth at some remote date in the future. There was no assertion that he was Rameses the first, on earth for the second time, and that he would return again on his third round. Not a bit of any such scheme; yet he solemnly declared that he expected to see the whole human tribe celebrating the Fourth of July. Nor did the champion kisser stop here; he assured the bean-eaters that slavery was a heaven-sent institution; that it was beneficent and was the only thing that stood between the colored race and annihilation. Hobson evidently is not posted on the statistics of Africa. The great success with which the enslaving of the colored race was accompanied emboldened the youthful Hobson to advise the people of the United States to take up the "white man's burden" and do likewise to all those who sit in darkness.

He advised the government to spend $25,000,000 in warships and smokeless powder and go forth among the heathen. All that is necessary, according to this philosopher, is to hand out this civilization of ours, in the shape of involuntary servitude or a thorough bombardment, and the deed is done.

There never was hurled into the ears of a patient Fourth of July audience a more ridiculous speech than was composed and delivered by this naval kissing bug. If Hobson is a sample of the thinkers which naval training produces, the country will do well to keep them at sea and never, never allow them to enter politics. The people are just learning what they missed by not having Dewey or Sampson for president.

THE ISLAND OF JOLO.

When a warship once in a while calls at the island of Jolo and jollies the sultan a little, then are the people of the United States reminded that they have a possession away down on the other side of the globe. Jolo, with the exception of Tawi Tawi, is the most remote island belonging to this country. It lies in the sea of Jolo. It is about 100 miles due east from the easternmost point of Borneo, seventy-eight miles south southeast from Manila, 8681 miles from San Francisco and 11,282 from Washington. It is hardly more than a good-sized military post beautifully laid out, with broad, clean streets, lined with flowering trees and gardens, and surrounded by a loopholed wall about 8 feet high and 1 1-3 feet thick. The population is estimated at 400, mostly Chinamen, one German, no other Europeans. Four male Moros live within the walls. The public buildings are in a dilapidated condition. The governor's residence and office is one small building. There is one group of barracks (four buildings), which will accommodate one battalion. The theater will accommodate one company, and outlying blockhouses two companies. A commissary, postoffice, school house, a hospital for about ten beds, a market and some few small structures compose the remainder of the public buildings.

The commanding officer of the United States troops, the day after his arrival, wrote about Jolo as follows: "The situation, in so far as determined from our limited experience, is as follows: Spain possesses the small walled town known as Jolo. The governor has complete control within the walls. There are no civil courts, no civil officers. Outside the walls the sultan of Jolo and Borneo is the ruler. Spain pays him $200 (Mexican) per month. At present he is not on the island, but is visiting one of the neighboring islands, about thirty miles south. He has recently returned from Mecca, and now dresses in European costume. Spanish soldiers seldom go beyond the range of the outlying blockhouses. The relation between the natives (Moros) and Spain is not altogether harmonious."

We have Jolo, but just what we want with Jolo is hard to determine.

Secretary of War Root is to make a Western trip shortly and will consult with the general officers of the National Guard of the states he visits concerning the long cherished idea of the war department of a closer relation between the regular establishment of the army and the state militia organizations. The secretary of war will discuss with the National Guard officers the possibility of having joint encampments between the guardsmen and the regulars, where the militia and regulars could be mobolized in brigades and divisions for joint maneuvers. The plan is to give opportunity to the regulars for handling large bodies of troops in battle maneuvers and to give to the officers of the militia advantages of association with regulars in officers' schools. It is possible that the department will urge upon congress the advisability of requiring some such co-operation on the part of the militia of states which share in the annual apropriation by congress for the benefit of state organizations. The scheme is one which has long been urged by the assistant secretary of war, Col. Sanger.

For the purpose of encouraging the organization and maintenance of agricultural colleges by the different states an act was passed by congress giving national aid to all such institutions. It provided that, beginning with the fiscal year of 1891, all states containing coll eges of the kind described in the act should receive $15,000 per annum to assist in their maintenance. It also provided that these annual payments should be increased at the rate of a thousand dollars per annum until a maximum annual payment of $25,000 was reached. The maximum was reached this year, and under the terms of the act future payments will be at the rate named. The treasury department sent out on Monday warrants for an aggregate of $1,200,000 for this purpose. The sum was divided up equally between the forty-eight states and territories of the Union, each receiving $25,000. The warrants were made payable in most cases to the orde: of various state or territorial treasurers, but in a few cases to the financial officer of the state or territory. The aggregate of $1,200,000 is the annual contribution of the government to the forwarding of the teaching of agricultural and mechanical arts, and is another illustration of the fostering care of the national government for its state institutions of merit.

Commenting upon the question of age as a bar to nomination for the presidency, the Hartford Courant points out that the country never has elected to the presidency a man as old as Senator Allison. "Thus far," it says, "no man over 70 has been elected to the presidency and only five men over 60—John Adams, 62; Andrew Jackson, 62; William Henry Harrison, 68; Zachary Taylor, 65; James Buchanan, 66. President Washington was 57 when inaugurated. Jefferson was 58, Madison, 58, Monroe 59, John Quincy Adams 58, Van Buren 55, Polk 50, Pierce 49, Lincoln, 52, Grant 47, Hayes 54, Garfield 49, Cleveland 48, Benjamin Harrison 55, and William McKinley 53."

The international convention of Christian Endeavor society, which closed at Cincinnati last night, was most successful. The Christian Endeavor, Epworth league Baptist union and Brotherhood of St. Andrew now have a total membership of over 7,000,000, and nearly all young people. Such factors mean something.

The lot of the clergy in the Church of England today is said to be so wretched that even younger sons have given up the career which for so many years was looked upon as their chief resource. The people are becoming tired of supporting a "career" of idleness.

At the close of 1899 the annual interest charge of the government was a little over $40,000,000; now it is a little less than $30,000,000, which is largely due to the refunding into 2 per cent bonds. The debt has been reduced $61,000,000 in two years.

The Boston Globe says: "On the old Fourth the American people talked most of liberty; on the new one they talk most of trade. Not freedom, but empire, is now the theme of patriotism. Trade is the golden calf of the new century."

POINTED REMARKS.

Detroit Journal: "Miss Passay seems to dislike Mr. Phuttinet."

Yes, he tried to pay her a compliment. He made the mistake of telling her she was in the prime of life."

Puck: He (watching another couple)—He is—er—somewhat older than she. Is he wealthy?

She—Very likely. I presume she didn't marry him just on account of his age.

Chicago Tribune: "I wonder what has caused the coolness between Aggamore and his wife."

"What makes you think there is any coolness?"

"I know there is. Last week he had some photographs taken and she said they flattered him."

Brooklyn Life: He—It seems to amuse you when I offer to give up all my dissipation if you will only marry me.

She—Yes. It strikes me as funny to think of your denying yourself the only thing that could possibly occupy your mind.

New York Weekly: Mr. Bronston—Mr. and Mrs. Upton both had on new suits in church today. Mrs. Upton's dress was tailor-made.

Mrs. Bronston—Huh! How do you know it was tailor-made?

Mr. Bronston—Because Mr. Upton's clothes were ready-made.

Philadelphia Press: "You are not in the same class with me," scornfully declared the nickel-plated safety pin.

"Oh, you haven't any cause to be stuck up," retorted the ordinary pin. "Speaking of classes, some of us have occupied chairs in the foremost schools and colleges."

Detroit Journal: "You find spring water a very great advantage in dairying, I presume?"

"Oh, I don't know," said the milkman. "The average person buying milk doesn't know the difference between spring water and any other kind."

Pittsburg Chronicle: "What a dreary bore this long journey is!" exclaimed the man in the white flannel suit.

"Why, I thought you were taking this trip for pleasure," commented the other man.

"I am—for the pleasure of my wife and daughters."

THE FATE of "MY KING"

BY WINIFRED BLACK.

(Copyright, 1901, by W. R. Hearst.)

John Alexandre Marsden was dreadfully in love with Anna Partington.

It really was dreadful of him, because he was engaged to another girl.

The other girl was little and slender and dark, and she had a smooth, dark skin and shining dark hair and a pair of eyes as blue as a spring violet and just as dewy.

She was a Southern girl and she called John "Johnnie" and wrote him long letters beginning "My King."

John Marsden had been engaged to her for six months or a year when he met Anna Partington.

When John thought of his engagement he thought of it in that way, six months or a year, because he really didn't quite know when they became engaged. He had known the other girl so long, ever since they went to Miss Lottie Green's private school together and told fortunes with apple peel at the surprise parties.

He always chose the other girl when they played postoffice and she always dropped her handkerchief behind him when they played handkerchief chase.

She wrote to him when he went North to "go into journalism," and when he went home on a visit he saw her at a picnic in a white chip hat and a pink muslin dress, and then he decided he was in love with her.

She left him dancing attendance on her for a while, and then things drifted along until John had to go North, and when he left her he gave her a ring and the thing was settled more or less definitely.

John Marsden was not dependent upon his salary as a reporter for a living. His father was rich and John had a neat little fortune of his own. He was "doing the city hall" for a New York daily, to learn how, and as soon as he had done "night police" and worked on the labor detail he was going down to Shreveport and start a newspaper of his own.

All of which greatly interested Anna Partington.

Anna aPrtington was blond and gray-eyed, and she wore her age and her clothes equally well. She had been in New York some time, but she still spoke with an odd Western accent that made her direct manner at once piquant and a little irritating.

She was a "star."

She wrote "special stories," and she was said to write them very well.

But she was tired of newspaper work.

There had been two big balls, and she had to go and stand in a cold hall and ask women what they were wearing, and then the Sunday editor had taken a new fad for pictures and he kept Anna Partington running from the Battery to Harlem getting them.

All kinds of pictures—Chinese women, murderers and society girls and athletes,

"anything, so it will reproduce," he said; and Anna Partington had just had her twenty-seventh birthday, and she said she was sick of it all and wanted a home.

What she really wanted was a vacation, or a chance to do a "big story," but she didn't know that.

She went to a studio supper one night down in Washington square, and met a lot of people who bored her.

Johnson, the artist, for instance. He wanted to turn the conversation to cartoons all the time, so that some one would praise him. And Denslow, the space writer, who would have fallen in love with her if she could have listened to his long stories with a better grace.

And Mr. and Mrs. Evergreen, the rising young writers who never wrote anything, and Mrs. Wellington the woman who recited and Jack Carlton the man who sang so badly. The sandwiches were dry and the beer was warm, and the men's cigarette smoke made Anna's head ache, and all at once she met John Alexandre Marsden.

John Alexandre Marsden was tall and dark and extremely good looking, and he wore a dress suit like a gentleman—Anna Partington knew few people who did that—and he had a pair of great, innocent, child-like eyes, the eyes of a dreamer, and he looked at her and said: "Miss Partington, Ah have long hoped for this honah"—and that began it.

John Alexander Marsden admired intellect in women.

He had a cousin who wrote original verses in autograph albums and she had written one for him on his birthday. He kept it sacredly in a little letter case and only showed it to those who "could appreciate the muse."

He really meant what he said "about long hoping for this honah," and Anna Partington saw that he meant it, and she began, as she said afterwards to her intimate friend, Miss Nina Fullerton of the Casino theater, "to sit up and take notice."

John Alexandre Marsden took her home that night.

He spoke of the stars on the way up Broadway.

Anna thought he was joking at first, but when she saw he wasn't she threw all the soul she had into her eyes and said: "Oh, Mr. Marsden, if you knew what it is to me to meet a lover of nature here in this big heartless city." And Mr. Marsden did not laugh.

She told him how lonely she was and how hollow she felt life to be, and he tried to cheer her up—and when he left her he promised to bring her a volume of Keats and read her a favorite sonnet.

Since that night Anna was really not half bored. John Alexandre Marsden waited at the foot of the stairs for her every night, and he took her to dinner twice a week.

Sometimes they went to a noisy, dirty, ill-ventilated little French cafe down town.

John Marsden liked that best.

"It was so Bohemian," he said, "and you saw so many celebrated people."

He sat and watched John Ward, the satirist, eat snails, with all his eager generous, admiring young soul in his face, and Anna looked across the table at him and thought: "It really is a pity. I won't see him after tonight."

But she always did see him again, and the next time they would dine together up-town at a gay little resort with snow shoes and boxing gloves and things on the wall, and John Alexander Marsden's heart would expand and he would tell Anna all about his plans for the future and his great hope of being a power in his state. "A power for good," he said, with his child's eyes a-gleam with happy enthusiasm.

Anna listened with an incredulous smile at first, and afterward with a dull ache at her heart—an ache which she sometimes almost mistook for love, but which was really self pity.

"If I could only love him," she thought, "this boy with his child's eyes and his brave man's heart," but she couldn't. She had written too many stories about love for that.

She was very much interested in his paper down there in the Southern town, however, and in his home, as he described it to her, all sunshine and magnolias and mocking birds and houn' pups and raised biscuits and cousins.

One rainy night when she had failed to bring down a picture the Sunday editor really wanted and he had scolded her for it fretfully, she went out into the wet street and started up town, so tired she could scarcely draw a long breath. It had been a wearing day with her.

She had interviewed a prizefighter who wanted to talk but who really had nothing to say, so she had to say it all for him and she was not fond of dialect stories. Then she wrote a tale of love and mystery and then she went up town to see a bride's trousseau, and had to write a column of rapture about a church bazar, and her feet were wet and her head ached and she was too fatigued to think of eating.

Out of the dark and the drizzle came John Alexander Marsden with a cab and a bunch of violets and an invitation to dine. She stepped into the cab with a little choke of joy in her throat. She buried her face in the violets for one long, blissful minute and then she said, "Johnnie, take me somewhere where there are dim lights, "I'm a fright tonight," and, though "Johnnie" told her she never could be a fright, he took her to a quiet little old-fashioned house where one gets a quiet, little old-fashioned dinner, and after dinner they drove home in the dark, rainy night with the lights of the cabs making a line of shining stars on the wet pavement of Fifth avenue.

Anna was so tired and so rested together that she stopped being amusing for once, and told "Johnnie" all about the long day, and about the prizefighter, and the bazar, and the bride, who was a "snippy thing," and had tried to snub her, and about the way the Sunday editor had acted about the pictures, and Johnnie lost his head, and Anna Partington found hers on his shoulder, and amazed herself by bursting into a flood of tears, like the heroine in a Saturday weekly continued story.

The cab driver had to keep his horse standing in the rain for half an hour while John Alexandre Marsden and Anna talked it out.

He wouldn't bear it one day longer, he said.

He would take her away from it all. They would be married at once, and they would go South and leave the hateful, heartless, vulgar city, and they would grow roses and violets, and she should have dogs and a horse or two, and Anna cried and laughed, and said, "You're such a boy," and he would not listen.

When she went up to her furnished room that night Anna Partington was more nearly happy than she had been since the day she saw the man she loved laid in his grave.

Johnnie dismissed the cab and walked home. He was beside himself with joy.

"She loves me, this wonderful woman," he said to himself over and over. "Oh, if I can only be worthy of her."

When he reached home he found a letter from Shreveport.

It was from the Other Girl.

It began "My Only Love," and ended "Yours in Life and Eternity."

John Alexandre Marsden did not go to bed that night. He sat by the window in a kind of stupor. There he decided—he would tell the truth—tell them both and then do as they thought best.

He knew he could not see Anna in the morning and so he wrote her a long letter and left it at her house.

He told her the whole story and then he said, "I'll come up tonight. Please see me. Please forgive me; please help me to do right and tell me how to do it.

"You and I must not part, but how shall I do in honor?"

In the evening he went to see Anna.

She met him with the sweetest kind of a smile, but her face was very white. She had been thinking.

"Johnnie," she said, "What a stupid you are—you dear, delicious thing you.

"I cried last night because I was tired and because it rained and because the violets took me away from this old hard payed city into the country for a while.

I was born in the country, you know, and I think I love it yet, but I'd die if I had to live there.

"This old city is the very breath of my life to me, and the office and the stories, don't you know?

"Why, I even love to see my own name on the headlines—and oh, did I tell you, the prize fighter sent me a huge bouquet today, all ribbons and things, and the funniest note, and I've got a special for this week that will simply open their eyes. They're going to bill me all over the town about it—and the chief says I'm running too many errands, and he's given orders I'm not to get pictures any more, and"—

Johnnie looked at her with his great childish eyes full of puzzled pain.

"Then you don't, you don't mean"—

"Why, no, of course not," said Anna Partington, laughing. "How on earth could I? Now see here, you're being spoiled in town. You're not made for it. Your eyes don't look a bit the way they used to, and you're growing to be just like all the rest of the reporters. You be a good boy now and go home and get married.

"And never tell her?" stammered John Alexandre Marsden.

"Johnnie," said Anna Partington leaning impressively across the table she had prudently put between John and herself, "never tell a woman anything unless you think it will make her happy to know it."

"But honor, truth," stammered John, and thought: "It really is a pity. I won't see him after tonight."

"Tut, tut, Johnnie," said Anna, "you're quoting Keats now, and Keats is out of the fashion.

"I'm going away on the 10:30 train, going West—it's a big story. I can't tell you now—you'll see it when I get back. you go on down South and see the roses and listen to the mocking birds, and—oh, is the girl that little dark think you used to wear in your watch. Yes I see it is; you needn't answer. Well, she's a dear thing and you'll find her a lot more lovable than a woman like me. Come along and take me to the train."

"And you don't—you never"—

"I don't and I never—and I've been mean I know, Johnnie dear, but you were such a sweet boy, and I knew you'd get over it—come!" And John saw her to the train and went home and went to bed—and came down with something which was half malaria, caught sitting around the old rat-trap of a police station, and half grief and disappointment.

When he was well enough to travel his father came and took him home and the Other Girl helped to nurse him back to health again.

When he was on his wedding trip John Marsden's wife sat in the Pullman car reading the morning paper. "Dear me," she said, "what won't these new kind of women do next."

"This new kind you mean, dear," said John, smiling at his pretty little new wife, much as a man smiles at a pretty baby, "well, what about her?"

"Oh, nothing, only here's that newspaper woman that is always getting her name in the papers.

"She's going to Europe now, to investigate some kind of a hospital scheme which she thinks would help somebody or other here.

"Ugh, just think of it—smallpox and all kinds of horrid things! I shouldn't think they'd let her."

"Don't read about it, darling," said John Alexandre Marsden, his face contracting. "I don't like you to know of such things."

Anna Partington?

She cried all night on the sleeper the night she went West, and she ate very little for a day or so, and then she came back to town and told her particular friend Miss Nina Fullerton, of the Casino theater, all about it.

"You see," she said, "I used to know that girl at the convent. She wouldn't know me under my pen name. She was a sweet little thing, she has been petted all her life, she has never known one sorrow, and it would have killed her to lose Johnnie. I've stood such a lot a blow more or less won't hurt me much."

"But the home and the quiet and the dogs and flowers, and being like other people—you're always saying you long for that sort of thing."

"Oh, that's only when they've got a beat on me in one of the other papers," said Anna Partington. "When a newspaper man gets beaten he goes out and drinks more than is good for him. When a newspaper woman gets beaten she sits down and cries for a home. It doesn't last."

"Nothing does for that matter."

"Even your complexion wont, Nina, dear."

"And Johnnie, how do you think he'll get through it?"

"Johnnie?" Anna's face whitened a little, but she laughed. "Johnnie, bless his dear heart," she said. "He'll live through it."

"He's a man."

And Johnnie did live through it, but to this day he won't allow his editors to employ women on his paper.

"The life makes them heartless," he says.

A SONG TO THE POPPY.

Glorious mid-summer poppy,
Radiant child of the sun,
Are you not proud, brave blossom,
Of the homage you have won?
For we bow before the splendor
Of your petal's wondrous sheen
In these royal days of summer
You are queen, fair flower, queen!

May flowers spilled their perfume,
June passed while the roses held sway,
Still with drooping head you were planning
This miracle of today.
You knew the other flowers would go
When the days grew hot and long,
That the rose would droop and languish;
And you said: "I will wait and grow strong."

So you drank of the sun's golden glory,
Drank deep of his wine of light,
And all the tints of the rainbow
Were yours as you burst on our sight;
No jewel, however brilliant,
Can rival you in your pride,
Red as the glowing ruby
Or pure and white, like a bride.

You bathed in the dews of the evening,
Absorbed the moon's mystical light,
And deep in your heart lie hidden
All the witcheries of the night.
No wonder the bees and the butterflies
Wooing forever in vain,
Grow suddenly faint with their sense of loss,
Dizzy and faint with pain.

Yet, in seeming cruelty, you are kind,
For their pain feeling only regret.
As with soothing, subtle, mysterious power,
You help them at least to forget.
None may think to gather and hold you,
Brave to bloom, but of contact shy,
A breeze too familiar, a touch too bold,
And a splendid ruin you lie.

Beautiful dream haunted poppy,
Frail, but so passing fair,
That I fancy even though rooted in earth,
Ye are kin to the spirits of air;
And that when your brief reign is ended
You will float on a sunbeam away
To shine in a color symphony
In the light of eternal day.

Others may sing to the peerless rose,
The lily, the violet blue,
And all flowers born to the purple—
But, poppy, I sing to you.
Others may scorn and pass you by
And hint at your origin mean,
But I love you, midsummer poppy!
And welcome and hail you queen.

The Speaker and the King.

Springfield Republican: Speaker Henderson is getting lauched at so much because of his remarks about his quiet chat with King Edward that he may really be compelled to announce that he was not reported accurately by the London branch of the Associated Press. It is some time since anything quite so delicious as Henderson on this occasion has been granted to us. Speaking with due reserve to his 76,000,000 of countrymen concerning his visit to royalty, the Iowan still cannot refrain from announcing the joyful news: "While the details of our conversation may not be repeated, I can assure my American friends that England may be depended upon in any ordinary controversy that may arise between the United States and the rest of the world." Blessed be David! He and Edward have fixed it up, and we are safe.

NOT FROM THE SOUTH

Will Next Democratic Candidate For President Be Taken.

Gorman Might Have Secured Nomination Nine Years Ago.

Dawes' Fight With Mason For the Illinois Senatorship.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, July 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The next Democratic candidate for the presidency will not come from the South. It will be recalled that there has been considerable discussion in the past few weeks whether or not the Southern states are entitled to have first place on the Democratic ticket in the next national campaign. It has probably been noticed, however, that very few prominent Democrats in the North, East and West have discussed this matter for publication at any rate. It has been noticed, too, that the conservative Southern Democratic leaders have not given the matter any account of consideration. While it is a well known fact that the "bloody shirt" has not been flaunted by the people of the north for several years past, the situation in the South is in such a fomented state over the negro question that it would not be considered wise upon the part of Democrats of the north, or the spread men of this party in the south, to advocate the nomination of any Southern Democrat for the presidency in 1904. As a matter of fact, the South, to a certain extent, has had an opportunity to be represented upon the national tickets in the past. There is one striking instance in this respect. This was at the Chicago Democratic national convention in 1892. At that time had Arthur Pue Gorman, the senator from Maryland, had the force of character which has been credited to him, he might have driven Grover Cleveland out of the race with neatness and dispatch, secured the nomination for himself and stood just as good a chance for election at the polls as did Mr. Cleveland, who was elected over Benjamin Harrison by a tremendous popular vote.

Mr. Gorman, however, was so mixed up with certain political deals and with certain Democratic leaders that it seemed impossible for him to permit the deegates at that convention to rally around the Gorman standard, and, therefore, the outcome, as it will be recalled by everybody, was the nomination of Grover Cleveland, who was in the following November elected for a second time president of the United States.

Gorman, in recent years, has been the only Democrat who stood any possible show of being nominated and elected president of the United States. His opportunity slipped by in 1892, and while he has since been prominent in politics, has lost his national prestige due to the lack of nerve at Chicago nine years ago.

Only a few days ago some enthusiastic Democrat from the South dashed into print favoring Senator-elect Foster of Louisiana as a candidate in 1904 for the Democratic presidential nomination. Of course the country at large recognized the fact that it was utter folly upon the part of anybody to consider seriously Senator Foster as a presidential candidate. He has been successful in his own state, having been elected governor twice and then promoted to the United States senate as the successor to Donalson Caffery. Caffery was regarded by Democrats everywhere as one of the most conservative men who has served in the senate in recent years. It may also be stated that Senator Foster is regarded as a man well equipped to serve Louisiana in the senate, but the time is not yet ripe for such a man as he to be brought out as a candidate for the presidency.

The indications now point to the nomination of an Eastern or Western Democrat in 1904. It is now a mooted question whether or not the honor will, for the third time, go to William Jennings Bryan, or whether the country at large will not consider it wiser and safer to have the next national Democratic ticket headed by such a man as David Bennett Hill.

The South, however, may have a candidate on the national Democratic ticket in 1904; but if so, it will be for second place instead of first. At the present time the indications point to deserved recognition of the South by the Democratic party. There are in the South many good men who might possibly strengthen the national ticket; one of them to be selected as a vice presidential candidate in the next national campaign. It is scarcely necessary to name the man considered prominent enough to become the tail of the Democratic presidential kite in 1904. Virginia has at least three men considered available for vice presidential honors. They are Senators Daniel and Martin and Attorney General Montague, who will head the Virginia state ticket this year, and who, presumably will be elected. Other Southern states have good presidential timber. One of the most popular of these is, perhaps, Clark Howell, national committeeman from Georgia and editor of the Atlanta Constitution. The Northern Democrats would, at least, favor Howell's candidacy, and it will not be surprising to either Democrats or Republicans if the Atlanta editor-statesman occupies second place on the Democratic presidential ticket in the next national campaign.

Charles G. Dawes, present comptroller of the currency, is receiving congratulations by telegraph and by mail because he has tendered his resignation to the president in order that he may make the race for the senatorship against William E. Mason, of Illinois.

As is well known, Mr. Dawes named Oct. 1 as the date set for his retirement from the treasury department. It is quite unusual that federal officeholders holding down high-priced positions, retire from office until they are sure of something better. Comptroller Dawes is an exception to this rule. He is frank enough to tell the president of the United States that he is a candidate for the senatorship from Illinois, and that, in order not to embarrass the administration, he will retire from office and enter the senatorial contest free-handed and take chances with all competitors, whether he is successful or whether the people of Illinois decide to retire him to private life.

In this respect Comptroller Dawes differs largely from other federal officeholders who have sought elective offices at the hands of the people. There was a notable case last winter when George D. Melkiejohn, assistant secretary of war, held his position while for three months he was at Lincoln, Neb., paying personal attention to his own candidacy for the United States senatorship. Meantime he accepted the position of assistant secretary of war. He was not elected. When the contest at Lincoln was over, his resignation as assistant secretary of war was, without doubt, demanded by either President McKinley or Secretary Root. Anyhow, he did not serve as assistant secretary after his return to Washington.

The fact that Comptroller Dawes has taken a different course will, without doubt, add him in his candidacy for the senatorship from Illinois. Whether or not he will have the backing of the administration is not known, but it is presumed that as Senator Mason has frequently opposed the policy of Maj. McKinley in congress, his retirement to private life is not impossible and the success of Charles G. Dawes is probable.

The Virginia Democratic state convention, which meets at Norfolk Aug. 14, will have little to do in the way of determining nominations for the places on the state ticket. These, with the possible exception of attorney general, have been disposed of and nothing remains to fight over. Montague's nomination, of course, is assured. It remains to be seen whether Mr. Swanson will permit his name to go before the convention. It is quite certain that some of the delegates instructed for Swanson will give their support to Montague. Mr. Willilard's nomination for lieutenant governor is as well assured as that of the head of the ticket. There will be a contest over the attorney generalship. Mr. Jeffries insists that he will win. The indications point somewhat that way, but A. W. Anderson, of Rockbridge, will have a large following and will press his opponent pretty closely, if he does not defeat him. Mr. Jeffries has always been classed with the Swanson wing, just as Mr. Echols was, and it is doubtful whether the Montague leaders are enthusiastic in his favor.

The most interesting question to come before the Norfolk convention since the governorship has been disposed of is that of endorsing a general primary for the nomination of all of the state officers, as well as the United States senators. This matter will be pressed at the convention and is likely to meet with favor. Four years ago a fight was made for the senatorial primary at the Roanoke convention, Mr. Martin's friends, including Senator Daniel, fought the suggestion with might and main. Their position then was that the matter had not been discussed in the state, and that the delegates in the convention could not expect to represent the wishes of their constituents on that subject. This reason cannot be urged at Norfolk, as the question has been discussed for the past four years. Mr. Montague attempted to get the legislature last winter to pass a primary law, but he says that the friends of Mr. Martin defeated it. The people are now, it is believed, ripe for such an innovation. The results of the gubernatorial campaign just closed have opened the eyes of the people to the importance of having some general plan for the nomination of state officers on the same day. Of course, the local bosses object to this change. It would result in leaving them without influence in politics and often without a job. It is probable that the Norfolk body may ask the constitutional convention to embody a general primary plan in the organic law of the state.

charge is made for admission.

Second—He shall proceed at once to the place of employment provided for him, viz., with ——, and there remain until further orders.

Third—In case he finds it desirable to change his employment or residence, he shall first obtain the written consent of the said board of managers, through the warden of said state prison.

Fourth—He shall, on the twentieth day of each month, write the warden of said state prison a report of himself, stating whether he has been constantly at work during the last month, and if not, why not; how much he has earned and how much he has expended, together with a general statement as to his surroundings and prospects, which must be indorsed by his employer.

Fifth—He shall in all respects conduct himself honestly, avoid evil associations, obey the law and abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors.

Sixth—As soon as possible after reaching his destination he shall report to ——, show him this parole, and at once enter upon the employment provided for him.

Seventh—He shall, while on parole, remain in the legal custody and under the control of said board of managers.

Eighth—He shall be liable to be retaken, and again confined within the inclosure of said state prison for any reason that shall be satisfactory to the board of managers, and at their sole discretion.

Ninth—This parole to take effect and be in force only upon the unanimous consent and approval of the members of the state board of pardons, expressed in writing.

The management of said state prison has a lively interest in the subject of this parole, and he need not fear or hesitate to freely communicate with the warden in case he loses his situation, or becomes unable to labor by reason of sickness or other disability.

THEY GET THE NEWS.

Youngers Told of Their Good Fortune.

Stillwater, Minn., July 11.—Yesterday was a glad day for two old men who have passed a quarter of a century in prison, in expiation of desperate crimes done in their youth, when the war of the rebellion had left bitterness and hatred behind as the heritage of the borderland.

It was the third day of suspense for Cole and Jim Younger. However, they have been amenable to discipline so long that they held themselves well in check.

It was shortly after noon that the ringing of the telephone called Harry Wolfer, assistant clerk at the prison, from his work. Warden Wolfer was at the St. Paul end of the line, and in a few words gave him the news that made everyone about the prison, whether guard or convict, glad.

The warden directed that the announcement be made to the waiting prisoners forthwith, and Harry Wolfer lost no time in seeking out the two brothers.

"Boys," he exclaimed, the tears coming to his eyes and a lump to his throat, "you are paroled. The state board has just approved the parole. The warden will be home soon to tell you all the particulars and arrange for your leaving. Probably you will get away tomorrow. Shake."

The welcome announcement seemed at first to daze the brothers. They had waited and longed for this day through so many weary hours of imprisonment that, now it was here, they could scarcely realize their good fortune.

But years of stern prison discipline had had their effect in teaching them to conceal their feelings, and their elation could only be guessed by the brightness of their eyes and just a suspicion of a quaver in their voices as they warmly shook the hand of the man who had brought them the news.

When a correspondent called, Cole Younger was in the office of Deputy Warden Glennon, and in response to a question as to how he felt, said:

"I can't tell you how I feel, but I can tell you this: I am pleased more than words can express. I have not yet been informed when I am to leave the prison, Warden Wolfer being absent in St. Paul, but we will be released in due time, and then by our actions we will demonstrate to the people of the Northwest that the action of the pardoning board has not been in vain, and that we are deserving of consideration.

"I suppose the outside world will look queer to me when I leave these gates, but I'll make the best of it, and try to accustom myself to conditions as I find them. Please state that both Jim and I are very grateful for everything that has been said and done in our behalf, and there is not a soul on earth against whom we harbor any ill will."

Jim Younger, who occupies the position of librarian, was asked to step into the deputy warden's office, where he also expressed himself as highly delighted with the prospect of getting out.

"I feel as though I am going to get a change of venue. I never get excited; I have full control of myself, and wouldn't flinch if I saw a hurricane coming over the hill. I am in the hands of the warden and state agent, and they will determine when I am to be released. I am not going to do very much talking, but would rather prove myself by my conduct and actions. I thank all friends from the least to the greatest from the bottom of my heart. I am deeply grateful to everybody."

The time of their release will depend upon Warden Wolfer.

THEIR EXPERIENCES.

Express Desire to Keep Out of Print.

Minneapolis, July 11.—A representative of the Tribune talked with the Youngers before their release was ordered. Both men expressed a desire to keep out of print now and for all future time. Tey have been talked to death in newspapers, and many writers publishing alleged interviews did so without warrant.

The effect was prejudicial to their chance of release. To find a man boasting over the newspaper columns, between quotation marks of daring deeds he did in old guerrilla days, is to create suspicion that he still has a soft spot in his heart for the old adventurous life, but when it is found that the man quoted never uttered any of the statements attributed to him—that the whole story as published was pure invention of the border ruffin dime novel variety—the injustice may be understood.

Warden Wolfer strikes the keynote of the situation when he asserts that sustained public interest, conflicting public opinion concerning the Youngers has been due to the insistence of newspaper editors on making copy about the men. In many cases articles written have been largely imaginative, and utterances of the prisoners have been made to serve as the basis for unfair deduction. Not long ago a writer for a St. Louis newspaper interviewed the men and when his article was read in the prison it proved as fanciful as any of Grim's fairy tales.

"When I got outside the prison door, if ever I do get out," said Cole Younger, "I believe there is agility enough in my old bones to let me turn just one somersault. I feel like a 10-year-old boy at the mere possibility. Beyond any doubt the actuality will overdome me to the extent of just one old-fashioned handspring."

"Me, too," interrupted Jim. "Remember the time they let us go over on the wall to the warden's house—that time must be eight years ago?"

"I can remember the way everything looked right now," said Coleman. "Its very strange," he went on reflectively—"old environment of long confinement produces on one's ideas of space. I don't quite know whether the muscles of the eyes contract, or whether it is refusal of the brain to immediately comprehend what the eyes see, but when a man has been in solitary confinement between walls for so long a time he doesn't seem able to grasp the ideas of distance. I remember staring over at the Wisconsin hills that were all green and beautiful. I wanted to stay there until I could get used to the sensation, but of course couldn't."

"'How does that make you feel?' I asked my brother.

"'Feel as if I were about to fall off something high,' he said.

"But of course that will soon wear off. I want to get out of this prison because I have reached the limit of my capacity for taking punishment. We have been kindly and well treated, according to our merits as prisoners, but you people who live on the outside and talk so glibly of life imprisonment—why, not one of you has any conception of its meaning.

"It is burial without death. Only by exercising his will power in a systematic and never-ceasing struggle with the melancholy born of solitude can a man evade insanity. I don't mean violent, straight-jacket insanity, perhaps, though some might come to that, but the dreadful haunting dread of mental failure suggested by introspection.

"I know nothing of mental science except such things as I have read while in jail, without the power to properly digest them, but it seems to me that this fear of becoming insane and the constant strain of trying not to is really the most torturing form of insanity.

"It may be functional, as the doctors say, and not organic, but unless the will of the sufferer is tremendously strong he endures the tortures of the damned.

"Have you never been outside but that once?" was asked.

"Yes—the night of the fire. Everything modern dates from the night of the fire.

"If we are paroled," said Jim Younger, "we shall get in a quiet corner somewhere, so that all the sights and sounds of the world will be visible and audible, but we have no desire to do aught else than labor quietly to the end of our days. This will afford us the opportunity we have been seeking for a long time—that of showing the world that we know how to live decently and honestly and hold trustworthy positions as men among men.

"I don't think I shall be much disturbed by the mechanical and engineering advances that have occurred in the last twenty-five years," said Jim, reflectively. "You see engineering is my hobby. I take the Scientic American and have had it for many years. Every issue of that paper I have studied carefully. When the first electrical cars were put in use I saw the cuts and plans and diagrams in the American and wrestled with them and the descriptions given until I understood the principle. Now, of course, it will look odd to see a carriage running round without horses, or a big car traveling without mules or steam, but for years I have known that these things were, and pictures have familiarized me with their appearance. It will all be novel—very new and novel, but not incomprehensible.

"Well," remarked Cole, "the telephone and Edison's talking machines have always been my limit. Once when I was down in the office I had orderes to telephone over to the warden's house. That tickled me to death, because I had heard them talking at one end of the line, and it was all I could do to keep my face straight at the spectacle of a fellow jabbering into a dumbbell—'wha-a-at'—yes—did he?—who said so?—all right—tell him to come down this afternoon.'

"I heard that and never forgot it. When they showed me how to ring for the warden I put my ear to the thing and waited. When the warden said 'hello' at the other end of that line it sounded so close at hand, and the whole thing seemed so absurdly impossible that I was rattled. I couldn't reply for a minute or more.'

"Now they have lines from Minneapolis to Duluth, and you can talk just as easily as to the warden's house," said Jim, out of his superior knowledge.

"I heard about it," replied Cole, "When I have a chance I'm going to try that if it costs a dollar."

"To the man who has been in prison so long as I have," said Jim, "access to all the modern books and magazines is a blessing not unmixed with pain. You see, every magazine story, every novel, every scientific treatise, everything printed, in fact, contains references to events and things in common, everyday use of which the prison reader comprehends nothing. He reads half comprehendingly, and longs and longs for freedom, if only for a little time, that he may once more get in tune with the world and be at least able to read of it intelligently. Still, the man in prison who reads, must, I think, be held a good critic on some matters. Take the modern march of slang, for instance.

"I have noticed that a slang word appears first, perhaps, in a publication of the lower class. It has probably been accepted by certain classes of people before it reaches the papers at all. Now, here in the solitude of the prison library, I watch the evolution of that slang word. It crawls insidiously from the newspaper to the cheaper magazine, where it appears most likely in a story of the day. In a subsequent issue the editor of the magazine uses it editorially to express some idea. Next month I discover it in one of the heavier publications, quoted, most likely, but still there. From that time the position of the word is assured, because writers of ponderous leaders on electrical engineering in the Electrical Magazine are not without their weaknesses, and they, too, pick the word up.

"For people outside, the setting of such words as I refer to in conversation may remove the impression of their absurdity, but to a man in jail, with nothing but books to talk to, some of these phrases sound like infant babbling. And to tell the truth, great as my opportunities have been for reading of late years, I still tie to Dickens. He doesn't slip his English, he doesn't slang it, and his writings are full of heartbeats. I have laughed with him and wept with him. Great is Dickens.'

"Do you mean to say, you two, that the confinement here really made you fear insanity?"

"God knows what it is that men fear who are shut up fir life,' said the librarian. I think it is that a man becomes afraid of himself—doubtful of his ability to sustain the awful routine of life under restraint. It is not the prison that hurts—it is a splendid institution. A well behaved man can live here in entire physical comfort, but the human mind requires a wider range of activity than that possible behind stone walls. The prisoner who desires to live out his sentence without mental deterioration must develop mental activities thought of outside a place like this.

"For many years I have never permitted myself to harbor a bad thought about anyone. Mind, I do not say I have not had such thoughts. They flash into one's mind and would take root aid grow there if not at once cast out. My method has been, when so assailed by my evil genius, to deliberately force a train of thought on another and more pleasant subject. It is hard to do, but it can be done.'

"A long time ago, down in Missouri, I knew an old lady about 70 years old, whose husband was about 80. I should think. People used to say that in all their married life these two had never been angry at each other, nor uttered a cross word. One day I asked the old lady how that was.

"'James,' she said, 'when I married my mother said to me that I was marrying a man and not an angel. She warned me that if I desired to lead a happy life I must look always for the good in my husband and shut my eyes to the bad. Now, I have seen great good in him—I have never seen any bad, and we have never quarreled.'

"I believe in that old lady's philosophy," said Jim, "and I have looked for the brighter side of things ever since coming in here, otherwise I should have died long ago, a maniac most likely. Both Cole and I have cultivated control until I think either of us could command our feelings in the most awful situation conceivable. Perhaps you can conceive that situation."

THE DAKOTAS.

Remarkable Hot Wind During the Progress of a Storm.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Woonsocket—A phenomena was witnessed here Monday night between 10 and 11 o'clock, during a thunder shower. The wind suddenly became intensely hot and increased in force. People thought a tornado was coming and shut up their houses. In some places garden truck was burned black as though frosted. County Commissioner Cormick says that at his place it was the hottest he ever witnessed and that the wind felt as though it had come through a fire. Corn and small grain were not injured.

Sioux Falls—The strike of the freight handlers was short lived. The men went out Wednesday morning and Superintendent Beardsley, after a short conference, granted their demands for shorter hours and extra pay for overtime, and work was resumed.

Lead—J. K. Pollock, well-known in this part of the Hills, had his nose torn from his face as a result of being thrown from a wagon near the Spearfish crossing.

Harry Hedge and Verne Johnson fell from a 20-foot scaffold while painting over the precipitates in the Homestake cyanide plant. They were overcome with gases and both were severely injured. Hedge is a member of the famous Hedge Bros'. male quartet.

Huron—Mrs. G. W. Fay, wife of the late Dr. Fay, and a former resident of this city, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Schmidt, of Menasha, Wis.

Col. John H. King, who is interested in artesian wells in counties west, has received word that Norbeck & Nicholson, have completed another well at Onida, in Sully county. It is 1570 feet deep and the flow of water is strong and tainted with gas.

Brookings—The eighth annual convention of the South Dakota Scandinavian Total Abstinence association was held at the Fron Lutheran church near Webster. The old board of directors was re-elected except one member and now consists of the following: K. Lewis, Lake Preston, president; A. U. Granstrom, Webster, vice president; O. S. Sneve, Brookings, secretary; N. G. Rude, Brookings, treasurer; Miss Tilda Bohlke, Volga; Miss Dorothea Dahl, Lily; Julius Skyberg, Beton. The association was organized in Brookings in the spring of 1894 with only six local societies. At the present time it has thirty-two, but not all can be said to be in active operation, as some have not held regular meetings for some time.

Pierre—Governor Herreid has not yet reached this city and no appointment will be made until he arrives which will probably be Thursday. While it is probable that Kittridge will be the appointee, it is not certain. Congressman Burke announces that he is not in any way being considered for the place.

Vermillion—Citizens are being annoyed by the depredations of a gang of amateur burglars.

Armour—The Christian church, recently organized with a membership of about thirty-five, has purchased ground and will, in the near future, commence the construction of a handsome new building.

Sioux Falls—Ira Hatch, United States Indian agent at Cheyenne River agency, while in the city, stated that smallpox on his reservation, which at one time threatened to spread to many tribes of the Sioux nation, has practically disappeared.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Proceedings will be brought to oust John H. Canham as a member of the city council. Mr. Canham recently purchased the lighting plant of the Jamestown Electric Light company and has a contract to furnish the city with electric light and water. It is claimed that a contract of this kind debars him from being an alderman. A fight is being made on him by Jo Masters, former manager of the Jamestown Electric Light company, who is attempting to secure a franchise for the Citizens' Electric Light company, a new organization.

Minot—James McNamara, postmaster at Portal, was brought to Minot yesterday by Postoffice Inspector Nathan Wolfe, of St. Paul, who claims that McNamara is short. McNamara is held pending official investigation of his accounts.

Minot—Peter Fugelso has been appointed postmaster of this city and will take possession of the office as soon as his bond can be approved. The office will be moved to the building next to M. Jacobson's hardware store.

Cascarine, a Triumph of Medical Skill.

Hundreds of people suffer yearly, spend their money on fake remedies and die for want of a little knowledge. They ignore the warnings of nature until disease obtains a foothold in their system. Then, nine cases out of ten, they hurry to the nearest drug store to get a cure. Dissatisfied, they try one drug after another. They wonder why they don't get well. Indeed they get worse. No wonder, they are being slowly poisoned, purse emptied and their system is becoming shattered. If in need of a tonic, call for Cascarine, nature's own remedy made from roots, herbs, barks, plants and berries. Physicians the world over prescribe and use it. Save your money, health and strength by getting a bottle now. Are you troubled with dry, yellow skin, unsightly blotches, dull eyes, coated tongue, bad taste in the mouth, no appetite, blood sluggish and irregular action of the heart? This means bad digestion and slow bowels. Four bottles of Cascarine are enough to cure the most obstinate case. Cascarine does not gripe and is a pleasant liquid laxative, not a candy cathartic or pill. Cascarine is a mild but sure cure. Don't experiment in drugs. If you do you are lost. Use Cascarine. Price 50 cents per bottle. At all druggists.

The manufacturers will send to any address, free of charge, a little booklet explaining thoroughly the cause and cure of diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and one week's treatment, for 10 cents in stamps to cover postage.

With every undertaking; all goes wrong in business; irritable at home; no head to manage; an object of ridicule in society; a burden to self all thro' life. This explains the condition of some people. It's true they cannot get ahead—hampered all the time, the brain does not work properly, and instead of being bright, vivacious and intelligent, they grow more and more stupid, inactive and retrogressive. Why? Because the nervous system has been sapped and is drying up, and the brain is not getting its nourishment and has grown dormant.

But it can be re-vitalized, fed and nourished by the use of

CORN THE FACTOR

Overshadows All Other Grains In Interest Now.

Largely Responsible For the Strength of Wheat.

Foreigners Good Buyers of Wheat---Continental Crops Deteriorating.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 11.—The strength of corn is overshadowing everything else in the grain market at the present time and the corn quotations at Chicago are being closely watched. There was an advance of 2⅝c today. The weather map comes in for much attention, too, and today this gave little hope for those who look for lower prices for corn. Continued hot weather is predicted with no rain in sight. The strength of corn was largely instrumental in advancing the price of wheat today although cables were stronger and foreign houses were buying wheat here. The advices from the French crop were bullish also and that country and also Russia were said to be reducing their estimates of the yield. Primary receipts of wheat were 665,000 bus, last year 482,000 bus. Shipments 214,000 bus, last year 197,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 823,000 bus.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 301 cars against 153 last year. Chicago receipts, 146 cars, 72 of contract grade.

Trading in futures was dull on the Duluth board, September wheat opened ½c off at 63¾c, sold up to 64¼c at 9:40, reacted to 64⅛c at 10:25 advanced to 64⅝c at 11:30 fell back to 64⅜-½c at 12:30 and closed at 64⅜c, an advance of ⅝c. Chicago advanced ⅝c and Minneapolis ½-⅝c.

Cash sales were 10,000 bus at 1½@1⅜c over September.

September flax bulged sharply again closing at an advance of 3c. October was up 1c. Oats advanced ½c.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Demand For Wheat Better Than of Late.

Chicago, July 11.—Encouraging cables caused a steady opening in wheat today. Offerings were light while the demand, both local and foreign, was better than for some time past. September opened ⅝c lower to ¼c higher at 68⅝c to 69c and advanced to 69¾c. Northwest receipts were 301 cars against 158 last year. Local receipts were 146 cars, 72 of contract.

September sold up to 69¾c, but eased off with coarser grains and closed ⅝c higher at 65⅝c.

Corn was strong on unfavorable weather conditions and reports of damage throughout the Southwest. September opened ⅝c to 1c higher at 50¼c to 50⅝c, and under heavy buying advanced to 51¼c. Receipts were 242 cars, 12 of contract.

Realizing caused a slight decline after 51¼c had been reached by September and the close was 1½c higher at 51⅜@½c.

Oats were extremely active, with an enormous trade and on apparently unlimited demand from outsiders. September opened ¼c lower to ⅜c higher at 31c to 31½c and rose to 32c. Receipts were 52 cars.

On strength in hogs and light receipts, provisions were strong. Pork opened 22½@25c higher at $14.62½; lard was 5@7½c higher at $8.72½@8.75, while ribs were 5@10c higher at $8.07½@8.12.

Close, wheat, July, 64¼@65c; September, 65⅝c; October, 66c. Corn, July, 45½c; September, 51⅝@51½c. Oats, July, 31c; September, 31⅜c. Pork, July, $14.25; September, $14.45; January, $14.37½. Lard, July, $8.60; September, $8.67½; October, $8.65@8.67½; December, $8.37½; January, $8.32½. Ribs, July, $7.90; September, $8.22; October, $7.97½. Flax, cash, Northwestern, $1.88; No. 1, $1.88; September, $1.52; October, $1.51. Cash wheat, No. 2 red, 65¾@66c; No. 3 red, 63½@66c; No. 2 hard winter, 64c; No. 3 hard winter, 63c; No. 1 northern spring, 66c; No. 2 northern spring, 64c; No. 3 spring, 60@63c. Corn, No. 2, 49¼@½c; No. 3, 48¾@49c. Oats, No. 2, 32½@32¾c; No. 3, 32¼@32c. Rye, July, 51c; September, 50½c. Barley, cash, 40@53c. Timothy, September, $4.90. Clover, cash, $9.50.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, July 11.—Wheat—In spite of our strong market here yesterday, Liverpool only closed a farthing higher, but owing to the strength in coarse grains a great many shorts have continued to cover their lines and the market closed fully ¾s higher than last night. Our advices are that both France and Russia are reducing their estimate of yield. We are also advised by our own men in Iowa and Nebraska that the heat of the last few days has reduced the prospect of the spring wheat crop from 10 to 20 per cent.

Corn—Cables on corn closed ⅜d higher, showing very little respect to our excited market. All reports from the country continue bullish, and the South and Southwest continue free buyers of all options and until we get rain in the corn belt and some relief from present drouth conditions, we expect to see the market work higher. There is absolutely no cash demand, however, at the price.

Oats have been strong all day on both local and country buying with quite a sharp break in the middle of the session owing to liquidation of a large portion of Patten's line.

Provisions opened excited and higher on strength in corn and advance in hogs. Later eased off, but closed at yesterday's substantial advance. The local crowd are short, and strong men like Armour and the Cudahys have the product, and who believe we will see very much higher prices right away. Estimate, 12,000 to 18,000 hogs tomorrow.

REAFFIRMED.

National Educational Association Favors National University.

Detroit, July 11.—Despite strong opposition on the part of those opposed to the national university, the National Educational association today accepted a resolution reaffirming its former declaration in favor of such a university. The resolution, which was offered by President Jesse of the university of Missouri, at the business session, immediately following the morning session, read:

"Resolved, that this association hereby reaffirms its former declaration in favor of the establishment by the national government of a national university devoted, not to collegiate, but to true university work."

Dr. N. M. Butler, of New York, moved that it be laid on the table, but was voted down overwhelmingly and the original resolution adopted. The report of the committee on nominations, which named Dr. William Breadschear, of Iowa college, for president, and C. M. Keys, of Hartford, for treasurer, was adopted and Dr. Breadschear made a brief talk.

"All for one and one for all," he said, "will be his sentiment as president of the association."

WERE TRUE.

Reports That the Boers Murdered the British Wounded.

London, July 11.—Official corroboration of the charges that the Boers murdered the British wounded at Vlakfontein, promises soon to be forthcoming. In the house of commons today, replying to questions of Henry Norman, Liberal, the war secretary, Mr. Brodrick, read the telegraphic correspondence with Lord Kitchener on the subject. The latter had at first declared that the reports were unfounded, but he subsequently telegraphed the statement of a wounded yeomanry officer confirming the reports, and finally informed Mr. Brodrick that he had the testimony of several men to the effect that they saw the Boers shoot the wounded. Lord Kitchener added that sworn testimony was being forwarded.

WATERED OIL

Puzzling the State Oil Department Now.

State Oil Inspector Fred C. Schiffman and Deputy Bert Marshall are in a quandary over ninety-seven barrels of oil and water which are tied up, so to speak, in this city.

A short time ago some vessel men succeeded in raising a steamer which had gone to Davy Jones' locker, near Houghton, Mich., some years ago, and among the cargo was a big consignment of kerosene oil which had been shipped when the sunken steamer was brought to the surface ninety-seven barrels of the oil were found to be presumably intact, although an investigation showed that the original contents of oil had become diluted with about 40 per cent of water.

After the oil had been landed it was purchased by a junk dealer of this city, and after bringing it here he placed it on the market for sale.

Mr. Marshall attempted to put an embargo on the sale, but as the law is not clear governing the case, the matter was referred to Mr. Schiffman. His decision is not yet made.

HUMMEL IMPROVES.

London, July 11.—A. H. Hummel, of New York, who was injured in a carriage accident here Tuesday evening and who was taken to King's college hospital, was moved today to a private hospital. Mr. Hummel is making good progress towards recovery.

EXCITING IN STOCKS

Gradual But Persistent Recovery Wiped Out the Losses.

Trading Became Quieter and the Feverish Symptoms Disappeared.

New York, July 11.—Prices of stocks broke badly again today. The stocks of railroads depending on the corn traffic for earnings were demoralized on the fears of a failure of the crop from drouth. The rest of the market was affected by sympathy, other stocks being sold in large blocks. Strenuous efforts were made to support the market by buying Union Pacific, St. Paul and Missouri Pacific and the bulls succeeded in causing a pretty general rally after the opening, Missouri Pacific rising 1⅝ over last night. Prices, however, crumbled again by wide intervals under a flood of offerings which came in blocks of many thousand shares. During the first hour prices were touched which made losses from last night for Rock Island 7⅛, Atchison 4⅞, Northwestern 5, St. Paul 3¼, Iowa Central preferred, Amalgamated Copper and Tennessee coal 3 each, and a long list of the principal active stocks over 2 points. There were occasional feverish rallies, but prices went off again continually.

The decline was accomplished by reports of a break between the two groups of forces which recently contested for supremacy in Northern Pacific. The grave consequences that attended the previous troubles were remembered and these rumors, although backed by no word of authority received credence in many quarters and affected the market. An authoritative denial that there had been any rupture of the so-called Northern Pacific agreement was given to the Associated Press by a man who was indirectly a party to it. He said: "The agreement as to the Northern Pacific stands precisely where it did the day it was made. It has been strictly adhered to and will be. There is no friction over it and will be none."

The liquidation had spent its greatest force before the first hour and there was some violent rebounds when the bears began to bid for stocks to cover their short contracts. Atchison and Rock Island recovered 2 points and other prominent stocks between 1 and 2 points. This rally did not hold and the market weakened again, some stocks going lower than before. The selling pressure was manifestly less urgent than in the early dealings and the market rallied rather quickly and then became quiet and comparatively sluggish.

There was a gradual but persistent recovery during the latter part of the day which carried some of the leaders well above last night and reduced practically all of the losses to unimportant figures. The trading was much quieter and the feverish symptoms were pretty well taken out of the market.

New York, July 11.—The selling movement of yesterday continued at the opening today and heavy blocks of prominent stocks were thrown upon the market. The opening sales of Atchison and United States Steel were of 5000 shares and of Southern Pacific 3500 shares. Losses were about a point in Atchison, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Louisville and Ontario & Western. American Smelting declined 1¾, there was evidence of support in Union Pacific, which opened down ¼ and immediately rallied and prices were inclined to harden elsewhere after the opening.

While a few stocks got above yesterday's close numerous others broke badly, including a 7¼ point drop in Rock Island. The entire list broke badly later on heavy liquidation in Western and Pacific stocks, losses ran from 20 to 5 in most active stocks, and speculation was very ragged.

Covering caused rebounds of 4 points in Atchison and Rock Island, recoveries generally ranged between 1 and 2 points. The market weakened again before noon. St. Paul, United States Steel, New York Central, Erie, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio and Southern Railroad touched lower prices than before. There were losses of 2 to 4 points in Lackawanna, Delaware & Hudson, General Electric and Chicago & Eastern Illinois. The market rallied rather quickly and became quiet. Bonds were dull and irregular.

The market made another substantial advance in the last hour, bringing many important stocks well above last night. Realizing caused a renewed break of 2 to 2¼ in Atchison, St. Paul and Rock Island. Other stocks included a point or more. Then prices hardened again. The closing was unsettled and irregular with renewed declines in some of the active stocks.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf gossip to Edwards, Wood & Co.—Morgan is believed to be the only big railroad capitilist active and is doing everything in his power to settle labor troubles and other serious problems. Close watchers of the market say that incidentally he is supporting his specialties and the heavy loans made on call this week by the Bank of Commerce are looked on as having been a sign of bear news on the position of the Morgan interest. On the other hand the big City bank, a Standard Oil institution, is said to be not only averse to ease in money, but takes every opportunity to discomfort borrowers by severely scrutinizing customers at all times. Skeptical critics say it bears out the charge that the Standard Oil men are using their power in the money market just now to force values down in order to acquire large lines of securities for a bull movement in the fall. The day stock market was another disappointment, with the West heavy seller of the granger shares on the continued hot weather in the corn belt. The expected gold shipments also tended to discourage buying as it is urged by many that it must be tided over. A noteworthy feature of the stocks was the culling of loans on larger scale than for many weeks, and it is considered remarkable that this liquidation had been but little effect on money rates which continued firm. Naturally the selling movement in stocks centers in the corn corriers and is most rugent in Atchison, on which sentiment, owing to serious damage to this crop in Kansas has changed, being now indicative of continued liquidation and further material decline in the common stocks.

Town Topics to A. R. Jones.—The large decline in prices this week is without adequate justification. Traders have become frightened over the money situation and the exaggerated reports of damage to the corn crop, and under the influence of a general selling fever values melted away. There is very great probability that the steel strike will be settled today and the rate troubles will be adjusted. The failures of the Louisville & Nashville directers to increase the dividend was used as a pretext to sell that stock, but the decline in prices have discounted everything that can be termed unfavorable and a sharp rally is in order.

New York to Baker.—The Wall Street Journal says: "The strength in the early trading did not encourage any outside following and later it looked as if Louisville & Nashville, St. Paul and Atchison and Manhattan had been advanced to help liquidation elsewhere. There was continued pressure from the West, giving the idea that Chicago had some inkling of the government crop report so far as corn was concerned. It was noticeable that such stock as Missouri Pacific and Rock Island, which are supposed to be closely held, and in which the floating supply had been taken off the market, suffered severely on any attempt to realize. The making up of active stocks on margin during the last twelve months has been a source of considerable disquiet. Money was obtainable easily at 5 per cent, and these stocks had excellent support and justified inside opinions lately expressed in regard to preferred. There was good buying of Manhattan on what was said to be a bull tip from Gould sources. There were persistent rumors of renewed friction between big interests. These we probably du to the general weakness of the market as the news was hardly sufficient to account for the heavy decline and there was consequently a good deal of guessing as the caucus. There is every reason to believe that the next dividend on Baltimore & Ohio common will be 4 per cent, and certainly no higher. The earnings for the year will show something over 11 per cent for the common stock, but it is the policy of the controlling interest to write off substantially for improvements. The decline in People's Gas was another instance of a stock tightly held, giving way on comparatively small sales when the inside support was withdrawn. Chicago opinion is favorable, but there is no short interest in the market and unless the insiders protect stock there is a decline in the absence of the very acceptable support given by a healthy short interest. It was reported in Erie that action on the dividend on the first preferred would be taken up soon. Rumors in regard to the amount were conflicting with the tendency rather in favor of a 3 per cent rate.

GERMAN EXCHANGE.

Berlin, July 11.—Exchange on London, 20 marks; 40 pfgs for checks; discount rates, short bills, 3 per cent; three months, 3 per cent.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 11.—Cotton opened steady, unchanged to 3 points higher and steady, on influx of foreign buying orders and brisk Southern buying. Prices shot up to 8@11 points over last night's closing bids with August at 7.80. October 7.64 and January 7.65. The surprising strength of the market originated in bullish cables from Liverpool, reports that the Texas rains were confined to a narrow space on the coast near Galveston and claims that hot winds were sweeping over Central and Northern Texas, where high temperatures were the rule.

Cotton spot closed dull, 1-16c lower. Middling uplands, 8 9-16c; middling gulf, 8 13-16c; sales, 133 bales. Cotton futures closed quiet and steady. July, 8.24; August, 7.72; September, 7.53; October, 7.55; November, 7.52; December, 7.54; January, 7.57; February, 7.56; March, 7.59; April, 7.60.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Steamer Argo Picked Up the Sicken and Two Barges.

Sicken Had Lost Wheel and Was Adrift In Lake.

No Demand For Grain at Chicago at Any Price.

Sault Ste. Marie, July 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Argo picked up the steamer Sicken and two barges adrift on Lake Superior, the Sicken having lost her wheel. The Argo also took the schooner William Jones in tow from here, making a tow of five vessels.

NO DEMAND AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, July 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Vessel agents reported that there was no demand for grain tonnage today and even concessions in rates did not interest shippers. The latter could not sell grain at present prices and were consequently shut off from shipping. However but one or two agents had vessels on their hands.

THE STEVEDORE QUESTION.

Buffalo, July 11.—The Buffalo lumbermen are about to take up the stevedore question at last. The handling rates are so much higher here than at most lake receiving ports that it is not easy to do business with the barges. All effort had been staved off so far by the fact that labor was commanding any rate it happened to ask, but now that the Panamerican work is dropping off, it is believed that the men will listen to reason. So a new stevedore committee has been appointed and the question will soon be taken up with the men.

HARLEM GOING INTO COMMISSION.

Port Huron, Mich., July 11.—The steamer Harlem, which made considerable marine history, was towed up to the Fitzgerald dock and a crew put on to fit her out. She will carry package freight from upper lake ports to Port Huron.

LIGHTERED AND JETTISONED.

An Alpena dispatch states that 1000 tons of coal were lightered from the steel steamer Venus before she floated and that in order to release the Waverly it was necessary to throw overboard 800 tons of coal.

BOUGHT BY BARRYS.

After repeated affirmations and denials the Barry Bros. formally announce that they have purchased the old Western line steamers Empire State and Badger State and will put them in condition for service between Milwaukee and Chicago. According to the statement of one of the brothers $75,000 was paid for the steamers, but in the opinion of well-posted local marine men about $15,000 apiece, or $30,000 for the pair, will more nearly represent the figure at which the deal was closed. The Inland Lloyds register represents both steamers as in need of repairs, and for that reason they are given no rating. Capt. Thomas Barry states that both vesels are to be taken to Capt. James Davidson's Bay City shipyard for partial reconstruction, with the view of having one of them ready for the Chicago-Milwaukee run by early fall. It is said that each steamer will be given a new boiler also.

AT CLOQUET.

Thomas Hansley Instantly Killed In Johnson-Wentworth Mill.

Cloquet, Minn., July 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fatal accident occurred in Johnson-Wentworth company's mill a few minutes before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A young man named Thomas Hansley, aged about 26, married, and residing in Eastern division, employed as edgerman, was instantly killed by the rebound of a piece of scantling or board from the machine. The body was brought into Kelly & Moses' morgue, where it was prepared for burial. This is the first fatal accident in the mills this season.

Albert Cox, of the Northern Lumber company, spent Tuesday and Wednesday in the Zenith city.

Mrs. W. F. C. Gadan is so much improved in health that it is expected she will be able to return home today.

C. Ginler, who has been taking a brief vacation, is back at his desk in Cloquet Lumber company's office.

AT CASS LAKE.

Excursion on the Lake By the Band.

Cass Lake, Minn., July 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cass Lake brass band will give an excursion on the lake next Sunday. The steamer Zelah May has been chartered for the occasion. The proceeds of the excursion are to be applied on the purchase of new suits for the band.

Work is being rapidly pushed on the new Catholic church, and when completed it will be the most handsome church edifice in the village.

Ground was broken on Monday for Fairbanks & Warren's new brick block. The block will be two stories with basement. John LeClare has the contract to erect the building.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Dr. August M. Unger and F. Wayland Brown, convicted of conspiracy to defraud insurance companies in connection with the death of Marie Defenbach were sentenced to the penitentiary by Judge Tuley of the criminal court on an indeterminate sentence. The case of Frank H. Smiley was continued until the next term of court.

A cloud burst at Sander, in the eastern part of the state, caused damage to the Northern Pacific tracks, wrecked passenger train No. 3, east-bound, while going thirty-five miles an hour. Water had undermined the track. Passengers were shaken up but not injured. Every car except the last two sleepers left the track, some of them plunging into a regular lake caused by the heavy fall of water.

Mayor Carter H. Harrison has received a letter from Harbey, Ills., warning him to leave the city at once, as there was a plan on foot to shoot him Saturday night. The authorities are investigating the matter.

Two hundred dollars will more than cover the damages caused by the wind and water in Tuesday night's storm. Four small houses were floated from their foundations and overturned. The tide was six feet, which is the highest tide since 1886 with the exception of the storm last September.

A cloud burst occurred near Wickes, Mont., about twenty-five miles from Helena yesterday, doing immense damage. The Montana Central railway suffered heavily, the railway a short distance from that town being damaged for about six hundred feet, bridges were washed away and the approaches destroyed.

An explosion occurred, in the engine room of the Kansas City Consolidated Smelter company which set fire to the building, causing a loss of $150,000. Thirteen men employed at the works were injured, one fatally.

CABLE FLASHES.

Three Boer prisoners escaped from the detention camp at Darrel's island Tuesday night. They swam to the mainland and have not yet been captured.

A new Boxer movement is being started, according to Chinese intelligence, from Sian Fu. Pu Chun, the heir apparent, with other members of Prince Tuan's family, has gone to join Prince Tuan on the borders of Mongolia, and there are strong indications that Prince Tuan is preparing to march against the foreigners with the tacit approval of the empress dowager.

Severe fighting, according to a dipatch to the London Daily Mail from Lourenzo Marques, has taken place between Machododorp and Leydenburg, the Boers being defeated with at least fifty killed.

TWO KINDS OF FLAME.

Much Love and a Hot Time In Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., July 11.—There was much love and a hot time in a buggy on Third avenue last night. Allen Adamsly determined to take his sweetheart, Miss Bessie Wilby, driving. In compliance with the ordinance that vehicles must have a light at night, Adamsly hung out a Japanese lantern on the step of the buggy, where it would not light up the inside, yet could easily be seen.

The youthful pair, in their ardor, accidentally trailed the laprobe. A corner of this was flirted into the lantern. The two about this time were busily engaged in finding the man in the moon on the other side of the buggy. Slowly the flame crept up. The young woman's dress caught fire and she turned with a scream. This frightened the horse, which ran away. The young man had to give all his attention to the runaway horse. In Third avenue they dashed, a streak of fire. The girl could not quench the flames, which were all the while gaining headway. Adamsly could not leave the horse. At Third avenue and Sixth street the runaway was brought to a halt near a handy pump. A policeman near by took off his helmet, filled it with water, and soon extinguished the fire. The buggy was ruined. The young woman was burned on the arm and Adamsly received a severe burn on his hand.

"Strong and hearty boy, is it, and no pain? That's good!"

The joy of a new arrival in the family is usually overcast by the shadow of the pain and discomfort the expectant mother must bear.

If she knew of and used "MOTHER'S FRIEND," this would be all dispelled. Tell your friends about it, as being a simple liniment, exclusively for external use, that relaxes the muscles so that pain and suffering are unknown.

It will be sent by express paid on receipt of price, $1.00 per bottle, or can be bought at all responsible Druggists. Book, "Motherhood," mailed free, containing sensible advice to expectant mothers.

NEARLY BALANCE

Production and Consumption In Iron Trade Is About Even.

A Slight Decline In Production of the Blast Furnaces.

Feeling That Top of the Tide Has Been Reached.

New York, July 11.—Discussing conditions in the iron and steel trade the Iron Age says: Our monthly blast furnace statistics show that there has been a decline in weekly capacity of the coke and anthracite furnaces from 396,991 tons on June 1 to 393,793 tons on July 1. In other words, production and consumption nearly balanced. From all quarters come confirmatory evidence that the consumption is phenomenal. Thus in leading official of the United States Steel corporation reports that that concern is producing steel ingots at a rate which makes an output of 10,000,000 tons likely this year.

While, statistically, the situation is exceeding demand there is throughout an uncertainty and ill-defined feeling that we are on the top of the tide and that we may see slowly receding values. In some departments deliveries are becoming prominent, premiums have disappeared and there is more disposition to hunt for business. In others, notably in the wire trade, the growing tonnage of the important mills is beginning to tell, wire rods are being offered more freely on the basis of $35, Pittsburg, new sellers, small though they be, coming into the market. It is believed that a good deal of the wire nail capacity under construction will soon be available. In May it was estimated that out of the 30,000 kegs daily requirements, in the active season, 10,000 kegs could be covered by outside mills. The latter figure will be much enlarged before sixty days have passed.

The steel rail mills have opened their books for orders for delivery for the coming year at $28 per ton, which is the price now prevailing. From the standpoint of the mills, the situation is very strong. In reality there are only four parties now, the United States Steel corporation, the Pennsylvania-Cambria interest, the Colorado and Jones & Laughlines, limited. The Lackawanna will not be in shape to resume at Buffalo until the early summer of 1902, and the starting of the Tennessee company is too indefinite to allow them to become a factor for some time to come. As yet little business appears to have been booked, and probably the Southern roads, which can lay the year around, are likely to come in first. All the mills are crowded with work and will probably not be able to touch new business of importance before November or December delivery.

The feeling in the trade is that the differences between the Amalgamated association and union mills of the United States Steel corporation will be very promptly settled, since both parties have much to gain from a continuance of work. The lowering in price of sheets does not appear to have gone into general effect and the majority of outside mills are adhering to the old prices.

Very little is being done for export. There is a report current that a sale of 25,000 tons of shiploads had been made for delivery at Belfast, but it is met with an authoritative denial. The private accounts of the situation in the German iron trade continue gloomy. Drastic measures may be necessary to clear the atmosphere.

The London tin king has given a little exhibition of his power over the spot market early this week. A sharp rise has been followed, however, by a rapid break.

THE TICKET.

As Placed In Nomination By Ohio Democratic Convention.

Columbus, Ohio, July 11.—The Democratic state convention adjourned last night after nominating the following ticket:

Governor—James K. Kilbourne.

Lieutenant governor—Anthony Howells.

Judge of the supreme court—Harry B. Young.

Attorney general—M. B. McCarthy.

Treasurer of state—R. P. Alshire.

Member of board of public works—James B. Holman.

The convention had more prominent men as delegates than any combination of Democrats in Ohio for many years.

The nomination of Col. Kilbourne was appropriately called one of "spontaneous combustion." Howells, Hidy Alshire and Holman were favorites at great odds from the start. Several amendments were ingrafted into the McLean platform, and that document, as amended, was adopted with unanimity. Charles P. Salen, representative of Mayor Tom L. Johnson, was both temporary and permanent chairman of the convention, and the delegates repeatedly quoted Senator Hanna by shouting: "Salen knows his business."

It was currently reported that Mayor Johnson desired the nomination of Frank S. Monnett as attorney general, and that the McLean men wanted Monnett defeated. At any rate the defeat of Monnett was so decisive as to be a feature of the convntion. Mr. Monnett, as attorney general, had brought suits against the Standard Oil company and other corporations to cancel their charters under the anti-trust laws. He had sought a third term nomination from the Republicans on the issue that he should be retained in that office to continue these prosecutions. After his defeat for the third nomination in 1899 he supported Bryan in 1900 on the anti-trust issue, and canvased Ohio and other states with Bryan. Judge Smalley, in presenting Monnett's name, said he was "known from the Golden Gate of San Francisco to the Hell Gate of New York as the enemy of trusts."

Many bitter things were said of Mr. Bryan's leadership in the committee of rules. It was insisted that his name be not mentioned, and that there be no reference to either of the national platforms on which he made his campaigns. After this plan had been agreed upon, one of the members of that committee offered a minority report, reaffirming the Kansas City platform and expressing confidence in Bryan. This report received only six votes out of 950 delegates. Noticing the absence of any portrait of Bryan among the decorations, one of the delegates started to carry a small banner with Bryan's picture on it to the platform. The aisles were ordered cleared and the picture did not reach its destination. It was trampled under foot and spoiled during the demonstration when Col. Kilbourne was escorted into the hall. Members of the committee on resolutions stated that several hours spent after denouncing the Chicago and Kansas City platforms and the leader who stood on them.

There are various rumors in connection with the senatorship to succeed Foraker, the convention endorsed no one. The names of John McLean and Tom L. Johnson are most prominently mentioned in this connection.

ACT QUICKLY.

Delay Has Been Dangerous In Duluth

DO THE RIGHT THING AT THE RIGHT TIME. ACT QUICKLY IN TIMES OF DANGER. BACKACHE IS KIDNEY DANGER. DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS ACT QUICKLY—CURE ALL DISTRESSING, DANGEROUS KIDNEY ILLS. PLENTY OF EVIDENCE TO PROVE THIS:

Mr. R. Stevens, of 1010 West Third street, carpenter, says: "Years ago I hurt my back and ever after I had trouble with my kidneys, such as severe aching pains through the small of my back. I could not rest comfortably at night, and often was so lame and sore I could hardly get out of bed in the morning. It was painful for me to stoop or lift anything heavy. I used plaster after plaster, besides a host of different remedies, but none of them did me any permanent good. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and procured them from W. A. Abbett's Drug store and began taking them. I was soon convinced that they were doing me good and continued their use. The kidney secretions which before were highly colored, distressing and annoying, soon became regular and normal and the aches and pains left me."

FIGHT ON DOWLING.

Opposition to Him as Speaker Is Developing.

Minneapolis, July 11.—Local members of the legislature are authority for the statement that if an exera session is called by the governor for the next year there will be a contest for the speakership for the short term.

Ordinarily it is supposed that the speaker elected at the beginning of the regular session would hold office during the life of the body which elected him, but those who want to supplant Speaker Dowling assert that there is no legal reason why such should be the case. It is contended that Mr. Dowling's term of office ended when at the close of the recent session, the house adjourned sine die.

In the closing days a resolution was offered, but failed of passage, declaring that the house organization be continued for the special term. Back of the defeat of this resolution it is said can be found the determination of a majority of the members of the house to elect a new speaker when the opportunity arrives.

ATTACKING STRATHCONA.

Attempts to Oust Canada's High Commissioner.

London, July 11.—Bitter criticism of Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, intending to dislodge him from his position as high commissioner of Canada, in London, is rampant in London's Canadian colony. The old statesman and financier is accused of giving only a half-hearted support to the dominion's vaulting commercial ambitions, and a demand is being made for a younger and more aggressive commissioner. Lacking such an agent, it is asserted that Canada will not only continue to take a back seat as far as the United States is concerned, but will also lose caste as Britain's premier colony.

The London representatives of leading Canadian manufacturing and shipping concerns are said to be filling the mails with arraignments of Lord Strathcona, with a view to arousing home sentiment in favor of his retirement. They alleged that between the duties incumbent on him on account of his wealth and peerage he is unfitted to satisfy the requirements of the busy colony when he comes.

TYING AND UNTYING.

The Matrimonial Career of William N. Noble.

New York, July 11.—Married, divorced, rewedded, parted—that is the matrimonial record of the Nobles, husband and wife. William H. Noble once owned the Grenoble and the Hotel Empire. Then he became a newspaper proprietor, failed for $1,250,000 and went through bankruptcy proceedings. Subsequently he built the Reymond, an apartment building at 42 East Twenty-eighth street, which was the scene of a tiff yesterday when Mrs. Noble carted away the household furniture. Mrs. Noble used to be Mrs. Thomas and has a daughter 18 years of age. Mr. Noble has a son 15 years old by a former wife. The real trouble is between the two children. They cannot get along.

The Nobles' former tiff was a decade ago. For two weeks the husband was a single man, after a divorce. Then he sought out his former wife in Virginia and married her again.

Dowieites Driven Out of Evanston at Nozzle of the Hose.

Attempt to Convert the Good Citizens Was a Failure.

Followers of Zion Had Rough Experience In Chicago Suburb.

Chicago, July 11.—Followers of John Alexander Dowie made another attempt to convert the citizens of Evanston last night and failed as on former occasions. They visited the place in greater force than ever before, there being fully 200 of them, but their increased numbers only brought them a greater defeat. One-half of the Dowieites were followers of "Zion" and the remainder were members of the paid bodyguard which Dowie maintains. The guards were intended to prevent any interference with the meeting and when it commenced they formed around the Dowieites proper to hold back the crowd of fully 1500 people, which gathered rapidly as soon as it was known that another Dowie meeting was in progress. As on former occasions eggs and vegetables were speedily prominent in the proceedings and the Dowie guards and those whom they were trying to protect were soon spattered with yolks and battered with old vegetables. Several fights resulted between the guards and people of the town generally with damaging results to the guards. The entire force of police, of Evanston, was called into service, and after the chief of police had ordered the Dowieites to withdraw and had met with a refusal, he ordered out a fire engine. The steamer at once turned a 4-inch stream on the Dowieites and they went over like tenpins. Women as well as men were thrown down by the stream and sent rolling in the mud. The people of Evanston danced and hooted with delight as the firemen steadily advanced, driving the Dowieites before them in utter rout. The work was done with impartiality and whatsoever Dowielte was dilatory in movement was washed along by the 4-inch stream.

As the Dowieites fled, the dry method of attack came once more into favor, and the bombardment of eggs and vegetables was resumed and aided materially the purging of the town from the presence of the Dowieites. Elder Piper of Dowie's church, who had been in command of the small army was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. While he was being led to the station men and boys armed with syringes containing dirty water and other liquids made objectionable made him an object of especial attention and he was in a sorry condition when the station doors closed behind him.

Almost every other Dowielte were taken into custody, more to save them from the crowd in the streets than for any other reason.

The Dowieites say they will return in greated force and the people of Evanston declare that it will only make the next riot just so much the larger.

ORE RATES.

Hearing of Case Has Been Adjourned Until September.

St. Paul, July 11.—Because the railway commission deemed it advisable first to dispose of the question of its jurisdiction over iron ore rates and because its expert employed to value the ore carrying roads not yet made his report, it was considered best yesterday afternoon by all parties to the ore rate question to adjourn the hearing on the question of the reasonableness of the ore rates to Sept. 10

By that time the commission will have passed on the question as to whether the traffic in iron ore is state or interstate.

At the conclusion of the arguments by the respondent roads, as to the interstate character of their traffic it was stipulated that they should have this week in which to put in briefs that the Penobscot Mining company, which claims to be an intervenor, should have twenty days further for its briefs, and that the replying to briefs of the respondents shall be given ten days more.

Schlitz is Old Beer

The beer that causes biliousness is "green beer"—insufficiently aged. It is hurried from the brewery to the market before it is half fermented. Drink it and it ferments in your stomach, and the result is biliousness and headache.

Fermentation is expensive. It requires immense refrigerating rooms (ours hold 265,000 barrels) and an even temperature of 34 degrees. Fermentation is a process of months.

No green beer ever leaves the Schlitz brewery. If you wish to be certain of an aged beer, get Schlitz, the beer that made Milwaukee famous.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—
It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—
It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—
As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—
By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

AT WEST DULUTH

Antone Wollan was acquitted of the charge of using abusive language in the presence of C. J. Petruschke, at the trial in Judge Stone's court yesterday. The trial lasted all day, and the jury occupied two hours' time in reaching a verdict declaring Mr. Wollan guiltless. This ends the first chapter in another "cow" case. It is understood that Mrs. Petruschke will bring an action against some of the parties involved for libel.

A boy named Wiehe was fined in Judge Stone's court yesterday. The fine was $20 and costs, amounting in all to about $30. The father of the lad furnished bail for him, and the youth will have a chance to make good the amount of the court's assessment in the next twenty days. Wiehe purloined a bicycle from a man by the name of Cote several days ago and secreted the machine near the Lesure mill. If the fine is not settled by the youthful transgressor, he will probably have to serve a term in the county bastile.

SHUCK-BARTHELOW.

Miss Adria Shuck and Paul Barthelow were united in marriage at the home of Mrs. Dutton, a relative of the bride, on Fifty-sixth avenue, at 8 o'clock last night. Rev. Barthelow, father of the groom, performed the marriage ceremony. A small party of relatives and close friends of the contracting parties were gathered at the house to witness the event. Mr. and Mrs. Barthelow had a home already prepared on Fifty-seventh avenue, and they are occupying it today.

FATHER IS AWAY.

A 5-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker, of 225 Sixtieth avenue died Tuesday. Brain fever, resulting in convulsions, was the cause of the death of the little girl. Mr. Walker was in Dakota at the time of the death, and it is feared he cannot reach home in time for the funeral, which will be held late this afternoon, the burial taking place at Oneota cemetary. In the absence of Mr. Walker, the Modern Woodmen of West Duluth took charge of the funeral arrangements.

A STATE OF SIEGE.

If a few more "cow" cases develop in West Duluth that portion of the city most affected may have to be declared by the authorities to be in a state of siege, in order to prevent an outbreak among the interested parties and their adherents which would rival the bloody feuds of old Kentucky. Perhaps if a few of them are given a chance to fight out their differences, it will cause a lighter run of business in the courts, and most of the male citizens will have more time to attend to their business, as they will not have to exercise eternal vigilance in order to dodge the officers who are after them to serve on the jury.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

A baby girl arrived last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Lund, 118 Fifty-fourth avenue.

Edward Simpson is here from Barnum, Minn., to attend the funeral of his brother, William Simpson, which was held from the Presbyterian church this afternoon.

Joseph Foucault, who was hurt recently at Mitchell & McClure's mill, is at work again. He was struck by a flying board.

Mrs. A. Livingstone and family are camping at Pike Lake. Mr. Livingstone will join his family at the lake next Saturday.

Miss B. A. Upham, of New York, was a guest of her brother, G. B. Upham, yesterday. Miss Upham left in the evening for St. Paul, where she will visit with her mother and a brother.

All the fraternal societies of New Duluth combined to give a benefit dance at the fire hall Tuesday night. The proceeds were given to a citizen of the town whose wife has been ill for several months.

Born, a girl, Wednesday, to Mr. and Mrs. O. Jermsted, of Fifty-third avenue.

Mrs. E. D. Sears left today for Minneapolis, where she will visit three weeks with her son, W. H. Sears.

Miss Helena Hartley is visiting with her uncle, Charles McCabe, at Mountain Iron.

Fresh churned butter at the West Duluth butter store, 521 Central avenue.

Ashbury Epworth league will give a lawn social at the Mabury home Friday evening. Ice cream and cake served.

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, July 10th, 1901.

In the Matter of the Estate of Richard Brenton, Deceased:

On receiving and filing the petition of Thomas Gaughan, of the county of St. Louis, representing, among other things, that Richard Brenton, late of the county of St. Louis, in the state of Minnesota, on the 17th day of January, A. D. 1901, at the county of St. Louis, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is a creditor of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Thomas Gaughan granted;

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court, on the 5th day of August, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock a. m., at the probate office, in the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, the 10th day of July, A. D. 1901.

By the Court,
W. G. BONHAM,
Judge of Probate.

(Seal of Probate Court, St. Louis Co., Minn.)

BODY BOILED.

Novel Way of Securing Bullets Imbedded In Dead Chinaman.

San Jose, Cal., July 12.—The body of Lee Wing, a Chinese, who was murdered last March by highbinders, has been boiled in an iron cauldron, by order of the county authorities, for the purpose of obtaining sixteen bullets fired into the man. These will be used as evidence in the trial of Look Lee, charged with being one of the assassins.

CRICKET MATCH.

London, July 12.—The annual cricket match between Eton and Harrow began at Lords today. The weather was perfect and there was a large attendance of fashionable people. At luncheon Eton had scored 154 runs for eight wickets down.

ANOTHER DEATH

Added to List of Victims of Alton Wreck.

Kansas City, July 12.—Another death, that of Lottie L. Still, Hornellsville, N. Y., was today added to the list of victims of the Chicago & Alton wreck near Norton, Mo., on Wednesday. She had been unconscious for nearly forty-eight hours.

Leslie S. Colburn, of Pawpaw, Mich., who was not expected to survive the night, was still alive at 10 a. m. Others injured were reported slightly improved.

CUSTOM COLLISIONS.

Belfast, July 12.—The celebration of the battle of Boyne is being marked by the customary collisions, but no serious trouble has occurred, there being plenty of soldiers and police to control the factions.

UNCHANGED

No Result to Conference on Steel Strike.

General Strike May Be Ordered By Shaffer.

Pittsburg, July 12.—When the conference between the Amalgamated association executive board and officials of the American Steel Sheet, Steel Hoop and Tinplate companies to settle the exising strike was resumed today, the situation, apparently, had not changed from yesterday morning, although both sides appeared hopeful of ultimately reaching a settlement. Nothing could be learned from the conferees, however, as an agreement was made not to give out anything for publication until the final adjournment. Gossip on the outside indicates confidence that the trouble will not be allowed to continue much longer, but the concessions on both sides will be necessary to a settlement this week. Previous to the opening of the joint conference, the executive committee of the Amalgamated association met and discussed the course to be pursued at today's meeting.

The conference was resumed at 10:25 a. m. with the same representatives in attendance as yesterday. It was reported that Judge E. H. Gary, of the United States Steel corporation, had arrived in the city and will take part in the conference, but he could not be located. President Shaffer had nothing to give out.

The Chronicle-Telegraph says: "At the meeting of the Amalgamated board preceding the general conference this morning, it is reported that President Shaffer made a vigorous speech to the members of the board in which he objected to the delay on the coming to some kind of an agreement. He declared that decisive action should have been taken on July 1, and said that the association had temporized too long with the delinquent companies. From the tenor of Mr. Shaffer's remarks, it is believed, that unless a settlement is made soon on the terms proposed at the first conference, a general strike will be ordered and several important industries will be tied up."

The conference adjourned for lunch at noon. The morning session, it is said, was taken up entirely by the arguments of the manufacturers, and the main issues of the conference remained untouched. President Shaffer said nothing nefinite had been done, and refused to talk further. Judge Gary did not appear during the morning. Among other matters being considered at the conference is what is called the non-interruptive clause in the new scale.

ASSESSMENT ORDERED

Stockholders of the Seventh National Bank Must Pay In One Hundred Per Cent on Capital Stock of Bank.

Washington, July 12.—Comptroller Dawes received the preliminary report from the receiver of the Seventh National bank of New York today. The receiver states that his estimate of the value of the assets is of course only approximate. He estimates the amount which finally will be recovered for the depositors from the assets including stockholders' assessment, at or about 80 cents on the dollar.

The receiver states that his estimate of the value of the Marquand collateral is less than is claimed by the directors of the bank, and it is possible, on this account that the final collections may be somewhat better than the receiver's estimate. Comptroller Dawes states that all transactions connected with the advance of cash to the bank just prior to its failure are being carefully investigated by competent counsel and that all legal rights of the depositors will be protected in this connection. On receiving the preliminary report Comptroller Dawes at once ordered an assessment of 100 per cent on the $500,000 capital stock of the bank.

The report of the receiver contains no reference to any of the investigations now being made into the question of the existence of the criminal infractions of the law. All these matters are under the charge of the department of justice.

TWO HUNDRED KILLED

In an Uprising on the Island of Quepart, Off Korea Christian Converts Were Slaughtered By the Infuriated Insurgents.

Washington, July 12.—The reported uprising on the island of Quepart, off the Korean coast, and the killing of several hundred Christian converts is confirmed in mail press advices reaching the Japanese legation, which contain the report of the captain of the Japanese man-of-war Sen Yen. The Sen Yen was at Chemulco, Korea, when the first word of the uprising was received. She made a rapid run to the island, arriving June 2. The captain reports that when two French men-of-war had arrived at the island, they found the insurgents in a menacing attitude. Attempts were made to land French marines. As the landing was opposed the French warships made a demonstration and succeeded in landing their marines. The rebels then were repulsed and two missionaries held by them were saved. After that affairs quieted down and the rising was quelled. During the outbreak 200 converts were killed by the insurgents. The captain of the Sen Yen reports that all the Japanese residents were saved and that the trouble was over when he arrived. Although a body of Korean troops had been sent to quell the disturbance, they found quiet restored by the time they arrived.

MINNESOTA.

Famous Old Warship Stricken From the Naval Register.

Washington, July 12.—The secretary of the navy today ordered the famous old Minnesota to be stricken from the naval register. A board of condemnation has just appraised her at $15,000, and she will be sold at public auction at Boston, where she now lies. The Minnesota is one of the most noted vessels of the old navy. She was built in 1855 and was the flagship of Admiral Goldsborough in the famous battle between the Merrimac and the Union fleet in Hampton roads the day before the Monitor arrived.

AT WINONA LAKE.

Young People's Christian Union Will Meet July 24.

Warsaw, Ind., July 12.—The National Young People's Christian union of the Presbyterian church will hold its annual convention at Winona Lake, Ind., July 24 to July 28. The association has a delegate representation of 2500, and many large state delegations here already arranged for accommodations on the grounds. Besides the delegates fully 2000 visitors are expected. The New York and Pennsylvania delegates will arrive on special trains.

The noted speakers on the program just issued are Rev. W. H. Barr, of the national board of foreign missions; J. W. Baer, secretary of the Christian Endeavor association; Miss Lulu Harvey, director of the mission in Egypt; Rev. J. W. Vandeventer, of Scotland; Rev. M. G. Kyle, of Philadelphia; Rev. J. W. Asherwood, of St. Louis; H. J. Heinz, of Pittsburg, and others. All the meetings of the association will be held in the Winona auditorium. Various buildings about the assembly grounds have been assigned for committee meetings during the session.

SHERIFF FINED.

Allowed a Prisoner to Roam About Brainerd.

St. Paul, July 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sheriff Ole Erickson of Crow Wing county was this morning fined $75 and costs, amounting to $25 more, for allowing George Wolfe, a United States prisoner, to roam about the town of Brainerd when he had been sentenced to serve time in the jail.

INDICTED.

Grand Jury Makes Return Against Mrs. Bonine.

Washington, July 12.—The grand jury, after several weeks' investigation, has returned an indictment for murder against Mrs. Ida Bonine for the alleged killing of James S. Ayres, the young census clerk.

GOING TO EUROPE.

Philadelphia, July 12.—E. C. Schaeffer, the university of Pennsylvania student who broke three American records at the A. A. U. swimming championships just completed at Buffalo, will sail for Europe Aug. 1 and meet the best European amateurs in various tournaments.

COLUMBIA WON OUT

Defeated Constitution By One Minute, Twenty-One Seconds.

Independence Made Great Race Under Adverse Conditions.

Lost Her Topmast But Finished Only Ten Minutes Behind.

Newport, R. I., July 12.—The 90-foot sloop yachts Constitution, Columbia and Independence engaged today in a race over a triangular course, to complete the series of contests under the auspices of the Newport Yacht Racing association. The wind early in the day was from the northwest, about twelve knots an hour; the sky was overcast, and everything promised a fine sailing day.

11:13—The Independence has broken her topmast and is out of the race. She had just crossed the line, the Columbia having crossed first. The topmast broke off short at the head of the mast in a heavy fluff which took the boat well over. The Columbia is standing on, laying well over in the breeze, and is pulling away from the Constitution, which was the third boat over the line. The yachts crossed the line with baby jib topsails and large club topsails set over three lower sails.

The yachts crossed the line in the following order:

Columbia, 11:11:02.
Independence, 11:11:20.
Constitution, 11:12:20.

The Columbia seems to be gaining on the Constitution, standing up better than the new boat.

11:27—The Independence's topmast was carried away less than a minute after the boat crossed the line. At this time she seems to be keeping on, although the Constitution is going by her to leeward. The Columbia is reaching along very fast and has a lead of over half a mile over the Constitution.

The Independence has now been sent up into the wind and the crew are busily clearing away the wreck of the topmast and club topsail, which has been dragging along for the last fifteen minutes. It looks now as if she has finally withdrawn from the race after sailing about three miles with the other boats.

11:40—After heading into the wind to clear away the wreck of the club topsail, the Independence has again swung off and is standing after the other boats. The wind is increasing, and she may have some chance before the day is over if the two other boats have to take in their light sails.

12 noon—As seen from shore the Columbia turned the first mark at 11:53:40, the Constitution at 11:57:30, the Independence at 12:00:30. After rounding, the Columbia took a short tack to port and then came round and stood in shore on the starboard tack.

12:03 p. m.—The Constitution tacked to starboard after the Columbia at 12:02.

12:15 p. m.—The boats are beating up to the second mark, and from this point it looks as if the Constitution was gaining a little on the Columbia, which, however, appears to be well in the lead and is making short tacks. Both the Herreshoff boats have rapidly left the Independence, which appears to be a mile and a half or more astern.

12:30 p. m.—The Independence appears to be gaining, and while to leeward of the other boats, is not more than a mile astern. The wind is blowing twelve knots an hour and is rather heavy for the two Herreshoff boats, with their light sails. The Columbia still maintains her lead over the Constitution, but the boats are not far apart.

1:10 p. m.—The Constitution seems unable to get by the Columbia to windward. The Independence, although still astern, has not been dropped to any great extent. The wind has fallen, which will handicap her badly on the run in. The Columbia seems to be leading the Constitution by something less than half a mile.

1:32 p. m.—The Independence appeared to have turned the second mark at 1:31 p. m.

1:45 p. m.—The yachts are coming very fast. The Independence seems to be gaining slightly on the two Herreshoff yachts. It still looks as if the Columbia is leading. The yachts are about four miles from the finish.

1:51 p. m.—As taken from the Wanda, the Columbia turned the first mark at 11:59:30; the Constitution at 12:01:35 and the Independence at 12:07:35. The Independence has luffed into the wind for five minutes and thirty seconds in order to get clear of the wreckage.

1:55 p. m.—The yachts are within two miles of the finish and the Columbia is leading the Constitution by about a quarter of a mile.

2:10 p. m.—The Columbia won, crossing the line at 2:10:58. At that time the Independence was just ten minutes behind the other boats. The Columbia beat the Constitution at the finish by 1 minute and 21 seconds, as estimated from the shore.

2:21 p. m.—The Independence crossed the line at 2:20:02, 10 minutes and 25 seconds behind the Columbia, 9 minutes and 4 seconds behind the Constitution.

Rothesay, Firth of Clyde, July 12.—The two Shamrocks started on a trial race at 11:15 a. m. today. Off Bogany Point the yachts were under jib headed topsails and a good thirteen-knot breeze was blowing. Shamrock I then had the lead by six lengths. She was served with the better wind as the boats reached down the channel, but outside the wind steadied and Shamrock II began to overhaul the older boat.

Off Cumbrae the yachts luffed up and started on a long thresh to windward, across Kilbraman sound. Shamrock I still led by two lengths and was well to windward. Under jib headers and jib topsails the boats sailed fast. The cup challenger pointed better and came up rapidly on the Shamrock I's weather quarter. There was not enough sea to trouble the boats, but the breeze sufficed to list them well over and test all their spars and gear.

FIRE AT MOUNTAIN VIEW.

Mountain View, O. T., July 12.—Fire today destroyed fifteen business houses here. Loss, $65,000; partly insured.

NO RELIEF

Country Is Parched By the Intense Heat.

Records of Thirty Years Have Been Broken.

Minn Hist'l Society

Kansas City, July 12.—At 9 a. m. the mercury here reached 91 degrees, with the prospect that all previous heat records will be eclipsed before noon. Last night was the most oppressive experienced here in years. Hardly a breath of air stirred, and among the poor residents of the bottoms there was great suffering. One prostration had been reported up to 9 o'clock.

St. Louis, July 12.—At 9 a. m. the government thermometer registered 87, with a prospect that yesterday's record will be duplicated.

In parts of Missouri and Southern Illinois, where the crops are being literally burned up by a temperature which, during the past two days, ranged up to 110, records of thirty years have been broken.

Omaha, July 12.—At 7 a. m. the mercury registered 81, 7 degrees warmer than yesterday. At North Platt it was 76, a rise of 8 degrees. The humidity here was 76 per cent. The weather bureau forecasts no relief.

St. Paul, July 12.—The comfortable weather of the past few days continues here, a cool breeze blowing and the early morning official temperature being 60.

Chicago, July 12.—At 9:30 a. m. today the temperature was 70, while a slight breeze materially aided in rendering the weather pleasant.

Louisville, July 12.—The temperature fell rapidly during the night and at 9 a. m. today stood at 80.

Cincinnati, July 12.—A cooling breeze from the northeast during the night dispelled the phenomenal heat of yesterday, and at 7 a. m. the mercury registered 70.

LONDON SUFFERS.

Tropical Heat Wave at World's Metropolis.

London, July 12.—The heat wave here is becoming more tropical. Londoners were not prepared for it and, consequently, they are suffering greatly. The official thermometers, at 10 o'clock this morning, registered from 85 to 87 in the shade, but the ordinary thermometers showed several degrees higher. There were many sunstrokes and faintings in the streets, which kept the ambulances busy. The number of omnibuses running was considerably reduced in consequence of the exhaustion of the horses, and the iron works and shipbuilding yards were seriously handicapped on account of the enforced absence of the workmen who were suffering from the heat.

FACTS ARE CONCEALED

The Condition of Affairs In South Africa Are Much Worse Than Is Generally Supposed In London.

New York, July 12.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: Referring to the government's admission that they had information respecting the shooting of British wounded at Vlakfontein, so long back as June 11, the Daily Mail, whose correspondent was the first to make the news public, states that this is only a small portion of the policy of concealment now being carried on. It professes to have abundant evidence that almost the whole theater of war is in a much worse condition than the public is allowed to know. The state of affairs in Cape Colony in particular is said to be of a most serious nature, due almost entirely to the belief among the Dutch that the constant efforts of the British to propitiate them prove that they are tired of war.

While the government is constantly saying in public life that the war will be fought to a finish, they are, says the Daily Mail, continually making offers of peace to the Boers.

ROCKS DEAD AHEAD

Fog Lifted Just In Time to Save Big Ocean Liner From Crashing Full on Little Fastnet Rocks.

Queenstown, July 12.—The Cork Examiner today prints a sensational story of the miraculous escape of a four-masted steamer westward bound from being wrecked off the Fastnet rocks at 3 o'clock p. m. yesterday. The Examiner says the fog lifted in the nick of time to save the vessel from a fearful disaster. The lightkeepers at Fastnet were horrified to see a steamer from the east running full on the Little Fastnet, 400 yards east southeast. Fastnet immediately discharged an alarm gun, signalling urgent danger. Before the liner could be slowed up or her engines reversed she had apparently touched the Little Fastnet rock, as she was seen to list to starboard and then to port. The onlookers noticed a momentary scene of great excitement on board the liner, but she was apparently uninjured as she proceeded.

CALAMITY JANE FOUND

Buffalo Woman Takes Famous Plainswoman From Hut of a Negress and Will Provide For Her Future.

Anaconda, Mont., July 12.—Mrs. Josephine Winfield Brake, of Buffalo, N. Y., authoress and Washington corespondent for a New York newspaper, has been in Montana for the past week searching for "Calamity Jane," the noted plains woman. Yesterday Mrs. Brake discovered Calamity Jane in the hut of a negress at Horr, near Livingston. The poor woman was suffering with fever and was broken in spirits. The scene that followed an offer of Mrs. Brake to take Calamity Jane to her own home in Buffalo, where she could spend the remainder of her days in comfort, was pathetic in the extreme, and the noted frontier woman wept like a child. Later the two women left Livingston for Buffalo.

ROBBERS SHOT.

Four Entered a Hotel at Yorkville, Pa.

Pottsville, Pa., July 12.—Four masked men entered the hotel of Peter Hoke, at Yorkville, near here, at midnight last night and encountered the proprietor and Michael Ritzell and George A. Wachter, guests. During the fight which followed, one robber was killed and Mr. Hoke was wounded in the leg. Three remaining burglars made their escape. The dead man has not been identified.

TO SETTLE STRIKE.

Unions Will Give Council Proper Authority.

San Francisco, July 12.—The iron trades' council has received favorable reports from the nine affiliated unions on the question of giving the council authority to effect a settlement of the machinists' strike in this city, independently of what may be done in the East. The council has, therefore, appointed a committee of five, with full power to act, and to meet the employers if they shall agree to confer. The strike of metal polishers has been declared off.

FRATERNITY DINNER.

Phi Kappi Psi Men Have a Banquet.

The first annual dinner of the Phi Kappi Psi college fraternity alumni at the head of the lake was held at the Spalding last evening and was a very successful social affair. The fraternity is among the strongest of those established among the colleges and universities of the country, and numbers some of the most prominent public men in its membership. There were twenty-five "frat" men present last evening, and ten different colleges and universities were represented. An alumni association was organized and bi-monthly meetings will be held. The dinner last evening was given in the ordinary at the Spalding, the table decorations being American Beauty roses. After the course there was an interesting social session well filled up with college stories and songs. The following fraternity men, with the colleges represented, were present last evening:

L. R. Alexander, Lafayette college, Pa.; H. L. Billson, university of Minnesota; H. W. Cheadle, Carleton college; C. H. Claypool, university of Minnesota; Francis Cokefair, Columbia university; H. S. Davis, university of Ohio; P. M. Graff, Gettysburg college, Pa.; C. F. Graff, Gettysburg college, Pa.; C. B. Miller, university of Minnesota; B. S. Howard, university of Minnesota; Charles Mason, university of Minnesota; H. W. Kramer, university of Minnesota; P. H. Seymour, Columbia university, D. C.; Daniel Waite, Beloit college, Wis.; Dwight Woodbridge, Carleton college, Minn.; C. Z. Luse, university of Minnesota; Edwin Knowles, university of Wisconsin; Thomas Simons, Columbia university, N. Y.; John Kelsey, university of Kansas, and Peter Bradshaw, Cornell university, N. Y.

SWELL IS INCREASED.

Harbor Experiences More With New Piers.

Vesselmen say that the widening of the canal and the flare which has been given the new piers at the inner end are making it practically impossible for boats to tie up at any of the docks near the canal during a northeast blow. The swell does not die out near the canal now as it did formerly, but continues even as far as the coal docks on Rice's Point, according to some of the vesselmen. The idea of the flare in the piers is said to have been to let the swell which would be carried through spread out and ease up when it reached the wider space there, but it is claimed that it does not do this but continues on across the bay. Boats lying at the Booth dock find it difficult to lie there when there is a sea on outside, and there is always a pretty good roll near the tug office on the Northern Pacific dock.

Petition Completed.

The petition started by C. E. Richardson, addressed to the county commissioners, asking them for the appointment of a board of sidepath commissioners, under the new law, has been completed and will be presented to the county board at the next meeting. The petition has 210 signers. As was stated in The Herald about a week ago, the movement has for its object the construction of bicycle paths about the city and county, and will take advantage of the law passed last winter by the legislature.

PANIC ON THE CRIS.

The Big Whaleback Ran on Ledge of Rocks.

Chicago, July 12.—The whaleback steamer Christopher Columbus, of the Goodrich line, ran on a hidden ledge of rocks about one-fourth of a mile east of the entrance to Milwaukee harbor just as she was starting on the trip to Chicago at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. One of her propellers was broken and the shock to the boat caused a panic on board, during which several women fainted.

The force of the shock knocked one of the crew out of his berth below decks and sent people sprawling in their staterooms. Several passengers were severely bruised. No serious damage was done to the boat, which went clear over the ledge. Many of the passengers begged to be allowed to land, even after they were assured there was no danger, but the captain proceeded, paying no heed to the frantic requests.

UNCERTAIN.

Doubtful What Teams Will Play Tomorrow ---Ruhlin Coming.

Ruhlin will be here, but it is not known whether or not he will umpire a game tomorrow. Manager Hansell had arranged a game of baseball between the Duluth team and the Board of Trade team for Saturday, which Ruhlin was to umpire. This afternoon he says that the game will not be played for several reasons and Jay W. Anderson has gone over to Superior to see if it can be arranged so that the Ashland and Superior teams can play here tomorrow afternoon.

The Big Duluths will play the Duluth team Sunday afternoon at the Driving park when "Gus" Ruhlin will umpire the game. As will be seen by their line-up, they have a team that will put up a first class stiff game and it with the umpire will probably draw the largest crowd ever seen at the ball park. Gerard will play first. He put up a great game with the Fashions last Sunday and played all over the diamond. Irvin will be on third and is a good steady man. Lovell, who is a good hitter, will play second with Hurd on short. Hurd made the only three-bagger that was made last Sunday and came very nearly making a home run out of it. Cole will play center field and Staub, the Fashion pitcher, will do the box work. He pitched a magnificent game last Sunday, giving only five hits during the first eight innings. Altogether ten hits were secured off of him as he had pitched four games during the previous week and his arm was nearly gone. He can be depended upon to do even better work this time as he has shown very rapid improvement during the last few weeks and will be ready for the game. "Loole" Kline will catch and will be there with his axle tree all of the time, while Ryan and Olson will be in the outfield. Taking it all together the Big Duluths have gotten together a strong team and will give their aopponents a run for their money.

The big fighter "Gus" Ruhlin, with his trainer, Billy Madden, and his sparring partner, "Denver Ed" Martin" will possitively be in Duluth tomorrow, arriving at Superior in the morning, where he will be met by Jay W. Anderson and the party, after being driven around the streets of that city and the Superiorites given a chance to see the celebrity with their own eyes, will proceed to Anderson's Palm Garden, where they will be entertained during the two days that they remain in Duluth. Mr. Anderson, who is an old school mate of Madden, received a letter from him this morning, thanking him for his invitation and saying that his wife and children will accompany him on the trip to Duluth.

Ruhlin will umpire the ball game here in the afternoon between Ashland and Superior, if it can be secured, and in the evening will box at Superior with his sparring partner, "Denver Ed" Martin. This event will be regarded with great interest by the Duluth sports, as it will positively be the only chance for them to see him shine in his own particular field. He will not box in Duluth during his stay here.

An Associated Pres dispatch received last night said: "Gus Ruhlin left for the West today to clinch his match with Champion Jeffries. The party will go directly to Duluth, Minn., where Ruhlin has arranged to umpire two ball games and give an exhibition in Superior, Wis. He will then continue on to San Francisco, his only stop being made at Duluth."

Why Hansell called the game off with the Board of Trade could not be learned this afternoon, and it is not known, as The Herald goes to press whether Duluth will play at all tomorrow, though it is presumed that there will be a game. Jay Anderson had wired Madden that two games would be played, and Hansell was to see to the games. Ruhlin will be here anyway.

HOTTEST EVER.

Kansas City, July 12.—This is the hottest day ever experienced in the southwest. At 3 p. m. the temperature was 103 in Kansas City and still rising. At 2 p. m. it was 104:5 at Lawrence, Kas., 106 at Atchison and 103 at Joplin, Mo.

Bucyrus, O., July 12.—E. J. Pinney, prohibition candidate for governor of Ohio, was stricken with paralysis here today.

WEST END WANTS IT

Not Disposed to Relinquish One of School Directors.

E. R. Cobb's Declination Starts Movement For New Candidate.

John J. Moe, the Well Known Merchant, Is Wanted.

The announcement that E. R. Cobb will not be a candidate for re-election as director of the board of education, which was made today, left only J. L. Washburn, S. L. Frazer and N. C. Hendricks in the field as possibilities. Mr. Cobb retired in Mr. Washburn's favor, but it does not look as though the West End proposes to have one of its own members cut off, and already a movement has been started there toward bringing out a candidate.

The man whom the West Enders who have already shown a desire to retain their representation on the board seem to want for their candidate is John J. Moe, of the firm of Johnson & Moe. They present Mr. Moe as one of the best business men of the city, a man actively interested in the welfare of the community and an enthusiast in everything that he goes into. They point to the fact also that he is a representative Scandinavian, a class of the population which contributes a considerable part of the school attendance. They feel that he will make a valuable director and that the West End will give him cordial support.

Mr. Moe has been approached with reference to allowing the use of his name, but has not yet indicated his desire. It is believed that he will consent to be a candidate, however.

CONDITIONS ARE STRAINED

Vessels Holding Out For $2.50 Lumber Rate.

The question whether or not the lumber rate is going to be $2.25 or $2.50 is the basis of rather a strained condition in lumber freights. The shippers are straining every effort to get the rate down to $2.25, but the vesselmen will not accept that rate, and say they will go into the ore trade in preference. The Scotia has been in port three days, and she is not yet loaded because her owners will not accept $2.25 and the shippers will not give $2.50. Today the steamer Niko came in, and for the same reason she was placed for ore, and she left this afternoon for Two Harbors to load.

Vesselmen say that if the shippers persist in refusing to pay $2.50 more lumber boats will go into ore, and then the rate will be sure to go up.

Evidence of Disregard.

An example of the amount of pride in the city's appearance that some people take was furnished this morning by a Superior street saloon. Workmen were engaged in making alterations in the front of the place, and a lot of shavings were left. The colored porter of the saloon presently came out and swept the debris into the street. The saloon is in the middle of a block, and the wind swept the shavings up and down the street, adding to its dilapidated appearance considerably. He was not molested in his work, either.

Barnabee Pays.

Henry Clay Barnabee, the well known singer and comedian of the Bostonian Opera company, has paid $2000 to the receiver of the Duluth Dry Goods company as his assessment on stock in that company, purchased by him a number of years ago, when the fortunes of the company were promising. His judgment was $5000, that being the par value of his stock, but he offered to settle for $2000, and the receiver, with the consent of the court, accepted the offer and satisfied the judgment.

Active Brains

Must Have GOOD FOOD or Nervous Prostration Surely Follows.

USE

Grape-Nuts

To Keep Out of Nervous Prostration by Proper Use of Food.

It is a lamentable fact that American brain workers do not, as a rule, know how to feed themselves to rebuild the daily loss occasioned by active mental effort. This fact, coupled with the disastrous effects of the alkaloids contained in tobacco, coffee and whisky, makes a sure pathway towards nervous prostration.

The remedy is simple enough. Employ the service of a food expert, who knows the kind of food required to rebuild the daily losses in the human body. This can be done by making free use of Grape-Nuts, the famous breakfast food, which contains exactly the elemental principles which have an affinity for albumen and go directly to rebuild the gray matter in the brain, solar plexus and nerve centers throughout the body. Follow your selection of food up with a dismissal of coffee, tobacco and whisky for fifteen days and mark the difference in your mental ability, which means everything to the average hustling American, who must have physical and mental strength, or he falls out in the race for dollars.

Tomorrow's special term of district court will be the last one until Aug. 17. It is the usual custom to abandon the last two special term days in July and the first two in August, and this will be followed this year.

Marie Ana Skull has asked the district court for a divorce from John Skull, the erstwhile head of the family, on the ground o fdesertion. They were married in Austria in August, 1875, when the plaintiff was 16 and the defendant was 20 years of age. Now she is 39 and he is 46, and they are in the divorce court. Mrs. Skull alleges that her husband deserted her in 1892. M. C. Palmer is her attorney.

At 9 o'clock this morning a hack passed slowly down Superior street. The vehicle was occupied by two men whose hair and whiskers had been frosted by many winters, together with three footlight favorites, all in a comatose condition, and the procession attracted considerable attention.

The Sunday school of Morley Congregational church, Nineteenth avenue east and First street, has planned for a picnic on July 18. The place for the outing has not been selected, but it is thought that Zenith Park will finally be decided upon.

REVERSED.

Judgment Ordered For Townsends In Wadena Land Case.

St. Paul, July 12.—The supreme court today reversed the Wadena county district court in the case of the Northern Pacific railway company, respondent, vs. Abner Townsend, Minerva Townsend and Joseph Holcock, appellants. The Townsends had filed on three forty-acre tracts of land along the Northern Pacific right of way in Wadena county. They had held possession of this land for more than fifteen years before they were disturbed by the company, which then set up a claim to the entire 120 acres under its grant of which it claimed the tract was a part. Judgment is now ordered for the Townsends.

RECENT DEATHS.

General Peter Doyle Died at Farnham.

Buffalo, July 12.—Maj. Gen. Peter C. Doyle, N. G., N. Y., died today at Farnham, Erie county, N. Y., where he has been staying since his recent return from California.

Gen. Doyle besides being prominent in the National Guard of the state, was well known as the general northern freight agent of the Lehigh Valley railroad.

Washington, July 12.—Gen. Chaffee has cabled the war department the death of Firs: Lieut. Colon F. Massey, retired, who died at Manila this morning of dysentery.

New York, July 12.—R. J. Nowell, who was known as a humorist forty years ago under the name of Orpheus C. Kerr, was found dead in his apartments in Brooklyn today. He had been dead for several days.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 12.—Nicholas Heredia, a professor in the University of Havana, died from apoplexy on a New York Central railroad train today.

STRIKERS LOSE.

Cincinnati Machinists Ask to Be Reinstated.

Cincinnati, July 12.—The machinists' strike in this city, which began May 20, and involved from 5000 to 7000 employes, practically has been declared off. A secret mass meeting of strikers was held today, at which a formal report was made that it had been found impossible to procure assistance in money from the headquarters in Washington. As the strike benefit fund is exhausted, the strikers were advised to return to work. Already about 600 have applied for reinstatement, and many more will do so tomorrow and Monday.

TARRANT MEN INDICTED.

New York, July 12.—Indictments against Thomas F. Keehan and William V. Bowers, president and director of the Tarrant company, whose building was burned after an explosion on Oct. 29 last, were presented today by the grand jury. The indictments charge manslaughter in the second degree. Seven persons died as a result of the explosion. The men were arrested and arraigned before Recorder Goff, who fixed the bail in $2500 in each case, which was furnished.

SUES FOR PROFITS.

Chicago, July 12.—G. W. Shoemaker today entered suit in the circuit court against J. J. Townsend, a stockbroker, for $57,000. During the boom in Northern Pacific stock Shoemaker avers he instructed Townsend to buy 200 shares at 112½. When the market reached 400, plaintiff alleges he ordered Townsend to sell. He claims he has been unable to collect his profits, however, and asks the court to help him.

UNCERTAIN.

Doubtful What Teams Will Play Tomorrow ---Ruhlin Coming.

Ruhlin will be here, but it is not known whether or not he will umpire a game tomorrow. Manager Hansell had arranged a game of baseball between the Duluth team and the Board of Trade team for Saturday, which Ruhlin was to umpire. This afternoon he says that the game will not be played for several reasons and Jay W. Anderson has gone over to Superior to see if it can be arranged so that the Ashland and Superior teams can play here tomorrow afternoon.

The Big Duluths will play the Duluth team Sunday afternoon at the Driving park when "Gus" Ruhlin will umpire the game. As will be seen by their line-up, they have a team that will put up a first class stiff game and it with the umpire will probably draw the largest crowd ever seen at the ball park. Gerard will play first. He put up a great game with the Fashions last Sunday and played all over the diamond. Irvin will be on third and is a good steady man. Lovell, who is a good hitter, will play second with Hurd on short. Hurd made the only three-bagger that was made last Sunday and came very nearly making a home run out of it. Cole will play center field and Staub, the Fashion pitcher, will do the box work. He pitched a magnificent game last Sunday, giving only five hits during the first eight innings. Altogether ten hits were secured off of him as he had pitched four games during the previous week and his arm was nearly gone. He can be depended upon to do even better work this time as he has shown very rapid improvement during the last few weeks and will be ready for the game. "Loole" Kline will catch and will be there with his axle tree all of the time, while Ryan and Olson will be in the outfield. Taking it all together the Big Duluths have gotten together a strong team and will give their aopponents a run for their money.

The big fighter "Gus" Ruhlin, with his trainer, Billy Madden, and his sparring partner, "Denver Ed" Martin" will possitively be in Duluth tomorrow, arriving at Superior in the morning, where he will be met by Jay W. Anderson and the party, after being driven around the streets of that city and the Superiorites given a chance to see the celebrity with their own eyes, will proceed to Anderson's Palm Garden, where they will be entertained during the two days that they remain in Duluth. Mr. Anderson, who is an old school mate of Madden, received a letter from him this morning, thanking him for his invitation and saying that his wife and children will accompany him on the trip to Duluth.

Ruhlin will umpire the ball game here in the afternoon between Ashland and Superior, if it can be secured, and in the evening will box at Superior with his sparring partner, "Denver Ed" Martin. This event will be regarded with great interest by the Duluth sports, as it will positively be the only chance for them to see him shine in his own particular field. He will not box in Duluth during his stay here.

An Associated Pres dispatch received last night said: "Gus Ruhlin left for the West today to clinch his match with Champion Jeffries. The party will go directly to Duluth, Minn., where Ruhlin has arranged to umpire two ball games and give an exhibition in Superior, Wis. He will then continue on to San Francisco, his only stop being made at Duluth."

Why Hansell called the game off with the Board of Trade could not be learned this afternoon, and it is not known, as The Herald goes to press whether Duluth will play at all tomorrow, though it is presumed that there will be a game. Jay Anderson had wired Madden that two games would be played, and Hansell was to see to the games. Ruhlin will be here anyway.

HOTTEST EVER.

Kansas City, July 12.—This is the hottest day ever experienced in the southwest. At 3 p. m. the temperature was 103 in Kansas City and still rising. At 2 p. m. it was 104:5 at Lawrence, Kas., 106 at Atchison and 103 at Joplin, Mo.

Bucyrus, O., July 12.—E. J. Pinney, prohibition candidate for governor of Ohio, was stricken with paralysis here today.

WEST END WANTS IT

Not Disposed to Relinquish One of School Directors.

E. R. Cobb's Declination Starts Movement For New Candidate.

John J. Moe, the Well Known Merchant, Is Wanted.

The announcement that E. R. Cobb will not be a candidate for re-election as director of the board of education, which was made today, left only J. L. Washburn, S. L. Frazer and N. C. Hendricks in the field as possibilities. Mr. Cobb retired in Mr. Washburn's favor, but it does not look as though the West End proposes to have one of its own members cut off, and already a movement has been started there toward bringing out a candidate.

The man whom the West Enders who have already shown a desire to retain their representation on the board seem to want for their candidate is John J. Moe, of the firm of Johnson & Moe. They present Mr. Moe as one of the best business men of the city, a man actively interested in the welfare of the community and an enthusiast in everything that he goes into. They point to the fact also that he is a representative Scandinavian, a class of the population which contributes a considerable part of the school attendance. They feel that he will make a valuable director and that the West End will give him cordial support.

Mr. Moe has been approached with reference to allowing the use of his name, but has not yet indicated his desire. It is believed that he will consent to be a candidate, however.

Vessels Holding Out For $2.50 Lumber Rate.

The question whether or not the lumber rate is going to be $2.25 or $2.50 is the basis of rather a strained condition in lumber freights. The shippers are straining every effort to get the rate down to $2.25, but the vesselmen will not accept that rate, and say they will go into the ore trade in preference. The Scotia has been in port three days, and she is not yet loaded because her owners will not accept $2.25 and the shippers will not give $2.50. Today the steamer Niko came in, and for the same reason she was placed for ore, and she left this afternoon for Two Harbors to load.

Vesselmen say that if the shippers persist in refusing to pay $2.50 more lumber boats will go into ore, and then the rate will be sure to go up.

Evidence of Disregard.

An example of the amount of pride in the city's appearance that some people take was furnished this morning by a Superior street saloon. Workmen were engaged in making alterations in the front of the place, and a lot of shavings were left. The colored porter of the saloon presently came out and swept the debris into the street. The saloon is in the middle of a block, and the wind swept the shavings up and down the street, adding to its dilapidated appearance considerably. He was not molested in his work, either.

Barnabee Pays.

Henry Clay Barnabee, the well known singer and comedian of the Bostonian Opera company, has paid $2000 to the receiver of the Duluth Dry Goods company as his assessment on stock in that company, purchased by him a number of years ago, when the fortunes of the company were promising. His judgment was $5000, that being the par value of his stock, but he offered to settle for $2000, and the receiver, with the consent of the court, accepted the offer and satisfied the judgment.

Active Brains

Must Have GOOD FOOD or Nervous Prostration Surely Follows.

USE

Grape-Nuts

To Keep Out of Nervous Prostration by Proper Use of Food.

It is a lamentable fact that American brain workers do not, as a rule, know how to feed themselves to rebuild the daily loss occasioned by active mental effort. This fact, coupled with the disastrous effects of the alkaloids contained in tobacco, coffee and whisky, makes a sure pathway towards nervous prostration.

The remedy is simple enough. Employ the service of a food expert, who knows the kind of food required to rebuild the daily losses in the human body. This can be done by making free use of Grape-Nuts, the famous breakfast food, which contains exactly the elemental principles which have an affinity for albumen and go directly to rebuild the gray matter in the brain, solar plexus and nerve centers throughout the body. Follow your selection of food up with a dismissal of coffee, tobacco and whisky for fifteen days and mark the difference in your mental ability, which means everything to the average hustling American, who must have physical and mental strength, or he falls out in the race for dollars.

CITY BRIEFS.

If you smoke a "Tom Reed" you smoke the best cigar on the market.

Charles Smith and James Bailey were arrested last evening by Detective Mork, the charge against them being larceny. The men are said to have taken about 238 pounds of pig copper that was stored on the Northern Pacific dock to be shipped away.

The death of Casper Welch, of consumption, occurred yesterday, at his late residence on Thirty-second avenue east. The deceased was 38 years of age. The funeral will be held in the German Catholic church at 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

Just what you need: Weiss Beer.

A marriage license has been issued to Erick Sardeen and Ida Thuna.

Tomorrow's special term of district court will be the last one until Aug. 17. It is the usual custom to abandon the last two special term days in July and the first two in August, and this will be followed this year.

Marie Ana Skull has asked the district court for a divorce from John Skull, the erstwhile head of the family, on the ground o fdesertion. They were married in Austria in August, 1875, when the plaintiff was 16 and the defendant was 20 years of age. Now she is 39 and he is 46, and they are in the divorce court. Mrs. Skull alleges that her husband deserted her in 1892. M. C. Palmer is her attorney.

At 9 o'clock this morning a hack passed slowly down Superior street. The vehicle was occupied by two men whose hair and whiskers had been frosted by many winters, together with three footlight favorites, all in a comatose condition, and the procession attracted considerable attention.

The Sunday school of Morley Congregational church, Nineteenth avenue east and First street, has planned for a picnic on July 18. The place for the outing has not been selected, but it is thought that Zenith Park will finally be decided upon.

Numerous admirers of speed contests are drawn from the range towns this afternoon to witness the contests at the driving park. Every town on the range is represented.

Mrs. K. Smuckler, of Pine City, is registered at the St. Louis.

T. J. Arnold and R. H. Cruyk, of Bemidji, are registered at the Spalding today.

Henry F. Green leaves tonight for Buffalo to visit the Pan-American.

John F. Tornia, of Minneapolis, passenger agent of the Dominion line, is in the city today.

George M. Smith, general agent of the Omaha, returned this morning from a visit to Wisconsin and Michigan points in the interests of his road.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Curtis and H. K. Vivian, prominent residents of Calumet, Mich., were in the city this morning. They left during the day for San Francisco, where they will attend the Epworth League convention.

John Korby, of Ely, is in the city this afternoon. He is on his way home from Chicago, where he has been on a buying trip. Mr. Korby is well satisfied with this climate after experiencing the terrible heat prevailing in the East.

Revenue Cutter Here.

The United States revenue cutter Lot M. Morrill is in port today on one of her regular trips. She is stationed in Milwaukee.

REVERSED.

Judgment Ordered For Townsends In Wadena Land Case.

St. Paul, July 12.—The supreme court today reversed the Wadena county district court in the case of the Northern Pacific railway company, respondent, vs. Abner Townsend, Minerva Townsend and Joseph Holcock, appellants. The Townsends had filed on three forty-acre tracts of land along the Northern Pacific right of way in Wadena county. They had held possession of this land for more than fifteen years before they were disturbed by the company, which then set up a claim to the entire 120 acres under its grant of which it claimed the tract was a part. Judgment is now ordered for the Townsends.

RECENT DEATHS.

General Peter Doyle Died at Farnham.

Buffalo, July 12.—Maj. Gen. Peter C. Doyle, N. G., N. Y., died today at Farnham, Erie county, N. Y., where he has been staying since his recent return from California.

Gen. Doyle besides being prominent in the National Guard of the state, was well known as the general northern freight agent of the Lehigh Valley railroad.

Washington, July 12.—Gen. Chaffee has cabled the war department the death of First Lieut. Colon F. Massey, retired, who died at Manila this morning of dysentery.

New York, July 12.—R. H. Nowell, who was known as a humorist forty years ago under the name of Orpheus C. Kerr, was found dead in his apartments in Brooklyn today. He had been dead for several days.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 12.—Nicholas Heredia, a professor in the University of Havana, died from apoplexy on a New York Central railroad train today.

STRIKERS LOSE.

Cincinnati Machinists Ask to Be Reinstated.

Cincinnati, July 12.—The machinists' strike in this city, which began May 20, and involved from 5000 to 7000 employes, practically has been declared off. A secret mass meeting of strikers was held today, at which a formal report was made that it had been found impossible to procure assistance in money from the headquarters in Washington. As the strike benefit fund is exhausted, the strikers were advised to return to work. Already about 600 have applied for reinstatement, and many more will do so tomorrow and Monday.

TARRANT MEN INDICTED.

New York, July 12.—Indictments against Thomas F. Keehan and William V. Bowers, president and director of the Tarrant company, whose building was burned after an explosion on Oct. 29 last, were presented today by the grand jury. The indictments charge manslaughter in the second degree. Seven persons died as a result of the explosion. The men were arrested and arraigned before Recorder Goff, who fixed the bail in $2500 in each case, which was furnished.

SUES FOR PROFITS.

Chicago, July 12.—G. W. Shoemaker today entered suit in the circuit court against J. J. Townsend, a stockbroker, for $57,000. During the boom in Northern Pacific stock Shoemaker avers he instructed Townsend to buy 200 shares at 112½. When the market reached 400, plaintiff alleges he ordered Townsend to sell. He claims he has been unable to collect his profits, however, and asks the court to help him.

ONE YEAR FOR MARTIN.

New York, July 12.—Edward H. Martin, formerly a lieutenant in the United States army, who pleaded guilty, a few days ago, to the charge of passing worthless checks, was sentenced today by Recorder Goff to one year in the penitentiary.

MRS. DAVIES IMPROVES.

Portland, Me., July 12.—The condition of Mrs. Jefferson Davis, the widow of the president of the Confederacy, was reported today as greatly improved over that of yesterday. Her illness is not considered at all serious.

A NOVEL SCHEME

Superior Grocers Talk of Consolidating Their Deliveries.

Would Have One Concern Do All of That Work.

Considerable Doubt as to Feasibility of the Plan.

It is rumored that a gigantic combination is in process of formation among the retail grocers of Superior. A new plan is contemplated which would change the entire delivery system, and one person's firm may be given a contract to do the delivering for the entire seventy members of the Grocers' union. It is estimated that the contract for the first year would represent at least $17,000. Although the awarding of a general delivery contract would be a speculation for the winner the first year, the grocers can estimate reasonably close about how much work would have to be done, allowing for the natural increase in the volume of business. How the patrons of the stores would welcome this innovation is a question, but there would doubtless be little complaint if the service was as good as that which they now get.

The plan for the grocers is nothing more nor less than to let out the contract for delivering the goods of every grocer that is a member of the union. There is much discussion on among the members of the union but it is stated that it would be six months before anything in the way of a decision would be reached. The union is now investigating the matter.

As stated, the scheme provides for the letting of a contract to some one to do the delivering of every groceryman in the city. The contract would call for six deliveries each day for each and every groceryman. Thus can be seen something of the enormity of the contract that would be undertaken by any person that secured the job. It is expected that it will take in the neighborhood of twenty to twenty-five teams to handle the business and there is some expression of opinion that it could not be satisfactorily handled.

In case the deal goes through each grocer would be obliged to pay about $20 per month or $240 per year as his share of the contract price. There are about seventy grocery firms that are members of the union and this would bring the total of the contract up to about $17,000 per year. It is expected that it would be a good-sized task to perform the job as the grocers would have to be satisfied, and there is a wide diversity of opinion as to the actual cost for doing the work.

Tendered a Reception.

Last night a reception by the congregation was tendered Rev. Father Edward Ginter, the new pastor of St. Clement's church in the West End, who assumed charge about two weeks ago. There were musical numbers by Frantz Schultz, D. P. McDonald, Miss Alma Brotherton and a recitation by Miss Ella Phillips. Father Edward made a short address.

AT CLOQUET.

Cloquet, Minn., July 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—John P. Perry leaves for the Pacific coast on Monday next. He will be succeeded as night foreman at the Johnson-Wentworth mine by A. P. Monroe.

Nic Rose, the man who was stabbed at Carlton on Thursday last, and who has been lying in a critical condition at St. Mary's hospital, is reported dead. His assailant, Odin Hanson, is in custody, and hearing set, before Justice Wrenshall, today. It is said that Rose fully identified Hanson as the man who did the deed before his death.

The late M. T. Mongovan, whose death has been mentioned during the past week, had an enviable record as a brave soldier. An Irishman by birth, he enlisted in the English army and served through the Crimean war. Coming to this country in 1860, he enlisted in the Union army, and was commissioned in 1861 as first sergeant of an Indiana company. He served in the same regiment until 1867, and was mustered out a second lieutenant. Re-enlisting, he served in Indian campaigns under Gens. Whistler, Stanley and Sturgis, and was finally given an honorable discharge in 1879, in consequence of a surgeon's certificate of disability.

One sad feature connected with the fatal accident to Thomas Hansley, reported yesterday, is that the widows has been married twice in the last five years to two brothers, and is left with two small children to care for. As far as can be learned, the deceased carried life insurance in the Workmen for $2000.

G. H. Gibson, of Cass Lake, was in town again yesterday.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. N. F. McDonald a boy, on July 10. Henry Morey is also setting up the cigars, another boy, on July 10.

Mrs. P. Phalon and Mrs. A. Korizek drove to the Zenith City yesterday. They will return today.

Rev. and Mrs. Sykes leave for Port Arthur early next week for their annual vacation. They will be accompanied by the Rev. W. J. Heard.

C. L. Dixon, local manager of the Bell Telephone company, has resigned. C. M. Manseau, the general manager of the company, expected today, to interview his patrons with reference to a successor.

Regular meeting of the village council next Monday evening. It is expected that some agreement will be arrived at, looking to the building of the new water plant.

Some one started the report that C. Ginter had been married while away recently. Ginter says it is not true, and he ought to know.

Mrs. John F. O'Brien has returned home from visiting friends in Chicago.

Attorney Oldenberg was in the city yesterday on business.

The improvements being made in the M. E. church interior are progressing rapidly. When finished it will be one of the best furnished and most comfortable auditoriums in the city.

The funeral of Thomas Hansley will be conducted today by the Scandinavian Benevolent society.

WANTS A DIVORCE.

Dorothy Studebaker Seeks Separation From Husband.

San Francisco, July 12.—Dorothy Studebaker McKeown has set out to secure a divorce from her husband, Scott McKeown.

"It had to come sooner or later," she said as she sipped her tea at the Palace grill, "and the sooner the better for me. I gave up my vaudeville engagement in Cincinnati and rushed to Oakland, where my mother was dying. I telephoned to Mr. McKeown at Los Angeles as soon as I arrived at Oakland, saying that mother was dying. He answered me with drunken oath and insult. That was July 3. On July 5 I telegraphed him that mother was dead. I received no reply. That settled it with me."

Mrs. McKeown charges cruelty, failure to provide, neglect and half a dozen other things.

ORE TRAFFIC.

Things Which Add Much Strength to Vessel-men's Side.

Cleveland, July 12.—The Iron Trade Review says: Some things have occurred this week which add strength to the vessel man's side of the iron ore carrying trade on the great lakes. The demand for tonnage keeps up, but the supply has been curtailed by the appearance of some Chicago grain upon the market which is taking some of the boats, heretofore applicable to the movement of Lake Superior ore, into other channels. The docks, however, are able to handle only a reasonable per cent of the boats which have been carrying ore so that the weaning away of some tonnage will not affect the market materially other than permitting better dispatch to those boats which are still engaged in that trade. Still, the slacking up of the supply without a corresponding abatement of the desire of the shippers to charter boats is having the effect of strengthening of the rates, although without prospect or hope of an advancement.

The reports of the receipts of ore at the south shore ports were completed during the week just closed and show that the total for June was 3,373,833 tons, against 3,149,952 tons for the same period a year ago. The total movement to July 1 for this season amounted to 4,963,608, against 6,415,840 during the same period last year. The June increase, therefore, was 223,881 tons, while the showing up to July 1 is of a decrease from 1900 of 1,452,232 tons. Many shippers had expected a better showing on the June movement, but are not much put out by the returns. The rate of increase, if continued, will land them safely early in the fall, but the indication in the report is that more material will be moved after Sept. 1 than the shippers had hoped for. If ore men have to divide tonnage with grain shippers during October and November, some fancy rates are looked for. At present wild chartering is done on the basis of 80 cents from the dead of the lakes, with a good demand for boats but poor dispatch.

A SURPRISE.

Columbia Beats the Constitution and the Independence Sails Well.

Newport, R. I., July 12.—Columbia won today's race in fine shape with the Constitution second and the Independence a remarkable third.

The Boston boat sailed an exciting race with the two Herreshoffs and led the Constitution at the outer mark, only to be beaten by her by a little over two minutes on the run to the finish before the wind.

The breeze today was much stronger than on the previous days and the Independence sailed the fifteen miles to windward without her jib topsail and seemed to hold higher, at the same time footing just as fast.

The result of today's race leaves the question of the supremacy of the three 90-footers unascertain, the Independence being not so slow after all, while the Constitution has yet to prove her unquestioned superiority to the other two yachts in anything except very light airs.

The hopes of the Boston contingent have therefore gone upward with a bound and tonight the experts are trying to figure what the Independence will do when it blows still a little harder.

The race itself was very exciting, especially when a little less than an hour after the start, the Independence by keeping near the Narragansett pier forced the Constitution about and for a few minutes was the leading boat in the race. From that point to the turning buoy the fight between the two new yachts was one of the closest contests seen here for many years. With the mark about eight miles dead to windward, the two flyers battled for the lead. Three times did the Herreshoff yacht attempt to cross the bow of the Crowninshield boat only to be beaten back and forced about. Capt. Haff kept the Constitution right under his lee and was able to maintain this commanding position through the speed and ability of the Boston boat even with less sail, the Herreshoff boat carrying, as usual, her baby jib topsail. On and on sailed the rivals, the hull of the Independence being always on the sunny side of the Bristol yacht.

While they battled, however, Capt. Barr, of the Columbia, saw his chance and took advantage of this contest between the other two yachts to slip on up to windward and he thus reached the mark nearly four minutes ahead.

Astern of him were the Independence and Constitution, each striving for the buoy, the Boston boat giving luff for luff in every case and finally swinging around with the Constitution's bowsprit tight over her taffrail. Two brief seconds after the Constitution also turned.

Last Saturday the Constitution beat the Independence nearly one hour to the outer mark. On Monday the Herreshoff boats pulled away from the Independence, but the gain was comparatively small and not at all discouraging to the followers of the Boston yacht. Shrouded in a dense canopy of fog, the Columbia swept across the finish line. Three minutes and forty-two seconds after came the Constitution and right astern by less than a half mile, sailed the Independence, defeated, but not humiliated.

The three crews cheered each other, the Independence tars being particularly demonstrative. Columbia, on corrected time, beat Constitution four minutes and thirty-seven seconds and Independence six minutes and fifty-two seconds correct time. Constitution beat Independence over the course two minutes and fifteen seconds corrected time.

Newport, R. I., July 12.—There was almost the joy of victory on the Independence last night. The remarkable improvement in the speed of the boat has given the hands new hopes. Capt. Haff, who has never lost confidence, said that if the Independence be properly tuned up she can beat any of the other two boats in any kind of a breeze. He also says that she had not yet been thoroughly tried out in equal conditions. The present series has afforded an opportunity to find out what was the ---. But the captain said that since the faults have been known there has been no time to remedy them. All the sails, especially the head sails are bagging badly and the head sail maker has had no time to refit them. An entirely new set of head sails is now being made. The Independence sailed today with a ton less ballast than in the other two races, and the absence of the jib topsails she carried much less lee name.

Capt. Haff also said he could have forced both the Columbia and Constitution about if he had the right of way. Instead of tacking under their lee he bore away with a good full and went astern.

FREEDOM AND BRIDE.

Governor Savage of Nebraska Makes Prisoner Happy.

Omaha, Neb., July 12.—Benjamin J. Valek, serving a sentence of seven years for perjury, has been paroled by Governor Savage on condition that the Bohemian marry a rich widow and lead a better life. The prisoner was accordingly wedded to Mrs. Marie Hlavatia, in the governor's presence, and has gone to his bride's farm in Dawson county. Mrs. Valek's different properties are valued at $75,000.

During her lovers' captivity of a year and fiv months, Mrs. Hlavatia was beset by as many suitors as the wife of Ulysses, but was equally as successful in holding them at arm's length. Valek had gotten into trouble by testifying falsely for the sake of a friend, and the widow proposed to stand by him. She laid the case before the governor and succeeded in getting the promise of a parole when the minimum time for the offense had been served.

The happy issue of the convict's service was not confided to him until he was ushered into the governor's office. It was laid down as a condition that he must marry the widow, who stood blushing in the background. This was exactly what the young Bohemian had been longing to do for many months, and once more justice seemed to him a sweet and easy thing. The ceremony was pronounced without delay by the county judge. Valek is 29 years old and his bride is two years his junior.

NEW LAW NEXT YEAR

Last School Election Under Old System This Year.

Primary Election Law to Govern at Next Election.

Director Cobb Will Not Run---Favors J. L. Washburn.

The coming election, which is to be held on July 20, a week from tomorrow, will be the last under the present system of conducting school elections. Next year the new primary election law will be in effect, and the school directors of Duluth will be elected under the system prescribed in that act, for it provides that in cities of more than 50,000 people school elections shall be included in its provisions.

The interest in school elections now is not very sharp, but it is predicted that under the new law it will be no more, and may be even less. At present there is little interest in a school election until a few days before the day upon which the votes are cast. Under the terms of the primary election law there will be a primary election, at which nominations will be made seven weeks preceding the school election, and twenty days previous to that time the candidates must file affidavits expressing their desire to run for the office. Voters, too, must register for the election, although the primary election constitutes the first day of registration.

Under these provisions, with the election coming in the middle of the summer, when people are not inclined to pay much attention to elections, it is the expectation of most people that there will be little interest in the school elections unless something arises to bring them before the public at the time when the primary election is to be held.

The average citizen takes very little interest in a school election. Last fall, when the school board proposed to make a levy larger than seemed to be necessary, there was a large meeting of citizens, and some very emphatic talk from a number of the leading business and professional men of the city. Nearly every man who talked said that the people took too little interest in school matters and let the board run itself, elections and all. There were emphatic resolutions made that when the next election came around things would be different. Another election has come around now, and it would be interesting to know how many of those men who made such strong resolutions at that meeting are taking any interest in the selection of directors at the coming election and how many of them will vote.

The three directors whose terms will expire are S. L. Frazer, E. R. Cobb and N. C. Hendricks. Of these it is known that Mr. Frazer would like a re-election. Mr. Hendricks is indifferent; that is, he will serve if elected, but will make no effort to get the place.

E. R. Cobb has decided not to be a candidate for re-election and has declared in favor of J. L. Washbuon, for whom a strong demand has arisen. In a published statement he says:

"It has been stated that I am a receptive candidate for re-election to the board of education, and it has been assumed that I would actively seek election. This is a mistake. After mature reflection, I have concluded to decline the many offers of support so generously tendered me of late, and wish to publicly remove all uncertainty as to my position in the matter. The nomination of Mr. Washburn, and the enthusiastic reception of his name on every hand meet my hearty approval; and I know of no reason why Directors Frazer and Hendricks, having served very acceptably upon the board, and being familiar with its work, should not be endorsed and returned to the seats which they now hold.

"As for myself, it is gratifying to me to know that I have performed a citizen's duty well enough through six years' of service as a school director to receive so many kindly assurances of good will and esteem throughout the city."

Mr. Cobb said in addition this morning that his work as superintendent of construction and repairs is keeping him busy every minute of his time, all day and even into the night. To enter into a canvass for re-election as director would necessitate his neglect of that work until after the election, and this he does not feel would be right. He has therefore decided to drop out.

The movement in favor of J. L. Washburn for a place on the board is a very strong one, and there is little doubt of his election. He has agreed to serve if elected, but will make no effort to elect himself.

DROWNED.

Four Winnipeg People Lost Their Lives In the Water.

Winnipeg, July 12.—Four Winnipeg citizens were drowned today at Portage La Prarie. The two young daughters of Thomas Davidson, a merchant of this city, were drowned while bathing in the Assiniboine. Last evening a boy, named John McKenzie, nephew of William McKenzie, the magnate of the Canadian Northern railroad, was drowned by the upsetting of his canoe in the Red river, and a man named Alexander Macdonald, a contractor of this city, was drowned in the Rainey river, near Mine Center, in trying to pass the rapids in a row boat. None of the bodies have yet been recovered.

LEMONS RISE.

Hot Weather Gives Them a Sharp Boost Upward.

People that like lemonade and other drinks that the juice of the lemon enter into might do well to take time by the forelock and drink a lot now, for if the hot weather keeps up the time is likely to come very shortly when they cannot afford it. Lemons have taken the bit in their teeth and are traveling up the price scale at a terrific rate, so rapidly that it amounts to a runaway. The reason for this is the hot weather. Supplies of lemons are melting away rapidly on every hand because of the heat, and as the supplies grow smaller the price gets higher. Another factor is that the hot weather makes a large demand for lemons. In warm weather there is nothing so wholesome and refreshing as lemonade, and vast quantities of it are being consumed daily wherever the weather is warm. Ten days ago Messina lemons were quoted at $3.75 and $4 on Michigan street. Today they are quoted at $5 to $5.50, and one leading commission man says that they are likely to reach $7 or $8 a case before long.

The other feature of the market this week is green corn, which came on the market during the week and is selling at 10 cents to 12 cents per dozen. There is a good demand for it, and all that is coming in is sold readily at that rate. The quality is very good.

California pears are the latest addition to the fruit list. They, also, arrived during the week, and they are selling at $3 per box. The list of fruits is now nearly complete, and there is a large and choice variety of fruits to select from, in which there is something to please every palate.

The dull season on such things as butter, eggs, meats and poultry is on, and there is very little change in the prices. The supply and demand are about equaling each other all around, and the result is a steadiness in prices.

Corn, oats and feed are higher and timothy hay is $1 per ton lower.

A New Boat Club.

A new boat club is to be organized at Superior in place of the old Superior Boat club, which went out of existence last winter and sold most of its paraphernalia. The new club will occupy the house that was formerly used by the old one, repairs and alterations being already in progress. It is probable that in the new club every member will own his own boat, but that there will be a sailing yacht or two for the members.

Building Large Steamer.

The second largest steamer ever built at the head of the lakes is now in course of construction at the yards of the American Shipbuilding company. The steel freighter is being built for W. H. Meyers, of Milwaukee, and 400 men are employed on the work. The new steamer is to be 414 feet in length over all, keel's length will be 394 feet; beam, molded, 48 feet, and depth, 38 feet. The steamer will be of steel throughout, and is to be equipped with triple expansion engines. Nearly all of the steel frame work is in position, and much of the steel plate has been placed. It is expected that the boat will be ready to go into commission in about two months.

Evidence Lacking.

John Anderson, Mrs. John Anderson and Andrew Byreud, charged with the killing of Wallace Honeycombe, at the Steel plant, Superior, were arraigned in the municipal court yesterday. District Attorney Crownhart moved that the case be dismissed, as not enough evidence had accumulated to warrant holding the trio, and they were released.

Cuts and bruises are healed by Chamberlain's Pain Balm in about one-third the time any other treatment would require because of its antiseptic qualities which cause the parts to heal without maturation. For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

GRAIN MEN WIN.

Defeat the Duluth Grays 10 to 2.

Yesterday afternoon, at the Driving park, the Board of Trade team defeated the Duluth Grays by a score of 10 to 2. The grain men outplayed the Grays in the outfield and secured about twice as many hits. The work of their infield was especially good, three doubles being made by them. Chapman, who pitched, was in fine form and was there whenever the occasion demanded. C. Cummings, for the Grays, pitched a good game, while Briggs made a very sensational catch, shutting out two runs. The line-up follows:

Board of Trade.	Grays.
Randall	Catcher	Potter
Chapman	Pitcher	Cummings
Barnes	First base	Alworth
Klichli	Second base	Webber
Bagley	Shortstop	Peterson
Gearhart	Third base	Andrews
Young	Center field	Briggss
Cross	Left field	Berg
Jones	Right field	Dash

Score by innings:

	R	H	E
Board of Trade	5 1 0 3 0 1 0 x	10	15 4
Grays	0 1 0 0 1 0 0 0	2	9 4

This means that the Duluth team will play the Board of Trade Saturday afternoon, when Ruhlin umpires.

TO RESCALE.

Senator O'Neil to Go to White Earth Reservation.

Ashland, Wis., July 12.—Special Agent McComas of the Indian department arrived in the city yesterday morning from Yankton, S. D., for consultation with Senator O'Neil. In a few days they will leave for White Earth reservation to re-scale the logs in controversy between Lieut. Mercer and Joe Farr. Senator O'Neil will take with him half a dozen skilled scalers, in whom he has confidence.

Both Senator O'Neil and Agent McComas refuse to be interviewed. They are waiting telegraphic instructions from Washington, but expect to leave Saturday morning.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

John H. Bacon, a Milwaukee newspaper man and a veteran of the Spanish war, has accepted an appointment as vice consul general and clerk to Consul General Rublee at Hong Kong.

Stewart Jelliffe, alias C. H. Winter, has pleaded guilty to robbing the First National bank at Mineral Point of $16,000 on May 24. Jelliffe was sentenced to a term of four to ten years, according to department. The money was all recovered.

The engagement of Miss Myrta French, the prima donna, and Jean Paul Keursteiner, of Philadelphia, is announced. The couple will reside in the East. Miss French will retire from the operatic stage. She is visiting her home in Milwaukee.

John and Thomas Considine are to be tried in the supreme court for the killing of Chief of Police Meridith at Seattle. At the end of a four days' preliminary examination, Police Judge George decided to commit both the defendants for trial.

At Thursday's session of the Retail Clerks' International Protective association at Buffalo, considerable discussion was indulged in relative to the conditions of the various labor organizations throughout the country. The discussion finally assumed tangible form, the convention voting to the International association of machinists the sum of $1200 to aid it in its strike.

CABLE FLASHES.

"George Boldt, of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, backed by the Astors to the extent of £1,000,000 is looking for a site for a London hotel," says the London Daily Express, "and Press Whittaker, of the New Netherlands, has made an offer for a big hotel." According to the authority, A. N. Williams, on behalf of the promoters of another American hotel, has gone to New York to lay the result of his work in securing sites, etc., before Russel Sage and others interested in the scheme.

According to an official report posted in the Havana palace Thursday afternoon, Gen. Wood shows decided improvement. The general said he felt better than at any time during the past month.

What S. S. S. Does for Children

Children are constantly exposed to all sorts of diseases. The air they breathe is filled with germs, sewer gas and dust from the filthy streets are inhaled into the lungs and taken into the blood. At the crowded school rooms and other public places they come in contact almost daily with others recovering from or in the first stages of contagious diseases. You can't quarantine against the balance of the world, and the best you can do is to keep their blood in good condition, and thus prevent or at least mitigate the disease. You have perhaps learned from observation or experience that healthy, robust children (and this means, of course, children whose blood is pure) are not nearly so liable to contract diseases peculiar to them, and when they do it is generally in a mild form. On the other hand, weak, emaciated and sickly ones seem to catch every disease that comes along. This is because their blood is lacking in all the elements necessary to sustain and build up the body. Poisons of every description accumulate in the system, because the polluted and sluggish blood is unable to perform its proper functions.

Such children need a blood purifier and tonic to give strength and vitality to their blood, and S. S. S., being a purely vegetable remedy, makes it the safest and best for the delicate constitutions of children. S. S. S. is not only a perfect blood medicine, but is pre-eminently the tonic for children; it increases their appetites and strengthens the digestion and assimilation of food. If your children have any hereditary or acquired taint in their blood, give them S. S. S. and write to our physicians for any information or advice wanted; this will cost you nothing, and will start the little weaklings on the road to recovery. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free.

Cuba's Poor Railroads.

Cuba is not very well fixed in the matter of railroads and there is a great chance for improvement. It is urged by Special Commissioner Carlson, who has been investigating the situation, that all railroad material and equipment be admitted free into Cuba for one year, which would soon bring about the rehabilitation of the roads of the island and relegate the ancient equipment to the junk pile. He also urges the necessity of laws to adjust and regulate the freight and passenger tariffs which are badly demoralized at the present time. "Such action," says the railroad commissioner, "will encourage and hasten the early completion of the central trunk line of railroad, and its many branches to all the many good ports of Cuba, which today have no facilities of transportation with the interior of the island. It will hasten development and aid in maintaining a stable form of government by permitting rail transportation between all the principal cities of the island, without being dependent upon water transportation. The building of this central line of railroad and the execution of the plans of its builders will do more to regulate the existing railroads of Cuba than any law or other means. It will be a modern railroad of the best American standard as to roadbed and equipment. It will also be operated under American methods, which means quick transportation and low rates. With such a railroad in the center of Cuba a revolution will be wrought in the management of the other railroads of the island. The railway managers are living in suspense as to what to do in the matter of changing the old policy of administration, which is that of 'charging all that the traffic will bear.' To some extent they are justified in doing so, because during the wars their property was injured to a considerable extent and the plantations, which usually furnish the principal portion of their freight, were destroyed in many instances." Railroads are great civilizers and the more that can be done consistently to increase their utility the better off will be all concerned.

The Chinese Exclusion Law.

The Chinese exclusion act will lapse by its own terms next year, and the laboring people of the country, who are interested in the problem are preparing to urge upon the next congress that its provisions be indefinitely extended. The views of Secretary Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor express plainly the situation from the standpoint of the laboring men. He says: "There is no doubt that the failure of congress to re-enact the law would work wholesale harm to the American laboring man. Take the situation out in the state of Washington, for instance. In that state there are hundreds of Chinamen employed in the mines and in the fishing interests. They are paid miserable wages by their employers, who are only too glad to secure their services at such starvation rates as the Chinamen ask, and the result is that many a good American is denied the opportunity to make a comfortable living for himself. The Chinaman under the law is not naturalized, and unlike many of the other foreigners who have come here to work, he has no sympathy for American institutions and nothing in common with the American people. In case the law is not re-enacted this condition in the state of Washington will prevail all over the country. Thousands of Chinamen are only waiting for the nullification of the law in order to come to this glorious haven of labor and freedom, and if the barriers are lowered they will come here in large numbers and as fast as the trans-Pacific steamers can carry them. There is no doubt that hundreds of Chinamen are smuggled into our country over the Canadian border every year. The officials of the country are enforcing the statute to the best of their ability, but it seems, as the law is now framed, there is no effective provision aimed at entry from this source. We want the addition of a provision directed against this practice, and hope to arrive at a solution of this feature of the question before May next." There is no doubt that the views of Mr. Morrison are endorsed by nearly every man interested in the labor question throughout the country. There is certainly no room for Chinese labor in this country while American citizens are unemployed.

STILL MORE DELAY.

The state railroad and warehouse commission has postponed further hearing upon rate reductions on the iron ore railroads until Sept. 10. This is a delay of two months more, during which the old rates will continue in force. When Sept. 10 arrives, no doubt there will be some plausible excuse trumped up for another delay of two months, and then the shipping season will be ended and no one will care whether rates are reduced or not, until next year.

The present postponement of the hearing is for the purpose, the public is informed, of giving the railroad and warehouse commissioners a chance to reach a decision on the legal questions brought up and argued by the attorneys of the railways. But it should not take two months, or two weeks, or even two days for the learned members of the commission, with their profound knowledge of the law and intimate acquaintance with judicial authorities, to decide these questions.

Surely it would not take Chief Justice Miller more than two days to write the opinion of the court. It might take longer, however, to satisfactorily explain why it was deemed proper to reopen the case, after the old commission had considered the matter and ordered a reduction of rates.

A NATIONAL UNIVERSITY.

The National Educational association, at its last meeting, declared in favor of a national university, and appointed a committee to make a report on the ways and means to bring about such a consummation. Dr. Harper, of the University of Chicago, was on that committee and reported against the proposition. The association, however, does not concur with Dr. Harper. It accepted his report, but passed a resolution adhering to its former position, notwithstanding the report of the president of the Chicago university.

The position of Dr. Harper is open to suspicion. While Dr. Harper has managed to gain the confidence of John D. Rockefeller to such an extent that what money is wanted for his university is forthcoming, and while he has, by the possession of unlimited funds, managed to build up a big institution, he has so conducted himself that the people have little confidence in his character. When he informed a heretical professor that inasmuch as the university depended upon the rich for the funds to run it, any teachings that were inimical to their interests were out of place, he gave to the public a correct measure of his character. Dr. Harper is bent upon building up a great university. To do this money is the first essential; other things can be adjusted.

In a national university he sees a rival to his own particular institution. Should the government go into the university business, the very things that are tabooed in the Rockefeller and the Stanford private idea-shops would have full swing, and that would be embarrassing. Dr. Harper could not be expected to be in favor of a national university—not now. The idea of a national university is a good one. The success of the state universities has been so conspicuous that it takes no argument to convince the educator that a national institution, on a scale with the national power and wealth, would fill a place that no other institution could occupy. Institutions governed by church or private donors have a certain degree of usefulness, but their sphere in the realm of truth-seeking is circumscribed. The state universities are often embarrassed for want of money—the states are always poor. The National Education association deserves congratulations on its stand taken against the report of Dr. Harper's committee.

INCREASED IMMIGRATION.

While a few of the cities on the coasts have delayed sending in their reports of immigration for June, Commissioner Powderly has his figures for the fiscal year practically completed, and they show that the year just ended was the heaviest of any since 1892. More foreigners arrived in this country during the month of May alone than the present population of the state of Nevada. Taking the official reports for eleven months, and adding the estimate for June, a total of 480,319 is obtained, as against 448,572 for 1900 and 311,715 for 1899. The total arrivals for the year are given by months, as follows: July, 38,835; August, 33,424; September, 33,401; October, 38,468; November, 28,220; December, 26,082; January, 18,297; February, 26,483; March, 43,900; April, 65,362; May, 82,837; June, 55,000. Total, 480,319.

An interesting feature of the report is that during the month of May 550 immigrants arrived at Honolulu. This shows a big gain in immigration for the Hawaiian islands, as previous to May there had been only about 700 alien arrivals since annexation. More Italians are coming to our ports now than any other nationality, 16,053 coming in at New York alone last month. They are nearly all from Southern Italy and make fairly desirable residents. They are closely pressed for first honors by immigrants from Austria-Hungary, 10,490 of whom reached New York last month. A curious thing in connection with immigration statistics is the great falling off in the number of Irish who are coming over. There has also been a marked decrease in the immigration of Japs, who some months ago threatened to become as numerous on the Pacific coast as the Chinese.

In his annual report Commissioner Powderly will ask more authority under the alien contract law, as he believes there are many abuses which can be corrected. The power he asks should be given to him.

THE NEW SENATOR.

A clever politician is Alfred B. Kittridge, who has been appointed by the governor of South Dakota to succeed the late Mr. Kyle in the United States senate. He has served in the state senate of his state, but did nothing while there to indicate that he possesses any extraordinary qualities of statesmanship. His forte has been the manipulation of politics, and he has been a shrewd wire-puller. For a number of years he represented South Dakota on the Republican national committee, and in the last campaign his clever management was largely responsible for the sweeping Republican victory and the defeat of Mr. Pettigrew.

Heretofore Mr. Kittridge has declined all public offices, with the exception of his brief service in the state senate, and has preferred to be the Warwick of the state, but the office of United States senator possesses so many attractions that he could hardly be expected to decline it.

The soldiers of Uncle Sam are no dudes and they do not take kindly to any dudish garments. When Gen. Brooks was in command at Cuba the department, at his suggestion, bought 10,000 pajamas and sent them to Cuba for distribution among the men there. Gen. Brooke seemed to think that the men ought to have something more modern than rough blankets to sleep in, so he decided to try pajamas. The men, however, did not take kindly to this up-to-date garment, for there have been no additional calls for pajamas. Therefore the war department has abandoned the experiment of furnishing them for the troops in the field and in the future our troops, whether in camp or in the field, will wrap themselves in blankets and woo sleep in that simple garment, while the pajamas will be reserved for the more particular officers. The tailoring bill for the Federal army for the year just ended was close to $8,000,000. This included expenditures for tents and cooking utensils as well as for all kinds of clothing. A slight reduction is looked for during the year that has just begun, and it is hoped to cut down expenditures to $6,000,000 or $6,500,000. During the first year of the Spanish war there was expended $25,000,000 in providing clothing, tentage and general tent supplies for the regulars and volunteers.

New York papers report that the heat of last week created havoc with asphalt pavements in that city and the asphalt trust will lose thousands of dollars in consequence, as it agrees to keep a pavement in repair for a period of ten years. When it made this contract it did not anticipate such a protracted spell of hot weather, or it would have been more careful. On some of the streets which are most extensively traveled great dents were made in the asphalt by the passing of heavily loaded wagons. Other streets are covered with footprints such as one sees in the sands. The asphalt company was notified of the situation and informed that it would have to repair the damage. Some of the dents will be ironed out, but in many places great sections of the street will have to be torn up. But the trust can afford to make the repairs out of the immense profits it has made.

The revenue receipts for July have been ahead of those a year ago despite the fact that many of the war taxes were remitted on July 1. During four working days of this month the total receipts were $7,586,257 against $6,591,622 for the same four days of 1900. This represents a gain of almost $950,000 for this year. This unusual condition is explained by the fact that there has been a great demand for the new tobacco stamps which were only put on sale on Monday of last week. Manufacturers of tobacco have bought them in tremendous quantities, thereby swelling the internal revenue receipts.

A company formed for the purpose of "acquiring, owning, constructing and operating in all harbors, canals and ship railways," and having the "right to operate in any and all and every part of the canals and ship railways of Tehuantenec, Honduras, Nicaragua, Chirriqui, Panama, Nendingo, Darien, Atrato, Truando, Nepipi, San Blas, Costa Rica, or at any points within the boundaries of the countries named," has been incorporated in New Jersey. As its capital stock is only $2000, it cannot be said that it contains much water.

An ice cream sale to raise funds with which to buy a hearse seems rather incongruous at first thought, but the girls at Eastbrook, Me., have held one and given the order for the hearse.

The Independence made a better showing yesterday and she may yet prove herself the fastest boat in a wind, something which has been mostly lacking during the trial races.

Lizzie Carr sued James Carr, of Cincinnati for divorce because he smoked cigarettes. The court thought the reason sufficient, and so the Carrs were uncoupled.

There will be many sympathizers with the angry man in Wichita, Kan., who lowered his cook into the well because she burned the steak.

The little flurry in stocks in Wall street yesterday indicates that it is a good time to keep out of the market.

Raising broom corn would seem to be a very profitable business. It is now selling at $200 a ton.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

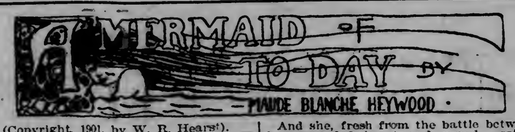

New York Press: We remember our joys, but our sorrows remember us.

Heaven probably has open plumbing, or else a lot of the women would come back.

A woman who is having four dresses made at once equals one man who is having a tooth filled.

A girl always sets extra store by the dream she has the first night she sleeps with a certain man's letter under her pillow.

When a man has just got engaged to a girl and she lets him know that she knows he once proposed to another girl he always claims that he asked the other girl in a very different way.

(Copyright, 1901, by W. R. Hearst).

The bells rang out in the village steeple, the brown meadow lark sang over her head as he flew, a white gull dipped with a sullen scream into the sea, that surged and beat at her feet, but the girl standing in the shelter of the great gray rock neither moved nor stirred.

The wind buffeted her strong young body. It blew the folds of her cotton dress about her feet. It left damp spray upon her cheek, and kissed into ripples her splendid chestnut hair.

Standing there, looking over the blue waters that she loved, it seemed to Joyce Merrill that somehow this old gray rock was a part of her life, and she leaned against it, while the cloud on her face deepened.

All her life had been spent in this small fishing village, where sad-eyed women were always watching out for the safe return of husband and lover. All her youth was linked with mournful memories of storms and shipwreck, all her happiness with this old gray stone.

It was on its rugged top that her fair young mother had come to watch her father's ship sail away. It was here that her baby fingers had blown him kisses until his ship was lost to sight.

Ah, what wild music the waves made, and how she loved them. She could see strange sights and scenes and faces and phantoms in those waves, and all the sea-dwellers rose at her call.

For was she not the chosen child of the waves, to whom in every generation, so ran the legend of these fisherfolk, had been given the power to read the secrets of the sea, and all the spirits of the wind and wave would follow her bidding, foul or fair? But she was not thinking of watersprite or mermaid, but of a very human young man.

A man with a slow step was following the footpath that led to the old rock. He saw the girl and paused, in its shadow. "Ah," he said, "it is Joyce, my mermaid, but another hour of work and I can go on with my picture without her, but can I leave her?" And the troubled thought of Roy Graham, the great artist, was arrested by the appearance of a fair-haired young man, who leaped from a boat, and stood before her.

He extended his hand, but she motioned him away, and folding her arms surveyed him with mingled pride and scorn.

"Joyce," he cried, "have you no welcome, no word for me after all these days? When I have come to tell you that it is you I really love, that it is only to win my uncle's favor that I attend upon Miss Lucy. I cannot afford to be disinherited to please your unreasonable jealousy."

"Let me hear no more. If that is what you came to say you had best stayed away, James Grey. Your own selfish interest is dearer than my love. I despise and hate you. Go away and let me never see your face again."

She drew the ring from her finger, threw it on the rock, stamped passionately upon it, then walked with quiet dignity away. In the path turn brought her face to face with Roy Graham. Her face twitched for a moment, and her warm hazel eyes looked appealingly into his. Without an instant's hesitation he stretched out his arms, "I love you, child," he said. "I am many years your senior, but I love you. Will you marry me?"

And she, fresh from the battle between her wounded heart and proud spirit, pressed her lips close together to hide their quivering, said, "I will."

That winter all Paris went wild over Roy Graham's picture, "A Mermaid," and when the beautiful maiden standing by an old gray rock, her spacilid chestnut hair streaming, and the waves washing her bare ankles was discovered to be Mrs. Roy Graham her triumph was complete. Wealth, power, and that adulation so dear to every woman's heart were hers.

Yet she grew weary of her splendor, and longed for the old gray rock instead, the singing of the sea, her old cotton gown, her bare feet, just to feel them in the soft, wet sand again, for the sake of the days that were over.

She twined her soft, warm arms about Roy Grahams neck and said;

"Nothing would lighten my heart, Roy dear, like a sight of the old gray rock. Just think, it has been two years since I saw it, and you know I used fairly to live on that rock."

"I can deny you nothing, child," he said. "We will go to it," and they spent the summer in the little New England fishing village.

She had gone to the rock for the last good-by. On the morrow they would be far away. She stood looking down deep into the water, absorbed in thought, and so Roy Graham found her.

He solemnly affirms that as he approached to take her hand and lead her away, a big wave sprang up between them, and out of it came an old man with long white hair, and a face of ideal beauty, touched with great sorrow.

He held out his hand to Joyce, and in a voice of sweetest music said:

"Daughter, I have come to take you home," and she, with an agonized look at Roy, took his hand, and cried out; "I must leave you, husband, but I shall not die, I shall not grow old, and when your soul is freed by the passing of time, oh, my love, you will come to me down here."

And she pointed into the water.

The old man gave a broad smile, like a sigh, the sea receded, and for a brief space Roy Graham was permitted to look into the paradise of the sea.

He saw its streets paved with gold and silver that earth sends down into it through her many rivers. He saw beautiful mansions of pearls and unknown glittering substances that he knew not. He saw gardens filled with the strange and beautiful growths of the sea, and, strange as it may seem, all this was down under the sea, where the land was as solid as the rock he stood on, and the sea, or what appears as a sea to us, floated above them and formed their atmosphere and sky.

He saw the corn-maidens of the sea, with pale yellow hair and blue eyes.

They came forward and waved their hands to his Joyce, his love, his wife, but the waters were closing about her. He tried to seize her in his arms, but he could not reach her, and she smiled and said:

"Not yet; a little more of earth, and you, too, will come and be my endless joy in the long forever. That you might be at peace about me, I prayed the God of the sea to show you where I go," and the waves of the sea closed over her. So he said, but Roy Graham's friends say that his beautiful young wife slipped from the rock and was drowned.

BLANCHE MAUD HEYWOOD.

THE YOUNGERS' PAROLE.

Minneapolis Joudnal: The Journal has consistently opposed pardoning the Youngers, but a parole is far from being a pardon, though we shall not be surprised if in the present case the former shall lead to the latter. A paroled prisoner is still a convict; he is still under control of the prison authorities; he may for any lapse be returned to prison without trial; he is far from being a free man; the heavy hand of the law is upon him; he is still, in a degree, suffering the penalty of crime. The Journal hopes that the Youngers will profit by their parole and become useful members of society. They have the ability and also, apparently, the inclination.

St. Paul Globe: For twenty-five years they have led an exemplary life. This should go a long way to earn for them the confidence of that society whose privileges they so grossly abused when they were young men. Their further incarceration, therefore, could be of no benefit to society. All the ends of the law have been met and their parole will meet with general approval. Life to them after their severe chastisement will be doubly sweet, and when the last act of the drama comes and they are called to meet their Maker, they will go with humbled souls and a kindlier spirit toward their fellow men.

Minneapolis Times: Whatever opinions a person, or a newspaper, may have as to the justice of the exercise of the pardoning power in the case of Coleman and James Younger it would surely be ungracious to dwell upon them now. No matter what these men may have been in youth no one denies to them a record during imprisonment that is highly creditable. That they will use their liberty in sober fashion and conduct themselves as good citizens, those who know them best give absolute assurances. That there is deep sympathy for them in the hearts of many who have opposed their parole is true. The excision of a quarter of a century from a human life strikes every one of us as an appalling thing.

Little Falls Transcript: The great mass of the people of the state believe that those criminals should have remained in jail. Men who would rather commit murder than work for a living are still too plainly in some parts of this country to make it advisable to extend practical freedom to the leading bank and train robbers that the country has produced. Now that the Youngers are out of jail, they should be allowed to leave Minnesota and return to Missouri, the state that protected their associates in the murderous raid in Minnesota.

Minneapolis Tribune: Now that the men are to be set at liberty it is to be hoped that they will find friends who will aid them to secure employment and assist them in every possible way to lead good lives. The fundamental purpose of imprisonment, under our humanitarian laws, is not so much punishment as reform. If the Younger brothers have been thoroughly reformed by their hard experience, all good people will have cause to rejoice.

Winona Independent: Desperate criminals in Minnesota will please take notice that "life imprisonment" in this state means twenty-five years. That seems to be about the length of time necessary to develop a lot of sentamentalist to fit a given case of bloody crime.

St. Paul Dispatch: The public opinion of the state at large will sustain the board of pardons in their action in granting the modified liberty of a parole to the Younger brothers, though there will be individuals who will denounce it, and localities, where the memory of their raid is still acute, where it will fail of approval.

BRIGHT AND BREEZY.

Newark Advertiser: St. Peter—Well, who are you?

Applicant at gate—I'm the first shirtwaist man.

St. Peter—Ladies' entrance, please.

Washington Star: "Young man," said Senator Sorghum, "if you want to get on in life, keep out of politics. Don't devote your strength and years to pawing the air and trying to convert people to your way of thinking."

"But you didn't keep out of politics."

"Pshaw! This isn't politics. This is business."

Chicago Tribune: "You seem to have a great many boys in your neighborhood," said the reporter, who was out on a statistical assignment. "How many of them were killed or fatally injured by toy pistols on the Fourth?"

"I am sorry to say," snapped Old Hunks, "there wasn't one."

Judge: "Its mighty queer that Frank Tickleton should turn out to be a defaulter," remarked Tenspot.

"That's what it is," said Bunting. "Nobody ever heard him alluded to as Honest Frank Tickleton."

Washington Star: "I understand that trading is rather quiet at present."

"Yes," answered the stock operator. "There's no use of a man's trying to watch the figures in the market quotations and on the thermometer both at once."

Philadelphia Press: Mrs. Browne—Mrs. Whitty is forever talking about the repartee at her house when she and her husband entertain.

Mrs. Malaprop—Yes, I suppose that's some cheap kind. I always use Oolong myself.

Baltimore American: "Who," shouted the impassioned orator, "who among us has any cause to be happier than his neighbor on this glorious day of the nation's birth?"

A man with his head handaged and both arms in a sling, arose in the rear of the hall and exclaimed:

"The doctors!"

BAD TANGLE.

Young and Aged Wives of Washington H. Taylor Clash.

New York, July 12.—Washington H. Taylor, a real estate dealer, finds his domestic relations much entangled as the result of a decision handed down today by the appellate division of the supreme court, affirming a decree and judgment of separation obtained by his first wife, Catherine Dennis Taylor. The case presents interesting points of law. In connection with it a story is told of a sequence of marriages making a chain that reaches from a young woman of today to one who was in her prime sixty years ago.

Catherine Taylor, the respondent in the case just decided, first married John Dennis Jan. 22, 1860. At that time Dennis was a widower past middle age. He had first been married to a widow in 1840. Of that wife nothing is now known. Dennis and his wife Catherine lived together until June, 1862, when he disappeared from his home, leaving a letter, in which he said he had intended to enlist in the Federal army.

Years passed, nothing was heard of Dennis, and his wife concluded that he had fallen in battle. She mourned him as dead until 1871, when she married the present appellant, Washington H. Taylor. Mr. Taylor at that time was 21 years old, his wife being ten years his senior. In 1878 John Dennis suddenly appeared. No explanation was offered of his disappearance, and he told no one where he had lived during his absence. His wife was in a distressing dilemma, but Dennis solved the problem by falling ill and dying on July 15, 1878.

Mr. Taylor declares that he knew nothing of Dennis' relations until 1886, when his wife's stepdaughter, a daughter of John Dennis by his first wife, told him. He then angrily told his wife that he had been deceived and added that she was not his wife in the eyes of the law. There was a temporary estrangement and they again lived together until 1889.

After the final separation the two were so far apart that Taylor looked upon his marriage as null and void. At his present home in West Thirty-first street, it is said that he consoled himself and that there is a second Mrs. Taylor who is in a most dubious situation.

Catherine Taylor, hearing that her husband had taken another wife, determined to bring suit to establish her own position. She obtained a decree of separation and alimony, from which her husband appealed, the appellate court being called upon to decide whether the marriage with Taylor was void on account of the former husband, Dennis, being alive at the time of the ceremony.

BRIG WRECKED.

New York, July 12.—The Morgan liner El Roy, Capt. Mason, arrived today from New Orleans and reported that on July 9 in latitude 25:50, longitude 84:58, she fell in with the wrecked brig L. F. Munson, from Mobile, for Sagua, and took off Capt. C. A. Watt and seven men. The next day a Key West pilot boat was sighted. Capt. Watt, his mate and three seamen were transferred to the pilot boat, which was bound home. The other three were brought to this port. The L. F. Munson was built at East Machias in 1871 and hailed from New York. Her tonnage was 357 net.

MANY MEN AT WORK

Large Numbers Finding Employment All Over the City.

Building and Street Work Is Using Many Laborers.

Two Dollars a Day Is the Ruling Price Now.

"It would be surprising to many that are not posted regarding the labor situation, to drive about the city and see the immense number of men that are employed this summer," remarked William Butchart, of the board of public works, this morning, as he glanced over the crew employed by the street railway company, in taking up the tracks and estimated that the number was far short of the 200 men the company wanted to get. If a person drives in any direction about the city, on any street, he will see hundreds of men employed on new buildings in process of erection, in excavations being made for new buildings, in street and sewer repair work, tearing up street car tracks and farther out toward Lester park putting down new track. Continuing out to the city limits one will find another large force of men on improvement work at the old Brighton tract.

It is figured by good judges, men whose business it is to keep posted on the industrial situation, that there are more men employed in the city of Duluth this summer than ever before in a number of years. This is due to the increased building activity, new improvements that have been planned and are being carried out on a large scale, besides the regular amount of work which is usually to be found in a city of this size and with its many interests.

Wages are better this year than for some years past. Today if one of the men standing about the street corners waiting for a job were asked to even look at the work for less than $1.75 a day, he would feel insulted. Wages for common labor have strengthened because of the demand and it is safe to say that there is very little work going on in the city today for which the men are getting less than $2 a day. The city took the initiative by paying its street and other employes $2 a day from the beginning of the season.

Owing to the increase dockage for coal this season there have been more men employed in that industry than last year. The wages for dock work have remained pretty steady for some time at 2¾ cents per hour, which makes $2.25 for a day of ten hours. It would seem that there would be a rush of men into this employment, but it can be readily understood why there is not when it is explained that the work is, sometimes, uncertain, for the men are employed only when there is a boat to be unloaded. They may go to the dock in the morning only to find that there is no boat in. The men at work on the coal docks rarely work steadily at one dock but switch around. One of the peculiar features of the thing is that as a rule they change their names when they work for another company. For instance a man will work at one dock under the name of Peter Peterson, for one week, the next week he will be working at another dock under the name of Ole Olson, and perhaps the third week he is found at the third dock masquerading under a third name. Some men work along season after season at the same dock, but every year they will have a different name. One coal dealer says that he knows a man that had three different names in as many years.

Have a Close Call.

Three little boys, ranging in age from 4 to 8 years, narrowly escaped drowning at the foot of Garfield last night. They were playing at the water's edge, when little Leo Sauers fell in and dragged in Norman Hagen, who attempted to help him out. Henry Bonnville tried to pull the two of them out when he, too, was pulled into the water. The two older boys were able to rescue themselves, but had it not been for the opportune arrival of a man with a pike pole, the Sauer's boy would not have fared so well. As it was, he was in the water for about eight minutes before being rescued. The boys are at their homes and will be all right in a day or two.

Commissioners' Plea For Wide Tired Wagons.

Since the publication, yesterday afternoon, of the opinion of C. H. Martz, member of the board of public works, regarding the wide tire wagon proposition, there have been a number of favorable comments heard about the city from business men and others regarding the idea. N. Youngblood, a taxpayer and a citizen that has resided here a number of years, said this morning:

"Mr. Martz's idea of wide tires for heavy draught wagons is a good one. This idea is being carried out to advantage in a great many places. Mr. Martz says that wide tires would have as easy draught on brick pavement as narrow tires. He is right. The wide tires will do even better than that. Experiment stations have tested the matter and have found that in deep mud, mire, on rough roads or on smoothly-paved streets, such as our new brick pavement will make, there is an advantage for wide over narrow tired wagons. Our avenues can never be kept smooth and hard, but will be kept more or less rough, according to the incline, so long as narrow tires are used. Any teamster knows why a wide tire has an easier draught than a narrow tire. In localities where the two have been tried the wide tires have been called the road-makers, and the narrow tires have been termed the road-breakers."

IS KNOWN TO BE BAD

Edward Rooney, Formerly of Duluth, Is Shot at St. Paul.

One of the Toughest Characters Ever In This City.

That Is What the Duluth Police Say of Him.

A dispatch from St. Paul early this morning said: "The Waiters' union gave a steamboat excursion down the river last night and some of those on board got into an altercation. When the boat landed on its return trip, some one began throwing rocks at a waiter named Edward Healy. Healy, it is said, drew a revlver and fired, fatally wounding Ed Rooney, a drug clerk from Duluth. A crowd then took after Healy, who ran, pistol in hand, up Jackson street. Being closely pursued, he turned and fired again, the bullet striking George Daly in the leg and inflicting a painful wound. Healy was then overpowered and taken into custody by officers. Rooney lives at 24 First avenue and is a clerk for S. F. Boyce."

A later dispatch said: "Rooney was shot through the abdomen and is now at the city hospital in a very critical condition. Healy claims that Rooney and some others tried to start a grafting game on the boat and he, being one of the managers of the excursion, would not allow it. He says they threatened to 'do him up' when the boat landed, and that Rooney assaulted him and knocked him down before he fired. Daly, he says, then came at him with a rock and he also shot him. According to the police Rooney has been in St. Paul for about eight months. They do not give him a very good reputation. His mother and father are said to reside at the number given. The affair occurred about half an hour after midnight.

Edward Rooney has the reputation among the police here as being one of the toughest men ever in Duluth and they were not at all surprised to find that he is in his present condition. His picture graces the rogue's gallery at the station here. Five or six years ago he was the store boy in S. F. Boyce's drug store, where he worked about two months. Mr. Boyce says that he stole everything he wanted and was one of the smoothest fellows that he ever knew. Detective Benson had him in the sweat box for two days before he could secure a confession from him and the young fellow brazened it out in a wonderful manner, finally confessing to the theft of eighteen razors. He was at this time about 18 years old. After he left Mr. Boyce he was elevator boy at Great Eastern for a while and made a reputation of not doing anything but everybody. He held this place down for about a month and then went West, where he lived off other people for some time, coming back to this city about eighteen months ago.

He was always in trouble with the police and no later than last January was arrested for visiting a house of ill-fame.

Of 16 to 18 years he was a regular "rounder" and was in the habit of going in the Bowery saloons and hunting for fights. His reputation as a "scrapper" was good and he is known to have bested men almost twice his size. He was arrested several times for these little affairs and finally came down to gambling in which manner, it is thought, that he has made his living ever since. He is one of the smoothest "con" men ever in Duluth and the police do not doubt for an instant that Healy's statement that he was working a grafting game on the boat is true.

Ed. Rooney was never night clerk at North Star hotel on the Bowery as was stated by the morning paper. His brother, Saul Rooney, held that position for some time, although Roy McKenzie, the ex-policeman, says that Ed. Rooney loafed around the place a good deal, until he go too tough and was forced to leave.

Capt. Resche says that while at St. Paul recently he met Rooney who told him that he had purchased an interest in a saloon in that city and that he had quit his old tricks.

Detective Troyer, however, says that there is no doubt in the world that Rooney was working some body last night and that he would not be at all backward in resenting any interference with his plans. The St. Paul directory gives the occupation of Edward Healy as that of a cook. Rooney has a mother and a sister living here at 2408 West First street.

FOR STEALING COPPER.

Couple of Fellows Nabbed By Detectives.

The police department is searching for the owners of the copper that was stolen off the Northern Pacific dock, and when found the case against Charles Smith and James Bailey, for stealing the metal, will be taken up. The two men are said to have been caught in the act last evening by Detectives Mork and Benson. Detective Mork stood on a narrow passageway off the dock, while Detective Benson approached the two men from the other side. Detective Benson succeeded in stopping one man, but Bailey started off the dock with the speed of a deer. He did not see Detective Mork and ran into that officer's arms with a thud. He was so scared for a few moments that he could not talk.

RATES RESTORED.

Railroads Combine on All Freight Charges.

Chicago, July 12.—A complete and unreserved restoration of freight rates was formally agreed upon at the meeting of the Western trunk line committee here today. A plan for a physical division of traffic also was adopted by all the roads but the Chicago Great Western. This road agreed to maintain rates, but declared its intention of seeking business independently.

FORGERY.

William Riekoff of West Duluth Under Serious Charge.

William Riekoff, of West Duluth, formerly a foreman at C. J. Petruschke's box factory, was arraigned in municipal court this morning on the charge of forgery. He waived examination and was bound over to await the action of the grand jury in September, Riekoff's bail was fixed at $250, which he was unable to furnish and was committed to the county jail. Riekoff is said to have been on a prolonged spree since about the first of the month and becoming short of funds is alleged to have drawn up a number of checks on the American Exchange bank for $10 each, all made payable to himself and with the purported signature of Mr. Petruschke. As Riekoff was well known about West Duluth he had no trouble in passing several of the checks. Among his alleged victims are Isaac Davidson and the liquor firm of Deloyia & Butler. The complaining witness in the case is D. Butler. Riekoff is said to have passed two checks at the saloon, as the proprietors were slow in presenting the first at the bank for payment.

Riekoff disappeared just before the discovery of the forgery, but the authorities knew that he would not go far from his family at West Duluth. Last evening he went to the box factory, presumably with the intention of trying to settle matters with Mr. Petruschke, when he was taken into custody by Detectives Troyer and Irvine. Riekoff is a very intelligent workman and takes his disgrace very much to heart. He claims that he committed the forgery while under the influence of liquor and would never have done it had he been sober.

Lizzie Buckley bobbed up in municipal court this morning on one of her periodical visits after a little spree. Lizzie could not remember the date she last left jail after a ten-day sentence on the same charge, but the court figured that it was some time in June. She was profuse in promises of reformation, but the court imposed another ten-day sentence.

The case against Mrs. Kate Gasiewicz for unwifely conduct, was dismissed in municipal court this morning on the motion of County Attorney McClintock. Both the defendant and her husband, the complaining witness, were in court and stated that they had talked the matter over and arrived at the conclusion that they could live together peaceably hereafter and that the wife would have no outside associates. The husband, who is a Russian, expressed himself through an interpreter and agreed to forgive all. The court, after a short lecture on conjugal felicity, released the woman and the couple left the court together.

TO ACT.

New York, July 12.—A special to the Press from Washington says: Postmaster General Smith has taken up the question of reform in second class mail with Attorney General Knox. These two cabinet members agree that there is sufficient warrant in existing law for the rigid enforcement of orders against fake publications which have been admitted to the mails as second class matter. It was at first thought that the postmaster general would issue an order setting forth the department's views, and denying second class rates to certain publication. It now seems probable that such will not be the course of the department.

Investigation has shown that there are so many publications which offer bona fide premiums that a sweeping order would be almost impossible of execution. Instead of laying down a broad rule, the department will conduct its investigations in relation to different publications and determine upon its action in each specific case. It is explained at the post office department, that it is not intention to refuse second class rates to legitimate publications. They have not constituted a burden upon the postal facilities of the country. The department's action will be aimed against cheap publications, which make offers of premiums evidently of more value than the publication itself. The post office department does not wish to injure the business of those publications that give value received for their subscription price, and yet operate premium schemes. It only aims to correct abuses which, for instance, have developed in offers of merchandise worth $1 and a practical worthless publication whose subscription price ostensibly is $1.

Since conference with the department of justice the postmaster general feels sure of his ground and will begin barring certain prints from second class privileges within a week or ten days. There is no disposition on the part of the department to act arbitrarily and all persons affected will have hearings if desired.

Every Ready-to-Wear Garment.....

Our sacrifices take no regard for cost or worth.

WHEN our first semi-annual inventory comes there must not be a laggard in the stock. We'll not wait till the season is gone. You can have our bargains now when you want them and need them. Come tomorrow and pick the rarest one you can find—the reduction will set you wondering. SUITS, JACKETS, SKIRTS, WAISTS—all are forced down, marked down, pitiously treated. Give us part price, the rest you keep. Not only that, but keep in mind the decisive niceness of our goods, the refinement of styles, the becomingness of cut, the well finished workmanship.

WILL CASE.

Money Will Go to First and Second Cousins Only.

St. Paul, July 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court, by Justice Collins, today decided the Lafayette Woodward will case from Minneapolis, affirming the decision of the Hennepin county district court, shutting out the third cousins from participating in the will, but admitting the second cousins or children of first cousins, where the parents of these children are dead.

Lafayette Woodward, a bachelor, died at the age of 78, leaving a large estate, the value of which is estimated at $400,000. His only relatives were cousins. There were twenty first cousins living, and there were numerous children and grandchildren of cousins living and dead.

Three days before his death Mr. Woodward made a will, in which he provided that his property should be divided among the heirs, according to the laws of Minnesota at the time of his death. The child or children of any deceased parent to take the share of such parent by right of representation. This last clause, relating to the children, is what shuts out the grandchildren and great-grandchildren. The courts hold that they do not come within the meaning of the phrase "child or children."

A DOCK FIRE.

London, July 12.—A fire at the West India docks today destroyed a number of huge sheds and their contents. The amounts of the damage done is estimated at from £100,000 to £250,000.

DULUTH PROPERTY

Some More Figures Are Shown By Personal Property Assessment.

Has Three Times Amount In Balance of the County.

Valuations of Horses, Bonds and Other Personal Possessions.

Of the $6,134,487 personal property valuation returned by the assessors in St. Louis county, Duluth has $4,726,299, leaving $1,408,188 for all the balance of the county. This sum includes the assessments on the personal property at all of the mines on both ranges. The principal cities, towns and villages, with their amount of personal property as returned by the assessors, are as follows: Ely, $317,596; Tower, $57,740; Virginia, $69,895; Hibbabik, $32,644; Buhl, $15,117; Eveleth, $96,695; Hibbing, $192,579; Breitung, $69,010; Fayal, $84,265; Missabe Mountain, $189,164; Morse, $37,595; Stuntz, $99,137.

In the city of Duluth the assessors' return shows 2234 horses worth $79,092, an average of $35 each. There are 1379 cattle worth $21,149, an average of $15.33 each; there are 43 sheep worth $51, which is an average of $1.18 each. The hogs number 38 and are assessed at $99, an average of $2.61.

The assessor found 3076 wagons and carriages worth $65,028, an average of $21.14 each. There are 2679 sewing and knitting machines, worth $25,441 in all or $9.45 apiece. The people of Duluth sport 4076 watches and clocks worth $34,651 or $8.50 apiece.

Melodeons and organs are not very numerous, the assessors having found 340 of them, assessed at $6827, an average of $20.08. There are more pianos, 1906 of them having been returned. They are assessed at $152,628, or $80.08 apiece. The household and office furniture of the city is valued at $621,853, the agricultural tools at $1903, gold and silver plate at $14,239, diamonds and jewelry at $16,510, goods and merchandise at $998,525, manufacturers' materials and manufactured articles at $869,402, manufacturers' tools and machinery at $253,224, and boats at $3550.

Franchises, annuities and royalties are not numerous, being valued at only $85. Moneys of banks, brokers and stock jobbers amounts to $18,553, and their credits amount to $400. Moneys other than these amount to $100,775, and credits amount to $6561.

The holding of bonds and stocks are valued at $218,284, and shares of bank stock at $584,061. Stock in foreign companies is valued at $4790 in all.

Furniture of saloons and restaurants, including billiard tables, is worth $63,002, and all other property not included in these items is lumped at $373,825. Elevators and improvements in railroad lands, which are classed as personal property, are valued at $189,984.

The assessors found 500 dogs over 6 months old and assessed them at $2617, or $5.23 apiece.

WILL ARREST.

Street Car Conductors Will Be Ex-Officio Policemen.

The city police department and the management of the Duluth-Superior Traction company have arrived at a satisfactory understanding regarding arrests made on the street cars, and hereafter the conductors will make the arrests and turn the prisoners over to the members of the police force to be taken to headquarters. This practice has been carried out to some extent in the past, but a misunderstanding arose over the responsibility of the arrest.

Under the new city charter the conductors on street cars are empowered to make arrests on their cars of any persons conducting themselves in violation of the city ordinances, but this power is given them only when actually in charge of a car, and their jurisdiction does not extend farther than the car.

The street railway management has held that the responsibility of the arrest should rest with the policeman to whom the person taken into custody by the conductor is turned over to, but Chief Crandall has refused to let his men accept any arrested persons under this provision. The attorneys for the street railway company have investigated the matter, and Manager Warren has notified Chief Crandall that the company expects to assume the responsibility of all arrests made on street cars by the conductors.

It is expected that this understanding will facilitate matters regarding arrests made on the cars for disorderly conduct and for violating the health ordinance about spitting on the floor of the cars.

Children Like the "M" Waist.

They are nicely made, and above all, comfortable to wear. The tape suspender principle carries all the strain from the shoulder, doing away with that dragging feeling common in all other waists. What brings comfort to the children is pleasing to the mother. They are better in every respect, wear longer and cost no more than the inferior kinds. ASK TO SEE THEM.

A GREAT NEED

More Summer Hotel Accommodations In Great Demand.

July and August are the months during which the greater number of tourists and sufferers from hay fever and kindred complaints flie themselves from the heated portions of the United States to the head of the lakes to get the benefit of the cool breezes that blow off Lake Superior. Already the hotel lists of the city are beginning to show a good increase in business, and when the movement is well under way the visitors in the city will be confronted with the old problem of no place to stay. The traveling public, without exception, perhaps, pays a nice compliment to the hotel service of Duluth, but at the same time there is no question in the minds of a great many people in Duluth as to the need of the city for a large summer hotel.

Mayor Hugo referred to the matter this morning, and said that in view of the heavy travel setting this way, something should be done to take care of the summer visitors. Every year, as the delightful summer and fall climate of Duluth is becoming better advertised throughout the country, more and more people are coming this way for relief during the heated months. There are hundreds of such visitors that have been here year after year, but every year brings new faces, and these people, unless accommodations are found for them, will not come again.

Mayor Hugo is quite enthusiastic in his belief that a big summer hotel on Minnesota Point would be one of the best moves along this line of places for entertainment, and aside from the feature of its being a very desirable location, the mayor believes that it would be a paying proposition.

Every year improvements are being made on the point in the way of beautifying it as a park, erection of new summer homes and betterment of the transportation facilities, and with the new bridge across the canal, which the mayor says is sure to come, the point can be made one of the most popular resorts of the country. There may be other resorts which have an advantage in the way of scenery, but there are few that can be convinced that there is enough encouragement in the outlook for a summer hotel to warrant them putting their money into such a venture, and Mayor Hugo is of the opinion that it would be a good thing to investigate.

In this connection it might be said that the work of the Duluth Improvement association in sending out over the country circulars and books of information regarding Duluth as a summer resort is meeting with direct results, for there have been a number of people arriving in the city in the past few days whose attention has been attracted to Duluth through the literature. Among most of the questions that the association has to answer from outside prospective visitors is whether the city has a convenient number of summer hotels.

HORSE ON HIM

Alderman Swenson's Resolution Will Not Help Matters.

At the last council meeting Alderman Swenson introduced a resolution requesting the street railway company to put in a ten-minute service from West Duluth from the time of the first car leaving that point at 5:51 o'clock in the morning. The resolution was passed and the matter taken up with the company, but up to the present nothing has been heard from the company regarding the matter. According to one of the men employed by the company, however, it would appear that the horse is on Alderman Swenson, and if the company should really comply with the request the service would be cut down instead of made better. Mr. Swenson's resolution was passed July 9, while on the first of the month the company established a five-minute service from West Duluth, commencing at the early hour. A ten-minute service would mean the taking off of one of the cars. The resolution also asked that a half-hour service be established on the West Third street line between the hours of 8:30 and 10:50 o'clock in the evening. It is learned that, commencing with tonight, the company will put two more cars on the West Third street service, which means two trips later at night.

A Tug Libelled.

A libel against the tug J. D. McFadden was filed in the United States court yesterday by Robert Simpson, an engineer, for $53.46, the amount alleged to be due him for wages. Today James Magee, the owner of the tug, filed a complaint with the inspectors of steam vessels, against Simpson, alleging that on the night of July 3 Simpson became intoxicated and was unable to attend to his duties. In the complaint, Magee also states that the vessel was damaged through the neglect of Simpson, who, it is asserted, was unable to perform his work on the morning of July 4. Simpson has been notified of the charges preferred against him, and has neither denied or affirmed them. The date of Mr. Simpson's hearing on the charges made in the complaint, will be fixed when the inspectors return to the city.

BUNDEFEST.

Attendance at San Francisco Will Be Large.

San Francisco, July 12.—Delegates to the national bundesfest, which begins next Sunday, are rapidly arriving in this city, and the attendance promises to be larger than was anticipated. The Eastern marksmen who have inspected the range at Shell Mound park express themselves as perfectly satisfied with the targets and the arrangement made for the shooting contests. Today the trophies, aggregating in value $100,000, will be taken to Shell Mound, where they will be placed on exhibition in a strongly guarded temple of gifts.

The Value of a Dollar is a matter of study with business men. Therefore, when you are looking for a good Business Suit—something in a specially good value—ask to see those handsome patterns in both light and dark goods which we sell at—

$13.50

They are suits that fit and give perfect satisfaction.

Of course, we have other suits in finer textures—at $15, $18, $20, $22.50, $25 and $28—and also cheaper, down to $10, $8.50 and $6.50 per suit.

Our Trousers Dept.

is well stocked with the perfect fitting Trousers known as the "Regent Trousers." These are the only ready-to-wear trousers made that do not require rebuilding to suit particular and stylish dressers—at such popular prices as—

$3.50, $5, $5.50, $6, $7 and $7.50 a pair.

ELKS TO STAMPEDE

Milwaukee to Be In Possession of the Order Soon.

Three Days' Reunion to Be Opened on July 23.

Grand Parade and Variety of Contests and Outings.

Milwaukee, July 12.—This city will become the property of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks the morning of July 23 and will continue as such for the space of three merry days. The mayor and the chief of police will abdicate, most of the municipal ordinances will be repealed temporarily, and there will be glad nands galore, and, to quote the purple-backed invitation pamphlet just issued, "the doors will be taken off the hinges and stored away in the attic." Before the carnival and grand lodge reunion is over there will be more than one thing to make Milwaukee famous.

It may be written down as reasonably sure that the gentlemen who constitute the organization's membership are facing about the most joyous time that has been arranged for them in any hamlet where they have gathered in the last score of years. Besides the program, which is about the best thing of its kind extant, there will be a thousand features of the sort Elks like the most, not the least of which will be the Milwaukee spirit of good fellowship, which is just now running at high tide. Every man in the order will be entertained like a potentate. Milwaukee intends to flatter herself after the thing is over that hereafter everything in the domain of the Elks will be dated from the Milwaukee reunion.

Of course, there will have to be a certain number of speeches to which no one will listen and a certain number of formalities about which no one will care, but the men who are arranging the fete have cut that sort of thing to the minimum. They have gone after red fire, parades and music, excursions and contests. The three days will be filled with excitement. The three nights ditto.

The affair will start the morning of July 23 with an address in the Pabst theater by Charles H. Hamilton, master of ceremonies. By that time like Elks from Coney island to the Presidio will be in town greeting old friends and making new ones. After Mr. Hamilton finishes Mayor Rose will talk and Edwin B. Hays, of Washington, D. C., will talk back. There will be music by the Lyric Glee club and by Mrs. Clara Hague, of Jackson, Mich. After dinner the crowd will follow the military and civic parade to Juneau park, where the Elks' fountain will be unveiled. Mayor Rose will respond to the dedicatory address by John F. Donovan, who will represent Milwaukee lodge No. 46, under whose auspices the exercises are to be held.

In the evening at Whitefish Bay there will be a band contest for which $1750 in prizes is hung up. The next morning a trolley excursion to Waukesha for women is scheduled. In addition to band concerts at Juneau park and the court of honor. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon will begin the event for which every right-minded Elk in the country has been preparing for weeks. This is the monster parade with prizes of $1000, $750 and $500, the determining points being general appearance and bearing, originality of costumes and number in line. There are individual prizes, too. The tallest Elk in the parade will get 50 cents for every inch of his height; the shortest will get 75 cents. The heaviest Elk will be awarded 12½ cents a pound on hoof and the lightest will get 25 cents a pound on hoof. The Elk who travels the longest distance has a jeweled insignia coming to him. There are many minor prizes besides these.

After a drill by the fire department in the evening for the benefit of the brethren from the provinces, there will be a band concert and a drill contest at Schlitz park. Next comes the ghost parade. This unique performance is scheduled to start at midnight's yawning hour, of course, and it will be participated in only by those thoroughly imbued with the spirit. The regulation costume consists of white shroud with black skull and cross bones and the prizes are many and varied.

For the third day there is an excursion for women on the steamer Nyack, a band concert wherein each band must play "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" and "Prince of Good Fellows;" the carnival parade and "Fun on the Corso," in which confetti-throwing will be permitted between 1:30 and 6 o'clock. The reunion will have an appropriate finish Thursday evening in the grand promenade for Elks and their ladies, which will take place at the court of honor, and the ball at the Exposition building. The last event will be elaborate and a fitting finale to the festivities.

THE DAKOTAS.

Jamestown Woman Makes an Attempt at Suicide.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Mrs. George Masters, wife of a prominent resident, shot herself with a thirty-two caliber revolver, inflicting a painful wound in her shoulder. The bullet was extracted. It is believed that Mrs. Masters was temporarily deranged when she committed the act, and it is hinted that domestic difficulties had something to do with her act. Before shooting herself, Mrs. Masters kissed her husband good-by. She then pulled the revolver from the folds of her dress and fired. A great deal of interest is taken in the affair from the fact that the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Masters was rather romantic. On Friday, Feb. 1, 1901, Judge Glaspell granted Mrs. Masters No. 1 a divorce, and the next day Mrs. Anders became Mrs. Masters No. 2.

Carl Burns, an enforcement league spotter, was arrested and locked up in default of $250 bonds, charged with carrying concealed weapons. Burns has been boarding with a league man named Shain. Six weeks' board was due, Shain claims, and he was anxious to secure payment. They had a little trouble over some matters, and Shain decided to throw Burns out. He seized a poker and was about to do something when Burns threatened him with a revolver. Shain complained and Burns was arrested.

Sheriff Beaverstad continued his journey to Bismarck with Barrows, the murderer of Carolen, who was convicted at Minnewaukan and sentenced to life imprisonment. Barrows was kept in the county jail here over night and expressed himself as well pleased that the jury had not decided to inflict the death penalty.

Grafton—St. Stanislaus church, of Warsaw, about fifteen miles southeast of this city, was dedicated with imposing ceremonies by Bishop Stanley. The church is the largest in the state except the cathedral at Fargo. It will seat 1500 people, and was built at a cost of $50,000. It is the parish church of a very large Polish settlement, located in the four southeastern townships of this county—Harrison, Pulaski, Walshville and Ardock. The congregation probably includes 2000 people, and is the largest in the state. The church was dedicated free of debt, and considering the hard year just passed speaks volumes for the congregation and its pastor, Father F. Glwaovicz. The dedicatory services were attended by all the clergy in this section of the state and nearly 4000 people.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen—The total assessed valuation of Brown county, as equalized, is $6,767,617, of which $4,093,863 is for lands, $1,090,583 for lots and $1,583,166 personal property. The total amount of moneys and credits, other than banks, is $80,000.

Horses are beginning to arrive for the race meeting July 19 to 22. The meeting gives every indication of being the most successful ever held in the state. Some of the speediest goers in the country have been entered.

Woonsocket—The home of Albert Strub, owner of the "Big Store," was broken into and some $12 or $15 in money taken. Mrs. Strub woke up in the night feeling very sick, and found that the family had been drugged and the house rifled. Attempts were made to enter three other houses during the night. There were three rough-looking men around town the day before and the sheriff is making an effort to find them.

Tyndall—The new Congregational church at Geddes will be dedicated Aug. 1. Rev. G. Stanley Pope is pastor. President Warren, of Yankton college, Superintendent W. H. Thrall, of Huron, and Rev. Charles M. Daley are expected to participate in the services.

Deadwood—Harry Scott and C. C. Cannon, accused of stealing several thousand dollars' worth of diamonds from M. Solomon's store, were held to the grand jury. Charles Heldman, the third suspect, was released.

Brookings—The county Republican convention elected thirty-five delegates to the judicial convention, favoring no candidate. It passed some strong resolutions indorsing Coe I. Crawford, of Huron, for United States senator.

ASK FOR RECEIVER.

Buffalo, July 12.—As a result, it is said, of the failure of the City National bank, the Schauroth company has applied for the appointment of a receiver. The liabilities are not given, but President Schauroth says the company is perfectly solvent, and if the assets are not slaughtered the creditors will be paid in full.

IN MICHIGAN.

Upper Peninsula Railroads Buy Equipment and Improve.

Calumet—The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic and Hancock & Calumet railroads are spending a good deal of money for new equipment and various other improvements. The former road now has building two three-car passenger trains, fully vestibuled, steam-heated and electric lighted, and thoroughly modern in every particular. When the new trains go into commission the full vestibuled trains now on the Soo-Duluth run will be transferred to the Calumet-Mackinaw run. This will give the people traveling over the latter route a much more efficient service. The Hancock & Calumet railroad has ordered four 95-ton consolidated locomotives for the rock trains running between the Tamarack and Osceola mines and mills. Other standard guage rolling stock will be purchased, including several steel hopper rock cars. A portion of the present narrow guage equipment will be disposed of.

Iron Mounain—Norman Miller was arrested charged with robbing a man named Allen of $125. Allen says that he was sitting in Jetti's saloon and no one but Miller was there. The latter was sitting on the table on which Allen was leaning. He carried a roll of notes amounting to $125 in his right hand trousers' pocket. Miller left the room suddenly and Mr. Allen, on putting his hand in his pocket discovered his loss. He followed Miller to the back room, but could not get in and waited at the door for him to come out. He then accused Miller of the crime. A warrant was issued and Marshal Catlin placed Miller under arrest. There was no evidence against him.

Menominee—Tom McKinney, a well-known Menominee citizen years ago, called "Little Tom" to distinguish him from Thomas H. McKinney, is now a resident of San Francisco, Cal. Tom writes to his friend, George McKinney, of Menominee, and tells of many "ups and downs" since he left Menominee ten or eleven years ago. He was with Dewey at Manila May 1, 1898, on the Concord, and took part in all of the naval engagements, including the McCalla expedition to Tien Tsin, when the Boxers broke out. He has the Dewey medal. Tom is employed by a powder company which has a factory outside the city limits. It is exciting work, as the factory is liable to blow up at any time.

Vulcan—The people of Vulcan, Dickinson county, are becoming excited over the discovery of gold near that village. It is not a big, rich find, but nevertheless gold has been discovered. Two miners employed at the Vulcan iron mine have been prospecting for the yellow metal during their spare time for a long while. Both are experts in gold mining, and they have been certain gold could be found in that vicinity. They work at the mine eight hours each day, and when their work is over there they at once go to their claim. They have been doing this for some months, and at last have found ore bearing a large percentage of gold. The exact place of the find is kept a secret, and the men will give out no information except that they have discovered what they were looking for, and that the indications are that they are on the road to a small Klondike. The find is not two miles south of the village. The prospectors are Arthur Colburn and Fred Artus.

MOTHER WENT INSANE.

Crazed By the Death of Her Baby.

Mankato, Minn., July 12.—Mrs. Margaret E. Catlin, of Danville, was yesterday adjudged insane and ordered committed to the St. Peter asylum. A year ago she was sent to the Rochester asylum, but was subsequently discharged. The case presents some unusually sad features. Mrs. Catlin is a handsome young woman, and two years ago had a happy home, with two pretty children. One day the children strayed some distance from the house, but presently the older one returned and told her mother that the baby was asleep under the fence. The mother went to carry home her sleeping infant, but when she arrived on the spot was horrified to find that the baby was not sleeping, but dead. The fence was of barbed wire, and the little one had become entangled and fatally injured and sank down under the wires to die. The shock dethroned the poor mother's reason.

PHILIPPINE HAPPENINGS.

Manila, July 12.—Cebu, capital of the island of that name, is still frequently fired upon by the insurgents. Gen. Hughes, in command of the Visayas island, reports progress in the task of penetrating the island of Samar and scattering the insurgents.

For forty years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

GREAT DAY FOR BULLS

All Grains Shows Heavy Advances on Weather Conditions.

Fear of Damage to Spring Wheat By Hot Winds.

Foreign Damage Reports Start the Bulls Over There.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 12.—This was a great day in all grains, a reminder of the great bulge in wheat a year ago. The weather was the all absorbing feature and under the influence of drouth, hot winds and the fear of crop damage, wheat and oats scored heavy advances. The The great strength of corn undoubtedly gave wheat its start but fears as to possible damage to the spring wheat crop began to arise when the weather may and forecasts were studied and reports began to come in from the Northwest. There were reports that the recent rains in the Northwest have done considerable damage and that there is no likelihood of a very heavy crop. Wheat prospects in Southern Minnesota are not above the average. The crop in the Minnesota counties of the Red River is so seriously injured that reports indicate less than half of the average yield, but on the North Dakota side of the valley the conditions are not so serious, wheat promising better than an average crop for the entire state. Conditions average better in South Dakota than in the other two states.

The weather forecasts indicated the possibility that the hot wave that has been hovering over the southwest might move into the northwest and the consequences to wheat that is now pretty wet might be serious.

The strength extended to the foreign markets, and Liverpool closed at an advance of 1¼ to 1½d. Chicago sold 400,000 bushels of wheat for export. Argentine shipments were only 384,000 last week as compared with 1,136,000 bushels last year. The decline in Argentine shipments is noticeable every week and the foreigners are beginning to realize that they must draw on America for their wheat this year. A dispatch to the London Daily News from Odessa, Russia, says: "There is no longer the slightest hope of saving even a moiety of the crop in the Volga, Government of Amora, Saratoff and Kassan as well as many other districts. There has been protracted drought and tropical heat over the whole district."

The Modern Miller says: "In parts of Missouri and Kansas farmers are holding their wheat refusing to sell at present prices. In some sections wheat is now being fed to live stock in place of corn, as it is relatively cheaper in price. All of the new wheat coming to market is of high quality and only an occasional lot grades below No. 2."

Primary receipts of wheat were 925,000 bushels, last year 499,000. Shipments of wheat were 689,000 bushels, last year 281,000.

Duluth elevators yesterday sold 400,000 bushels of corn for Eastern shipment. There was also a sale of 5,000,000 bushels to go to Kansas City by rail. The feeling in corn is very strong and the dry weather continues over the corn district without any sign of let up. A message from Topeka, Kas., says that state will not produce more than 50,000,000 bushels of corn against 163,000,000 last year and 227,000,000 the year before.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 305 cars, against 452 last week and 142 last year. Chicago receipts, 194 cars, 83 of contract grade.

The upward course of prices brought a much greater volume of trading to the Duluth board and the Northwest was liberally represented in the buying. September wheat opened ½c up at 68c, sold at 69c at 9:34, reacted to 68⅞c at 9:36, bulged to 69¼c at 11, dropped back to 66⅝c at 11:20, advanced to 67⅝c at 12:10; at 67¼c at 2:20; declining to 66⅞c, at 12:45 and closing at 67⅝c, an advance of 3c. Minneapolis advanced 3c and Chicago 2¾-⅞c.

Cash sales were 30,000 bushels at 1½c over September.

The only change in the flax price today was an advance of 1c in the October option. Corn showed an advance here of 2½c and oats 1c. Rye also was up, scoring an advance of 1½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 72c; to arrive, 72c; July, 72c; September, 68⅜c. No. 1 northern, cash, 68c; to arrive, 68c; July, 68c; September, 67⅝c; August, 67½c; October, 67½c; December, 68c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Market Was Carried Steadily Upward.

Chicago, July 12.—Strong cables, together with dry weather, caused wheat to open higher today. There were practically no offerings on the market and spasmodic rushes for cover carried the market steadily upward. Sept. opened ⅞ to 1⅞ higher at 66¼ to 67¼, and rose to 67¾. Argentine shipments were 384,000 bushels against 408,000 last week and 1,136,000 bushels a year ago. Northwest receipts were 305 cars compared with 452 a week ago and 142 last year. Local receipts were 194 cars, 83 of contract grade.

Under continued heavy demand, prices adbanced to 68⅝c and the close was steady and 2⅞@3c higher at 68⅛@¼c.

Continued drouth throughout the West and Southwest caused a strong opening in corn. Buying orders came from all quarters and despite heavy profit taking the market held up. September opened ½@¾c to 1⅝@1¾c higher at 52c to 52⅝c, advanced to 52¾c, reacted to 52⅛@½c and rallied to 52⅝c. Receipts were 274 cars, 20 of contract grade.

Reports of damage continued and September advanced to 54¾c but declined toward the close, which was 2@2½c higher at 53½c.

Oats opened strong on unfavorable weather with heavy trading. September opened ¼c to 1¼c higher at 32@33c and steadied around 32¼c. Receipts were 123 cars.

Provisions opened dull, but steady on fair outside demand. September pork opened 10c higher at $14.55; lard was 7½@10c higher at $8.75@8.77½, and ribs unchanged to 2½@5c higher at $8.07½@8.10.

Close, wheat, July, 66⅞c; September, 68⅜@¾c; October, 68¾c. Corn, July, 51¼c; September, 52¼c. Oats, July, 31⅝c; September, 32¾c. Pork, July, $14.35; September, $14.52½; January, $14.50. MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 307 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, July 12.—Wheat has been very strong and active and has shown an advance of 3c over the previous close. Cash business has been quite heavy and the demand seems to have come from all sources. The Northwest was in early with complaints of damage in that section, while the Southwest sent reports of extensive feeding of wheat. The short interest has been very large in this cereal and it is presumed that a great deal of the buying that was done today was to cover. Foreigners have bought and their markets are all strong and higher. The Argentine shipments were very light. Wheat is in a strong position and can bull very easily.

There was a 3-cent advance in corn under intense excitement and a general heavy trade. Local bulls revilzed early but their offerings were radily absorbed by commission houses on country buying. Late in the day local professionals tried to replace their lines and prices advanced sharply. There is no change in the weather conditions and no relief is promised for the next thirty-six hours. Unless rain falls prices will continue to advance. There was a reported sale of 50,000 bus to go to Texas; 60c is being paid for corn in Missouri and Kansas by feeders. Iowa and Nebraska in the southern portion are commencing to complain of the heat and dry weather.

Much the same condition in oats as were in corn. Dry weather was the bull factor. There has been some selling of long lots by the larger locals but the market has taken them well. Receipts are light, but only a small cash business is reported.

In provisions prices have advanced 7½c today. The trade seems very insignificant compared with that in grains It seems quite likely that the market will show increased activity and higher prices before long Packers were the best buyers today, especially of January lard.

HIGH PRICES.

Lumbermen Holding For Them and Control Situation.

Men with lumber to sell smile when asked about the situation, and it looks as if the lumber bulls had the market well under their control, in Duluth at least. Prices are very strong, particularly in Norway, which is selling at from $11.50 to $12—which is an advance of about $1.50 per thousand feet over last year's price. One prominent dealer said today that the local situation was never better at this time of year in the history of Duluth. Lumber buyers are commencing to arrive in the city, and thee is quite a large colony of them here now, several well known men being added to the list today.

Very few deals are being made, as the sellers are firm in their demands for top prices, and the buyers do not seem inclined to concede anything. There is a brisk demand for No. 4 and 5 boards, and a considerable amount of this stock remains unsold at the head of the lakes. The deals are being held firm at $13, and the buyers have been endeavoring to shave this price for several weeks, but without success. The owners of the boards are confident that they will receive the figures they ask.

Kent & Campbell sold 1,500,000 feet of dry stock this week to Eastern parties, and it is already on the way down the lakes.

STRANGLED.

Tragic Death of Christ Theodorson a North Dakota Farmer.

St. Paul, July 12.—A Grand Forks, N. D., special to the Dispatch says: Chris Theodorson, a well-known farm laborer, was killed about midnight last night three miles northwest of Mayville. A number of farmers and laborers were enjoying a keg of beer, when trouble started between Theodorson and a prominent farmer named Martin Olson, the former being strangled to death. Olson has surrendered to the authorities. A coroner's jury has been summoned to investigate the case. The case has caused great excitement.

McHENRY RESIGNS.

St. Paul, July 12.—E. H. McHenry, chief engineer of the Northern Pacific, who was one of the receivers during that stage in the railroad's history, today resigned his position.

HAVE NO EFFECT.

Washington, July 12. — President O'Connell of the International Association of Machinists said today that the defeat of the strikers at the Newport News shipyards would have no effect on the strike of the machinists.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf gossip to Edwards, Wood & Co.—Current speculative views reflect an unusual diversity of opinion as to the immediate future of the stock market. The damage to the corn crop has proved an unexpected damper and is causing much discrimination against the stocks of the corn carrying roads. On the other hand the fine outlook for spring wheat is undoubtedly responsible for strong scale buying of St. Paul and by the Standard Oil contingent. Generally speaking, however, sentiment among the most conservative houses is suggestive of a lower range of prices before the market reaches bottom, though it is conceded that rallies will occur when the big bears get too much of a following and then try to cover. That sort of buying was largely responsible for the checking of the morning's decline and result and sharp recovery in the active stocks. While an easier turn in money gives holders considerable encouragement, the fact is not overlooked that western depositors in New York banks will soon be calling home large amounts of money to be used in the movement of crops. With the local banking institutions well extended there is a feeling that loans must be further curtailed. This together with the unsettled problem before Northern Pacific and Union Pacific, unsatisfactory labor situation and continued manipulation by strong interests which continue to accumulate stocks on declines makes the traders believe that the present may be a good time for intending buyers to purchuse. The borrowing demand for stocks following heavy covering of shorts by bears speculators shows a marked falling off.

New York to Baker.—The Wall Street Journal says: "Out of the uncertainty comes the clear fact that the market is now two sided. There are important interests which believe that stocks should be bought on declines and equally important interests which believe they should be sold on rallies. Such a condition usually foreshadows an active trading market. It is expected that an amicable understanding will be arrived at between the representatives of the sheet and steel hoop companies and the officials of the Amalgamated association of steel, is on and tin workers. It looks very much as though the sirocco at the corner of Wall and Broad streets is much more severe than that which is burning up the corn fields of Kansas and Missouri. Some heretofore important bull operators have left the ranks of the bears. The large selling of B. & O. common yesterday by R. Walter, Jr., attracted considerable attention. Houses with western connections are heavy sellers of the grangers on continued adverse crop reports. For the first time in history, Omaha banks are lending money in Wall Street. A conservative estimate makes the amount no less than $1,250,000.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 12.—Cotton opened steady, unchanged to 3 points higher and as was the case yesterday, soon turned firm on a scare of pit shorts, foreign support and buying for Southern account. Private reports from the South averaged up bullishly and the special government forecast promised dry weather over Texas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory tonight and tomorrow. August sold up to 7.80. October to 7.65 and January to 7.55. While there were reactions under profit taking later, the market displayed a strong undertone.

Cotton spot closed quiet. Middling uplands, 8 3-16c; middling gulf, 8 13-16c; sales, 120 bales. Cotton futures closed very steady. July, 8.35; August, 7.83; September, 7.67; October, 7.69; November, 7.66; December, 7.66; January, 7.70; February, 7.70; March, 7.73; April, 7.74.

ERRATIC IN STOCKS

Prices Set Up Only to Be Knocked Down Again.

Fitful Rallies Were Met By Selling of Heavy Blocks.

The Bond Market Weak In Sympathy With Stocks.

New York, July 12.—Prices of stocks were set up only to be knocked down again this morning. The action of the market was very feverish and erratic during the first hour. There was a general decline at opening but support checked it and stocks were then bought with considerable animation up to last night's level and above. Net advances of a point were reached by St. Paul and Manhattan. The morning's report from the corn belt and the strength of the opening corn market sent prices of stocks crumbling again. The corn grangers led; but the whole list was affected, the Eastern trunk lines conspicuously so. Prices were touched which snowed losses from last night in Texas Pacific of 4½, Iowa Central preferred 4¾, Rock Island and Union Pacific 3¼, Illinois Central 3 and other leading railroads 2 to 2½. There were large declines among the industrials, General Electric losing 11¾ and Colorado Fuel 6¼.

Efforts to rally the market resulted in a few fitful and feverish recoveries, but the bears were able easily to cut the bottom out of prices and dislodge the selling orders placed all through the market to stop losses. As margins were uncovered, holdings were sacrificed, unless additional securities were forthcoming to protect brokers. In the banks, the loan clerks were kept at high tension scanning the quotations on the tape to guard against the reduction of the margin of safety exacted in the value of securities placed as collateral for loans compared with the stock market price. As prices of stocks declined, stock brokers were continually notified to furnish more collateral for their loans to prevent the selling out of the securities in the bankers' hands. The tone of the market became decidedly demoralized under this procedure or forced liquidation. The slump of prices caused much net losses as Union Pacific 7¾, Wabash preferred 5¾, Atchison preferred 5¾, St. Paul 5¼, Iowa Central preferred, Rock Island and Delaware & Hudson 5, Texas Pacific, Chicago & Alton, Lackawanna 4½, New York Central and Denver & Rio Grande preferred 4, the general run of standard stocks from 2 to 4 points. General Electric fell 12 and Colorado Fuel 9½. There were violent rallies following this slump as on the previous occasion and the trading diminished in volume but the tone continued very feverish.

The market showed signs in the afternoon of being oversold and the bears bought to cover with some urgency. The forecasts of a faborable bank statement tomorrow helped to rally the market. The rallies were from 2 to 4 in principal active stocks. Wabash preferred and Rock Island leading. The market was unsteady at the advance and kept sagging again but there was no recurrences of the acute weakness.

New York, July 12.—The majority of stocks showed fractional declines in the first sales. The loss in Rock Island was 2 points and in United States Steel and Reading 1¼. Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific, Erie and St. Paul showed fractional advances, but St. Paul immediately reacted a point and Union Pacific fell away a point after opening unchanged.

Room traders offered stock all around during the first fifteen minutes of trading and forced the market from 1 to 2 points lower for the principal stocks. Shorts then bought and the market rallied sharply. Business expanded on the upturn and many stocks were ruling above yesterday's close, particularly St. Paul, Erie and Manhattan which were a point higher. Realizing later caused the market to break suddenly and violently and bears uncovered stop loss orders driving the market to the lowest. The losses from last night's level for Texas Pacific reached 4¼. Rock Island 4, St. Paul and Lackawanna 3¼, Union Pacific 3¼ and Atchison common and preferred, Northwestern, Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central, Pennsylvania and Amalgamated Copper from 2 to 2½. Colorado Fuel broke 6¼. Large blocks were unloaded at the decline.

Fitful rallies of a point or over were not held, heavy blocks of stocks being met on the rally, which undermined the rise and broke the list badly again. Declines of obscure stocks were of a sensational character and ran from 6 to 12 points. By noon the general list was in a condition of semi-demoralization and such net declines had been touched for Union Pacific as 7¼, Atchison 5%. Penn sylvania 5½, St. Paul 5¼ Rock Island and Texas Pacific 4¾, Wabash preferred and Iowa Central preferred 5, Lackawanna 4½. New York Central 4, United States Steel 3¾, the preferred 3½, Minneapolis & St. Louis 3½ and the list generally from 1 to 3 points. The bond market was weak in sympathy with stocks.

A renewed rally in Atchison carried it up 2¾ and Rock Island recovered ½ above last night's level. The market sagged but became dull without reaching the low point again. In the final dealings prices hardened and the closing was irregular, but with the rally pretty well maintained.

TRAFFIC CUT OFF

No Street Cars Between Lake and Third Avenues East.

People Get Transfers and Must Walk Three Blocks.

Company Raises Wages But Finds Men Very Scarce.

All street car traffic between Lake avenue and Third avenue east was stopped shortly after noon today, and passengers bound east or west of those points must take transfers and "hike" three blocks to catch other cars. The street railway company is tearing up its track on the upper side of the street, beginning at Third avenue east. The cars from West Duluth which formerly went through to the East End are switched down Lake avenue, while other cars are kept on the East End service. The Lakeside cars start and stop at Third avenue east instead of Seventh avenue west. There were hundreds of people going out to Lester Park this afternoon, and a large proportion did not take kindly to the proposition of walking three blocks to catch the Lakeside car; in fact, there were scores of heated remarks about the service wasted out on the Lake Superior breezes this afternoon.

"Men Wanted." This is the announcement in flaring signs placed at either end of the work on the street car tracks on Superior street today, and any able-bodied man that can handle a pick or shovel has only to ask and get a job. Then, too, wages for street railway work have had a very material advance since yesterday. Yesterday afternoon there were about thirty-five men working at $1.75 per day. Today the street railway company is paying $2 and is not securing men very rapidly at that figure. The management has decided that it would be a hard matter to get any men at the wages it has been paying during the spring and thus far this summer, and the advanced schedule was made last night. The company expected to have 300 men working on the tracks this morning, but up to noon the force did not consist of over seventy-five men. With this additional number of workmen, however, there is an appreciable difference in the rapidity with which the old track is being torn up as compared with the progress made during the past few days.

Manager Warren said this afternoon that it was not the company's idea to cause delay in the street paving matter that can possibly be avoided, but that it had been handicapped by a lack of men to do the work. The company, he said, would facilitate paving matters to such a degree as lays in its power. Mr. Warren also said that while there is sure to be objections raised on the part of the traveling public because of the crippling of the service between Lake avenue and Third avenue east, the people should remember that the company is not to blame, but is doing the best it can to keep up a service. A free transfer car will be put on to run on the temporary track to make connections whenever the way is clear.

MARINE NEWS.

Destruction of Grain Discouraging Factor to Vessel Interests.

Chicago, July 12.—(Special to The Herald.—News of the widespread destruction of Western grain by hot weather, echoed in the wild advance of the grain markets was a most discouraging factor to the vessel interests.

HARLEM SOLD FOR $110,000.

Port Huron, Mich., July 12.—The steamer Harlem was sold at auction at the front door of the custom house for $110,000. She was bid in by William Jenks, manager of the Jenks Shipbuilding company. The Harlem was formerly in the Western Transit line and was wrecked on Isle Royale two years ago last winter. She was released by the Thompson Towing company of Port Huron and rebuilt at Toledo.

MODELS OF ICE CRUSHERS.

In Frank E. Kirby's office at Detroit is a model of the ice crusher Sainte Marie. The model is 6½ feet long and is perfect, even to the smallest detail. The model was built for H. B. Ledyard, president of the Michigan Central Railway company, and is to be sent to Germany when completed, as is also an 8-foot model of the sidewheel ferry Michigan Central.

LIGHTHOUSE INSPECTION TOUR.

Detroit, July 12.—Rear Admiral Norman Farquhar, formerly in command of the North Atlantic squadron, arrived here aboard the lighthouse tender Haze on a tour of inspection of lighthouses on the lakes. The continuous panorama of marine commerce in the Detroit river was a great surprise to him. The admiral will remain here a few days and will then proceed on his way to Duluth.

THE JAPS DEFEATED

Union Fishermen Now Have Upper Hand at Fraser River.

Warm Battle In Small Boats Out In the Gulf.

Prisoners Captured and Marooned on Small Unknown Island.

Vancouver, B. C., July 12.—The developments in the Fraser river strike situation have been startling. The union fishermen have now the upper hand, having accomplished a coup d'etat which is without a parallel in the history of the many labor disturbances in British Columbia. As a result of a battle of small boats out on the gulf, a battle in which many shots were exchanged, but in which no combatant was injured, sixteen Japanese were taken prisoners by strikers. The Japanese boats were overturned, the rifles and fishing gear of the Orientals thrown into the water and the Japanese themselves taken to one of the smaller islands far out in the gulf. Exactly where this island is located is a secret of the white fishermen, for they chose it several weeks ago for occasions such as this. They say they will continue to maroon non-union Japanese there for the remainder of the season or until the place is discovered by the authorities. All that is known is that the island is between here and Nanaimo, fifty miles away and that it is hard to find. The Japanese will be given food every few days and made comfortable, although closely guarded until a settlement is reached or until their island prison is located by the authorities. Two provincial constables were out in Japanese boats today and effected the arrest of six white fishermen. These are charged with molesting Japanese and their cases will be heard today. A shot was fired from another boat at the time of the arrest and the arrested men themselves tried to bluff the constables at the time of the arrest by firing in the air. No one was hurt by the shooting. The Japanese held a big meeting at Steveston, raised by voluntary subscriptions $4000 for a Japanese hospital, which they think may be needed and then discussed the salmon catching. Some were in favor of joining the union men in the strike, especially as the run of salmon had been small this season. The meeting broke up without definite action. This evening a big run of salmon is reported coming in from the south. The canners think the union men will not stand firm on account of the temptation to participate in the catch. There were renewed reports of a calling out of the militia.

RUNNING FULL TIME.

Cass Lake, Minn., July 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The two sawmills located here, owned by the Glenmont Lumber company and the J. Nelis Lumber company, are running full time, both night and day, with complete crews in each, and the indications are that they will continue to run till well on into the winter months. The Scanlon-Gipson Lumber company, which owns no sawmill here, but whose logs are cut by the Glenmont company, has a plentiful supply of logs, which will last them for cutting the balance of the season. They have already had 20,000,000 feet cut since the Glenmont mill started in February last for the season's run.

NO ASSETS

But Mrs. Curtis Owes Nearly Two Hundred Thousand.

St. Paul, July 12.—Maria A. Curtis, wife of M. B. Curtis, an actor, better known as "Samuel of Posen," filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday.

Her liabilities amount to $175,121.11, and her assets will net nothing, being but clothing valued at $275, and all exempt under law. The principal creditor is James H. Raymond, of Austin, Texas, to whom is due $25,000 for interest on investments made for the bankrupt.

James H. Day, of Austin, is a creditor to the extent of $12,000, and the Security Savings bank, of Los Angeles, Cal., holds a mortgage for $5000.

George Dakes holds a district court judgment against Mrs. Curtis for $10,000. J. G. Conroy has a bill coming for $5500 for services rendered.

Martin C. Ward and C. W. Dunn hold notes for commission on real estate transactions amounting to $16,000.

Mrs. Curtis states in her petition that she has no stated residence, but being in the city at the present time, she filed the petition here. The creditors, of whom there are some hundred or more, are scattered all over the country. Dressmakers, dentists, physicians, agents, theatrical men, bill posters, managers of companies, all come in for amounts ranging from $10 to $25,000.

The only article of value that the bankrupt owns at present is a small gold pin, valued at $25.

AN AWFUL MIX-UP

Caused By Mrs. Dunn Marrying Her Father-in-Law.

Detroit, Mich., July 12.—Judge Horn, of Windsor, Ont., has had a case before him for two days, listed as McVety vs. Dunn. It is an action for $200 which the plaintiff claims for goods alleged to belong to her. Margaret McCormick, of Malden, many years ago married James Dunn, Jr., by whom she had several children, one of whom is Mrs. William McVety, of Sandwich, the plaintiff in the suit now pending.

When James Dunn, Jr., died, his widow, who resided on James Dunn's farm, had to marry her father-in-law or be left penniless with a large family. She chose marriage as the preferable alternative. Her second husband, James Dunn, Sr., lived only five years after his marriage, but left two children, John and George. Mrs. Dunn, then having two families to take care of, married Pat Laracey.

"When we were small," said John Dunn, "Pat pounded us, and when we grew up we turned the scales on him and made things so unpleasant that he left home, and we have heard nothing of him for fourteen years. We took care of our mother during her last illness, and now one of her children, Mrs. McVety, by her first marriage, is suing for a few household goods she left."

According to one way of figuring out relations, Mrs. McVety is suing her half brothers, John and George Dunn. They are also her uncles.

STUDIES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT

Beginning of Sin and Redemption---International Sunday School Lesson For July 14th, 1901.

Genesis 3:1-15. "Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of any tree of the garden? And the woman said unto the serpent, Of the fruit of the trees of the garden we may eat; but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die. And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die; for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as God, knowing good and evil. And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was a delight to the eyes, and that the tree was to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat; and she gave also unto her husband with her, and he did eat. And the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons. And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day; and the man and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God amongst the trees of the garden. And the Lord God called unto the man, and said unto him, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself. And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat? And the man said, the woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat. And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this thou has done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat. And the Lord God said unto the serpent, Because thou has done this cursed art thou above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all of the days of thy life; and I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed: it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel."

Golden Text: "Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound." Romans 5: 20.

INTRODUCTORY.

In the second account of creation, given in the second chapter of Genesis, it is said that God planted a garden, and put man in it, giving him authority to keep it and to use all things that grew therein except the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil. This was expressly forbidden to him. The story represents man in a very simple state of existence. His wants were few. His knowledge was limited. His state of innocence was the corollary of the narrow range of his knowledge. He could maintain that innocence so long as he willed to be obedient to the command of God. He could eat of the tree of life, and so long as he could do that the intimation is that he could have lived.

Does this account of primeval man aim to present actual history, or is it a parable based on the early traditions of the origin of evil, which has ever been a subject of speculation among the children of men? Clearly the matter is prehistoric. Revelation does not necessarily include the idea that God teaches men the facts of a bygone age. It consists rather in his revealing his character and will to men. As may have been judged from the last lesson, the ideas of the day in which the revelation is given are used to help convey the truth of that revelation. So the traditions of the East seem to have been used in a very modified form to set forth the truth that sin came into man's life through his own act of disobedience. And yet the Genesis account of the Fall is so different from other known Eastern productions on the same and similar subjects that it ought, perhaps, to be regarded as a distinct tradition on the subject. It exhales the atmosphere of the religon of Jehovah the One God.

THE TEMPTER.

The temptation to disobey came from outside of man. This is no doubt the real significance of the story of the serpent. The primal pair was evidently content to do what God had set them to do until the subtlity of the tempter presented an alternative act with the assurance that there were certain definite advantages to be gained from doing it. Now that sin is in the life of man, temptation does not always come from without, but frequently he is led into sin of the worst sort by the desires of his own heart and flesh. But sin always presents itself as advantageous. It is a means of gaining money, or pleasure, or position. Heed its siren voice, and one will come to believe that the best goods of life are to be had, not in the paths of righteousness, but in the by-paths of the morally forbidden. The legal representatives of a prominent brewing firm recently argued that the liquor trade is an agent of Providence in that temptation is essential to the formation of strong character, and the saloons furnish the temptation that affords many people the opportunity to try their moral fiber. Evil is the dangerous thing, it is largely because it presents itself in the garb of a friendly benefit. But the serpent that can charm its victim can also hiss and plunge its poisonous fangs into the stream of one's life blood. Thus did sin charm with its allurements, and finally poison the fountain of the life of the race.

The tempter persuaded the woman that the fruit of the tree was good for food, she knew that it was a delight to her eyes; she was also persuaded that it would make her wiser, and that as a result of the eating she would not die as she had been told would be the case. Many people, who affect a great advance upon the character of the first parents as given in this story, have not learned that some things good to look upon in innocence are not good for food, or to take up into the life in any way.

Curiosity gets many people into trouble. Ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise." Knowledge often means sin. The tempter said, "God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as God, knowing good and evil." The insatiate thirst which some people have for a knowledge of the ways of sin is sure to bring them, sooner or later, into the commission of sin. To know evil is to be guilty of sin. The story of the lesson must not be degraded by the conception that the eating of fruit was all there was to the fact of the disobedience. The fruit is but the pictorial representation of a something that involved a moral act of real consequence.

SHIFTING RESPONSIBILITY.

The tradition that once upon a time man could talk with God in open converse tells the story of his feeling that everything that separates him from God is foreign to his nature. The origin of his shame was his sin. He was made thereby ashamed not only before his mate, but also before God. He got for himself leaves and sewed them into rude promises of a garment. This concealed his shame from his mate. She, too, was thus arrayed. But as they heard the customary sound of their Maker at the cool of the day, they were again not only ashamed, but also afraid and went to hide themselves amongst the thickets of the garden. But God called them and made them understand that their disobedience was the cause of all their trouble. Conscience is to the race today the voice of God that tells each person of the evil of his life and bids him come out from his hiding and present himself in the presence of God. There can be no peace with God so long as there is any effort to hide any evil from His piercing eye.

When God had accused the man of having eaten of the forbidden tree, the man at once sought to shift all responsibility and said that the woman gave him the fruit; the woman in turn quickly thought to relieve herself of responsibility by saying that the serpent beguiled her and therefore she ate. But God held them both responsible for the transgression, as much so as if the temptation had not been presented to them from without, but had arisen from their own impulses. They had assented to the doing of the evil thing, and that was the center and root of their sin. No man can be held responsible for all the temptations that come to him, but he must be held responsible every time he yields to their allurements. The drunkard cannot blame the saloon keeper for his own drunkenness, nor the gambler blame the dive keeper for his losses, nor any man hold another responsible for his own sin or the evil results arising therefrom. These others may have contributed toward his sin, but, when committed, it is the work of his own life, and God will call him to give an account of it. Without the person's own consent, temptation could never become sin. God will never deal otherwise than in the most abundant mercy with men on the score of an inherited disposition to sin, but it is a different matter when one comes to consider the actual and willful sins of one's own life. For the deeds done in the body each one must give an account before God.

THE CURSE AND REDEMPTION.

The curse upon the tempter was severe. The crawling of the serpent was to be its mark of degradation. The seed of the woman would bruise the head of the serpent. The woman's sorrow and suffering in child-bearing were to be multiplied as a mark of her degradation on account of sin. To the man there came the curse of hard labor intensified by the curse upon the ground, that it would thereafter bring forth thorns and thistles, which would make man work so hard that only in the sweat of his brow could he get from the earth the sustenance of his daily life. To both man and woman it was said, "For dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." It is implied that if, after having eaten of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, man had put forth his hand and partaken of the tree of life, to which he had had free access previously, then he would have lived forever; and hence God said, lest man do this, he must be driven from the garden. This was done, and man was thereby deprived of his first God-given privileges because of his disobedience. This is the great lesson of the story of the fall. Sin deprives of fellowship with God. It does so today no less than it did in the case of the first sin. It also brings shame and sorrow and pain.

God clothed the first sinners with garments of skins. Life was taken from the animal world in order to cover the shame of man. Perhaps this may be accounted the first act in the drama of redemption. It was said that the seed of the woman should bruise the head of the serpent, and that saying has been regarded as the first declaration of a gospel. Look at these two things together, and one can read into them a great deal of the suffering and sacrifice that have meant the salvation of the world. The enmity between evil and good has meant that those who have struggled for the prevalence of the good have had to endure many disappointments and heartaches as they have seen their efforts nullified by some evil thing, or have paid for every victory or gain with their own life blood. We suffer the curse in all the race today, but we have at hand also the possibility of a remedy in the suffering Savior and in his church that seeks to serve the world in righteousness even at the cost of life.

Both evil and good have grown in the world. The first child born to Adam and Eve became a murderer, while his brother knew God and worshipped Him acceptably. Cain went out and became, not a restless wanderer upon the earth, but the founder of a mighty family, and of a new civilization. He built a city and called it Enoch after the name of his son. This name means "Beginning." Thus Cain, the wicked man, made a new beginning. In the sixth generation his descendents became the inventors of tents and herding, and of music and the useful arts. But these things seem to have increased the power of evil, for, after their invention, Lamech, the father of these inventors, is represented (Gen. 4:23, 24) to have sung a most wicked and blood-thirsty song, in which he boasted of his cunning in iniquity.

But a new line started from the first parents. This was the line of Seth, from the foundation of whose family men began to call upon the name of the Lord. In the line of Seth came Enoch, who walked with God in righteousness and was taken to God without death, and also Noah, the great ante-diluvian preacher of righteousness. And thus the good and the evil lines of life developed side by side. These chapters give us both stories. But the thing they are most interested in telling is not of men's sinfulness—that is too painfully patent—but of the earliest promises of redemption. These were of God's grace, which is still unfolding to the mind of man.

SURPRISED

Was Governor Cumback's Daughter In Regard to His Marriage.

Anderson, Ind., July 12.—Ex-Lieutenant Governor Will Cumback, of Greensburg, drove from this city ten miles west into the country Tuesday and got a bride. She was Miss Laura Wachstetter, of Lapel, Ind. Mr. Cumback and bride returned to the city in time to catch an afternoon train for Greensburg. The wedding trip will be made next week to New York, and late in the fall they will go to California to remain several weeks.

The groom is about 65 years old and his bride is 35 years his junior. For many years she was a teacher in the Home for Indiana Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans at Knightstown, Ind. Governor Cumback was on the home visiting committee, and there met Miss Wachstetter, and their meeting ripened into courtship and marriage.

It was a case of love at first sight between Governor Cumback and Miss Wachstetter. She has an attractive face, but is slightly lame, being compelled to use a cane when walking. She is not rich, and her mother has been a nurse at Lapel.

Mrs. J. W. Lovett, prominent in society here, did not hear her father was to be married until Tuesday morning. Governor Cumback says he will retire from active business and confine his labor to literary work. He is president of the Western Writers' association. Cumback is well known as a lecturer and literary writer and has been prominent in politics.

It is a popular belief here that Mrs. Lovett and her brother, Will Cumback, Jr., of Indianapolis, would have preferred that their father should not marry again. However, Mrs. Lovett spoke very kindly of her father when asked about him, and said that, inasmuch as he was going to marry again, she hoped he was getting a congenial companion.

In addition to his interests at Greensburg, Governor Cumback has $20,000 worth of property in this city. He also obtains a royalty on some of his writings. His last book, on "Society and Life," was dedicated in tender words to his first wife, his daughter and his son.

ORDER TO EXAMINE ACCOUNTS, ETC.—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, July 3, 1901.

In the Matter of the Estate of Archibald Finlayson, Deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of Duluth Trust Company, administrator of the estate of Archibald Finlayson, deceased, representing among other things, that it has fully administered said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of its administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, That said account be examined, and petition heard by this court, on the 30th day of July, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock a. m., at the probate office in Duluth, in said county.

And it is further ordered, That notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper, printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, the 3rd day of July, A. D. 1901.

By the Court,
W. G. BONHAM,
Judge of Probate.

SHERIFF'S EXECUTION SALE.—

Under and by virtue of an execution issued out of and under the seal of the district court of the state of Minnesota, in and for the Eleventh judicial district and County of St. Louis, on the 21st day of June, 1901, upon a judgment rendered and docketed in said court and county in an action therein, wherein J. J. Hibbard as administrator with the will annexed, was plaintiff and Samuel A. Siverts and Anna Siverts were defendants in favor of said plaintiff and against said defendants, for the sum of $3537.95, which said execution has to me, as sheriff of said St. Louis county, been duly directed and delivered, I have levied upon and will sell at public auction, to the highest cash bidder, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said County of St. Louis, on Monday, the 5th day of August, 1901, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, all the right, title and interest that above named judgment debtors, or either of them, had in and to the real estate hereinafter described on the 17th day of November, 1894, at 2:45 o'clock p. m., that being the date of the rendition of said judgment, the description of the property being as follows, to-wit:

An undivided one-thirty-second (1-32) interest in and to the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section six (6), and an undivided one-thirty-second (1-32) interest in and to the north half of the southwest quarter of section five (5), all in Township sixty-two (62) north of range fourteen (14) west, in St. Louis county, Minnesota, according to the government survey thereof.

Dated Duluth, Minn., June 21, 1901.

WM. C. SARGENT,
Sheriff, St. Louis County, Minn.

AT WEST DULUTH

As the result of a peculiar accident at Proctorknott yesterday, Nell Darragh came very near losing his eyesight, and as it is, he will probably experience quite a long period of inactivity. He was engaged in heating coffee in a pail, and as the cover was very tight, the steam had no opportunity to escape. As Darragh was removing the pail from the stove an explosion resulted, and the scalding coffee was thrown in his face. A physician was summoned, and after a careful examination he announced that the unfortunate man would not lose his eyesight. The burns about Darragh's face and head were extremely painful and he was in agony for hours. The injured man is at his home at 119 Sixty-third avenue.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The funeral of William Simpson yesterday afternoon was largely attended. Dr. Forbes preached the sermon and the interment was at Oneota cemetery. The pall bearers were: Michael Day, William Day, William Chesney, William Nelson, J. D. Park and George T. Miller.

Mrs. John Webb, of West Superior, entertained a number of her friends in this city Tuesday afternoon. The party was taken to Lincoln park, where a general good time was enjoyed by all participating. Light refreshments were served. Those present were: Mesdames Bates, Ross, Beemer, Krambiehl, Knox, Smith, Huntoon, Dean, Stager, Ross, Jr., Misses Krambiehl, Zola Smith, Ethyl Huntoon, Georgia Knox, Edna Dean, Doreen Smith, Isabel Dean, Vera Bronson, May Ross, Luella Stager and Master Blaine Huntoon.

Louis Lofgren has returned to Ada, Minn., where he is employed. Mrs. Lofgren and children have gone to Canada, where they will remain for an extended visit.

A. C. Weddell is home from Milwaukee.

Arthur Boutin has returned to Bayfield after a visit with his relatives in this city.

Mrs. A. Fleischer and son Clarence are visiting with relatives in Zumbrota.

Oscar Anderson, of Proctorknott, who was recently called to Taylor's Falls on account of sickness in his family, has returned.

The Misses Stillerd will take charge of the new hotel at Proctorknott as soon as it is completed, which it is now expected will be about July 25.

T. H. Lyons has returned to Proctorknott after a three weeeks' absence from town, during which time he visited St. Louis, Chicago and the Twin Cities.

Mrs. W. S. Granger, of Proctorknott, who has been visiting in Dakota, has arrived home. Mr. Granger accompanied her from St. Paul.

Mrs. Paul Fortier arrived yesterday from Alpena, Mich., to join her husband, who has been employed in West Duluth for some time. They will at once commence housekeeping.

The congregation of the Swedish Mission church will enjoy a picnic at Zenith park next Sunday.

George Lund, of Sixtieth avenue, who has been confined to the house for five weeks with an attack of typhoid fever, is recovering rapidly and is able to walk about the house. His sister, Miss Carrie Lund, is still very weak as a result of the same complaint, but it is said she has passed the critical point of her illness.

Peter Gilley is entertaining friends from Bemidji.

Mrs. Edmonson, of Osage, Iowa, is visiting at the home of her brother, A. J. Bundy, on Fifty-ninth avenue.

The races at the park this afternoon were witnessed by a great many spectators from this end of the city.

Miss Emma Smith, principal of the schools at New Duluth, is spending the day with West Duluth friends.

Frank Ashley and a party of his young friends will leave tomorrow for Pike lake, to remain over Sunday.

Several hundred West Duluthians were attracted to Lester Park today on account of the picnic at that resort. One party chartered a special car, which they covered with decorations.

Dance at Zenith park next Sunday. Many other attractions.

Raffle for bedroom suit won't come off till Saturday, July 20, at Gilley hall. Mrs. John McNab.

Miss Clara Berg has gone to Milaca, Minn., where she will remain a month or more.

William Chivari is home from Minneapolis, where he had been on a pleasure trip.

Mrs. Clement has returned to her home in Saginaw, Mich., after a visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Davis.

NOISY SCENE.

John Dillon Creates a Disturbance In House of Commons.

London, July 12.—There was a noisy scene in the house of commons today, arising from a question as to whether the British wounded were left in the hands of the Boers at Viakfontein. Lord Stanley, financial secretary of the war office, declared the war office had no information on the subject, but John Dillon, Irish Nationalist, backed up by the cheers and shouts of the Nationalists, plied Lord Stanley with questions until the speaker interfered. Mr. Dillon declined to give way, the speaker named him, but after considerable uproar a compromise was effected, Mr. Dillon giving notice that he will repeat his question Monday.

WRITERS LOCKED OUT.

Columbus Paper Has Trouble With Its Men.

Columbus, Ohio, July 12.—Troubles in the Press Post, a local sheet, culminated today in a lockout of the writing force, all of whom are members of the News Writers' union. They were informed this morning that their services were not needed, students from the state university school of journalism being put in their places. The union printers refused to set copy the new men prepared and walked out, followed by the stereotypers and pressmen. The paper was unable to get out a noon edition.

TO TOUR THE WEST.

Department Officials Will Make Investigating Trip.

Washington, July 12.—Profesors F. H. Newell and Gifford Pinchot, in charge respectively of the hydrographic work of the geological survey and the forestry work of the department of agriculture, will leave here Saturday on a tour through the West. They will attend the Mississippi commercial congress at Cripple Creek, July 18, and will make a joint investigation in Eastern Oregon of the forest and water supply and other questions. Professor Henry Gannet, in charge of the geographical work of the survey, is already in Oregon inspecting the work of the field parties surveying the forests there.

IDENTIFIED.

Prisoner Affected By Testimony of Lumberman.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 12.—In the trial of Ellis Glenn today, William Richardson positively identified the prisoner as Bert Glenn, who sold him a deed of trust in 1896. The prisoner was affected by this testimony and showed signs of worry for the first time. Richardson is a wealthy lumberman of Parkersburg, and was one of the men who had Glenn arrested in Illinois and brought to this city over a year ago.

CAUGHT IN HURRICANE.

San Francisco, July 12.—The Pacific Mail company's steamer Newport, from Panama and way uorts, reports severe storms on the Central American coasts. At both Champerico and Oceo she was caught in a hurricane and had to put to sea on each occasion. A number of barges and lighters were driven ashore, and other damage was done at both places, but no lives were lost.

NO SUCH FIRM.

Milwaukee, July 12.—A dispatch from Dubuque, Iowa, names the firm of Stitzer & Co., of Milwaukee, as the holders of $200,000 worth of Dubuque city bonds which have been declared void. There is no such firm name in Milwaukee city directory.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Shamokin, Pa., July 12.—In a jealous frenzy today Solomon Haas, a young man residing at Wilburton, near here, shot his wife and then sent a bullet through his own heart. Haas died instantly and Mrs. Haas probably will die.

GETS AWAY

Mrs. Dan Hanna Outwits Her Former Husband.

She Sails For Europe With Her Children.

New York, July 13.—Attorneys for Dan R. Hanna, of Cleveland, obtained from Justice McAdam in the supreme court today a writ of habeas corpus returnable Monday, commanding Mary Harrington Hanna to produce in court her three children. Mr. Hanna, in his petition, says that the children were restrained of their liberty by their mother on the pretense that she has a right to their custody, and that he, the father, has been illegally deprived of their charge. A detective was sent to the Hotel Savoy to serve the writ.

Mr. Hanna accompanied the detectives to the Hotel Savoy. When he arrived there he was told that Mrs. Hanna had sailed with her children on the steamer Menominee, which had cleared the bar, bound for London, at 10:50 this morning. The manager of the hotel said Mrs. Hanna left the hotel between 7 and 8 o'clock this morning.

Later it was learned that staterooms on the Campania had been engaged for Mrs. Hanna. A reporter who went to the steamer found that the Baroness De Polland, a friend of Mrs. Hanna, was on board, but no information could be obtained as to Mrs. Hanna. Mr. Hanna went to the Campania and entered into a consultation with the baroness. At this time a stateroom engaged by Mrs. Hanna was locked, and it was thought that Mrs. Hanna was inside. The door to the stateroom was guarded by one of the ship's crew, who would not permit anyone to approach it.

STRIKE IS UNSETTLED

The Conference of the Companies and the Workers' Representatives Is Still Proceeding at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, July 13.—The joint conference of representatives of the steel combinations and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers was resumed at the Hotel Lincoln at 10 o'clock this morning. Both sides were cheerful, and a strong effort will be made today to bring the conference to a satisfactory close. While no date has been set for a final adjournment, several of the conferees are arranging to leave the city this evening, and as President Shaffer has declared that he will not consent to any further postponement of the conferences, it is believed that a settlement or disagreement will be reached before nightfall.

President Shaffer made the announcement before entering the conference this morning that he regarded further delay as useless and harmful for both sides. This issue has to be met, he said, and there is no use dodging it.

The conferees representing the manufacturers declared that they could say nothing of the possibilities of a settlement today, but were hopeful of an amicable adjustment of the differences.

Another preliminary conference of the Amalgamated officials was held this morning in the head office of the association, an hour prior to the meeting with the manufacturers. The members of the executive committee consulted regarding the stand to be taken in the matter, and then they went in a body to the Hotel Lincoln, where they immediately repaired to the parlors in the second floor. The same representatives of the manufacturers were present and waiting for the workers as on the two preceding days.

At 10:30 the conference opened. It was reported from Youngstown that James H. Nutt, secretary of the labor bureau of the Republic Iron and Steel company, had been called into the conference, but Mr. Nutt was not present when the conference convened. It was said that the fact that he had been called in seemed to indicate that the two sides were rapidly approaching a point where very little would bring peace.

After a session of an hour and a half the conference took a recess for lunch. All attempts to induce the conferees to talk were fruitless. They will meet again at 2 p. m.

FIERCE HEAT CONTINUES

Intensely Hot Weather Still Prevails In Many Cities and There Is Much Suffering In Consequence.

Omaha, July 13.—Today opened intensely hot, with the mercury at 81 at 8 a. m. There was barely a breath of air stirring, and indications were for higher temperature than yesterday. The humidity percentage was 62.

Western Nebraska reports equally high temperature. There was one prostration at Vermillion, S. D., last night.

Chicago, July 13.—At 9:30 a. m. the temperature was 72, with brisk wind off the lake.

St. Louis, July 13.—The record of 91 degrees at noon indicated that the intense heat of the past few days is abating. Showers are promised for tonight or tomorrow morning.

Kansas City, July 13.—Not since the present hot spell began have Kansas City people suffered so severely as they did last night. The average temperature from 8 p. m. to 8 a. m. was 91 degrees. The atmosphere was so heavy that it was stifling, and thousands of people slept out of doors.

Topeka, July 13.—With the mercury 101 above at noon under a cloudless sky, this was the season's hottest day. No change is predicted.

Omaha, July 13.—At noon the mercury had reached 97, but a cooling breeze had relieved the intensity of the heat.

Des Moines, July 13.—At 7 a. m. the mercury was at 77½, 2 degrees higher than at the corresponding time yesterday. Indications pointed to the 100 mark being reached today. Throughout the state the hot weather continues unabated, and crops, while still safe, are suffering.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 13.—At 9:30 a. m. the mercury stood at 100.

London, July 13.—The extreme heat which has prevailed here during the past few days has been followed by terrific thunder storms in many parts of the United Kingdom. Much damage has been done by lightning and the torrential fall of rain, the streets in some places being impassable. Similar reports of thunder storms have reached here from Berlin and other places on the continent.

THE YOUNG HANDICAP

Famous Horses Meet at Washington Park to Contest For Supremacy and a Few Thousand Dollars on the Side.

Chicago, July 13.—At Washington park, this afternoon, the Young handicap, a mile and three-sixtieths, with $5000 added money, was contested for by the best three-year-olds and upward in the West. Three American Derby winners—Pink Coat, Sidney Lucas and Robert Waddell—were entered, together with eleven others. A high degree of interest was manifested in the outcome of the struggle between these three colts. Lucas and Pink Coat, in their recent races, had shown vastly improved form, while Robert Waddell, winner of the last Derby and three other rich stakes, had shown a slight reversal. In his last race Waddell was defeated by Jiminez, although, carrying top weight on that occasion, he gave his followers ample grounds for pinning their faith to the Virginia bred colt. Rolling Boer, Bullman up, was figured as having a fair chance, and considerable money went on him. Following are the entries, weights and jockeys:

Horses.	Weight.	Jockeys.
Advance Guard	115	Martin.
Pink Coat	120	Sherwood.
Sidney Lucas	120	Sullivan.
Star Chamber	105	J. Winkfield.
The Conqueror II	120	T. Knight.

THE KING OF ITALY

Expresses Most Cordial Friendship Toward the United States.

Intelligent Sovereign Has Knowledge of American Institutions.

Ambassador Meyer Tells of a Highly Pleasing Interview.

London, July 13.—George V. L. Meyer, United States ambassador to Italy, is staying a few days in London, en route for Boston. To a representative of the Associated Press Mr. Meyer said:

"Before leaving Rome I had an hour's audience with the king. Not only did he express the most cordial friendship toward the United States, but he surprised me by his intimate knowledge of our institutions. The conversation happened to turn to a comparison of the United States constitution with those of other countries, and I soon found that the king knew almost as much about ours as I do myself. He is a wonderfully intelligent sovereign.

"Naturally, I cannot say much about the potentiality or the likelihood of the continuation of the triple alliance. I believe the treaty expires in 1908 and then it will be time enough to talk.

"Senor Zicardelli (the premier), has certainly surprised everyone by his outspoken utterances. He appears to have met the political crisis with remarkable ability. The relations between the vatican and the quirinal continue as they have done for thirty years. The last time I saw the pope he looked wonderfully well.

"The question of the Philippines excites keen interest in Rome. Archbishop Chappelle, who, I believe, is still there, has given the vatican the benefit of his extended experience in those islands, and doubtless has done much to explain the religious questions, which puzzle the Catholic authorities. Archbishop Chappelle will return to New Orleans in about a month."

Reverting to American busines prospects, Mr. Meyer said: "The home coal interests are making strenuous efforts to get their product into Italian ports with apparently fair chances of success, which are not a little improved by Great Britain's imposition of a coal tax though American coal is still greatly handicapped by a lack of merchant marine."

Mr. Meyer will sail for the United States next Wednesday.

CAME DIRECT.

Steamer Homer Brings Latest News From Sealing Stations.

San Francisco, July 13.—The steamer Homer has arrived direct from Dutch Harbor, Alaska. The vessel sailed from here last spring with supplies for the sealing stations at Dutch Harbor and on St. Paul and St. George's island in the Pribyloff groups. Thirty deaths from measles had occurred at St. Paul and seventeen at St. George's during the past winter. On the day of departure for this port, July 3, the only vessel at Dutch Harbor was the United States gunboat Concord, from Manila, which had been in port about two weeks and was to sail July 3 for Point Barrow with supplies and to assist the revenue fleet. The Concord may take a herd of reindeer from Siberia to various points on the Alaskan coast. All steamers bound for Nome had left Dutch Harbor including the transport Warren which left the harbor about the middle of June.

Dr. Newhall, a medical missionary, who with his wife, has been stationed among the Aleutians for several years, has requested Gen. Randall, in command of the military station at Nome, to have the Warren call at Unalaska island on her way to this port and take on board about thirty Aleutian children, who are to be sent to the Indian school at Carlisle, Pa.

AIRSHIP TRIED.

Motive Power Hardly Sufficient For Good Work.

Paris, July 13.—M. Santos-Dumont, the Brazilian aeronaut, made the official trial of his balloon in the attempt to win the prize of 100,000 francs offered by Henry Deutsch for a manageable balloon, before a committee of the Aero club today. Starting from the Parc de Meudon, he reached the Eiffel tower in a quarter of an hour, and after sailing around the tower, started to return to the Parc de Meudon, but lack of motive power necessitated a descent at Boulogne-Sur-Seine. The trials will be resumed later.

READING STRIKES.

Road Will Be Tied Up Unless Trouble Is Settled.

Reading, Pa., July 13.—The Grand Opera house was packed until after midnight by a meeting of striking Reading railroad employes. The announcement was made that not only engineers of the system, but firemen, trainmen, linemen, repairmen were with the men on strike.

The trainmen, it was stated, will join in helping to tie up the road unless the company settles the strike at once.

The 2600 striking employes of the Reading Iron company will meet this afternoon to act on Vice President Smink's concessions. The belief is that they will accept and agree to go to work as soon as the plants can be put in order.

WILL SAIL AUGUST 15.

London, July 13.—The Oxford-Cambridge athletes who are to compete at Montreal with the representatives of McGill and Toronto universities and, later, at New York with an athletic team representing Harvard and Yale, will sail for Montreal Aug. 15. The original arrangements will be carried out.

DIED BY HER WOUNDS.

Shamoin, Pa., July 13.—Mrs. Solomon Haas, who was shot by her jealous husband yesterday, died at her home in Wilburton today. Haas, after shooting his wife, killed himself.

NO LEADER

Kansas City Mob Dispersed Without Action.

May Reform and Lynch Negro Prisoners.

Kansas City, July 13.—Danger of an attack by a mob on the county jail, for the purpose of lynching Roberts and Holland, colored, charged with assaulting Grace Davis, a white girl, has passed for the present.

Soon after daylight the mob, which had surged about the jail most of the night, broke up and gradually dispersed. No attack was made for lack of a leader.

It is now feared that the mob will reform during the day or evening, and will not again lack a leader. This fear is based on the result of an examination to which the prisoners were subjected early today. After the "sweating" the officers expressed themselves convinced that Roberts and Holland are guilty. However, neither man is said to have even admitted complicity in the assault.

The police believe that the third negro, Maupin, was the leader of the trio. He will be taken before Miss Davis today. The victim already has partially identified the other two prisoners, and if she shall pass satisfactorily upon Maupin, it is believed mob vengeance will be certain.

Although it was stated during the night that Holland and Roberts had been removed from the jail, it was learned this morning that they had been under guard all night in a tunnel leading from the jail to the court house, and were taken back to their cells after the mob had dispersed.

Governor Dockery has offered a reward of $200 each for the arrest of the assailants of Miss Davis.

Thirteen men who were arrested last night for inciting riot were fined $5 each this morning.

Roberts and Holland will be given a preliminary hearing July 22.

At 10 o'clock quiet prevailed around the jail.

The crime for which the negroes are held was one of the most daring outrages ever perpetrated here. Miss Davis and her escort, Vernie Newton, were walking home after having spent the evening at Trost park. At Nineteenth street and Woodland, three negroes sprang upon them from behind. Newton was knocked senseless, and Miss Davis was dragged about 400 feet into a private park and assaulted.

When she recovered consciousness Newton was still insensible. They are both in a critical condition.

THOUSANDS OF SHARES

Of Northern Pacific Stock Bought During the Famous Panic Formally Transferred to Their New Owners.

New York, July 13.—The clerks of the Northern Pacific Railroad company's transfer office have been kept busy transferring many thousands of shares of stock of the company. These shares represent the large amount of stock purchased by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and J. P. Morgan & Co. a little over two months ago, before and during the struggle for the control of the road which resulted in the now famous panic. The amount of stock just transferred was probably the largest that road ever transferred at one time.

The exact amount transferred to the name of either firm could not be learned, for both sides prefer to remain silent.

Daniel A. Lamont, vice president of the Northern Pacific, and J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, have each been in conference with J. P. Morgan, and it is being reported that the make-up of the new Northern Pacific board of directors and other rumored changes among officers of the company were under discussion. This, however, was not the case. It may be stated on authority of a representative of the Harriman syndicate that the new board of directors has been selected, but that the names will not be made public until the annual meeting, because there is no reason for publishing them now.

BUTTE HOTEL BURNED

Leading Hostelry In the City Destroyed By Fire---Several Injured But It Is Believed No One Was Killed.

Butte, Mont., July 13.—At 2:40 this morning a still alarm was turned in from the Butte hotel, a 4-story structure on Broadway. When the firemen reached the scene, the building was enveloped in smoke, which appeared to pour from every window. The firemen were unable to locate the blaze for some thirty minutes and the greatest confusion prevailed. A number of guests on the lower floors succeeded in groping their way down stairs in the smoke and escaping with nothing but their night clothes. Scores of others were rescued from the upper windows.

At 4 a. m. the fire was completely under control and the hotel management state that to the best of their knowledge all the guests and help have been accounted for.

The injured: Gus English, of Anaconda, legs broken in jumping from window; Joe Devine, cut and bruised in jumping from fire escape. A number of others sustained trivial injuries.

The interior of the hotel, which for years has been the leading hostelry of Butte, is completely gutted and Hugh Wilson, the lessee, estimates his loss at $90,000. The losses of the hotel guests will be considerable.

TIME LOCK

On the Mint Vault Was Out of Order.

San Francisco, July 13.—Safe Expert Walsh has discovered that the time lock on the cashier's vault in the United States mint, from which $25,000 was stolen, does not operate and has been out of order for an indefinite time. This has broadened the scope of investigation by secret service men, as it is apparent any robbery may have occurred at any time between 3 p. m. and 9 a. m. the following morning.

FULL OF LEAD.

Body of Lee Wing Was Successfully Boiled.

San Jose, Cal., July 13.—Boiling of the remains of Lee Wing, a murdered Chinese to ascertain if a bullet from Lee Looks' pistol had entered his body, has been completed after twenty-four hours. Fourteen large buckshot and one 44-caliber bullet were found when the mass was strained. This bullet is said to fit Looks' revolver.

ETON AND HARROW.

London, July 13.—The annual match between Eton and Harrow, which began at Lords yesterday, was continued today. Harrow which, at the close of play yesterday had 181 runs for 6 wickets down, in the first innings, was all out today for 376 runs. Eton was all out in the first inning yesterday for 239 runs.

DO NOT WANT IT.

Labor Unions Object to Carnegie's Money.

San Francisco, July 13.—The San Francisco labor council has passed, by a nearly unanimous vote, a resolution advocating in strong terms the rejection of Andrew Carnegie's offer to this city of $750,000 for a public library.

PIANO AND ORGAN WORKERS.

Cincinnati, July 13.—The Piano and Organ Worker's National union has closed its annual meeting after electing officers headed by Frank Helle, of Chicago, as president. New York was selected for the next annual convention. A proposition to establish a piano factory operated by the union, was referred to the local branches, the vote thereon to be taken at a special meeting Oct. 6.

PENSIONS GRANTED.

THE QUEEN SUCCUMBED.

Brussels, July 13.—Queen Marie Henriette fell a victim to the extreme heat, which prevailed yesterday. Her majesty was playing croquet in the grounds of her villa at Spa when she was overcome and fell. She was carried indoors and soon recovered consciousness. Her majesty's physician, however, was summoned to Spa to attend her.

THE PAST THREE YEARS

DR. MITCHELL

Has Taken Hundreds off Their Crutches in Duluth and Superior and is Doing it every Day Without Operations or the Use of Medicine — A Great and Good Work.

Many of the best citizens of Duluth and Superior have been startled by Dr. Mitchell's wonderful magnetic power to cure disease. Even in this skeptical age people are made to believe in this man's healing power when he effects a cure after all other means have failed. At his office may be seen the paralytic, the palsied, the consumptive, the dyspeptic, among the deaf, blind and rheumatic. There is no kind or variety of disease which is not cured by this magnetic healer, every name, nature and condition of disease that all other physicians have given up as incurable seem as but play for he is so strongly endowed by nature with such magnetic power that he is able to break up congestions and cure the most obstinate of chronic diseases, sometimes even with but a single treatment.

His patients are numbered among all classes of people, the rich and the poor, the educated and the ignorant, the intelligent and refined people with the most profound reason have given up their prejudice and have been convinced, and are now profiting by what they have seen and know to be facts, having thoroughly realized the folly of waiting and suffering for weeks, months and even years with diseases which could as well be cured in a few days; reason and judgment in place of experiment and theory have taken the held and guided them to the invincible power of magnetic healing, which is the active principle of all life action and health-giving force.

Dr. Mitchell's remarkable ability insures him a practice in any land. He is, perhaps, to most of you personally a stranger, but well known to you by reputation, and if you have never met the gentleman and have never been sufficiently interested to look into some of his marvelous cures, you would certainly be surprised to find what results he has obtained and the cures he has made. The unacquainted are in no position to predict to others what he might do for them unless they are acquainted with some patient whom he has cured.

We have taken the liberty to publish the names of a few of his patients who have testified as to the good results obtained from his treatment. These people are among the most prominent in their own locality, people who have tried all varieties of doctors, medicines, etc., and failed to be cured.

Mrs. N. Christopherson, of No. 21 Fifty-seventh avenue, West Duluth, who had hip joint disease, one of her limbs was four inches short. After taking a few treatments her limb is about restored to its natural size and is two inches longer. She says: "I am gaining every day. I am pleased with what has been done and recommend Dr. Mitchell's treatment. Five of my friends have taken treatment of Dr. Mitchell and are pleased with what has been done for them."

Frank J. Hill, of Cloquet, deaf. Hearing restored.

Mrs. C. D. Boom, of Little Falls, Minn., was helpless with rheumatism. Cured by Dr. Mitchell.

Mrs. M. Lautve, of Grand Forks, cured of a complication of diseases.

Andrew Northem, employe of the street railway company, was going blind with neuralgia of the eyes and suffered most intense pain. Cured by Dr. Mitchell in two treatments.

Little Svea Peterson, of Two Harbors, who was a helpless cripple, had her limbs straightened out in eight treatments.

Mrs. E. Huss, 1922 West Michigan street, Duluth, cured of heart trouble, and recommends Dr. Mitchell's treatment very highly.

Cut this out and bring it to Dr. Mitchell and it will entitle you to consultation free. Office at 17 East Superior street, Duluth. Office hours, 9 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. daily, Sundays, 10 a. m. to 12 m. 'Phone, 579.

PERSONAL INJURIES.

Two Suits Begun In District Court.

Two personal injury suits against West Duluth factories were begun in district court yesterday afternoon. One is against the Duluth Furnace company for $5000, and the other is against the Duluth Foundry and Machine company for $2000.

B. Nellis is the man that wants $5000 from the Duluth Furnace company. He claims that he was working for the company May 6, 1900, when he got hurt. He was looking after a team about the time the furnace was in operation, and he says that the furnace threw off a quantity of metal, slag, ore and flux, which struck him and broke his right leg. He alleges as a reason why he should have damages that the foreman in charge of the work was incompetent and careless.

Iver Seasted wants $2000 from the Duluth Foundry and Machine company because a ladle of molten metal was spilled on his foot, burning it badly. He says that he was working as a moulder for the company March 20, 1901, and he was carrying the ladle in the course of his regular duties. He slipped on some steps and the ladle tipped, spilling some of the contents on his foot. He claims the company was negligent because the steps were in bad repair.

White & McKeon are the attorneys in both cases.

RUHLIN IS HERE

The Big Fighter Arrives This Morning Over the Omaha.

Center of a Large Crowd Throughout the Day.

Will Box Tonight and Umpire Ball Game Tomorrow.

Gus Ruhlin is here. The man of mighty muscles and hard fists, with his manager, Billy Madden, and his trainer, "Denver Ed" Martin, arrived in West Superior this morning on the Omaha and proceeded to Duluth in a carriage, going directly to Jay Anderson's palm garden, where the party will be entertained during their stay here.

A great crowd of the curious ones followed them, and the big fighter was the cynosure of all eyes. He is a great, big, healthy, heavy set man and would be noticed wherever he went. In perfect condition ever since last February, when he and Jeffries were to meet at Cincinnati, he is a fine specimen of physical manhood and looks as though the champion would have to hustle when "Gus" gets in his scissors punch on him. "Denver Ed" Martin, his trainer, is one of the most scientific men known in the pugilistic world. He is a colored man, six feet, three and a half inches tall, and slender, and is Ruhlin's constant sparring partner. Madden, Ruhlin's manager, has the reputation of being the most efficient man in his line in the United States, and is an old friend of Jay W. Anderson's, they having gone to school together in their boyhood days. It was on account of this friendship that Duluth people will have an opportunity to see the big fighter.

When the party had gone in to the palm garden and seated themselves, Ruhlin laughingly spoke of his wrestling match with Fitzsimmons at New York last Tuesday, when he threw the erstwhile champion of the world twice during the evening.

"Once I did it in eleven minutes and some seconds and once in twelve," he said, "as he dived down his pocket for some clippings. "Here are a couple of cartoons from a New York paper they put in when Fitz and I had our little go. He thought that it was easy money at first, but he didn't get there. He has been in the wrestling business for quite a while, too, and always had a wrestler along with him whenever he fought, so he ought to know something about the business." He's a good man and knows how. He nearly got me down once last week, but I managed to throw him. It's hard to tell whether or not he will go back into the ring or not. He seems to be out, but nobody knows what he will do.

"I understood that I had a ball game this afternoon to umpire, but I hear that it's off. I will umpire tomorrow, however."

"Tonight we are going to have a little show in West Superior, and Ed and I will box a little.

Ruhlin goes directly to the Pacific coast "to make Jeffries fight," as he said. "We've been ready for it for a good while, and I think we can get him to come up. He's at Los Angeles now, but will be at San Francisco by teh time we get there. He ought to be ready for the fight right now, as he has been in training for about a year, so I guess that we will get together."

"Billy" Madden is an old Duluth man, he says, and likes the town. He is accompanied by his wife and son. "I was here about seven years ago and always find your climate refreshing," he said. "We got the lake breeze coming over. Gus is in fine condition. Tonight he and Martin will spar a while, and then Gus will show all of his punches. It is better than twelve lessons in boxing. His scissors punch is the only one that he won't let out. He's going to show that to Jeffries as soon as he gets the chance and will show him a good deal of it.

"Ed is going to box Gus tonight, and anyone else that wants to try. You can say that I will back Ed for $1000 against any man in the world except Jeffries and Gus, and I'll give anybody $50 that can stay three-minute rounds with either one of them at Superior tonight. The man that takes Gus on can stay that long if he hits him in the stomach. He's been drinking beer, just finished two glasses, and if any local boxer can reach him they may win their money. That offer will stand, too."

Mr. Madden also said they would get Jeffries to fight as soon as possible, and believes every indication points to his man winning.

The champion challenger will be at Anderson's palm garden during the afternoon and evening until about 9:30, when he will go to the Gem theater in Superior and spar four rounds with Martin. If any local men have ambitions to stay three rounds before the heavyweight, they will have the opportunity. Tomorrow the fistic celebrity will umpire a ball game between the Big Duluths and the Duluth team at the driving park. The game promises to be one of the most interesting of the season, and the park will doubtless be crowded, from the desire to see the champion and the desire to see the game. The Big Duluths have an exceptionally strong team, all of their old players being back. The two teams will line up in the following order:

Duluths.		Big Duluths.
Sturgeon	catcher	Kline
Glenny	pitcher	Staub
Hansell	first base	Gerard
Reynolds	second base	Lovell
Sheppard	short stop	Hurd
McLaren	third base	Irwin
Brooks	left field	Ryan
Lambert	center field	Cole
Cummings	right field	Olson

The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

WHICH LOSES?

Question Which District Court Will Have to Decide.

Among the funds in the hands of the late George F. Chester, formerly clerk of the district court, was $1000 deposited by the Northern Pacific Railroad company as damages in a condemnation proceeding for a right-of-way on Rice's Point. That sum went with the rest of the funds in Mr. Chester's hands, and the district court will soon be asked to decide which is to lose it, the railroad company or the Western Land association, for which it was intended.

The Western Land association appealed from the allowance of the commissioners in condemnation, claiming that $1000 was too little compensation. Judge Cant heard the appeal in general term of district court yesterday, and decided that the award of $1000 was enough.

As the money is gone, however, and the land association has not received it, the court has yet to decide whether the deposit of the money in the clerk's hands constituted a payment, or whether the railroad company must stand the loss and put up yet another $1000. The land association claims that as it never got the money the railroad company must produce it, and the railroad claims that when it deposited the cash with the clerk to be held for the land association it did all its duty.

It was agreed yesterday when the case was decided that the facts would be stipulated, and that the question of who is to stand the loss would be taken up by the court and decided later. So far nothing has been done regarding the funds that were lost through Mr. Chester's shortage. One suit on his bond of $1000 was begun, but the court sustained a demurrer to the complaint.

DIVORCE SET ASIDE.

Possibilities For Complications Lie In This.

A divorce was set aside in special term of district court this morning, and a couple who have been divorced since the first of the year are now married again. The case is that of Bertha Uthgenant against Wilhelm Uthgenant, and the decree was set aside on the application of the husband, who was represented by C. O. Baldwin. The ground was that the summons was not properly published. The plaintiff has left town, and, according to the husband, she left with another man. If she has married since the divorce was granted, the case will become rather complicated.

Other matters in this mornin's special term were as follows: John Helmer against Thomas Benton, motion to amend findings dodged and proceedings stayed; E. M. Whitcher et al against L. H. Austin et al, judgment for plaintiffs; Letta M. Seeley against W. C. Sargent as sheriff and Barbara Hibbing, order granting temporary injunction pending determination of suit; Ephraim O. Trenholm against the Cloquet Lumber company, to be heard in chambers July 20; in the matter of the assignment of J. B. Sutphin, order limiting time to file releases; in re assignment American Loan and Trust company, to be heard in chambers July 27; in re dissolution Ely Cash Grocery company, report made and confirmed and receiver discharged, except as to certain claims.

IS GLOWING.

That Describes Prospect of Export Oil Company.

The Export Oil and Pipe Line company, of which Hon. Charles A. Towne is president, publishes elsewhere in this paper a prospectus showing the strength that is in its organization and the excellent prospects it has in the Beaumont oil fields. The showing is a handsome one, and it is well worth careful reading. P. W. Kugler, the Duluth agent of the company, has just received a telegram to the effect that a gusher of 70,000 barrels capacity per day had been struck within 150 feet of the Export location, and this is very encouraging news to the local stockholders.

The work of drilling will be begun next week, and important developments are likely to follow. A company that has already brought in three wells in the Beaumont field has made a written proposition to sink a well on the Export company's Spindle Top Heights land, and the terms are a gusher or no pay. This would indicate considerable confidence in the property on the part of the contractors. The company's location is surrounded by paying oil propositions, and the outlook is glowing.

Aside from the oil locations, the company has valuable sulphur locations in Louisiana, besides other lands that promise to become sources of large revenue to the company. The production of some of the wells near the Export company's oil properties is enormous, and it is not at all improbable that the Export company will strike something similar, in which case its stock will be tremendously valuable. The names of those who are connected with the concern are a guarantee of good faith, especially those with whom the Duluth people are acquainted.

Is In Chicago.

Alex Michaud, proprietor of the St. Louis hotel, is now in Chicago where he is receiving treatment from a specialist. Mr. Michaud is said to be making rapid improvement in health. Mrs. Michaud has returned from Mt. Clemens, Mich., where she went for treatment for rheumatism, also very much improved. Mr. and Mrs. Michaud attended the Pan-American at Buffalo, where they were accompanied by their niece, Miss Alice Butchart. The latter is spending a few weeks at Chicago.

GIVES HIS CONSENT

John J. Moe Allows the Use of His Name.

Will Serve as School Director If He Is Chosen.

Will Not Make Any Personal Effort to Get It.

John J. Moe, the well-known West End merchant, will be a candidate for director of the school board in place of Director E. R. Cobb, who has withdrawn. This was decided upon by Mr. Moe this morning, but like J. L. Washburn it is on condition that there is no contest. The committee of West End citizens appointed at last night's meeting waited upon Mr. Moe this morning, and prevailed upon him to allow the use of his name, though he consented somewhat reluctantly, and will not make any personal effort, leaving the matter to his friends.

To The Herald when asked about the matter this afternoon, Mr. Moe said: "The committeee waited upon me this morning and at the solicitation of its members, I agreeed to permit the use of my name providing there is no contest. I am a very busy man, and I can ill afford to give the time, but if the people think I ought to serve in the interest of the West End and the city generally, I shall be glad to do so. I should not accept the honor if there was anybody else that wanted it, for I should not be under any consideration take part in a contest for the office."

This leaves four candidates for three positions, and it is not yet known how matters will shape themselves. Mr. Washburn will leave tomorrow and will be away until after the election, so that he will not take any active part in the canvass.

Has Good Prospects.

Indications from the Saratoga Oil and Pipe Line company, of Beaumont, Texas, are very encouraging. The company's property is 200 feet from one of the big gushers and 533 feet from another, being surrounded by a dozen others. The wells are in the very heart of the oil district and it is expected that oil will be struck a day or minute. By Aug. 1, it is confidently expected that the company will have a gusher. The shares are selling at 30 cents a share and J. H. Bennett, with offices in the Manhattan building has charge of the Duluth branch.

Intent to Defraud.

Arthur Cox was arrested this morning on a warrant charging him with removing property on which a lien existed, with the intent to defraud. The complaining witness is Rhoda M. Carey, who runs a boarding house at 1525 Railroad street, and who complains that Cox took from her house personal property of his that was held to cover his board bill. The amount claimed by Cox was $6. The defendant was arraigned in municipal court this morning and his examination set for next week. He was committed to the county jail, not being able to furnish bail.

FORGERY CHARGED.

Michael Caine of West Duluth Arrested.

Michael Caine, an employe of the Merrill & Ring Lumber company, at West Duluth, was arrested by Detective Mork last night on a warrant charging him with forgery. The complaining witness in the case is Moses Cook, a saloonkeeper on whom the forged check is alleged to have been passed. The defendant is said to have been employed by the Clark-Jackson company until two weeks ago, and on pay day received by mistake a check belonging to Victor King, for $31.37, which was about $20 more than Caine had coming to him. The complaint alleges that Caine endorsed the check with King's signature and obtained the money. When arrested Caine cried like a child and told the officers that the company had often got his name wrong, but as the amounts had been what were due him, he never said anything about it. He claims that he did not notice the mistake in the amount of the check until the money was paid over and that he was then afraid to rectify the mistake. He was arraigned in municipal court this morning and his examination was set for next Tuesday. Caine was committed to the county jail to await examination, in default of $250 bail.

TO CHANGE.

L. Van Praagh to Take Management of Ball Team.

It is practically settled that Roy Hansell is to retire from the management of the Duluth Baseball club. L. Van Praagh will take the proposition up, combine the best players of the Duluth club and the Duluth Fashions, and put baseball on a running basis again.

He has a rather hard job on his hands, but by bringing good teams here there is no reason why baseball should not be brought to the front again in Duluth. From the beginning of the season the playing has been only fair and the attendance poor. True, the weather man seemed to have a pick on the fans, but lately the rain has visited the city less frequently, yet the standard of baseball has not seemed to improve. By combining the two teams, every indication points to Duluth having a team that will outclass every other one in the Northwest. Manager Van Praagh is very popular among the ball players of the city, and they will all give him the fullest support in his efforts to have a good team. He says that he knows of three or four good men whom he can secure for the Duluth team, and it is safe to say that in the future Duluth will have first-class base ball.

RUN ON BANK.

Peru, Ind., July 13.—A run began today on the Miami County Loan and Savings association. Lines of depositors formed at 7 a. m., and there was a constantly increasing rush to withdraw funds. No reason is known for the run, as the June semi-annual statement showed assets of over $325,000 in gilt edge mortgages. The concern began a banking business about six months ago.

Telegraphing to Mars.

The experiments in wireless telegraphy have met with such success that we can soon hold communication with our planetary neighbors. Science made wonderful strides in the last half of the nineteenth century, and probably will davance further in the next few years. There is one thing, however, that science cannot improve upon, and that is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is the best remedy in the world for stomach, liver and bowel complaints. Fifty years of cures stand back of it, and a fair trial will convince you it has no equal as a cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, billousness or liver and kidney troubles. It also prevents malaria, fever and ague. Be sure to have the Bitters always on hand, and thus avoid any serious illness.

EXPENSIVE

Old Wine That Is Worth $117.00 a Drop.

Most Valuable Vintage In the World In Bremen.

Not far from the hurly-burly of the stock exchange is a wine merchant whose business has been handed down like a title of nobility, says the New York Evening Post. Almost a century ago some of his family had a warehouse on this spot, and when they were gone the father of the present wine merchant took it up, and after him his son. Thus he came into a knowledge of all the choice vintages of the last 100 years, and many of the century before that, and proved that although a man may not live to see 100 years of a raven's life, he may, by having the right kind of father, keep a cask of wine for more than that length of time. The wine keeper is up two flights of stairs in one of those low, dimly lighted buildings that are still left over from old New York. His office is scarcely bigger than a hall bedroom, but he has also two interior rooms, with a soft, sweet-smelling atmosphere, where he keeps his private collection, and many bottles of rare old wines that he is "treating" for patrons. His specialty, as has been intimated, is caring for wines, and in this connection his business might almost be called a wine hospital.

"This," said he the other day, pointing to a huge glass demijohn, "contains the lees of a number of wines that I have settled with eggs. When the liquor that you see there came to me, it was as black almost as ink. The owners of the wine said: 'Let us throw it away.' But I said: 'No. Send it to me.'" He held a stubby candle behind the demijohn and showed it half full of heavy lees, looking through the green glass almost like tea leaves, and the other half an amber liquid. Wetting a tall, slender glass and taking a rubber tube from a nail, he dropped one end of the tube through the neck of the demijohn, drew the air through it to a certain point, and let a few thimblefuls of sparkling sherry siphon into the glass. There was only the slightest sign of turbidness about it. "And the lees," said he, "are very valuable." Then, after washing the tube, he dropped it into a cask of port lying comfortably on its side, and the liquor which flowed out bore only the slightest traces of having once been muddy and dark.

Perhaps the most interesting thing that the wine keeper does is to compare wines for his patrons. There is nothing for sale in his collection. He keeps the old vintages merely as a matter of curiosity and as a standard of comparison. Sometimes a club or a family having what are supposed to be fine old wines grow suspicious of the quality. The wine keeper is called upon and gives his patrons an opportunity to see what the genuine wine was like a long time ago. The wine keeper does it mostly by smell for his own purposes. Given a number if vials of different growths and vintages, he sets them aside as sherry or port after one whiff. Some who are not so gifted have a chance to ruin their digestion by tasting.

"I will show you a sherry that has lain in the cask for many, many years," said he to a visitor; "so long that it has become heavy and dark, quite unlike the sherry which one sees on the table of today." With this he took down from a shelf a tall bottle of "Andalucian Nectar," and poured out a portion of the deepest amber, thick almost like a cordial and leaving a stringent taste in the mouth.

"And this," said he, "is a reserve Madeira of 1803, which lay in the wood till a year ago," pouring out a sparkling Madeira which was brown and heavy only in less degree than "Andalucian Nectar."

"And this," he added, "this Montilla, is quite the opposite," pouring out a light, dry and attenuated liquid, not unlike the present day sherry, but with a more exquisite perfume.

"These are no doubt very costly," the visitor said.

"They are not for sale," said the keeper of wines. "There is nothing for sale here. But if they were for sale, no doubt they would bring a large amount. I will show you some Amontillado, called N. P. U. (ne plus ultra), which was offered to me once at $1000 a butt of 110 gallons. Now you have tasted, probably, the most expensive sherry in the world, which would bring $50 a dozen bottles at a club as ordinarily sold.

"My wife comes down here occasionally," he continued, "and looks around among my collection. One day in a pudding at home I detected the flavor of an old Pedro Ximinez sherry that was worth $5 a drop. We had expensive pudding that day."

"Then these are the most expensive wines of any kind in existence?" asked the visitor. "No," answered the wine keeper. "The wine in the Bremen town hall cellars, called the Rose, is said to be the most valuable. It is a Rudesheimer Rhine wine from the year 1653, and the cask is replenished by degrees whenever the wine is drawn, with carefully washed and dried gravel. In 1653 a stuck had the value of 300 gold dollars. It is never sold, but destined exclusively for the sick of Bremen, who obtain a small quantity on the production of a doctor's certificate. At present the estimated value of a bottle is 18,000,000 marks; of a glassful, 2,000,000 marks, and of a drop, 2346 marks."

Besides his unusual collection of Madeiras, sherries and Bordeaux, the wine keeper has a curious company of bottles, saved from a time when bottles were in their crudest form, and which the Arts club ought to have in its present exhibition. One which he believes to be the oldest bottle used for holding liquor in this country came from Nassau, in the Bahamas, much longer ago than anybody can remember, originally filled with snuff. It is made of a coarse, seaweed-colored glass, and is shaped somewhat like a chestnut standing upright upon its broad night. There is a broad-bottomed botle which held Madeira in Charleston in 1810, and a Viennese bottle 125 years old, whose slender, graceful curves have been supplanted today by a more commercial shape. The first American gin bottle, from the Schuchardt estate, has a pouter-pigeon shape which is delightful to the eye.

Among the latter bottles are some which constituted the product of the bottlemaker's art when impressed glass first came into use. On each side figures are modeled into the glass with that gay liberty of delineation which must have taken possession of the glass-worker when he found that he could give expression to his artistic instinct. There are a number of "railroad bottles," the railroad being at that time (as now, to those fellows who follow Wall street) most in the public eye. On one a wagon running on rails and drawn by a horse is depicted on both sides with the motto: "Success to the Railroad." On another the same primitive arrangements are shown commemorating the railroad at Lowell, and on the reverse of the bottle a spread eagle embedded in thirteen stars.

George Washington figures on one bottle upon the reverse of which was Ben Taylor, who, so says the glass, "never surrenders." A spread eagle and what appears to be a Masonic shrine; a fruit basket and horn of plenty; and two trees, one in leaf, the other bare, representing "Summer" and "Winter" are both two-faced designs. A large round bottle which in these days would contain Holland gin, is impressed with a series of monks at their prayers. It was called the "Apostles' bottle," but it drew fire from the pope, who had it put, by edict, out of general use.

King Edward, who, it is said suffers more than most men from a silk hat, having constantly to raise it in response to the salutes of the men in the street, gives his head a holiday when he gets to sea. Amid the more exciting things seen on board the Shamrock II at the time of the accident the king's headdress managed to escape public notice. It was the acme of comfort, being a close-fitting cap, rather of the old night cap pattern, made of the softest of white silk.

An automobile line is to be operated between Lewes and Rehoboth, Del., for passengers to and from Cape May. It will be the first automobile line in that State.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST?

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY— It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN— It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE— As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP— By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

EXPLODED

Boiler Blew Up on an Excursion Boat.

Two Boys Killed and Others Badly Hurt.

Sunbury, Pa., July 13.—An excursion boat anchored in the Susquehanna river at the foot of Market street, this city, blew up with terrific force today, killing two boys and injuring a dozen other persons, two fatally. One man is missing and may have been killed also. The dead:

ALLEN FETZER, aged 14, cut and burned beyond recognition.

ARTIE FETZER, aged 12, skull fractured and burned badly.

George Frymire, the pilot, is missing, and it is presumed his body is in the river. The police are dragging the stream.

The injured: Charles Keller, aged 12, will die; Frank Keller, aged 8, will die; William Pulen, aged 17; Harry Adams, aged 13.

Several others were injured, but not seriously. All of the boys injured or killed were fishing on a nearby wharf when the explosion occurred.

No cause is given for the accident.

A HALF YEAR

Record of Board of Public Work Expenditure.

Clerk Murchison of the board of public works has just completed a statistical report of the business of the board for the six months ending June 30, 1901. The statement covers the improvement construction work going on in the city, miscellaneous contracts, such as street sprinkling and lighting, and maintenance expenditures, which cover the cost of labor and material.

Under the head of improvements comes the Superior street paving contract of $54,708, and of which no part has yet been paid, as the work is only beginning. The next largest contract is the Michigan street paving, the contract price being $24,006.51, and of which amount there is $17,951.49 yet unpaid. Other improvement contracts payable out of the permanent revolving fund, and in excess of $1000, are for the Fifth avenue west paving, south of the railroad tracks, amounting to $7363; Superior street sewer, Twenty-second to Twenty-fourth avenues east, $4829.08; contracts for sewers on Cooke street, Forty-eighth avenue east and Gladstone street, amounting to $2511.50; Fifth alley grading, etc., between Ninth and Tenth avenues east, $1151.55. Other contracts are for grading and sewers, and range from $300.56 to $592.93.

The total amount of work contracted for under the permanent improvement revolving fund is $96,852.39, of which $7581.62 has already been paid over to the contractors and $89,142.12 remains unpaid. Only three contracts have been completed, the Michigan street paving and two small sewer contracts. Assessments proceedings are in progress at the present time on completed contracts.

Another improvement which comes out of the permanent improvement fund and the cost of which is not assessable against the property as in the above cases, is the Garfield avenue approach. The contract price including the substructure, iron and steel for the superstructure, the erecting and painting, is $13,867.06.

Under the miscellaneous contracts comes the street sprinkling and lighting, cedar fence and sidewalks and the amount paid out up to July first was $17,326.92.

Under maintenance expenditures, the total for the six months ending June 30 was $8,145.13. For labor and material in the five city districts the expenditure was $25,517.48. The balance of the total is divided up as follows: Sewers, $4,062.32; sweeping, $1365.0; road roller, $248.57; crusher, $2009.58; chain gang, $619.84; bridge repairs, $2995.09; Swan Lake road, $25.80; office salaries and material, $2001.15; material for court, repaving of Sixth avenue viaduct, $3322.55.

Of the board's expenditures $3830.01 for labor and material used in repaving Sixth avenue viaduct, contract let in 1900, was paid from the public works fund, under protest, the board having been of the opinion that the expense was properly chargeable to the permanent improvement fund. A further credit of $1307.59 is due the public works fund for cash collections, account work done for individuals and other departments. This would reduce the disbursements from the public works fund to $36,007.44.

A BLOCKADE.

Complaint Against Delivery Wagons on Torn Up Street.

A great deal of trouble is being experienced in the heavy traffic over Superior street between the avenues where the old paving and the street railway tracks are being torn up. The upper side of the street has been left intact, for the present, to permit traffic, but the space is narrow and the business houses along the route permit their delivery wagons to stand in front of their doors, proving an almost effectual blockade of the street. This morning a heavy truck belonging to a commission house ran into and nearly demolished a delivery wagon belonging to a grocery firm. The delivery rig was backed up to the curb and took up nearly all the street to the street car tracks. The teamster in charge of the truck said that the accident was unavoidable because not enough room was left for him to pass. He made a complaint to the police department, but found that there was no way in which owners of delivery wagons can be compelled to keep their rigs in the rear of their places of business. The only ordinance that might work possible relief is one which says that vendors shall not stop in one place more than ten minutes. It is believed that this could be applied to fit the case of the delivery wagons, but the department believes it impracticable to have officers standing along the street holding watches on the different wagons.

City Engineer Patton said this noon that something should be done toward keeping the street clear of standing rigs, but he knew of no other way than to have the city authorities request the business men to keep their delivery wagons in the rear of their stores while the paving is in progress. If this is done there would be free access for traffic, both ways, whereas a blockade is a frequent occurrence now.

If an alarm should be turned in that would necessitate a run of the fire department along the side of the street on which the pavement is still intact, it would be next to impossible for the apparatus to get through without doing great damage to standing rigs. On the side of the street already torn up the delivery rigs are taken to the rear, and the authorities see no reason why those business men on the upper side of Superior street, between Lake avenue and Third avenue east, where the business men do not have access to their stores from the alley in the rear.

The Duluth Board of Trade will again begin to receive quotations from the Chicago Board of Trade on Monday. It is more than a year now since the Chicago quotations were cut off.

The reunion of the class of '99 of the Duluth Central High school was held at Lester park last evening and an enjoyable time was had by about thirty young people, members of the class. After supper the party sat around a camp fire and school days were gone over again. It was decided to leave something to the high school to commemorate the class of '99 and the feasibility of a reunion next year was discussed, it finally being decided to hold one.

Hansell's Queer Work.

In regard to the game that was scheduled for today at the Driving park which Gus Ruhlin was to umpire, it is not known just why Manager Hansell called the game off. Jay Anderson had wired Billy Madden to the effect that two games were secured for Ruhlin and after they had started the Chicago Unions backed out. Manager Hansell then announced that a game would be played with the Board of Trade Saturday. This body of ball tossers was very anxious to meet the Duluth team when Hansell yesterday called the game off on account of the expense. They agreed to carry the financial part of the game, giving Ruhlin his percentage and paying the players, but Hansell finally backed out on that. Mr. Anderson spent the greater part of the afternoon in trying to get Ashland and Superior to play here, but the Ashland players had the game well advertised in their hometown and would not come. This accounts for the Duluth public not being able to see the big fighter umpire today.

Ruhlin is a baseball man himself, having played first base for two years and worn the mask for one season.

NEW BOAT WINNER

Shamrock II Won a Race Making a Splendid Showing.

She Gained Nearly Six Minutes In an Hour's Run.

The Best Form the Challenger Has Ever Shown.

Rothesay, July 13.—The two Shamrocks started from off Garroch Head today for a long beat to windward. At the end of the heat the challenger was two an da half minutes ahead of Shamrock I, and she increased her lead on the home run, finishing six minutes before the older boat.

Shamrock II started with the weather berth and a fairly steady breeze. In a couple of tacks she had cleared Shamrock I, asd in the long tack across the sound opened up a big lead turning Erin, off Shipness, two and a half minutes ahead. The run home to Garroch Head was entirely in favor of Shamrock II. She outran the older boat in every mile, and reached the starting point six minutes and thirty-five seconds ahead of her rival.

The two yachts started afresh from Garroch Head and reached, in one long tack, to Bogany Point. On this run Shamrock II gained five minutes and fifty seconds in exactly one hour's run. Yacht experts consider the challenger's form today to be the best she has ever shown.

CORUNDUM.

Something of Remarkable Deposits on the North Shore.

Reference in an advertisement in The Herald this evening will show that the Minnesota Abrasive company now offers a block of its treasury stock to the amount of 5000 shares for sale. This is the company which owns the great bodies of corundum on the north shore of Lake Superior about which so much has been heard of late, and the richness of which few Duluth people thoroughly appreciate.

As not everyone knows just what corundum is used for, it will be well to say that it is an abrasive material that excels emery, the most widely known of abrasive materials. The only reason corundum is not so well known is because of its scarcity, for it is better. It will not draw the temper from the finest of steel for the reason that there is no iron in it, or only the faintest trace. The deposits of corundum in the country that amount to anything number but three—one in Chester, Mass., one in Georgia and one in North Carolina. In those deposits the corundum runs in veins or fissures, and it is very limited in quantity.

The deposits which the Minnesota Abrasive contains are in Lake and Cook counties, and they are not veins or fissures, but huge outbursts. The quantity is unlimited and the quality is of the very finest. Oxide of alumina is the basis of corundum, and the other corundums of the deposit run from 5 to 17 per cent in this. The corundum of the north shore of Lake Superior has been analyzed by experienced chemists and it runs from 37 to 54½ per cent in oxide of alumina.

Recently a party of Duluth men went up to the company's property, taking with them an expert from Chicago, John S. Webb. Mr. Webb had seen the company's corundum tested, and he said that it was the finest in quality that he had ever seen, but "Have you got any quantity?" he asked in a skeptical way. When he went on the land and saw what there was there, he said that it was richer than any three or four gold mines in the country. He was astounded at the amount he saw, and his experience told him in an instant its great value.

The demand for abrasive material is very great, and the consumption amounts to from 175,000 to 200,000 tons a year.

The close proximity of the corundum on the Minnesota company's property to the lake and railroad makes it certain that it can be taken out at a very low cost, and with the enormous amount it has and which has simply to be quarried there is no doubt that the company can control the market for abrasive material.

IDENTIFIED.

Negroes Known to Be Miss Davis' Assailants.

Kansas City, July 13.—Roberts and Holland, the negroes under arrest at the county jail have been positively identified as two of the assailants of Miss Davis. There are doubts now whether Maupin, who at first was believed to be the leader of the gang, had anything to do with the crime.

Another suspect, Jourthman, was arrested during the morning. Miss Davis is bordering on nervous prostration, and neither Maupin nor Jourthman was taken before her.

At 1 p. m. there was no sign of a crowd in the vicinity of the jail and the officials believe there will be no further trouble.

INTO A TREE

French Balloon Fell When Motor Failed.

Wind Was Responsible For the Collapse.

Paris, July 13.—The condition for the winning of the Dutch prize for an air ship is that the trip from St. Cloud to the Eiffel towner and back must be made in half an hour. Santos-Dumont started at 7:30 this morning. He reached the Eiffel tower in fifteen minutes, turned around it and had begun his return trip when the motor failed and the aeronaut ripped the silk of his balloon, fearing disaster unless he could quickly reach the ground. The balloon pitched forward, head foremost, into a clump of trees, where it was caught and suspended in the branches on the opposite side of the Seine from the starting point. Santos-Dumont was not hurt.

A number of spectators had congregated on the platform of the Eiffel tower to watch the trial. They cheered the balloonist as he rounded the tower. The wind, which was lacking during the first part of the trip, sprang up after Santos-Dumont started on the return trip and probably was responsible for the collapse of his balloon, as the balloon was seen to turn partly over on its side.

It is calculated that but for the accident the trip from the Parc De Meudon around the tower and back would have been accomplished in fifty minutes.

STILL IN THE SERVICE

Secretary Root Has Decided Not to Accept the Resignation of Capt. Strong For the Present.

Washington, July 13.—Secretary Root has decided not to accept the resignation of Capt. Strong for the present. It is stated that the action of the secretary last night in accepting the resignation was of an informal character, and as no action had been taken Secretary Root directed today that a dispatch be sent to Capt. Strong saying that his resignation would not be acted upon until it had been received by mail through the regular channels, accompanied by a full explanation as to why the resignation was presented. This action leaves Capt. Strong still in the service and subject to any inquiry that may be made if the department deems it desirable to investigate the alleged circumstances which have been published in connection with his resignation. It is understood that cognizance has been taken by the department of the publication this morning of the escapade in San Francisco, in which Capt. Strong is alleged to have figured.

Capt. Strong, who was under orders to go to the Philippines yesterday telegraphed the quartermaster general, requesting permission to go to the Philippines on a commercial liner instead of on one of the government transports. His request was denied.

PENN WINS

Easily Defeats Dublin Crew at Killarney.

Finished Twenty Lengths In the Lead.

Killarney, July 13.—The University of Pennsylvania crew easily won their race against the Trinity college of Dublin crew on Killarney lake today. The course was from Glena bay to Castle Lough bay. The water was smooth and there was no wind.

The victory for the American crew was a hollow one. A good start was made at 4:15 p. m. The Irish crew took the lead in the beginning, rowing thirty-eight strokes to the minute, while the Americans rowed forty. The Trinity shell was seen to be in the lead for about thirty seconds. Then the Pennsylvanians drew up level and immediately took first place. At the end of the first mile the Pennsylvanians were well in front, and immediately drew clear, widening the distance, until at the finish they were twenty lengths ahead, having covered the course in sixteen minutes, twenty seconds.

THE PLAGUE

In Egypt Is of a Particularly Destructive Tpye.

Washington, July 13.—The state department is informed through its consular representative in Egypt that the bubonic plague which prevails in many of the towns there is of a virulent and destructive type, and on account of its rapid development and the exceptionally high rate of mortality, general apprehension and alarm prevails throughout the country. During the week preceding June 19 there were twenty-three cases, twenty-one of which were at Zagzig and two at Minch. Sixteen cases were admitted into the hospital and seven were found dead outside of the hospital at the former. Of those admitted to the hospital six died. A singular circumstance occurred just before the breaking out of the plague. It was noticed that the rats in the different parts of the town appeared to be in a dazed and dying condition.

WAS A DEFAULTER.

Copeland Who Shot Rogers Was From Omaha.

Omaha, July 13.—Copeland, who shot Rogers on the train this morning, was a trusted teller in the Nebraska National bank in this city for ten years prior to August, 1899. He left the city at that time, ostensibly for a summer vacation and to visit the Eastern states and has not been heard from since. At the bank Copeland was designated as the "B. & M." teller, he having charge of the deposits of the Burlington & Missouri River railroad. A month after his departure the Burlington account at the bank showed a shortage of $10,000. Half of this amount was made good by Copeland's brother-in-law and the remainder by his bondsmen.

Copeland was heard from recently on the Pacific coast, and it is supposed that Rogers recognized him on the train.

DEATH RATE DOUBLED.

Large Increase In the City of New York.

New York, July 13.—New York city had a death rate of 40.82 last week, almost double the usual summer rate. This large increase was due to the excessive heat that prevailed in the early part of the week. There were 2767 deaths from all causes, against 1524 for the corresponding week in 1900.

LAW IS VALID.

Wisconsin Medical Law Held to Be Good.

Madison, Wis., July 13.—The state medical law was held to be a constitutional and valid exercise by the legislature of the police powers of the state, by Judge Seberger in the circuit court this morning. The court quashed the alternative writ of mandamus to compel the medical board to issue a license to James Kellogg of Portage, a graduate of the college of physicians and surgeons, Chicago, without examination, and dismissed the case. An appeal was taken to the supreme court where the case will come up on the August calendar.

GREAT INCREASE

In Gross Earnings of Railroad Lines.

New York, July 13.—Returns of gross earnings for the six months to June 30 last from 176 roads, including Mexico and Canadian lines, operating 174,914 miles, published by the Chronicle today, shows receipts of $658,411,800, for the half year, an increase of $61,580,000 over 1900 figures or slightly over 10 per cent. About a fourth of the road's report for only five months and the Chronicle estimates that complete returns will show a gain in gross earnings for the period of $70,000,000. This is on top of gains of $72,300,000 in the first six months of 1900, of $30,240,000 in 1899, and $57,440,000 in 1898. The mileage for the past year shows a gain of 3 per cent over 1900.

TO POSTPONE

Opening of the Fosburg Trial For a Week.

Pittsfield, Mass., July 13.—District Attorney Hammond announced that at the opening of the superior court on Monday next he will request the court to postpone the date of the opening of the trial of Robert S. Forsburg, charged with manslaughter in the alleged killing of his sister, Ida, in August, 1900, until July 22. The case at present is scheduled to begin on July 18, but District Attorney Hammond is of the opinion that it will conduce to a more satisfactory trial to postpone it. There will be no objections to this from the counsel for the defense.

A CHANGE IN CABINET.

Lima, Peru, July 13.—Rumors reach here from La Paz, Bolivia, of an approaching change in the Bolivian cabinet. Ismael Montes, the present minister of war, is said to have been selected to organize the new cabinet. He is reported as having offered the portfolio of foreign affairs to Herberto Guitrez, who has declined the post.

TOOK MORPHINE.

Prominent Citizen of Crawfordsville, Ind., Suicides.

Crawfordsville, Ind., July 13.—Ex-Judge Sellers, former member of the legislature and once candidate for theDemocratic nomination for governor, killed himself, in his law office here today by taking morphine. He left a letter saying his life was a failure and that his disasters were large.

TO BE DISTRIBUTED.

Prize Money From the Adula Is Awarded.

Mt. Airy, Ga., July 13.—Judge Speer of the United States circuit court today rendered down a decree distributing the money arising from the capture of the British steamship Adula during the Spanish war. Judge Speer considerably deruced the allowances for the officers of the court made by the master to whom the question had been referred and has ordered that he sum of $40,000 paid into the treasury of the United States be distributed.

FOUNDED ON NOVELS.

Fortunes Built Upon Hinst From the Imaginative.

Oxygen parties are now the rage in fashionable circles. The gas has the property of reviving tired nerves and bodies in a way which no tonic can equal. It is supplied in tanks, and the guests inhale it through long tubes just as Turkish smokers do tobacco smoke from a hookah. The firm of Elsworth, who supply the gas, is rapidly reaping a fortune, and this fortune they will owe, indirectly at least, to the novelist, Jules Verne, says the Cincinnati enquirer.

One of Jules Verne's books, "Dr. Ox's Experiment," deals with a scientist who flooded a little sleepy Dutch town with oxygen, and thereby produced fruit and vegetables such as the world had never before seen. Incidentally, its effect was also to render the phlegmatic Dutchmen violently quarrelsome. The perusal of this book gave a the head of a firm of chemical engineers the idea which is now causing such delight to bored people of fashion.

Jules Verne, with his wonderful prophecies and inventions, which have, since he wrote of them, become actual facts, is responsible for more than one individual rising from poverty to riches. No one was ever more fascinated by a story than was Claude Leverson by Jules Verne's "Journey to the Center of the Earth." In this book the novelist describes how a party climbed down the crater of an extinct Icelandic volcano, and so reached the inner recesses of the earth. Young Leverson, who was at school when he read the book, made up his mind to copy the adventures of his hero, and many years afterwards did actually explore the craters of a number of unmapped peaks in New Granada. It was in 1894, while camped on the shores of the lake which fills the old crater pit at the top of the San Geronimo Mountain, that he made his famous discovery of the Geronimo emerald field, which has since made him one of the five richest men on the South American continent.

In Edward Bellamy's "Looking Backward," the people of the world, as it is to be a couple of centuries hence, use no money at all. It is, therefore, rather curious that the book should have been the means of bringing a large fortune to an enterprising American who started a colony in Mexico on the lines laid down by Bellamy. The colonists used no money, but they grew immense quantities of fruit and corn, which their manager, whose name was Dalby, sold for the public good, and bought with the money such supplies as they needed. No one seems to have called on Dalby for accounts of his transactions; but one day he disappeared, and it was found that he had taken with him nearly $75,000, which his colonists had been kind enough to make for him.

A writer who is still alive is responsible for the millions of James McKenna, the finder of the Half-Moon Creek diggings in Alaska. It was a poem of Bret Harte's, written thirty years ago, which put it into McKenna's head to go to Alaska. In the poem in question, Bret Harte describes a miner as wielding his pick in the midst of snow and ice in Alaska. Why shouldn't there be gold up there? thought McKenna, although none was then known of. He reached the country two years before the Klondike rush, and attributes all his good fortune to his favorite poet.

The last pine grove in Allegany county, New York consisting of 400 trees, has just been sold to a lumberman for $7500. Some of the trees are five feet in diameter and 300 years old.

Pasteboard armor is likely to come into military fashion. It is, if thick enough, almost impenetrable to carbine bullets, which can pierce five-inch wooden planks. Recent experiments prove this.

In all the big cities there are multitudes of folk who work in the night time. In London fully 100,000 inhabitants earn their bread by the sweat of their faces between sunset and sunrise.

AT WEST DULUTH

If Alderman Swenson says that somebody is mistaken in regard to the purported street car service between West Duluth and Duluth during the early morning hours, he should look up the reliability of the source of his information regarding it, for this morning Manager Warren confirmed the article in yesterday's Herald regarding the early morning service. Mr. Swenson's resolution called for a ten-minute service and The Herald yesterday said, on the authority of a street railway employe, that a five-minute service has been given since the first of the month. Manager Warren submitted a schedule this morning in which it is shown that cars leave West Duluth at 5:51, 6:01, 6:07, 6:11, 6:17, 6:21, 6:27 and 6:31 o'clock, every morning, except on Sunday, and after that hour a ten-minute service is kept up during the day. In figuring the above, it will be easily seen that the company is averaging a five-minute service until 6:31 o'clock, and in many instances the cars run only four minutes apart. Up to July 1, the regular cars were run and there was a period between 5:51 and 6:11 o'clock that there was no car. The extra cars, Manager Warren says, are always put on the summer service as soon as the travel warrants it.

The number of people carried on the regular early morning trips is averaged up at the end of each month and when it is found that one car has an average of more people than it can carry comfortably, an extra car is run just ahead of it.

Alderman Swenson in an interview in the morning paper said that the company, possibly, ran extras during the day, but not in the morning so far as he has been able to learn. The alderman from the Eighth ward has not, evidently, been out at the early hour to see how often the cars are running. If the company should comply with the terms of his resolution there would be but one more car put on than the regular schedule calls for and five cars now in the early service would be taken off.

ESCAPED FROM HOSPITAL.

Mrs. Masino Matson, a Norwegian woman, aged about 50 years, who was been a patient at the Red Cross hospital in West Duluth for the past two months, very unexpectedly made her exit from the institution shortly after 6 o'clock last night. Her original trouble was heart failure, and she has been recovering, and recently has been walking about her room and about certain portions of the institution. It was noticed that Mrs. Matson had been growing very despondent the last few days, and it is believed that her mind is slightly unbalanced. All conversation with her had to be carried on with the aid of an interpreter, but all of her known wishes were granted so far as it was within the power of the hospital attendants to do so. Mrs. Matson was a county patient and her only known relative is a daughter who is employed in a restaurant near Seventh avenue west and Superior street.

At 5 o'clock last night Mrs. Matson began to pack her few personal belongings, and as it was thought to be only harmless amusement for the old lady, she was not molested. The woman was missed a few minutes after 6 o'clock by the head nurse, and a search was instituted. It was soon learned that she had left the building and the police were notified, while the hospital attendants thoroughly searched the vicinity. No trace of the missing woman was found.

The missing woman was found late this afternoon at the home of her sister-in-law at the West End, where she went directly from the hospital.

SENT TO RED WING.

Edward Weihe, the youth who was recently fined $20 and costs in Judge Stone's court, for the larceny of a bicycle, was committed to the state training school at Red Wing yesterday, and was taken to that institution, by an officer this morning. After the fine was imposed, the judge gave the boy a few days in which to pay it, and the senior Weihe gave bail for his son. Monday Mr. Weihe appeared in the court room and asked that the youth be sent to the state institution. Young Weihe is only 13 years, 4 months old, and he was sentenced to remain at the training school until he reaches his majority.

DUE TO WHISKY.

William Rieckhoff, who was arrested Thursday for forging C. F. Petruschke's name to several checks, had been on a spree for six weeks and his late employer thinks that whisky is the only cause of the man's rash act. Rieckhoff is 38 years of age and has a wife and four children who are left destitute. The family is being supported by Mrs. Rieckhoff's father, a man 73 years of age, who works in Petruschke's box factory, where the unfortunate forger was employed until recently. Mr. Petruschke says that while on this last spree Rieckhoff has spent $75 which was borrowed of him, in addition to the money secured on the bogus checks.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Emil Holter died this morning, aged 2 years. He was the child of Mr. and Mrs. E. Holter, residing on Fifty-ninth avenue. The funeral was held from the house this afternoon.

P. F. Smith arrived home this morning after a tour which extended from ocean to ocean. Mr. Smith left for the West about two months ago and went as far as Seattle. Of his time in the West he spent two weeks with relatives in Butte. When Mr. Smith came East to St. Paul on his way home, he decided that he would like to visit the Pan-American exposition and did so. The return trip from Buffalo to Duluth was made by boat and at Detroit last Saturday he attended the funeral services for the late Governor Pingree. Mr. Smith says he enjoyed every moment of the time while away and that in every portion of the country which he visited the outlook for a great crop is splendid.

The Senate club will change its quarters from the Palmer block to the I. O. G. T. hall next week.

MAYOR REPLIES

Says the Park Point Driveway Would Not Cost Much.

Claims City Already Has Most of the Land Needed.

The Property on Park Point Would Pay the Cost.

Since the publication during the first of the week of an article in The Herald, in which Mayor Hugo was quoted as favoring the idea of a roadway along the beach of Park Point, there have been various comments made regarding the matter both favorable and adverse to the proposition. The criticism has in the main, been along the lines of economy, it being held that such a driveway would be a luxury, and that the city is not in a position to bear the cost of the same even if the park board should take steps to secure the land along the proposed route. In stating his position regarding the matter, Mayor Hugo, this morning, said:

"A sermon on "economy" is always in order, and not only as it effects individuals, but municipalities; but there is such a thing as extravagant economy, and while I, in the main, agree with the article in Thursday's Herald, commenting on the suggestion, among other things, that it would be a good thing to secure land for a driveway along Minnesota Point while property is cheap still I think there is another side to the question, which might be taken into consideration.

"I am fully impressed with the idea that it is necessary to keep the tax rate down to the lowest possible point, and do not believe that the suggestion referred to carries with it any such an expense as would materially interfere with the accomplishment of this desirable feature of public administration of business. This suggestion is not original with me, but is merely the echo of that of hundreds of citizens of Duluth who calculate to live here during their time and have a reasonable degree of foresight as to the future. It carries with it merely the idea that the board of park commissioners should take the necessary steps to secure for the use of the people the right to construct, when they feel like it, the crowning feature of our magnificent park system—the lake drive—that is all. We have parks at the East End and parks at the West End, neither of them improved as we would like to have them, but we are doing the best we can under the circumstances and as we can afford it. We are also doing something toward permanently beautifying our city in other ways, and that same idea would prevail with the driveway down Park Point.

"Perhaps it is not generally known, though it is a fact that most of the land required for this purpose is already the property of the city, and available only for some such purpose. A glance at the map shows that the property on the lake shore is not platted to the water line, and carries no riparian rights. This public domain, or no man's land, is rapidly gaining, by accretion from the wave-action, so that in some cases sixteen feet in width has been gained in a single year. Wherever it might be necessary to acquire private property in some few cases, it is quite likely that the damages to be allowed will, at this time, be only nominal, for the benefits in this case will by far exceed the damage, and, as a business proposition, the owners would be justified in deeding the right-of-way. Again, whatever expense there might be in acquiring this property will be covered, according to law and precedent, by a special assessment against the property benefited, which, equitably distributed over all the Park Point property, will not be felt by any individual owner, but will accrue a hundredfold to the value of the land in that vicinity.

"I don't know to what The Herald refers when it says that 'other suggestions have been made that look like leaning toward luxuries.' The only suggestion that I have any knowledge of is that with reference to the improvement of the avenues, and if that is leaning toward luxury, then I am luxuriously inclined—in the same way that I would consider a man leaning toward luxury if, when he saw a part of the foundation of his house falling down with the prospect of taking his house with it, he should luxuriously try to prevent the catastrophe. The example of London road is not, in my opinion, an appropriate one. If the property owners on London road want their thoroughfare improved, and are willing to pay for it, as soon as the permanent improvement revolving fund is in shape to permit it, I do not believe there will be any disposition on the part of the council to do anything but accede to their wishes, but I do think there would be distinct opposition on everybody's part to having this improvement made out of the general fund, while the property owners on Superior street are paying for the paving on that street, and the owners of property in intersecting avenues will have to pay for the renewing of these thoroughfares.

"The importance of securing to the people at this time the opportunity to add to the number of Duluth's delightful spots such a feature as the Park Polt drive, which need cost but little, is very evident, and I think that the public generally believe that such improvements as these would help materially to build up a city. I don't think the citizens need be alarmed over any idea that taxes are to be increased over the amount they will approve, (with a full understanding of the needs of the case), as the policy of the present administration is in every respect one of repression of extravagant ideas, in the minds of some even to niggardliness."

Michigan Street Paving Is Ready For Acceptance.

The contract for the paving of Michigan street with sandstone between Lake avenue and Eighth avenue west was completed last night, and the pavement is ready for acceptance. The contract price for the pavement was $24,006.51, of which but $6055.02 has been paid over to the contractors and the balance is held awaiting the acceptance of the pavement by the city.

At the intersection of Michigan street and Fifth avenue west the paving has been done with dressed sandstone filled with Portland cement, put down as a show piece of pavement by the sandstone company. It will take about ten days for the cement to harden fully, and the intersection cannot be used for that period. Team work to points below Michigan street on Fifth avenue will have to be done on Sixth avenue west over the viaduct.

The Work on Superior Street Is Being Pushed.

City Engineer Patton this morning instructed Watterworth & Fee, the contractors for the Superior street paving, to begin resetting the curb stones on the lower side of the street between Third avenue east and Lake avenue, not later than next Monday morning. The street railway company has increased its force of men, and the work of taking up the old rails and placing the new rails is being pushed at a rapid rate. All the old rails between Third avenue east and Lake avenue will be out, practically, by tonight, and the new rails for the track on the lower side of the street will be in position. The company is today maintaining a transfer service over a temporary track on the side of the street torn up. This service will be kept up as long as practicable.

WEST END MEN MEET

Bring Out Candidacy of J. J. Moe For School Board.

Determined Not to Lose Their Representative on Board.

Committee Appointed to Look After West End Interests.

The citizens of the West End are losing no time in getting after the representation on the school board they believe themselves entitled to. A large and representative meeting was held last night in the Irwin-Sloan hall in the West End, and John J. Moe, the well-known Central Duluth merchant, was nominated for the place left vacant by the withdrawal of Director E. R. Cobb.

A number of vigorous speeches were made, in which the right of the West End to more representation on the school board than is proposed by the plan that puts J. L. Washburn on the ticket in place of Mr. Cobb was pretty well shown.

It was shown that the West End furnishes fully half of the pupils in the public schools of the city, and that if no West End man takes the place of Mr. Cobb, the section of the city west of the point of rocks will be cut down to less than a quarter of the school board as its representation.

It was decided that a committee should be appointed to see the citizens of the eastern end of the city with a view to arranging to place Mr. Moe on the ticket with Mr. Washburn. Failing in this, the committee will get up an independent ticket, with Mr. Moe as one of the candidates. This did not mean that three West End candidates would be run, as the morning paper stated, but that a ticket with Mr. Moe upon it would be in the field, whether an agreement with the East End is reached or not.

The committee appointed to interview the down-town people is composed of H. R. Armstrong, D. E. Stevens, N. O. Nelson, Frank Schaffer and M. A. Fedje. This committee went to work today to see what can be done, and the prospects seemed to be that an arrangement could be made that would leave both Mr. Moe and Mr. Washburn in the field.

A feeling seemed to prevail at the meeting that Mr. Cobb did not do quite the right thing by his section of the city when he withdrew in favor of Mr. Washburn. Some of the people in attendance thought he should have withdrawn in favor of some West End man.

Mr. Moe was not in attendance upon the meeting, and as yet he has not announced his willingness to accept the candidacy, but it is believed that he will be induced to run in the interests of his section of the city.

IN MICHIGAN.

Smallpox Is Causing Considerable Trouble at Laurium.

Calumet—Smallpox is causing much trouble in the copper country. The disease is prevalent in Laurium and the village clerk became infected. He visited the city hall several times and the building was placed under strict quarantine until it was fumigated. The village clerk, Peter Charrier, is now confined to his home, which is under quarantine, as one of his children has the disease. As many bills cannot be legally paid without his approval, many are laid over at the meetings of the council. The village now has in its employ many men who are engaged on street and sewer improvements and they are caused much inconvenience in obtaining their pay.

Ironwood—At a meeting of the Gogebic County Agricultural society it was decided to hold the annual fair at Ironwood Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 11, 12 and 13. Horse races will be a feature of the fair and liberal purses will be offered.

The Ironwood-Hurley Gun club has been reorganized and held its first shoot of the season Tuesday afternoon. A new Magaua-trap of the most recent type has been secured.

Escanaba—Intelligence has been received of the death in Mississippi of Allen Palmer, son of Cornelius Palmer, of this city, division engineer of the Northwestern road. Young Palmer was about 26 years old and had for several years been employed on the Illinois Central as a civil engineer. Particulars of his death have not been received further than that it was the result of an accident. The remains will be buried at Oshkosh, Wis.

Iron Mountain—The bodies of the two girls drowned at Spread Eagle, Wis., were recovered.

ORDER TO HEAR PETITION FOR LICENSE TO SELL LAND OF MINOR.—State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss.

In Probate Court, Term, July 12th, 1901. In the Matter of the Guardianship of: Malla Leonora Johnson, Olga M. Johnson, Axel Leopold Johnson, William Johnson and Rosie Johnson, Minors.

On reading and filing the petition of Alma Johnson, guardian of said minors, representing among other things, that the said wards own an interest in certain real estate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, and that for the benefit of said wards the same should be sold, and praying for license to sell the same; and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court, from said petition, that for the benefit of said wards said interest in real estate should be sold;

It is ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court, on the 6th day of August, A. D. 1901, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the court house in Duluth, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be), why license should not be granted for the sale of said real estate according to the prayer of said petition.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

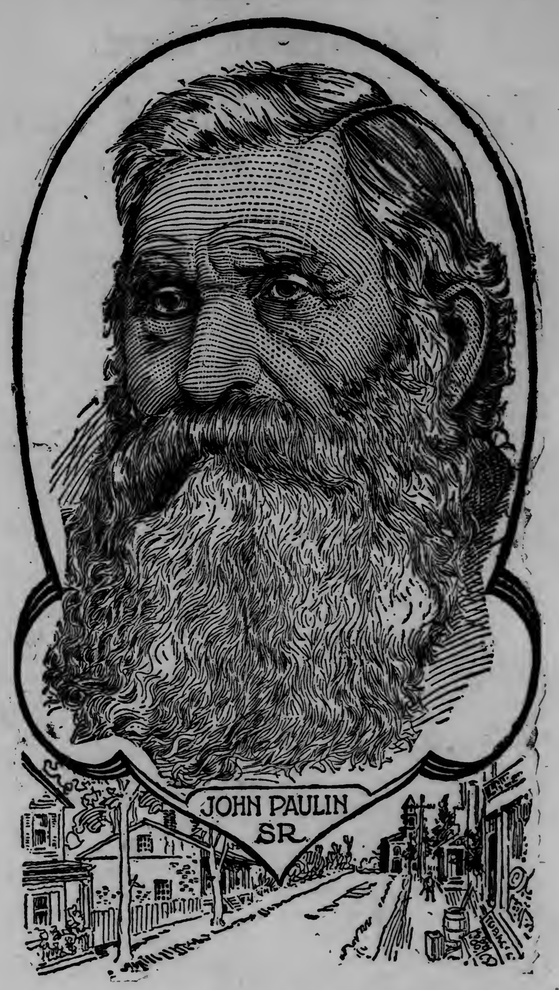

Dated at Duluth, the 12th day of July, A. D., 1901.

A WISCONSIN PIONEER

Recommends Pe-ru-na as Being Worth Its Weight in Gold.

Hon. John Paulin, Sr., a pioneer of Port Washington, Wis., is held in high esteem by the residents of that place. He is one of the oldest citizens. In a recent letter he says:

"I have used Peruna with good results for coughs and colds. It has also cured my catarrh which always became worse when affected with but a slight cold. I am recommending Peruna because it is worth its weight in gold."—John Paulin, Sr.

J. R. Prince, East Leon, N. Y., writes: "Perina has saved my life, and made a strong, healthy, jolly old man of me. Peruna is just what every family should not be without. I have taken very few colds since I have used Peruna, but when I do catch cold, Peruna is my medicine.

J. R. Prince.

"A minister came to me last summer and said that he had seen my testimonial in the paper, and began taking Peruna. He said that it straightened him right up—(he was troubled with kidney trouble) and Peruna cured him. I cannot express my thanks for the benefit your medicine has been to me."—J. R. Prince.

Mr. A. Howell, Marietta, Ga., writes: 'I have been troubled with catarrh in head, throat and stomach for several years, and from accounts that I have read in several newspapers of the good effects that many had received from Peruna, and whose veracity could not be doubted, caused me to give it a trial, and I bless the day that I did make a trial. It has made a new man of me.

"I was all my life up to about five years ago a very healthy man, and about that time I was troubled with catarrh. I tried a number of prescriptions from different doctors but none seemed to relieve me until I commenced the use of Peruna, and from its use I can truly say that I have been greatly benefited.

"I am now in my eighty-seventh year and can walk and get about as well as many much younger than myself and attribute it greatly to the use of Peruna.

I keep some on hand all the time, and consider it the cheapest medicine in the world."—Mr. A. Howell.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Steuart died in Atlantic City, New Jersey, on the 19th day of October, 1899, testate, and that said petitioners are devisees named in said last will and testament, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters be issued thereon to Charles H. Graves of Duluth, Minnesota;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this court, at the probate office in the city of Duluth, in said county, on Monday, the 5th day of August, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument.

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, the 12th day of July, A. D. 1901.

By the court,
W. G. BONHAM,
Judge of Probate.

The term, "Mill-ends,"

As we employ it, designates an accumulation of short lengths and odd pieces of first-class goods from weaving mills, which are disposed of in bulk at greatly reduced prices. Offerings of this character by a manufacturer, involving as it properly does, a very large quantity of cloth, is, as a rule, only taken advantage of by jobbing houses or metropolitan stores with large outlets.

The sales to contique all the week.

The Mill-End Sale

Combined with our annual

Mid-Summer Clearance Sale

Advertisers realize that exaggerations are easier than accuracy—that fabulous statements sound smoother than plain truths. Not every advertiser has learned the invaluable lesson that the public wants facts. The looseness with which advertisements are hurled at the people has brought about a state of affairs where people in general have come to look with suspicion on all advertisements. You often hear, "Oh, this is only an 'ad' ";—"its too good for the truth;"—"you can't depend on advertisements nowadays, anyway." Result is, much of legitimate, truthful, trusty advertising is lost. For people often jugde things collectively, not specifically, as we wish to be judged in our advertising.

This sale, great as it will be, will not be boosted up with high sounding adjectives and clamorous phrases commonly used on sales not half so deserving. It will stand on its merits, and the enormous crowds that turn out next Monday will be so well pleased with the bargains, that we are certain the future success of the sale is assured. Every patron will be an advertiser for us.

The Mill-End Sale didn't spring up in a day, or week. For several months a dozen buyers have been planning, collecting, making ready for this event. We have kept all these good things out of sight through the busy season. Our past mill-end sales serve to illustrate that the mill-end values are extraordinary, the merchandise is first class and dependable, and that the prices are never met elsewhere.

In addition, the department managers have cleaned up all remnants, odd lots, mussed and soiled goods, broken lines and discontinued numbers and surplus stocks for a general clearance in every department. To be sure, not all the bargains are mentioned here—we'll have lots of things to surprise you with not on this page.

Come early, and bring your pocket full of money, for we've goods you need to exchange for the ready cash, and it will pay you to buy for future use.

Sale starts Monday Morning, July 15, at 8 o'clock.

A Very Pleasant Naval Station.

The naval folks are glad to see the European naval station re-established, as it affords an opportunity to many to visit foreign capitals—one of the pleasures of naval life. The command of the squadron is one of importance. For the present Rear Admiral Cromwell will have this pleasant command, but his sway will be brief, as he retires in February of next year. By that time his successor will doubtless have a goodly squadron brought together, and the honor of the command will not be gained without a struggle among the many rear admirals who are eligible for the place. The present list of rear admirals will by February be lessened by the retirement of Schley, Sampson and Cromwell, and it is said among the knowing ones that Cromwell's successor next year will be Robley D. Evans. Evans is well acquainted in European waters. He has many powerful friends at court and from all accounts his chance to fly his admiral's flag in Europe is a very good one. Evans is the youngest—in point of years—admiral on the list, having ahead of him seven years of further active duty, an unusual period in so advanced a grade. He has had much good fortune in his naval career. Through wounds received in the naval attack on Fort Fisher he was placed temporarily on the retired list, but was restored to the active list and advanced from an inferior standing in his class to the very top. His recent advancement of five numbers by the recommendation of Admiral Sampson landed him on the roster of rear admirals, and in a few years' time will be next to George Dewey, the senior officer of the navy.

Observations of the Boer War.

The praise that has been given to the patriotic Boers in their fight for independence by the entire world will be echoed in a bulletin soon to be issued by the military information division of the war department containing the notes of Capt. Slocumb and Capt. Reidman of the American army covering their observations of the war in South Africa where they were sent to collect data. The war department has also secured a great amount of material bearing on the war from British sources. A summary of the conflict in South Africa has been written from the information thus obtained, and will be published as official. The report will contain the following criticism: "The Boer army was a great surprise not only to the British, but to the whole world. Even those who were considered well posted on Boer matters were not a little astounded. Their valuable traits from a military standpoint, are their ardent patriotism, a firmness of religious conviction with an unshakable trust that God will protect their righteous cause, a patriarchial regard for authorities, older men and heads of families. To this must be added tenacious endurance and ability to handle the rifle, brought about by hunting, practice and skirmishes with the natives. This training enables the Boers to aim and fire at single men whom his keen eye can distinguish at distances when ordinary infantrymen could aim only at a general line." After referring to the British estimate of the number of Boers in the field, which was 62,000, the report will say: "According to the figures of the Boer identification department, the total number of men who had seen service at any time up to the end of May, 1900, was 52,263. Compared with the British official estimate it is seen that the difference is less than 10,000. When it is considered that the white population of the Orange Free State, as compiled by the census of 1890, was but 40,571 white males, and that the South American Republic, in the census of 1896, was but 137,947 white males, and that these figures also included the Outlanders, we cannot but conclude that the total Boer forces in the field must have been smaller than the British estimate."

THE OHIO CONVENTION.

The howl that the Republican press is raising about the supposed insult offered to Bryan by the Ohio state convention is the merest froth. It is made for a purpose, that purpose being to foment, if possible, a division in the ranks of the opposition to the Republican regime. Mr. Bryan today is a private citizen; prominent by reason of his past record and the position that he has held as the leader of the united Democratic and Populist parties at two national elections. Here the matter ends. Neither Mr. Bryan nor Mr. Cleveland has any authority to, nor do they expect to, dictate to a state or national convention what shall be the future confession of Democratic faith. If Mr. Bryan's name was not mentioned in the Ohio convention, neither was that of Mr. Cleveland, and Mr. Cleveland was three times a candidate for the presidency and twice elected. The Democratic party is too big to be held in the hollow of any man's hand.

The Republican organs would make much of the fact that the Kansas City platform was not reaffirmed, and they predict dire disaster to the Ohio Democrats because of that omission. If a political party is not to change its tenets of faith to meet the imperative demands of the times, what is the use of a platform at each national convention? Why do not the Republicans reaffirm the platform on which Abraham Lincoln was elected in 1860? If that was good enough for Lincoln, why was it not good enough for McKinley? Why did they change the St. Louis platform, from the bimetaallio basis to the gold basis, at Philadelphia? Why did they cut out the reciprocity plank and put in its place a sappy slab?

The answer is easy. All political parties change positions to meet new emergencies. The Kansas City platform was an expression of faith of a majority of the delegates who attended that convention; that is all. That platform was not, nor is any other platform, immortal. This faith in platforms that have become obsolete with age is like the Republican worship of the Dingley tariff schedules. It matters not that time changes have shown that these schedules work harm to American trade—they were drawn by a Republican and enacted into law by a Republican congress, and, therefore, they are immortal. When the campaign of 1900 was over, the platforms of Philadelphia and of Kansas City became back numbers. That campaign taught both parties something. It taught them that mistakes had been made in their confessions of faith. The Republicans have spent the time since then overriding the very principles upon which they won the fight. The Democrats see now that tariff reform should have been the pivotal issue. Our hindsight is always better than our foresight. Were an election to be held today on the issues which would be adopted by common consent, the Democrats would win hands down. And those issues would be along the lines laid down by the Ohio Democracy.

Mr. Bryan will not be a candidate a third time. He does not want it and there is no reason for anticipating such an event. Mr. Bryan has a large following, is a man of strong personality, and has, as a result, many friends. But in politics expediency as well as inclination must be considered. In the very nature of things it can be seen that a man can be found who can unite the elements opposed to the Republican machine and unite them on the new issues which are interesting the people today. A man or a party may believe in the principles of an issue, but abandon them as against political policy. This is the case with the tenet of 16 to 1. The Republican party would be pleased to keep that issue to the fore indefinitely, but that will hardly be the case. Other issues oveshadow and completely displace it in the minds of the people.

It is the opinion of The Herald that, when the time comes to formulate a platform and select a party leader, the Democratic party will be united, and with that united party William J. Bryan will work in complete harmony. The attempts of the administration forces to keep alive the difference of opinion on the money question will fall flat. The ruse is too thin.

THE SULTAN'S SETTLEMENT.

As was noted in the news columns, the Turk has really paid his little bill. It has been a long time due, but "the sick man" has been financially embarrassed for some time, and it was a question whether he could really have settled before had he been so disposed. The claim arose from the destruction of American property, chiefly that of missionaries in Armenia in 1893. United States Minister John G. A. Leishman is the man who has effected a settlement of this account, he having informed the state department of Turkey's intention to pay in the second week of June last. This notification was not taken too seriously in any quarter, since similar promises had been made to four American diplomatic representatives at Constantinople before Mr. Leishman was transferred to that post.

In President Cleveland's administration Minister Terrell presented the Armenian indemnity claims of the United States, and received assurances from the Porte that they would be paid. His successor, Mr. Angell, went to Constantinople especially to collect the indemnity. All he got was promises. Then Mr. Strauss, who succeeded Mr. Angell, succeeded in getting the personal assurance of the sultan on three different occasions that the money would be forthcoming. While Mr. Strauss was in this country on leave of absence, the sultan denied having given any positive assurance on the subject, and Mr. Strauss declined to return to Turkey. Mr. Griscom, the American charge d'affaires in Mr. Strauss' absence, made a practice for several months of calling at the Sublime Porte every Saturday and asking when the money would be paid. He got promises but no definite information. Then came the visit of the battleship Kentucky to Smyrna on her way to Manila, and the alarm of the Turkish authorities, who made haste to announce that the indemnity would be included in the payments to the Cramps, of Philadelphia, for a cruiser which they contracted to build for the Turkish navy. But the demands of the United States were not satisfied in that or any other way, and the state department sent Mr. Leishman from Berne to Constantinople to try his hand with the sultan. The result is known; the United States has the money.

NEGRO RACE INCREASING.

Those who predicted from time to time that the negro race would die out, will get but little satisfaction from the census returns for 1900. The returns show that the negro is numerically holding his own. The negro is running along so closely with the white, whenever the figures have been tabulated, as to indicate that the colored brother, for better or for worse, has gained a firm foothold on this continent, and one from which he is not likely to be soon dislodged. This is something that previous censuses have left in dispute. From the figures at hand it seems probable that the negro population of the United States in 1900 was between 9,000,000 and 9,050,000. The ratio that the negro bears to the total in the states already counted, if applied to the whole country, would give 9,025,000, excluding Indian territory, where, perhaps, there are 15,000 more. If that estimate be admitted as valid, it will make the negro constitute 11.8 per cent of the total population of the country, as against 11.9 a decade ago, the loss being due to the greater growth of the Northern states, and not to any less proportion of negroes in the section where they abound.

Booker Washington has said that the negro was staying on the farms, and has always advised him to continue to do so. As a matter of fact, from this census it appears that the negro is going to the cities just as fast as the white race. Quite as large a percentage of the negro population of any state as of the white is found in towns of over 2500 people. The processes which have been looked to as the natural solution of the negro problem will be long postponed in operation. The negro refuses to die off.

Major Gorgas, chief sanitary officer of Havana, credits somewhat successful efforts in destroying mosquitoes with the recent success of the authorities in clearing Cuba of yellow fever. In each case of fever the house in which it developed was carefully closed and fumigated, and the water in the vicinity covered with petroleum, with a view to the destruction of the mosquitoes. All standing water is required to be rendered mosquito proof by netting or oil, and thus the mischievous little insects are so greatly reduced in number that yellow fever, which it is now generally considered they are largely responsible for, has been eradicated in Cuba.

Miss Louisa Stead, a Brooklyn girl, has gone on a journey of over 6000 miles, into the interior of Liberia, to marry a missionary, to whom she is engaged, and to join him in his work among the blacks of that country. One can admire her devotion and spirit, while respectfully doubting the soundness of her judgment, says the Portland Telegram.

Collier's Weekly contains a review by Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans of the battle of Santiago, in which he studiously avoids mention of the cruiser Brooklyn and Rear Admiral Schley. It shows how small some war heroes are.

The St. Louis world's fair management boasts that no delay will be asked for and that the gates of the greatest fair the world has seen will open on schedule time. It will have to work hard to keep that promise.

As they read the stories of continued oppressive heat in the East, South and West, the residents of Duluth have another reason for being thankful that they live at the head of Lake Superior.

The Montana train robbers have been surrounded again, according to the dispatches. Now if their pursuers will only keep them surrounded they may possibly be captured.

The Independence is redeeming herself. She went through yesterday's race with a broken topmast and finished only ten minutes behind the winner and almost beat the Constitution.

An Eastern college professor laments the meager quantity of greatness among Americans now living. He should come to Minnesota where greatness thrives and gaze upon our railroad commissioners.

A war on billboards has been started in Kansas City and might well be carried on in Duluth. The city is disfigured from end to end with unsightly billboards that torture the eyes of the people.

Of course after the publication of the story that Mr. Bryan refused a $100,000 campaign fund, the Ohio politicians declined to even mention his name. No Ohio politician would have refused it.

One of the most remarkable exhibits at the Pan-American show is a Brooklyn man and wife and their seventeen children. But Minnesota can beat that record.

At any rate, says the Chicago News, it seems certain that it was not Admiral Sampson who sent the dispatch to Dewey. But Sampson has not denied it.

Kansas City is making faces at the ice trust, but the ice trust does not mind, when the mercury stands at 100 to 105 in the shade.

The bureaucrats at Washington have forgotten that there is no law to compel the veterans of Santiago to wear the Sampson medal.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Philadelphia Press: She—No, I can never marry you. All our family is opposed to you.
He—But if you are not—
She—I said all our family.

Brooklyn Life: Lawyer—As your husband died intestate, you will, of course, get a third—
Widow—Oh, I hope to get my fourth. He was my third, you know.

Somerville Journal: She—But we are too poor to marry.
He—What of it? Everybody is.

Yonkers Statesman: Mrs. Crimsonbeak—It seems strange to me, if matches are made in heaven, that there should be so many unhappy marriages.
Mr. Crimsonbeak—Oh, you forget; it is the matches that are made there—not the misfits.

Baltimore American: "Ah," he said, with a sigh, "if you would but smile upon me."
"Smile upon you?" replied the fair young girl. "If I treated you right I would give you the horselaugh."
For he desired to renew last summer's engagement.

Detroit Free Press: Ode evening Adam was making love to Eve, but she seemed dissatisfied.
"What is the trouble my darling?" he asked.
"Oh, Addie, dear," she sighed, "if I could but convince myself that I am the only woman you ever loved."

Harper's Bazar: "Biddy," Pat began timidly, "did yees iver think av marryin'?"
"Shure, now, th' subject has niver intered me thoughts," demurely replied Biddy.
"It's sorry Oi am," said Pat, turning away.
"Wan minute, Pat!" called Biddy softly. "Ye've set me a-thinkin'."

Washington Star: "Don't you think you lose patience with your husband on rather slight provocation?" said the near relative.
"I have to provoke him sometimes," was the placid answer, "so that he will lose his temper and then give me anything I want so as to atone for the way he has acted."

Brooklyn Eagle: Lydia—O Clarence, dear! If I should fall into the briny ocean, would you save me?
Clarence—I don't know, darling; I never saved anything in my life.

THE SONG OF LIFE.

One must sing of the sunshine;
One must sing of the rain;
One must sing us the songs of joy,
And one sing woe's refrain;
Yet in the end all the songs will blend
In one harmonious strain.

One must sing of the future,
With hopes and fearings rife;
One must sing of the misty past—
Its dreaming and its strife—
Yet they will meet in a cord full sweet—
The marvelous song of life.

One must sing of the mountains;
One must sing of the sea;
One must sing us the song of love,
And one in hate's shrill key;
Yet all will rise to the bending skies
In one grand harmony.

Love and hate and compassion,
Sorrow and right and wrong,
Past and future and war and peace—
Rise in an anthem strong,
And all will grow, as they ebb and flow,
To life's unceasing song.

An Official Land Lottery.

Minneapolis Journal: The United States government is conducting a land lottery in the lands of the Indian Territory which the president has just opened to settlement by proclamation. The land is no longer to the swift, the nervy and the artistic with guns as aforetime; when the "sooner" flourished and there were picturesque races for fertile spots. Now in prosy and sober fashion the land hungry register and the quarter sections are assigned by lot. The tenderfoot has an equal chance with the border terror. Thus does civilization take the color out of American life.

Proper Person to See.

Washington Post: If Gen. Gomez has the least notion for running for the presidency of Cuba, we would advise him to see Mr. Hanna.

Irrigate and Move On.

Washington Post: The mayor of Boston says no gentleman will loaf about a saloon. No, indeed! He goes there for the purpose of getting busy.

Catching Onto Our Style.

Brooklyn Eagle: On the Isle of Pines the police force has been compelled by the alcalde to hustle for him all around the place and beg or borrow or bully votes enough in his favor to secure re-election. Cuba is not so slow. Cuba is learning self-government of the Philadelphia kind.

Does It Pay?

Indianapolis Journal: During the Philippine war seventy-five commissioned officers and 2369 enlisted men died of disease or were killed in battle. Of this aggregate forty-two officers and 1292 enlisted men were regulars. The number wounded was 1000. All things considered—climate, hardship and fighting—the loss was light.

Taxing a Public Eyesore.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The French tax on street signs "varies with the size of the offense." Last year it added over $700,000 to the public treasury. In the United States vast street signs can shut out the air and the view and overwhelm everything in sight without paying a cent in taxation. The huge nuisance is managed better in France.

Must Have a Hunch.

St. Louis Republic: Comptroller Dawes is a man of sense in that he knows a sure thing when he sees is. Otherwise, he would be Comptroller Dawes after Oct. 1.

Arouses His Curiosity.

Washington Post: Senator Scott says he wrote 17,640 letters during last year's campaign, and Gen. Sickles is wondering what the other 17,639 victims got.

Unless They See Him Blushing.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: It is to be feared that when Senator Billy Mason comes up for a second term a good many legislators will ask who he is.

The Country Won't Object.

Washington Star: As to a third presidential term, the weather is quite warm, and Gen. Grosvenor is doubtless willing to let the matter drop.

MR. DOOLEY

On the City as a Summer Resort.

BY F. P. DUNNE.

"Where's Dorsey, the plumber, these days?" asked Mr. Hennessy.

"Haven't ye heerd?" said Mr. Dooley. "Dorsey's become a counthry squire. He's landed gintry like me folks in th' ol' dart. He lives out among th' bur-rds an' th' bugs in a house that looks like a cuckoo clock. In an hour or two ye'll see him go by to catch th' five five. He won't catch it because there ain't anny five five. Th' la-ad that makes up th' time-table found las' week that if he didn't get away earlier he cudden't take his girl f'r a buggy ride an' he's changed th' five five to four forty-eight. Dorsey will wait f'r th' six siven an' he'll find that it don't stop at Paradise Manor where he lives on Saturdahs an' Winsdahs except Fridahs in Lent. He'll get home at iliven o'clock an' if his wife's f'rgot to lave th' lanthern in th' deepo, he'll crawl up to th' house on his hands an' knees. I see him las' night in at th' dhrug sthore buyin' ile iv peppermint f'r his face.' 'Tis a gran' life in th' ccunthry,' says he, 'far,' he says 'fr'm th' madding crowd,' says he. 'Ye have no idee,' he says, 'how good it makes a man feel,' he says, 'to escape th' dust an' grime iv th' city,' he says, 'an' watch th' squrls at play,' he says. 'Whin I walk in me own garden,' he says, 'an' see th' viggytables comin' up, I hope, an' hear me own cow lowin' at th' gate iv th' sthnce,' he says, 'I f'rget,' he says, 'that they'se such a thing as a jint to be wiped or a sink to be repaired,' he says. He had a box iv viggytables an' a can iv condensed milk undher his arm. 'Th' wife is goin' away nex' week,' he says, 'Do ye come out an' spind a few days with me,' he says. 'Not while I have th' strenth to stay here,' says I. 'Well,' he says, 'maybe,' he says, 'I'll r-run in an' see ye,' he says. 'Is there annything goin' on at th' theaytres?' he says.

"I wanst spint a night in th' counthry, Hinnissy. 'Twas whin Hogan had his villa out near th' river. 'Twas called a villa to distinguish it fr'm a house. If 'twas a little bigger 'twud be big enough f'r th' hens an' if 'twas a little smaller, 'twud be small enough f'r a dog. It looked as if 'twas made with a scroll saw, but Hogan mannyfacthered it himself out iv a design in th' pa-aper. 'How to make a counthry home on wan thousan' dollars. Puzzle: Find th' money.' Hogan kidnaped me wan afthernoon an' took me out there in time to go to bed. He boosted me up a laddher into a bedroom adjinin' th' roof. 'I hope,' says I, 'I'm not discommodin' the pigeons,' I says. 'There ain't anny pigeons here,' says he. 'What's that?' says I. 'That's a mosquito,' says he. 'I thought ye didn't have anny here,' says I. ''Tis th' first wan I've seen,' says he, whackin' himself on th' back iv th' neck. 'I got ye that time, assassin,' he says hurlin' th' remains to th' ground. 'They on'y come,' he says, 'afther a heavy rain or a heavy dhry spell,' he says, 'or whin they'se a little rain,' he says. 'followed be some dhryness,' he says. 'Ye mustn't mind thim,' he says. 'A mosquito on'y lives f'r a day,' he says. ''Tis a short life an' a merry wan,' says I. 'Do they die iv indigisthion?' I says. So he fell down through th' thrap dure an' left me alone.

"Well, I said me prayers an' got into bed an' lay there, thinkin' iv me past life an' wondherin if th' house was on fire. 'Twas warrum, Hinnissy. I'll not deny it. Th' roof was near enough to me that I cud smell th' shingles an' th' sun had been rollin' on it all day long an' though it had gone away, it'd left a ray or two to keep th' place. But I'm a survivor iv th' gr-reat fire an' I often go down to th' rollin' mills an' besides, mind ye, I'm iv that turn iv mind that whin 'tis hot I say 'tis hot an' lave it go at that. So I whispers to mesilf, 'I'll dhrop off,' I says, 'into a peaceful slumber,' I says, 'like th' healthy ploughboy that I am,'' says I. An' I counted as far as I knew how an' conducted a flock iv sheep in a steeple chase an' I'd just begun f'r to wondher how th' las' thing I thought iv came into me head, whin a dog started to howl in th' yard. They was a frind iv this dog in th' nex' house that answered him an' they had a long chat. Some other dogs butted in to be companonyable. I heerd Hogan rollin' in bed an' thin I heerd him goin' out to get a dhring iv wather. He thripped over a chair before he lighted a match to look at th' clock. It seemed like an hour befure he got back to bed. Be this time, th' dogs was tired an' I was thinkin' I'd take a nap whin a bunch iv crickets undher me windows began f'r to discoorse. I've heered iv th' crickets on th' hearth, Hinnissy, an' I used to think they were all th' money, but anny time they get on me hearth I buy me a pound iv insect powdher. I'd rather have a pionalo on th' hearth anny day, an' Gawd save me fr'm that.' An' so 'twas dogs an' mosquitos an' crickets an' mosquitos an' a screech owl an' mosquitos an' a whip-poor-will an' mosquitoes an' cocks beginnin' to crow at two in th' mornin' ean' mosquitos, so that whin th' sun bounced up an' punched me in th' eye at four, I knew what th' thruth is, that th' counthry is th' noisiest place in th' wur-ruld. Mind ye, there's a roar in th' city, but in th' counthry th' noises beats on ye'er ear like carpet tacks bein' dhriven into th' dhrum. Between th' chirp iv a cricket and' th' chirp iv th' hammer at th' mills, I'll take th' hammer. I can go to sleep in a boiler shop, but I spint th' rest iv that night at Hogan's, more of a stranger, although he has lived here all his life, than if I was a thramp. Three years! If it had been a weary time the steady gray eyes that looked into yours with an almost boyish frankness gave no sign. If they had been haunted by the vague distrusts that ill women's minds as phantoms people the night she never voiced them. And now she was having her reward.

Everyone marked the confidence with which she smiled into her bridegroom's eyes and every heart re-echoed her trust.

There was but one dissent, and Mildred White whispered that as the door closed upon her and the gay voices of the bridal party followed her into the night.

"I can't tell just why," she said, wistfully, looking at her husband for confirmation of her vague thought, "it seemed wrong to even think it, but when I looked at Georgie and Frank I thought of that wild fowl that came and coaxed our pretty gray swan away with him. (Copyright, 1901, by W. R. Harst.)

The word "ideal" echoed and re-echoed at the Brown-Thorpe wedding. It was in a sense justifiably used, too, for the young people were a splendid pair and they looked at the future, before which so many eyelids fall, with dauntless eyes.

They were both prairie born, prairie bred. They had some of the hardihood of their pioneer fathers. They had acquired the breadth of view that comes with the accustoming of the vision to the ocean-like sweep of the prairie.

They had been schoolmates and schoolboy and schoolgirl lovers. Frank Thorpe had gone to Chicago to study art and had quickly sprung into success as an illustrator. While he was making that success Georgie Brown stayed at the gray cottage of Denton and waited.

Ii was a friend who worked at the next artists' table on the Despatch who noticed the first shadowy hint that fell. It was so slight as almost to be mistaken for a sunbeam. When Frank's last sketch had "gone down" and the neighbor had congratulated him on the news that the editor-in-chief had been so pleased with his last cartoon that he raised his salary, the red-haired office boy announced that "Mrs. Thorpe was waiting."

"Join us at dinner, old man," said Thorpe and Jack Jamieson accepted.

"It's a late night shift for me," said Thorpe, "and the little one always comes down and dines with me at one of the cafes on these nights."

The little one looked very dainty in the cool lavender lawn with its ruffles of Valenciennes lace, her wide hat, with its pinkish purple blossoms and the chiffon parasol she managed so gracefully. Jamieson noticed admiringly how soon she had acquired the urbane graces, how quickly she had dropped the slight gaucherie she had brought from Denton.

"You are staying in the city in August, Mrs. Thorpe? I am surprised," said Jamieson.

The steady gray eyes looked smilingly at Frank Thorpe's square shoulders as he led the way to the elevator.

"The weather that is not too hot for Frank is not too hot for me," she said.

"Whatever is good enough or bad enough for him is good enough or bad enough for me. We are chums, you know, as well as husband and wife. I am old-fashioned enough to believe that a husband and wife should never be separated."

She said it so lightly that Jamieson smiled absent-mindedly as he would have done at the vagaries of a girl. But he remembered it afterward as with a shock.

They dined at Mouliage's. They enjoyed some crisp French salads, some inevitable poulette and the poetry of French pastry. Frank Thorpe ordered one bottle to drink to his promotion. Another to drink to "his wife, the sweetest woman in the world." Another to "Jamie, old chum." His invention had gone when he reached the fourth bottle, but he insisted upon it, at any rate. Georgie and Jack Jamieson demurred a little, but the bride drank with her husband. The artist made an excuse and looked with surprise at the girl. She looked at her husband as though fascinated. For each glass he drank she drank a corresponding one. The face of each flushed. The eyes of each brightened.

Jack Jamieson stooped to pick up Mrs. Thorpe's handkerchief.

"Frank has had quite enough, don't you think, Mrs. Thorpe?" he said, deprecatingly. "And you can hardly take as much as he."

"The girl shrugged her shoulders angrily.

"I will be my husband's companion in all things," she said.

Frank Thorpe returned to the office that night. But his hand shook and his sketch was uneven. The editor-in-chief reprimanded him for "unpardonable slovenliness." His wife refused Jamieson's escort and returned to the pretty apartment on the North Side alone.

At other dinners the scene was repeated. It came to be painful to serious Jack Jamieson. He brooded upon it and after Frank Thorpe had been discharged from the Despatch the next spring he met Mrs. Thorpe on Wabash avenue and dared to repeat his remonstrance.

"Have you tried to get him to stop drinking?"

"I have, but my influence ends there."

"But you? Why should you ruin your life if Frank insists upon ruining his?"

"Because," she flashed out, "I want to protect him from bad companions. I drink with him. I even gamble with him. If he must have bad habits, let him share them with his wife. I can always take him home. I am never too far gone for that. I will always be my husband's chum."

After whisky, morphine. And the husband's vice became the wife's. They left the pretty apartment for a cheaper one. They finally drifted to the poorest quarter of the city. But they never quarreled. The husband never went out, except to his occasional "odd jobs" of sketching, without his wife. They were wonderfully devoted. The shopkeeper downstairs, who had once been a schoolmaster, called them "Darby and Joan, Inebriates."

One stormy night when they had wandered far from home and had no money for an umbrella, and no car fare, Frank Thorpe contracted pneumonia. His wife nursed him faithfully, feverishly. For the seven days of his suffering she never left the room, and on the eighth the neighbors found her laughing wildly at the stark body on the bed.

"Mine," she laughed shrilly. "He lived mine. He died mine."

She refused to write to Denton, so Chicago buried him in the Potter's field. It was through the newspapers they learned of the tragedy, and Millicent White and her husband went to Chicago to bring Georgie home.

She was too ill to be moved, too ill even to recognize them. With Jack Jamieson they watched the dying fever do its work there in the hospital ward.

"Frank! Frank!" the weak voice whispered, while the talon-like fingers plucked at the coverlet. "I never left you for a moment. I promised to share your sorrows, and I did. We were never separated, were we, dear? You were always mine, in spite of the hunger and the cold and the delirium. O my love! I tried to take care of you—"

Mildred knelt beside the bed and sobbed. Her husband tried to lead her away.

"I told you," she said, "I told you it was the story of the home swan that went away with the wild one. Dear Georgie!"

"At last," said Jack Jamieson, looking long at the swollen face that still had noble lines, "she had her wish. In life they were never separated."

The head nurse placed the telltale screen about the bed and drew the sheet over the quiet face.

NEW HUSBAND.

Quite an Improvement on the Old.

"I have been compelled to stop drinking it," I said to the friend who asked me to strengthen up on a cup of her good coffee. "Well," she said, "that needn't bother you, for I have Postum Food Coffee here, which completely cured a friend of mine of sick headaches." I tried her coffee and it was very good, but when I tried to make it at home I was disappointed. I soon found that I was not making it correctly, but by putting in two heaping teaspoonfuls of Postum for each person, and letting it boil twenty minutes, it was delicious.

I had at that time been an invalid for several years, but did not know my trouble was caused by coffee drinking, of which I was very fond. I immediately began to feel better after leaving off coffee and using Postum, and stuck to it. One day I met a lady who was troubled the same as I was, and whose appearance on the street really shocked me, for she was so emaciated. She exclaimed in surprise at my improved appearance, and wanted to know what I had been doing. She asked me if I had had a healer of any kind. I said, "Yes, I have allowed Postum Food Coffee to work the almost complete miracle of curing me."

My husband has been absent in Georgia for some time, and has been in wretched health, having been in the hospital twice for indigestion. I wrote him to stop using coffee and try Postum, told him also just how to make it. Yesterday I received a letter from him in which he says, "I am feeling very much better, thanks to you and Postum. I sleep better, eat better, and in fact, my dear, am quite an improvement on the old husband." Alice L. Gilson, 805 Park Ave., Salt Lake City, Utah.

ROONEY IS DEAD

Duluth Young Man, Shot at St. Paul, Has Succumbed.

His Dying Statement Throws the Blame on Healy.

He Claimed He Was Beating Healy's Gambling Game.

Edward Rooney, the Duluth man who was shot night before last at St. Paul in a row which occurred on the steamer Lora as she returned from an excursion given by the Waiters' union, died at the City hospital last night at 10:30 o'clock. His death had been momentarily expected, as the bullet had passed through his intestines and bladder.

His ante-mortem statement, taken by Assistant County Attorney O'Neil and Capt. Clark, is calculated to throw considerable blame on Healy.

Rooney was told by the physicians that he could not live, and that, under the circumstances, he ought to tell the truth.

In a faltering voice he gave his version of the trouble and shooting. He said that Edward Healy and a young man named Bernard were operating a wheel of fortune on the boat. Among gamblers the contrivance is known as a "squeeze spindle" wheel. By means of a brake the operators were enabled to stop the wheel whenever they pleased. Rooney says that Peter Conley and he were acquainted with the workings of the wheel and bet in such a manner that they continually won. Healy, he says, grew angry at this and barred Conley and himself from the game, whereupon they grew angry in turn.

After the boat landed at the foot of Jackson street, Conley and Healy had a rough-and-tumble fight. Rooney separated them and Healy rose. Just before starting off he wheeled and, pulling a revolver from his pocket, fired point blank at Rooney. Rooney was struck on the left side about four inches from the navel. The bullet passed through his intestines and his bladder and lodged in the right hip.

Louis Kantrowich, the other young man who was shot, is a furrier by trade and lives with his parents. He will recover. The bullet passed near his abdomen and made its exit above the right thigh. Kantrowich had little or nothing to do with the trouble, except in so far as he chased Healy after Rooney had been shot. Kantrowich was acquainted with Conley, and for this reason took the part he did.

Healy was arraigend in police court yesterday morning before Judge Orr, his case being continued till Monday mcning. The St. Paul Dispatch says:

"Seen in his cell and informed as to Rooney's deposition, Healy refused to say anything. His attorneys, T. D. and C. D. O'Brien, had ordered him not to speak. Healy is very collected. He was told that Rooney would not live.

"'I'm very sorry,' he said. 'I didn't know him. I had never seen him before. He was a large man, and—well, I must not talk.'

"'I was arraigned on a charge of assault,' he said subsequently, 'but if Rooney dies the charge will be manslaughter. Everything was nice and quiet last night, and I did not look for a bit of trouble until it was right there.'

"James Rooney, brother of the dying man, was notified yesterday morning. He came from Minneapolis, where he is employed by an insurance company.

"'How is my brother getting along,' was his first question.

"'There is hardly any hope for him,' was the answer.

"Mr. Rooney went to the telephone and dictated the following telegram to Frank Rooney, another brother in the grocery business at Lobridge, Wis.:

"'Ed was shot last night. He is at the city hospital. Come prepared to remove remains.'

"He ordered this message duplicated to the parents in Duluth.

"Rooney was addicted to gambling. Healy is said to have figured in gaming affairs in Duluth, though he was not known to the local police.

"Shortly before noon Rooney asked that a priest be sent to his bedside. Father Stariha was summoned and spent about half an hour with the dying man.

"Edward Healy, who did the shooting, is a waiter and cook, but his last place of employment was the Minneapolis Commercial club. He is 30 years old and unmarried. He resides with his father at 638 Linden street. His brother, Dennis Healy, is a clerk in the postoffice.

"The trouble started over some crooked gambling game, with which, it is said, Rooney attempted to get money from the crowd. Whether Healy objected to the game or whether he demanded a split is not known, but he angered Rooney and several other men, and threatened to do him bodily harm after the boat had landed.

"When the boat landed near Jackson street, Healy tried to get away from the men, but they followed and got him in a corner. He pulled a 38-caliber revolver and shot Rooney, then started up Jackson street. Kantrowich followed and threw a stone after him. He turned and shot Kantrowich, and, running further up the street, was caught by Officer Casserly.

"The injured men were removed to the city hospital.

"Dr. Renz operated on Rooney. He found that one bullet had caused eight wounds in the intestines and two in the bladder.

"James Rooney, a brother of the dead man, was secretary of the state game and fish commission during Lind's administration. When asked as to his brother's habits, he said: 'I'm afraid he got into bad company.'"

Mrs. Rooney left Duluth for St. Paul yesterady morning and was probably at the bedside of her son when the end came.

If Rooney's dying statement is true, this is the second time he has got into trouble while a peacemaker. Last January he was arrested for frequenting a house of ill-fame and brought up in police court for it. The reason for his arrest was because of a disturbance that occurred in the place in which he was mixed up in trying to separate the combatants and when the police came they took him in and placed this charge against him.

It is not known whether or not his remains will be brought to Duluth for burial.

LODGE IN LONDON

Declares He Is on Holiday Trip Pure and Simple.

No Foundation For the Rumors on Nicaragua Canal Negotiations.

King Edward Makes First Country Visits Since His Accession.

London, July 13.—Senator Lodge has arrived in London, but will stay here only a few days, then proceeding to Bayreuth and returning here in September. In the course of a conversation the senator said:

"This is purely a holiday trip. I do not intend to meet any English statesmen or to discuss any matters connected with foreign affairs. As regards the Nicaragua canal, I suppose there will be a lot more talking before anything is done.

"The matter of the chairmanship of the foreign relations committee is merely a matter of seniority. If Senator Frye retains his other chairmanship, then Senator Cullom will take the position. If he retains his other chairmanship I will be head of foreign relations committee. What Senators Frye and Cullom intend to do I do not know."

The Associated Press is officially informed that the special cable dispatches announcing that the Nicaragua negotiations had reached a definite phase and that United States Ambassador Choate was conferring with Lord Pauncefote and the Marquis of Lansdowne are utterly without foundation. According to this information, the only stage reached is that of consultation between the Marquis of Lansdowne and Lord Pauncefote and Ambassador Choate will have to see the foreign minister a good many times before the affair is ready to put before the cabinet. It is also said that Mr. Choate has not been and is not likely to be consulted at all.

It now seems that there is small probability of an agreement being reached between France and Great Britain over the Newfoundland question. The negotiations have not been broken off, but they have been progressed so little that Downing street is inclined to regard them as almost hopeless.

John W. Bookwalter, of Ohio, who sailed for the United States on the Hamburg-American liner Columbia yesterday, spent a few days in London this week after a 2,000-mile bicycle trip through Southern Europe, during which he traversed Italy almost from end to end, crossed the Abennines, went over the St. Godard range and wheeled over the mountainous roads of Switzerland. Mr. Bookwalter spent the greater part of his time living among and closely studying peasantry, and he is thoroughly convinced that a crisis is imminent between the urban and rural populations of the world. In the rise in the price of grain he sees the beginning of a struggle of the agricultural element against the concentration of capital in cities. This move, he believes, will commence in America, where, he believes the economic conditions are inferior to thos of Germany and France, especially the latter, which he maintains, is the soundest country in the world, owing to the distribution of wealth between the agrarian and metropolitan classes.

New York, July 13.—King Edward has gone to Staffordshire to visit the Grand Duke Michael and the Countess Torby at Keele hall, says the Tribune's London correspondent. This is the first country house visited by him since he ascended the throne. He has accepted engagements for several other visits.

According to the Tribune's London correspondent the reported engagement of Lord Rosebery and the duchess of Albany is not credited by his intimate friends, and is dismissed in British diplomatic circles as an idle talk. Those who ordinarily have his confidence, decline to believe that he will ever marry again, and are disposed to regard the rumor of a royal alliance as an invention of Radicals eager to banish him from the political stage. Another rumor which also needs corrobative evidence assigns to Lord Rosebery the role of peacemaker in South Africa. It is asserted that Mr. Kruger and the advisers in touch with him in Holland, have offered to negotiate peace with Lord Rosebery but not with either Mr. Chamberlain of Lord Milner. It is hardly credible that Lord Salisbury will seriously entertain proposals derogatory to the dignity of his own government. Mr. Chamberlain and Sir Alfred Milner are the only possible peacemakers on the British side.

THE DAKOTAS.

Hot Winds Are Having Bad Effect on the Wheat Crops.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Mitchell—A hot wind swept over this section of the state Friday that had some bad effects on the wheat crop. Competent judges place the damage done to wheat by reason of hot wind at from twelve to fifteen per cent. The temperature by government theremometer Friday afternoon was 104 and the mercury did not drop until 7 o'clock in the evening, when it turned much cooler. Wheat generally in this country will be ready to cut in another week, hastened by hot weather. Oats are well out of the way.

Huron—The excessive heat of the past eight days had but little effect on wheat and small grain until yesterday, when many fields began showing blight. The tips of heads are bleached almost white and kernels are drying and stalks and blades withering. Reports indicate that yesterday's heat, 99 to 102 in the shade, has more seriously affected wheat than the heat of the entire week. Hot wind began blowing in the afternoon, which told seriously upon wheat and small corn is in good condition, making rapid growth. Rain is needed over the Jim river valley.

The matter of holding another state Epworth league assembly here next year has been determined, and the new board of control, with the officers-elect for the ensuing year, are already planning for the gathering. The newly chosen officers are as follows: Rev. J. E. Houlgate, of Pierre, president; Rev. H. S. Wilkinson, of Huron, vice president; Mrs. Nellie Barker, of Hitchcock, secretary; Ray Carhart, of Mitchell, treasurer; Miss Evangeline Rossman, of Huron, corresponding secretary; Rev. Mr. Stevens, of Watertown, L. V. Slocum of Aberdeen, W. D. Nelson of Pierre, Sidney Shurtleff of Sioux Falls, Mrs. Shepard of Salem, board of control.

Aberdeen—There is a strong feeling here that Senator Kyle's successor should have been some Aberdeen man, but, aside from the matter of location, every one is pleased with the appointment of A. B. Kittredge. He is regarded as the head of the party in the state and his ability is so thoroughly appreciated that local disappointment is practically overcome. This would not be the case had any other man in the state been selected.

Woonsocket—Another robbery occurred Thursday night. The victim was W. K. Thomas. He was asleep in a room back of his office and the safe in the office was opened and $168 in cash taken. The safe was then shut and the loss was not known until the cash box was found back of the court house. The Catholic parsonage was visited, but the priest shot twice at the burglar, who escaped.

Yankton—Lightning struck the residence of Joseph Pier, in West Yankton, and did some damage. Mr. and Mrs. Pier received severe shocks, though they were not seriously injured.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Carl Burns, the enforcement league spotter, had a hearing on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He waived examination and was placed in the county jail. It is possible that his case will not be tried at this term of court and he will be obliged to stay in jail until January. Members of the league held a meeting, but failed to come to any agreement as to what should be done. While they sympathize with Burns, this does not help him out of jail.

Fargo—Fargo has a little strike among the employes of the North Dakota Pile works. A demand for increase in wages was not granted and the men walked out. The recent establishment of a competitive plant divided up the business and the management thought it could not afford to pay higher wages.

The city council has made the annual appropriation levy for the next fiscal year. The total is $132,620, of which $77,620 is for city purposes and $45,500 for school purposes. The total levy is nearly $9000 less than last year, but the reduction is in the school levy, as the city's expense account is estimated to be about $6000 greater than last year.

Goods well advertised in The Herald are all sold.

MARKET WAS WILD

Erratic Fluctuations and Active Trading In All Grains.

Wheat Loses Two Cents In First Ten Minutes.

Corn Shows an Even Heavier Slump---Weather Influences.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 13.—All grain markets were wild and panicky this morning at the opening and for some time afterward. Wheat opened way up and then dropped off 2c in a few minutes. Corn in Chicago opened about 83½c and sold down to 49¾c within ten minutes. Reactions took place from the low points, but all grains showed a considerable loss from yesterday's prices. Corn was weak from better weather in the districts that have been threatened and the fact that the market has been a purely weather one during the advance of the week was shown by the startling weakness which developed in the face of better prospects. There was a little rain during the morning at Kansas City and this set all the bulls to realizing. Cables were firm. Liverpool closing 3d higher. There were some reports of hot winds in South Dakota and damage to wheat from them, but they were not enough to check the bearish feeling. Bradstreet's report of exports of wheat and flour for the week gave a total equaling 5,016,149 bus. Last year, 2,630,000 bus. Broomhall estimates the world's shipments next Monday at 8,000,000 bus, as against 7,428,000 last week and 5,470,000 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 754,000 bus, last year, 622,000 bus. Shipments, 792,000, last year 599,000.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 190 cars, against 243 last week and 344 last year. Chicago receipts, 144 cars, 101 of contract grade.

The opening few minutes of trading on the Duluth board were wild. The opening price was 68¾c, an advance of 1¾c over yesterday. Within six minutes it sold down to 67¼c and by 9:45 it sold at 66¾c. From that point it rallied to 67c at 9:54 and 67⅝-½c at 9:57. A decline to 66¾c at 10:15 followed and in the hour following that it lost another ½c selling at 66¼c at 11:35. A rally from that point followed and the close was at 66¾c. This was a decline from yesterday of ¾c. Chicago showed a loss of 1c and Minneapolis ½c.

Cash wheat was weaker selling at 1c under September, a loss of ½c from yesterday. Sales were 10,000 bus.

In spite of the heavy slump in the price of oats at Chicago the price was marked up 1c at the close in the Duluth market today. There was a run in October flax vance and expecting more liberal marketing of hogs as feeding gets higher in the West, are working to get the hogs as cheap as possible. The situation is a strong one, however, and the market holds the advance well.

NEW YORK MARKET.

Great Excitement on the Produce Exchange.

New York, July 13.—Great excitement prevailed at the New York produce exchange today. The weather map early in the day showed signs of a let-up of the spell in the corn belt. The market, however, was top heavy from protracted bull speculations and it only required rumors of rain in Kansas and Nebraska to break the corn market 2½c in less than ten minutes at New York, while the Chicago market broke 4¼c. Great blocks of "long stuff" came out in a steady stream, which broke September, the speculative favorite, from 56⅝@63¾c, with the rest of the list off in proportion. Selling was largely by eleventh hour bulls, who had practically but slender margins against their deals, while some of the original longs with a good show of "velvet" took advantage of the break to increase their lines of September on the reaction theory. It was largely this class of buying that arrested the decline at 58¾c for September, which position soon recovered to 59½c. But the undertone of the market remained very feverish. A dispatch from Washington, received before noon, stated that no rains had occurred in Ohio or Kansas. This report caused active buying.

Wheat was neglected. In the last half hour there was some reaction in both corn and wheat on denials from Western points that rain had fallen in the corn belt and on reports from the Iowa weather bureau that the temperature there was higher than ever. The close was unsettled here at ⅞@1c loss on wheat, and 2⅞c loss on corn.

Close: Wheat, July, 72¾c; September, 72⅝c. Corn, July, 53¾c; September, 53¾c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Strong But Declined Rapidly.

Chicago, July 13.—Higher cables and dry weather caused a strong opening in wheat today, but on reports of rain in the Northwest, selling became general and prices declined rapidly. September opened ⅝@⅝c to 1@1¼c higher at 68⅞@68¾c, slumped to 66⅝c and rallied on covering to 68c. Northwest receipts were 190 cars, against 243 last week and 244 a year ago. Local receipts were 144 cars, with 101 contract.

Corn opened steady. Lower temperatures throughout the Southwest with predictions of showers started a bull panic and the market went down with a crash under immense offerings covering caused a sharp rally, however. September Opened ⅝c lower to ¼c higher at 52⅝@54c, declined abruptly to 49¾c and rallied to 51⅝c. Receipts were 340 cars, with 20 of contract grade.

Oats opened steady and slumped with wheat and corn. September opened 1¢ lower to ¼c higher at 32½@32⅝c, declined to 29⅝c and rallied to 30⅞c. Receipts were 106 cars.

Provisions were easier with corn. September pork was 2½c lower, opening at $14.50. Lard and ribs each opened 1c lower at $8.70@8.05 respectively.

MARKET GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 207 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.:

Chicago, July 13.—Wheat—The coarse grains have been the theater of activity and have scored and held sharp advances only to be emulated by wheat at the close of the week. The phenomenally hot weather through the garden of the West has aroused general feeling of widespread disaster to crops and pastures. This alarm has made itself manifest in a general wild rush to buy which found expression first in corn and oats and latterly in wheat. On the advance in corn there has been free realizing by professionals who were long, who were of the opinion that corn at 50c and over was high enough or too high. A new set of buyers were in the market, however,, and these spasms of liquidatios were only temporarily effective, power to check the advancing tendency. The advance in corn and oats has been so marked that there is disposition on the part of some of the professional trade to get out of long interests and let the present delirium die out. Scattered holdings in corn are enormous and the sentiment is effect of a good rainfall in the drouth stricken districts would be seen immediately in a sharp break. No question but what much damage has been done, and the crop there is still critical, but the question is, has the advance in course grains discounted the possible crop shortage and left the development of later demand supply condition to overtake the speculative action. Both corn and oats are going to demand good prices on this crop, but purchases may be made at lower level, at any rate it seems a good time to take profits on long property. hTe foreign markets evidently were disturbed by the government report and the weather which is at much below private estimates. hTe close of the week shows advancing tendency on the continent and in the United Kingdom, while houses with foreign connections have been good buyers. The French crop news is bad and estimates of that yield are being cut down. Russia is in the torments of weather similar to that scorching our Western fields and has, beyond doubt, suffered considerable damage. The world is more than ever dependent on American wheat this year and our crop is of surpassing elegance in quality. This flurry later in the week has driven some of the shorts in, but there is still a large outstanding short interest and the market is left lacking general speculative interest. Should a wave of buying strike wheat now a runaway market would be seen as there is very little long wheat to come out on any advance.

Provisions are participating in the advancing tendency shown by all the markets. The packers are apparently on sides and expecting more liberal marketing of hogs as feeding gets higher in the West, are working to get the hogs as cheap as possible. The situation is a strong one, however, and the market holds the advance well.

ACTIVITY IN STOCKS

Break In United States Steel Shares on Heavy Selling.

Sustained Advance of the Leading Grain-Carrying Roads.

Much Confusion Caused By Corrections of Bank Statement.

New York, July 13.—The movement of prices was exceedingly confusing and irregular, some stocks showed violent declines and a large number of others moderate gains. No attention was paid to the gains in London of St. Paul, Union Pacific and Atchison and those stocks fell 1 to 2 points. The break in United States Steel stocks was foreshadowed in the quotations from London. The common fell 1¼, on sales of 8000 shares. Other declines of about a point were shown by Norfolk & Western, Ontario & Western and Brooklyn Rapid Transit. Rock Island opened up nearly a point and Consolidated Gas rather more.

Stocks fluctuated in an uneven manner, members of the various groups pursuing opposite courses. After the opening dealings, there was an abrupt rally in St. Paul, Union Pacific and Atchison, which lifted them from 1 to 1¾ over yesterday's close. Louisville and Baltimore & Ohio were also wanted and gained 1¼@2 respectibely. Fractional recoveries in United States Steel issues followed renewed offerings, sending preferred under 91. Prominent weak stocks including Missouri Pacific, Wabash preferred, Chesapeake & Ohio and Leading General Electric and Tobacco lost 2½ each. The sustained advance of the leading grain carrying roads on the break in the corn market drove the shorts to cover and they bought liberally all around toward 11 o'clock, causing a pretty general cancellation of losses and placing the market above last night.

The movement to cover shorts expended itself before the bank statement appeared and there were recessions of a point in active stocks. United States Steel preferred fell back to near the lowest. The trading was thrown into confusion by successive corrections of the bank statement on the West, but there were some sharp rallies in prices again. Realizing met the rallies and prices ran off again. The closing was active and irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf gossip to Edwards, Wood & Co.—The banking interests including Morgan are known to have bought stocks very freely in the last two days. The market is thought to foreshadow an improving tone in the market, but it is the opinion of representative commission houses that the improvement will start from a lower level of values. Therefore they continue to advise a waiting policy. As to the current manipulation, the most observant brokers on the stock exchange say are brokers on the same powerful combination that was such a potent factor in the bull movement last spring. There is a theory that this contingent is bearing the market with the double purpose of covering shorts and of accumulating stocks for seed from the hands of the tired and discouraged holders. Yet there is little confidence in the contention of some stock exchange traders that this means an early resumption by these same interests of aggressive bull tactics. There is strong hope that the reports of disaster to the corn crop are exaggerated and that outside of Kansas there is still a good chance of a fair yield if rain comes within a few days. The monetary situation and disappointing labor developments continue to exert a deterrent influence on the public. The point of fact commission houses just now generally report but a limited inquiry for stock either for investment of speculative accounts.

Clarke Dodge & Co. to Baker.—Liquidation in stocks has been quite severe during the last week. The whole situation hangs on the corn crop, continued dry weather and hot winds could easily extend the present crop damage to proportions approaching a national calamity. On the other hand timely rains would entirely relieve all anxiety and make the country soon forget all about the damage that has thus far been done.

Wall Street Daily News: "A report is current that the large amount of Northern Pacific stocks bought by the Harriman, Kuhn, Loeb syndicate have been transferred within a day or two to representatives of the syndicate. All parties in interest refuse to make denial or affirmation. A dispatch from Memphis, Tenn., says the Louisville & Nashville on Thursday announced a cut of 20 cents a ton from the Alabama and Kentucky fields, and that yesterday the Illinois Central followed suit. Official announcement was made in Chicago yesterday that Chicago Great Western would restore all rates to a normal basis on July 15. The country is not going to the "Demnition bow wows," Chicago to the contrary notwithstanding. The best buying of the week on Union Pacific common was seen yesterday afternoon. In explanation of the sharp fall in both Union Pacific and Rock Island, it was said yesterday that Harriman Interests and Moore Bros. are on outs."

New York to Baker.—Important interest, beyond protecting their specialties to a certain extent are not likely to be over active, and will certainly not undertake any thing like a bull movement in stocks with the element of outside support the important factor, and perhaps, one which is not to be depended upon at all. Meantime, however, it is as certain that the market cannot forever go down as that it cannot maintain an indefinite rise.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 13.—Cotton opened firm with near months 2 to 3 points lower and far months unchanged to 4 points higher on a scare of shorts which grew into a veritable stampede soon after the call. Large New Orleans buying orders and brisk commission house buying with some bull trade for European account swelled demand on which August jumped up to 7.79 and January to 7.80. July was apathetic. By 10:30 o'clock the worst of the scare seemed over and a turn for profits was made. Yet the market held firm and prices reacted a little.

Cotton spot closed quiet 1-16c lower. Middling uplands, 8c; middling gulf, 8¼c; sales, 725 bales. Futures closed steady. July, 8.31; August, 7.81; September, 7.74; October, 7.77; November, 7.73; December, 7.76; January, 7.78; February, 7.77; March, 7.80; April, 7.80.

REALTY DOINGS OF PRESENT WEEK

Sale of O'Brien-Knowlton Block the Important Feature---President House Buys Residence Site and Will Build.

The most important deal of the week, and, indeed, the most important for some time, was the sale of the O'Brien & Knowlton block at the southeast corner of Michigan street and Second avenue west, to the Davis Real Estate company, of New York. The price was not announced at the time the sale was made, but The Herald is in a position to give it today. The consideration is $62,000, and real estate men generally consider it an excellent "buy." The building, which is very substantial and in excellent condition, cost $60,000, and the lots themselves are considered to be worth $40,000. The building is earning $600 per month. The sale was made by Charles P. Craig & Co. for the American Exchange bank, the owner of the inside fifty feet, and John A. Stephenson, the owner of the corner fifty feet. It was announced that this part of the building was owned by the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company, but Mr. Stephenson bought that company's interest about a year ago. The price for the corner was $26,500 and that for the inside lot was $25,500. The corner is one of the best, if not the very best, on Michigan street.

Aside from this deal, Charles P. Craig & Co. report having made a number of smaller ones during the week, including a couple of lots in the West End.

F. E. House, the president of the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company, is already an owner of Duluth real estate, though he has been in town but a short time. He has selected the site for his residence, has bought the property, and is now looking at plans for his new home, which will probably be built by fall. In the meantime Mr. House and his family are occupying the Bunnell house at Thirteenth avenue east and Superior street. The site selected by Mr. House is on the north side of Superior street, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth avenues east. He purchased the property, 100 feet, from Howard T. Abbott for $3000, the sale having been made during the week. The property includes the following descriptions: Lots 12 and 13, block 15, New Endion; the easterly ten feet of lots 14, 15 and 16 and the westerly ten feet of lot 17, block 1, Longview addition, and lot 12, block 17, Harrison's division.

About the same time that Mr. Abbott sold Mr. House the site for his new residence he purchased another 100 feet across the street. This property, lying at the southwest corner of Superior street and Twenty-fourth avenue east, was purchased from Thomas S. Wood for $2100. It is described as lots 7 and 8, block 18, Harrison's division.

John A. Stephenson has negotiated a new loan for A. L. Wagner on the King block on Superior street. By this deal a mortgage of $25,000 at 6 per cent has been replaced by one of the same amount at 5½ per cent.

R. H. Doran and Dr. John H. Carson have purchased 200 feet at the northeast corner of Thirteenth avenue east and Second street for $2850 from the American Exchange bank. The property is handsomely situated, with Chester creek running through it and providing accommodations for at least two handsome residences with picturesque surroundings.

The Duluth Brewing and Malting company is calling for proposals for the erection of its new 6-story brick malting plant and elevator on the company's property at Twenty-ninth avenue west and Helm street. Bids must be in by noon of July 24. Plans and specifications are in the office of the architect, John J. Wangenstein.

Charles E. Evens has the contract for the construction of a 2-story brick building, 25 feet by 70 feet, at 528 West Michigan street, for Ida P. Davis, of New York. The fact that plans were being considered for this building was announced last week.

TO A CLOSE.

Social Session In London Is Rapidly Nearing Its End.

London, July 13.—The society season which opened with all promises of mourning and dullness is gradually drawing to a close in a round of gaiety, as appreciated as it was unexpected. With no court functions it could scarcely be expected to be brilliant, but there has been a lavishness of entertainment which has been quite surpassed the same period of 1900 and which forms striking testimony to the change of regime. The members of the royal family and the society leaders are now slipping out of town. The majority have gone or are going to the continent.

The theaters are closing up, but the hotels, thanks chiefly to the large number of American visitors, continue to be packed.

One of the most interesting of the many functions which have marked the end of the season is the reopening of Apsley house. For nearly half a century this enormous mansion, in which lived and died the great duke of Wellington, has remained closed, for the recent duke, through poor health, was unable to live in London.

AS A DRUMMER.

Earl of Rosslyn Appeared In New Role.

London, July 13.—The earl of Rosslyn appeared today in a new role, that of a drummer. His lordship has been filling in the time between his recent employment as a correspondent in South Africa and his approaching return to the stage, as a member of Mrs. Langtry's company by traveling for a cattle cake firm. It appears that she was so unsuccessful that his employers terminated his engagement and his lordship sued them for six months' pay. The earl, attired in the pink of fashion, entered the witness box and got a verdict in his favor.

ELECTION APPROVED.

Bishop Edsall Will Be Transferred to Minnesota.

St. Paul, July 13.—Bishop Edsall's election has been approved. Secretary Frederick Paine of the standing committee of the Episcopal diocese of Minnesota said today that two-thirds of the bishops of the church and a large majority of the standing committees of the different dioceses had agreed to his transfer from North Dakota.

WILL NOT RETURN.

Governor Allen and Wife Leave Porto Rico.

San Juan, P. R., July 13.—Governor Allen and his wife, with their household goods, sailed for New York today on the Mayflower. Governor Allen admitted he had no intention of returning to Porto Rico. It is semi-officially announced that he will leave the diplomatic service.

Oatka, Sunday, 2 grand free concerts, 2.

BOILER EXPLODED.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 13.—A telegram from Sunbury, Pa., says the boiler of a small Susquehanna river steamer exploded today, killing two persons and injuring ten others.

SAUTOS COMES IN.

Manola, July 13.—Col. Sautos, with forty men and thirty rifles, has surrendered at Ligao, in Albany province. The insurrection in North Camarines province is practically ended.

COMING TO AMERICA.

Rome, July 13.—Bishop Scalabrind, of Piacenza, will sail from Genoa July 18 on the Italian steamer Liguri to tour the Italian colonies and the mission establishments in the United States.

Excursion to Fond du Lac,

WEDNESDAY, JULY 17, ON

STEAMER J. C. SUIT,

Will leave Fifth avenue dock at 10 a. m, returning at 7 p. m. Tickets, adults, 50 cents; children, 8 to 15 years, 35 cents. Lunch served on the boat.

To the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

The most popular railway from the Northwest to the great show at Buffalo will be the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

It runs, every day, five beautiful trains from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Chicago, connecting directly with all Eastern lines.

Its celebrated Pioneer Limited (the famous train of the world) leaves Minneapolis 7:30 p. m. and St. Paul 8:10 p. m. daily, arriving Chicago 9:30 next morning.

Special features of the "Milwaukee's" service are the observation, buffet parlor cars on day trains, private compartment and standard sleepers on night trains, as well as buffet smoking cars and the best dining service in the world.

Tickets at cheap rates will be on sale every day at all points on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway to Buffalo and return, and the maximum comfort can be obtained by using this line.

Write to J. T. Conley, Ass't Gen'l Passgr. Agent, St. Paul, for the "Milwaukee's" Pan-American folder (one of the completest and most comprehensive guides yet published of the exposition) and all information concerning rates, etc.

THE

Minnesota Abrasive Company

Offers 5000 Shares of Its Treasury Stock for Sale at $5.00 Per Share for the Purpose of Purchasing Machinery to Work its Properties.

The terms of sale are one-quarter in cash and the balance in 30, 60 and 90 days, without interest.

The Company owns the fee to 287 acres in Lake County and 320 acres in Cook County.

These two tracts contain the largest known body of Corundum in the world.

There are millions of tons of this ore in sight. The properties have been personally examined by more than fifty of Duluth's citizens, among whom are: Mayor Hugo, Charles d'Autremont, Jr., J. L. Washburn, James McCahill, Dr. C. L. Codding, Fred Kugler, Professor A. J. Woolman, Dr. J. M. Robinson, Charles H. Dibell, Dr. W. R. Bagley, Adelmer Snyder and L. C. Harris.

Corundum is a mineral used in making sand paper and wheels for grinding and polishing iron, steel and marble. It is superior to emery in every respect, the market price of emery at the present time being $55 to $140 per ton and of Corundum from $200 to $225 per ton.

John S. Webb, who is employed by the Bennett-O'Connell Company, of Chicago, wholesale dealers in abrasive materials, and who has had twenty years' experience in mining and manufacturing emery and corundum, has personally examined these properties, and states that there is no question but they contain millions of tons of a very superior quality of corundum.

Mr. Webb has also carefully tested the wheels made from this corundum and pronounces them superior to any abrasive wheel on the market. Any person desiring to do so can call at the company's offices and test the wheels made from their product.

Both tracts of land are within a mile and a half of Lake Superior, and by their nearness to water have an advantage of $6 to $8 per ton in freight charges over any other emery or corundum mine in the country.

Four different assays of the product have been made by R. W. Hunt & Co., of Chicago, the lowest of which showed 37 per cent and the highest 54 per cent of pure corundum.

The company has retained 20,000 shares, ($200,000) of the capital stock in the treasury for development purposes, but it is not believed that it will ever be necessary to make any further sales than the present one of 5000 shares.

The stock is non-assessable and there is no stockholders' liability.

We confidently predict that this will prove to be the richest mineral find of any kind ever made in Minnesota.

For further particulars apply at the company's offices, 502-503 Manhattan Building.

A Feminine Variety of Hazing In Boarding School Annals.

Boys, away at school, may be adepts at planning trials which cause the physical natures of their poor victims to shrink from undergoing, but it takes a girl's head every time to plan something to cause mental torture. At a school that I know of, the first thing girls do when a new boarder is introduced to them is to put her through a sort of oral examination in order to ascertain just how easily she will believe what is told her. If she is found "easy," then there is sure to be some fun in store for all who wish to participate.

In that school it was the custom for the pupils and teachers to assemble every evening after dinner for prayers. The principal would read a chapter in the Bible, after which we would all kneel and listen to an earnest petition from her lips to the effect that her dear pupils would grow up to be models of womanhood and endowed with the highest moral characters.

One day a new boarder arrived, and her utter ignorance of boarding school life served as an incentive to the sinners. While they were getting acquainted and trying to make the new pupil at home, one young lady said, very kindly:

"Miss Davis, I really think that you will find life with us very pleasant after the newness has once worn off, and that takes but a day or two."

"That's it," spoke up another, "there really is only one thing that is hard to get used to, but I don't mind it now."

"What is that?" asked Miss Davis, apprehensively.

"Oh, you know we have prayers every night, and after the principal has finished her prayer then the girls must take their turn."

"Oh, I could never do that!" said Miss Davis anxiously.

"That's just what I said," replied Florence, "but it had to be done, and so I summoned all my grit and got through some way; but it was embarrassing."

After a short pause Miss Davis said: "Could you tell me something I could say tonight? Really, I never prayed out loud in my life and—I—I don't know just what to say."

"Well," said Florence without a sign of pity, while all of the others present displayed very sober faces, "the first night I was here I said: 'Create in me a clean heart, O God, and, renew a right spirit within me.' That is short and sounds rather nice. You might take it."

Just then the dinner bell rang, and the girls filed downstairs. Through the meal it was noticed that the "new" girl ate nothing and looked rather pale. After dinner, as the girls went upstairs to prayers, Miss Davis timidly clutched Florence's arm and said:

"Oh, please sit near me. I am so frightened, and for fear I'd forget that verse I have written it out."

"Don't be afraid," said Florence, "we will sit right next to the principal, and as soon as she has finished, you say yours, and then you'll have it over with and can listen to us in peace."

Poor, trembling new scholar! As the principal proceeded towards the end of her reading Miss Davis' face blanched so that the girls took pity on her, that they could not then mend matters, as speaking during prayers was prohibited.

The dreaded time came at last, and the principal's prayer began. While she was praying the principal wondered why the girl next to her trembled so, but that was not the time to inquire. As she finished praying and started to rise to her feet, followed by the others, she was astounded to hear a low, quavering voice saying "Create in me a clean heart, Oh! God—oh! God—Oh! God—amen!"

Not until the last word was spoken did the poor girl notice that she was the only one on her knees and that all the others were standing and watching her. She arose to her feet and looked around for Florence, but that young lady had urgent business elsewhere, and found it necessary to leave the awe struck and silent group.

Of course, explanations soon came, and, although the principal was already planning a little speech to be delivered to an audience of one the next day, still as everyone else present was laughing, and even the new girl herself seemed to be enjoying the joke played on her, the unbending, stubborn will of the "head" finally unbend and she laughed so heartily that the cause of all the trouble heard her and plucked up courage enough to return and participate in the fun. "BOBBY."

$45.00 Seattle, Tacoma and Portland and Return.

July 6 to 13 the Northern Pacific railway will place on sale tickets from Duluth to above points and return at extremely low rate of $45.00, with final limit for return Aug. 31, 1901. Destination must be reached not later than July 13. Tickets are first-classs and good for stopover privileges in either direction, within transit limits. This offers an unsurpassed opportunity for those desiring to hunt new homes and farms to go into the Northwest and look over the country, or for those wishing to visit relatives or friends, or to make pleasure trips. Two trains daily, including famous North Coast Limited.

Production of Copper Mines

Figures For Last Year Show a Decrease as Compared With Preceding Year In Lake Superior District.

(Copyright, 1901, by Horace J. Stevens.)

Houghton, Mich., July 13.—The production of refined copper by the mines of the Lake Superior district, all located in the state of Michigan, was smaller in 1900 than in any of the four preceding years. The state law requires the producing companies to make returns on or before Sept. 1 of each year for the preceding calendar year, but the following figures are from advance returns, and may be relied on implicitly. In the case of several of the mines the products are estimated, but in such cases the estimates are not mere guesses, but are founded upon reliable data, and will vary but a trifle from the official returns. These figures of 1900 production may be accepted as easily within 1 per cent of the final returns. In order to compare the production of the past calendar year with that of the preceding twelvemonth, the detailed figures of output for both years are given in pounds of refined copper:

Mine.	1900.	1899.
Calumet and Hecla....	77,761,382	89,349,963
Tamarack	19,000,000	18,565,992
Quincy	14,116,561	14,391,152
Osceola	12,000,000	11,358,049
Atlantic	4,930,149	4,575,832
Wolverine	4,789,229	4,500,573
Franklin	3,068,710	1,230,000
Baltic	1,755,000	621,326
Arcadian	1,350,000	593,400
Centennial	900,000	730,240
Arnold	855,000	762,240
Mass	172,526	42,800
Adventure	100,000	.....
Phoenix	88,206	.....
Mohawk	70,000	.....
Miscellaneous	50,000	50,000
Totals	141,698,813	146,950,338

The foregoing table shows a decrease in 1900 production, as compared with the preceding year, of 5,346,525 pounds, equivalent to 3.63 per cent. The total production of the lake mines for the past ten years, in pounds of refined copper, has been as follows:

Year.	Products.
1891	114,224,760
1892	123,198,460
1893	112,645,078
1894	114,208,870
1895	129,720,749
1896	142,657,500
1897	142,702,380
1898	147,565,738
1899	146,950,338
1900	141,698,813

Until the year 1890 the production of refined copper by lake mines did not reach 100,000,000 pounds in any year. There was a rapid increase in production from 1887, with 76,028,697 pounds, and including 1892, with an output of 123,198,460 pounds, followed by two years of smaller production. In 1895 the output again increased largely, and once more in the following year, but after 1896 the increase was small for the three following years, and in 1899 there was an actual falling off of 1,000,000 pounds, followed by the much greater decrease of 1900. The decreased production of the two past years may aptly be compared to the similar decrease of 1893 and 1894, and will be followed by an increase for 1901, although not so marked a gain as was made in 1895 can be looked for this year.

Analysis of the detailed figures of production for the two preceding years quickly shows that the decrease is ascribable solely to the marked reduction in product of the Calumet & Hecla, the 1900 output of that mine being 11,849,581 pounds less than in the preceding year, a decrease of 13.22 per cent, while the production of the other mines, lumped, increased no less than 6,503,056 pounds, the increase amounting to 11.32 per cent.

The decreased production of the Calumet & Hecla will be variously construed, according to the basis of the authority making the deductions. In some quarters the decrease will be taken as an evidence of purposely restricted output with a view to holding copper at its present high price, while others will regard the figures as showing that the mine has passed its zenith of productivity; while yet a third party will assert that the figures indicate bad management. However, none of these conclusions are correct. Even so rich a mine as the Calumet & Hecla has its fluctuations in production, and it is certain that the management took advantage of the rising copper market of 1898 and 1899 to get out a vast amount of copper. The opening of the amygdaloid shafts has also been to some extent a drag on the regular work of the Calumet & Hecla proper, opened on the Calumet conglomerate lode, but after all allowances are made for the factors enumerated, the principal cause for the decreased production of 1900 will be found in the mine fire of May, 1900, which raged for several weeks, putting the greater part of the mine out of commission. It has never been the policy of the Calumet & Hecla to stimulate prices by a reduction of output, although the management of this mine was a party to an agreement to limit production, some twelve years ago, after the collapse of the Secretan corner in copper, when there was an unsold stock of copper aggregating 130,000 tons, at that time equal to six months' supply by the mines of the world. The action of the Calumet & Hecla at that particular time was a highly commendable one, as it saved the copper industry from a crash that would have ruined all but a half dozen of the strongest mines, and that would have spread misery and hunger in its wake to tens of thousands. The condition then existing was so radically different from the present situation that the action of the Calumet & Hecla in 1889 can in no wise be construed as evidence that the management of that mine favors artificially high prices for its product, made by manipulation and restricted production. The action of the Calumet & Hecla in 1889 was taken after the collapse of a copper corner, and was calculated to restore confidence and stability to the industry. The management of the Calumet & Hecla never has been, and is not now, a friend to a rigged market, and those who draw any other conclusion are arguing with their eyes shut to all the acts of a highly successful business career covering the past third of a century.

The Tamarack's production last year was but slightly greater than in 1899, and the gain for the current year will be comparatively small, but in 1902 the Tamarack will move forward at a surprising rate. The increase in production, which will begin late in 1901, will be due to the placing of No. 5 shaft in full commission. This is in many respects the greatest, as it will eventually become the deepest shaft of the mining world. It will eventually result in practically doubling the productive capacity of the mine, and will put the Tamarack within the next few years on the plane of production occupied by the Calumet & Hecla only a few years ago.

The Quincy production has fallen off from 1897 until a short time ago, and the 1900 product was a trifle under that of 1899. The output for 1901 will be much the largest in the history of the mine, as the vast and costly betterments under way for the past four years are now completed, and the Quincy is now producing at the rate of fully 20,000,000 pounds per annum, a rate about 50 per cent in excess of last year.

Atlantic figures for 1900 show a gain of more than 5 per cent in output. The Atlantic has made many betterments in its equipment, and is now in possession of greater facilities for large and economical production than ever before. Two of the stamps at the Atlantic mill are in use by the Baltic mine, which will have its own mill before the close of the preesnt year. The Atlantic should show steady gains in production for several years to come.

The Wolverine gained about 7 per cent in 1900, a very gratifying showing as the mill equipment remains the same as it has been for several years past; while for June, of the present year, the Wolverine made 10 per cent more copper than in the best preceding month in its history. A new mill is now building, and will be placed in commission in about one year, after which the Wolverine will make a gain in production little less than phenomenal. The Wolverine enjoys exceptional advantages in several respects, and makes cheaper copper than any other amygdaloid mine of the district, with the exception of the Quincy.

The Franklin product for 1900 shows a gain of almost 200 per cent over the preceding year, and is the largest secured for some years. The new mill of the Franklin went into commission in August, 1899, the mine having made no copper since November, 1898, until then, owing to the burning of the old mill.

The Baltic production for 1900 was a highly creditable one for a new mine and a property using leased stamps. With its own mill the Baltic will soon become one of the heavy producers of the district.

The Arcadian output for 1900 was materially larger than in 1899, in which year the mine began production. At present the mill is making about 50 per cent more copper than one year ago, owing to recent favorable developments in the St. Mary's shafts and to the shifting of mining operations at the mine proper toward the south, where better ground is found than in the northernmost shafts.

The production of the Centennial was secured with a very antiquated one-stamp mill, which is worked as a sort of side-issue, affording a convenient opportunity for turning rock broken in development work into cash with which to partially defray the cost of opening the large new mine now being made on the Kearsarge amygdaloid.

The Arnold product shows a small gain over 1899. At present but little work is being done on the cash bed lode, at the Arnold proper, but an extension of the "Owl Creek" fissure vein at the old Copper Falls mine, now a part of the Arnold consolidation, is being developed.

The production of the Mass mine was made solely in the form of native copper secured in opening the mine, as the mill is not yet in commission, though it will begin stamping in a few weeks. The Mass is phenomenally rich in virgin metal found in considerable masses, from which the mine takes its name.

The Adventure is a neighbor of the Mass and the mines are in many respects similar. The Mass has its mill nearly finished while the Adventure has just started building, but to offset this disadvantage, the Adventure has opened more or less stoping ground on all seven of its parallel amygdaloids, and when its mill starts can hardly fail to become a large producer from the first.

The Phoenix, as now constituted, is a consolidation of the Phoenix, Garden City and St. Clair mines, the mining work at present being confined to the latter named property. The production for 1900 was all in heavy copper, as the mine has no mill, although it is now planned to build a one-stamp mill in the near future. The case of the Phoenix is rather remarkable, as well as highly encouraging, in that the mine has practically paid expenses since last October from the mass and barrel copper taken out, in addition to which a large amount of excellent stamp rock has been mined and stocked and some fine stopes opened.

The 70,000 pounds of copper credited to the Mohawk is from two cargoes of "mohawkite" shipped to Wales for smelting. A special arsenical smelter is now being built for this mine in New Jersey, where the "mohawkite" will be smelted. The Mohawk is peculiar in that it is simultaneously opening two mines, which cross each other at approximately right angles. The main mine is opened on the Kearsarge amygdaloid, while the second mine is on a fissure vein of "mohawkite," a peculiar mineral which is approximately two-thirds pure copper, in addition to carrying considerable values in silver, nickel and arsenic. A stamp mill adjoining that of the Wolverine is now building for the Mohawk mine, to crush the lode rock, and this mill will be in commission in about one year.

In addition to the producing mines of 1900 there are a number of other important properties in the district, one of which, the Isle Royale, is already making copper. The present Isle Royale is a consolidation of the old Isle Royale, Huron and Portage mines, and has been opened and equipped on an unprecedentedly large and thorough scale, at a cost of upwards of $1,500,000. One stamp at the new mill started in May last and at present three stamps are crushing about 1200 tons of rock daily. For 1902 the Isle Royale will probably be found occupying fifth place among the copper producers of the lake district, a position which will be contested in the following year by the Wolverine, Trimountain, Mohawk and Champion mines, now seriously discussed, the Isle Royale may be forced to take sixth place as a producer next year, as the consolidation suggested would make what, without question, would become the largest amygdaloid mine of the district, and a property ranking with the Tamarack and Calumet & Hecla among the world's greatest copper mines.

Among the mines not having or building mills are the Michigan and Victoria, in Ontonagon county, both of which will probably start the construction of stamp mills within another twelvemonth.

HORACE J. STEVENS.

THE FAR WEST

Miss Stokely Writes of Beauties of Washington and Oregon.

Miss Mary E. Stokely, who recently left Duluth for Portland, Oregon, writing to a friend in the city, under the date of July 4, tells some of the beauties of that metropolis, of the trip out there and the country generally. She says:

"Have you ever been in this part of the country? If not, let me advise you to come out and see a part of the United States that is fully worth going 2000 miles to see. I had a delightful trip over the Northern Pacific. Of course, the trip is not pleasant going through Dakota and Montana—the land being farms and grazing land for miles—but it gives one a very good idea of the vastness of the Western country. Western Montana is mountainous. The new observation car on the train is an excellent thing. When we got into Washington, and going through the Yakima valley, we had a fine view of the country for miles from the rear of this car, and were as comfortable as if sitting in our libraries at home.

"This Yakima valley is a wonderful spot, fruits of every description grow there, and land is valuable. Flowers were growing in profusion, all such beautiful flowers, all colors and varieties. Then comes Yakima canon. The road winds in and out and around for miles, about thirty, I believe, following the Yakima river all that distance. We seemed to be completely shut in by mountains, at times rising very abruptly on either side of the river, but slowly and surely worked our way out. The ride over the Cascades was delightful. We all clear up in the clouds and could look down thousands of feet into the canons directly below, and it made one's heart almost stop beating to think what might happen should the train do anything but what a well balanced train ought to do.

"We got to Seattle in due time and left one hour after our arrival. Portland was the next stopping place of any importance, and the end of our journey. It is a nice old town, lots of breathing space, big houses with plenty of windows in them, great yards, immense trees, flowers and flowers, green hedges, beautiful parks and people with broad smiles on their faces. They look as if they were glad they were living. Perhaps because it does not cost so much to live as so many things grow here and in such quantity.

"Of course we are just a great, overgrown village yet. We have our old-fashioned way of doing things, and I want to say right here that the fire department in Duluth would teach their Portland brothers a few lessons. Your fire department is something you should feel proud of.

"The streets here are so good and wide, but not in very good condition; however, they are going to be improved. From Portland Heights one can see on clear days five snow-capped mountain peaks, a beautiful sight indeed. The water from the city comes from Mount Hood, and is as clear as crystal.

"I enjoyed my trip down the Willamette valley, on the way to my timber claim. No matter in which direction you look you see green hills, blue sky, immense farms, fine cattle and sheep and fruit, and such fruit all kinds, in great quantities and at reasonable prices. I have seen boxes of strawberries where there were not more than a dozen in a quart box, they were so large, and they were selling for 5 cents per quart. As to cherries and raspberries, apricots and nectarines, you see them in their perfect state. I wish it were possible to send you a box of black cherries, like some that were in the market yesterday, then you would believe all these things I am saying. I wrote home to some of my friends lately that I measured a rose one evening and found it to be fifteen inches in circumference. Of course they will hardly believe it.

"But best of all, and what makes the heart of the Eastern man and woman rejoice, is the timber. It is fine grade, and it seems wrong to cut such trees down. Really the timber in Minnesota seems like fence posts when compared to these trees. I have a timber claim that will cut 5,000,000 feet. It is nearly all yellow fir, some cedar and some hemlock. I intend to hold this claim for several years, and consider it a good investment, as there is no danger of fire and the timber is growing all the while.

"You would be surprised at the number of Duluth people out in this country. I saw four standing on a street corner talking the other day.

"All kinds of business seems good here, but timber and cattle business surpass all others. Lawyers do not seem to be doing a rushing business. There is very little contention among men; guess the climate promotes a placidity of temper that is death to the law business.

"I have a very fine position with one of the largest wholesale grocery firms in the city, and find them exceedingly pleasant people to work for. Have not used my homestead right yet, but expect to make use of that in the cattle country, east of the mountains. You must be sure to come out next summer and see for yourselves the beauty I have merely touched upon.

"MARY E. STOKELY."

THE WORLD OF LABOR

Old Officers of the Duluth Trades Assembly Are Re-elected---An Eight Hour Day League Being Formed.

The election of officers for the ensuing term was held at the regular meeting of the Trades' assembly last evening. All the old officers were re-elected. They are as follows: President, George M. Davis; vice president, Henry Dworschak; secretary, G. T. Winberg; financial secretary and treasurer, A. A. Fider; reading clerk, Otto Gross; sergeant-at-arms, Jesse Walker; trustees, William Tunell, John Paulson and Thomas Savard. G. L. Rockwell, of Minneapolis, secretary of the Supreme Grand league, an organiaztion at the head of the movement for an eight-hour workday, was a visitor at the assembly and reported the progress that he is making in the formation of a local league to be known as No. 3. Every voter is entitled to a membership in the league. Mr. Rockwell is receiving the support of all the leading labor men in the city and the new organization promises to start out with about 300 members. The assembly appointed a committee to bring the matter before the clergymen of the city and get them interested in the movement. The committee is comprised of M. J. Filiatrault, G. T. Winberg, Walter Johnson, A. A. Fider, S. W. Kelley and G. M. Davis. A little discussion took place over the approaching Labor day celebration, and President Davis will appoint a committee of seven to make the necessary arrangements and report at the next meeting. A report was made that two of the restaurants of the city are employing non-union men along with the union men, and a committee, comprised of Joseph Pratz, John Paulson and Walter Johnson, was appointed to visit the places, investigate and endeavor to have the restaurants thoroughly unionized.

The most important feature in the electrical linemen's strike during the past week was the returning to work of the men employed by the Duluth Telephone company at the latter's terms ,a nine-hour day. It is claimed that the move was not sanctioned by the union and was somewhat discouraging to the other men that are still holding out for the eight-hour day. The men still out claim that there is no special fight against the Zenith company, that the union has not permitted its men to go to work for one company at nine hours and for another company at eight hours. The men are said to have gone back to the Duluth Telephone company on their own accord. Regret is expressed that some miscreant has resorted to the practice of malicious attacks on the property of the Zenith company. The men claim that such acts as the hurling of a brick through the window of the operating room and the cutting of the cables will not help the cause of unionism, and the men belonging to the union realize it. On the contrary, such actions will hurt the cause of union labor and the union men say that they do not countenance violence in any way. Manager Kritzer, since the brick incident, has stated that the Zenith company does not feel called upon to forbear any longer in the matter and that men will be brought in from the outside to take the places of the striking linemen.

The Typographical union held a meeting last Sunday and listened to an account of the Mankato convention by President Dworschak. Among the communications received at the meeting was a protest against a certain Duluth firm for using the product of a non-union advertising firm. An installation of officers was held, and the standing committees were appointed by the chair. W. Moran, E. W. Prophet and Charles Keene were appointed a committee to make arrangements for a turning out of the union on Labor day.

The Cigarmakers' union has shown its enterprise this week in petitioning the city council for advertising space between the city hall and police headquarters. One of the compensations promised by the union in return for the space is a Western Union clock with a 32-inch dial, to be placed in a cupola above the advertising.

The Carpenters' union met on Tuesday night, the night of the fireworks, and there was a small attendance. Four applications were presented for membership and one new member was admitted.

The Butchers' union has completed all arrangements for the annual picnic to be held at Lester Park July 31.

One of the chief events in the labor world at the head of the lake during the past week was the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, at West Superior. There was a big attendance and the Superiorites entertained the visitors royally. On Tuesday night there was a banquet at Maryland hall, and W. E. McEwen, secretary of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor, responded to a toast on "Organized Labor of Minnesota." Many of the prominent leaders of the labor movement in Wisconsin responded to toasts. The meeting was largely attended by Duluthians.

M. J. Keough, second vice president of the International Molders' Union of America, a resident of Troy, N. Y., was a visitor in the city this week. He was here attending to matters relating to the union.

LABOR NOTES.

Madagascar is importing Chinese.

Chicago has a servant girls' union.

St. Louis freight handlers' wages have been advanced 15 cents per day.

Peoria boilermakers' strike earned recognition of union and 3 per cent increase in wages.

In Norway it is necessary for a woman to hold a certificate of proficiency in cookery and needlework before being allowed to marry.

Only about 20 per cent of the waiters in German hotels and restaurants receive any wages, as they are expected to live on their fees.

At Galesburg, Ill., the city attorney has declared unconstitutional a city ordinance requiring all contracts to be let on the basis of an eight-hour day for laborers.

As a protection against the competition of Chinese and prison labor the White Broom Manufacturers' association of California has adopted the blue label of the International Broommakers' union, and will in future refuse to sell the goods to dealers who handle the product of prison and Chinese labor.

State Militia and National Guardsmen will not hereafter be seated as delegates in the Philadelphia Central Union of Textile Workers, and if any of the delegates who now hold seats in that body are members of these organizations the unions they represent will be requested to withdraw them. This was decided on a resolution offered by a delegate from the Ingrain Carpet Loom Fixers' and Weavers' union. The delegates, in voicing their objections to the National Guard, said the organization was not maintained to defend the country against enemies, but was used by corporations to help keep down wages. In reporting on the condition of trade nearly every union complained that it was unsatisfactory. In many branches of the textile trades there is very little being done.

Henry George in Philadelphia North American: That evening Albert Johnson did most of the talking. His subjects were taken in the main from his vast store of personal experiences with men and things. One anecdote he related will always remain in my memory. He said that when his brother Tom and he were, a year or two ago, in England together, his brother said to him one day, as they strolled through a great art gallery—one of the famous exhibitions of the world: "Albert, if you had your choice of a single picture, which one of all this great collection would you select?" With scarcely a moment's hesitation, Albert Johnson pointed to a canvas depicting a man, implored on the one side by his wife to return to work, and called on the other side by his fellow-workmen to strike. "There," he said; "there is one of the great common tragedies of life. In which direction lies the paramount duty? I'd rather have that piece of canvas than all the rest of the paintings put together."

DUN'S REVIEW

Leading Industries Well Employed With Confidence Expressed.

New York, July 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: General business continues its even course with all the leading industries well employed and with confidence expressed on every hand. Bountiful crops of wheat seem assured and the damage to corn while considerable in some districts does not promise to be sufficiently general or serious to at all impede the progress of the country. Labor troubles are in process of settlement and speculators have been responsible for most of the unrest which has been reflected in the markets. Steel mills are actively employed and there is a distinct improvement in the demand for finished products while quotations are without alteration. In base iron for use by makers of agricultural implements there is a brisk movement, plates are taken readily and there is no sign of diminished consumption in structural material. Rails are ordered freely, with notable pressure for light weights. Billets are more quiet and few new transactions are recorded. The total number of pig iron furnaces in blast on July 1, as recorded by the Iron Age, was three less than a month previous and the weekly change was 210,950 tons. Although this is a trifling decrease of 3575 tons compared with the production on June 1 it far exceeds all earlier records. On July 1, 1900, the weekly output was 238,418, and in 1899 it was 233,396 tons. The most surprising and gratifying feature of the situation is the decrease of 15,125 tons in furnace stocks, notwithstanding an output at the rate of over 16,100,000 tons annually.

Improvement is general in the footwear industry, although no higher prices are obtained. The market for spring goods is active, full lines of prices are expected while men's satin shoes are in better request. Jobbers have light stocks of summer goods which restailers should exhaust before the season ends. Leather is in good demand and firm, but without quotable change in price. Western shoe manufacturers have bought glazed kid in the local market and also taken freely of other upper leathers. The large buyers of dry hides withdrew from the market owing to the prices demanded by importers and trading became dull.

Textile lines have settled in a steady position that promises fore lasting prosperity than if prices had been forced higher. A sensational activity had followed the altered attitude of buyers. In jobbing circles it is thought that trade will not be prosecuted vigorously until August, but salesmen on the road send in good orders. Heavyweight woolens are securing duplicate orders and mills are making extensive preparation for the lightweight season. Manufacturers are well employed and exhibit increasing interest in raw material. Wool has not altered in price, but the market is firmer and sales increase. Growers are said to be selling rather than consigning, while many ranchmen refuse to do any business at present prices. In the cotton goods division there is nothing new, regular and

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT

Chicago Record-Herald: There is always a suspicion that the preacher who appears in the pulpit in a shirtwaist is not able to preach a sermon that will attract a crowd of itself.

Chicago Post: Omaha ministers announced from their pulpits yesterday that shirtwaists were acceptable in their sight as a garment in which to attend church. As between empty pews and shirtwaists the ministers wisely prefer shirtwaists, with someone in them, of course.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The officiary board of the First Methodist church of Omaha directs that at all public services the women must remove their hats immediately upon entering the pews. The Omaha milliners will be inclined to look upon this as a rude and tyrannical invasion of their inalienable rights.

San Francisco Chronicle: The growth of religious toleration in this generation was recently strikingly illustrated in Albany, N. Y., where ten children of Christian parents were baptized in the Jewish synagogue, Temple Beth Emeth. The incident grew out of the destruction by fire of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. Various churches in Albany were offered to the homeless congregation, but the hospitality of Temple Beth Emeth was one of the first to be offered and was accepted.

Kansas City Times: The short sermons delivered by clergymen today are popular. This does not signify that church people are less devoted to the cause of religion now than they were when long sermons were in vogue. It means that the church is keeping abreast of the times. Men and women never were so busy as they are now. Ministers of the gospel are quick to grasp the situation. It took the world a long time to realize that "brevity is the soul of wit." Now this adage is not quoted in vain.

Des Moines Leader: All classes are playing—even the preachers. It is not believed, however, that in the United States as yet the clerical profession is as completely captured as was the old Scotch minister of whom the story is told: Passionately fond of golf, unfortunately the rigors of the game led this Scottish preacher into frequent indulgences of strong language—stronger by far than was becoming a gentleman wearing the cloth. His congregation finally gave him his choice—he should give up golf or swearing. Thereupon he promptly decided to give it up—golf? Of course not—the ministry.

"But since I cannot play at golf unless I swear a wee,
I'll give it up," "What, golf?" they cried. "Nay, mon—the ministry!"

Collection For Chinese.

At the prayer meeting last Thursday evening at the First Swedish Baptist church Rev. Lundin took occasion to mention the awful condition in China, where in a certain province the people, after having exhausted all means, are eating each other. According to newspaper reports the conditions are horrible. One of the members of the church arose and said it would be well to pray for those starving people, but suggested that more substantial help would relieve them quicker. The Chinese have killed hundreds of Christians, he said, but this should not prevent the practice of the great principles of Christianity. A collection was then taken up and $3.77 will be sent to Rev. Frank Peterson, district secretary for the American Baptist Missionary union, and will be forwarded to China.

Business University Happenings.

Irving Berger recently left Duluth Business University to act as bookkeeper for the Great Lakes Towing company.

W. G. Lerch, a former graduate of the college, has been promoted to the position of chief clerk and assistant of President Felton of the Chicago & Alton railway.

P. A. Johnson left the college last Wednesday to act as stenographer for the Northern Pacific railway.

Miss Mayme M. Hall left the college last Tuesday to accept the position of stenographer for Attorney H. H. Grace, West Superior, Wis.

The following new members enrolled at the college during the week: Misses K. Madigan, L. Garbee, A. Boyd, Pearl Petz, and Messrs. Russell Barnes, F. Sadowske and F. Madigan.

Filing Its Deeds.

The Great Northern railway people continue to file deeds to property along the bay front in Superior, the acquired lands extending from Old Superior to the West End. Deeds to the property are in the name of William R. Begg, land agent of the company.

FAMOUS SHRINE

The Annual Pilgrimage to Sainte Anne de Beaupre.

Excursions Will Leave Duluth July 21, With Many Going.

Something of the Famous Shrine and Its Legend.

The great feast of Saint Anne de Beaupre falls this year on Friday, July 26, and the annual pilgrimage to the shrine will begin from this point on Sunday, July 21. This annual pilgrimage to the shrine of Saint Anne is an event long looked forward to by the French Catholics of the Northwest, and in previous years there has been a large attendance from the district surrounding the head of the lakes. It is expected that the numbers that will journey eastward to the shrine this year will be even larger than formerly, on account of the low excursion rate being offered by the South Shore road.

The shrine is located in a little hamlet in the north country, where the St. Lawrence river sweeps toward the sea. The town takes its name from the patron saint, and is known as Ste. Anne de Beaupre. The fame of the little village is widespread. Located sixteen miles down the St. Lawrence river from Quebec, Can., it nestles cozily in the shadow of the high protecting walls, so ancient in appearance that there is little to suggest the progress of the day. The very atmosphere is redolent of the French past. This delightful retreat owes its existence to the presence of the famous shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre. In the center of the village stands a magnificent church, with its gilded crosses pointing the way of salvation and beckoning the weary and heavy laden of the world with a promise of heavenly rest. It is a place of miracles, a haven of comfort to thousands of sick and sore oppressed, who go on pilgrimage to the wonderful shrine to beseech the favor of the good Saint Anne.

This shrine is known as the oldest votive shrine on the continent. The legend has it that long years ago some pious fisher-folk undertook to build for themselves a little hamlet, on the banks of the St. Lawrence river. This devoted band of people built a church, which was built too near the shifting sands of the river, and was destroyed. One or two other efforts were made, and finally an edifice was erected on high, dry land.

While the temple was being erected the first miracle is said to have occurred, one of the laborers being suddenly cured of a pain-racking rheumatism. From that time the place became a shrine of devotion, growing and waxing strong in good works as the pyramids of crutches and quantities of spectacles, canes and other paraphernalia is said to testify to the efficacy of the prayers that ascend to the great white throne through the intercession of the beloved patronesses of the shrine.

Pilgrimages to the shrine from the Northwest are made over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road, and the company has made special preparations this year to handle the people that will leave for Ste. Anne de Beaupre on July 21.

The train leaving the Union depot in this city will consist of day coaches, tourist sleepers, palace sleepers, which will run through from Duluth to Ste Anne without change. An excursion rate has been made of $25 for the round trip, the tickets good returning until Aug. 31 inclusive.

Of course, there are a great many people that do not attend the ceremonies at the shrine who take advantage of the low rates to visit points in the East, and the excursion tickets allow stopover privileges at any point in Canada and at any point on the South Shore road on the return trip.

Arrangements have been made for those who wish to visit the Pan-American exposition to have their tickets read via the Canadian Pacific steamer via Owen Sound and Toronto, either going or returning, at a rate of $30. This rate includes meals and berths on the steamer.

Decision In a Superior Contest Over Office.

Judge Vinje yesterday rendered a decision in circuit court, at Superior, in the Baxter-Peterson case, sustaining Mayor Parker in his contention that Baxter had forfeited his office as a member of the board of public works, because he had not filed his bond as provided by law. Mr. Peterson was recently appointed to a position on the board in place of Baxter, who was removed by Mayor Parker. Peterson will now act as a member of the board, which he has not done heretofore on account of the action brought in the circuit court by Baxter. The controversy is not entirely disposed of, however, as Baxter and his friends have announced that they will carry the matter to the supreme court.

If the higher court sustains the mayor it will dispose of all the pending cases brought by former city officials, who have been removed by the present city administration.

Juniors to Camp.

One of the most enjoyable sides of the Y. M. C. A. work is the camp life and this year the Junior camp is to be about a mile above Fond du Lac, on the St. Louis river. John Brown, F. F. Siorkey, C. F. How, Jr., and J. G. Hamaker will be in charge of the boys and about twenty-five or thirty are expected to attend. They will be out from Wednesday, July 24, until Friday, Aug. 2, and expect to have a glorious time. Good boating, bathing and fishing and water polo will be the aquatic sports, while there are nice grounds for baseball and other games. Match games in water polo and baseball will be played with Fond du Lac and New Duluth.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

Clearance Sale at Panton & White's Next Week.

Beginning Monday, and continuing throughout the week, Panton & White will have their semi-annual clearance sale. These sales are always looked forward to and awaited by shrewd shoppers, for they afford many unusual opportunities for saving. The thrifty housewife has learned to profit by them and she is forehanded enough to buy many an article that is not really needed at the time, but comes in handy later on.

The sale this time will be of very much more import than ever before because of the mill end sale to be given in conjunction with the clearance sale. Throughout the season mills of all kinds accumulate short ends. These are bought in quantities by wholesalers and retailers with large outlets. Panton & White have secured many valuable purchases for this sale of mill ends of wool and wash goods, white goods, linens, flannels, draperies, floor oil cloths, etc. The full page announcement tonight deals with the detail of those events and a sale of extraordinary magnitude and interest is promised at this progressive store all next week. For the past three days several of the large display windows have been loaded up with many of the mill end goods, giving a partial idea of the immense quantities of goods to be sold and the great savings to be made.

W. W. WALKER APPOINTED

General Freight Agent of South Shore.

W. W. Walker, at present assistant general agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, will succeed William Orr as general freight agent of the company. Mr. Orr has resigned after a service in the railroad business extending over half a century. Mr. Orr has been with the South Shore road for many years, and has always been regarded as one of its most efficient officials. He will soon make a trip abroad, and may decide to make his home on the other side of the ocean, in his native land. Mr. Walker will assume the duties of his new office about the first of next month, and will continue to have his headquarters in Duluth. He has gained a very high position with the company for a man of his years, and the future undoubtedly has even better things in store for a man of his talents.

LILLYWHITE

Wants American Government to Take Up Case.

New York, July 13.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says: Charles Lillywhite is endeavoring to induce the American government to take up his case for damages for arrest and seven months' imprisonment. His papers show that, while he was born in London, he was naturalized in Chicago, and was a resident of Tacoma before he went to New Zealand, where he was arrested and sent to Colchester on a charge of murder and arson. He intends to return to New Zealand, now that his innocence has been established, but hopes to hold the British authorities responsible for this case of mistaken identity, as he lived in New Zealand several years before his arrest and deportation in irons. The bearings of his American naturalization are uncertain.

HYPNOTIZED.

That's Why Copeland Shot a Man on the Train.

Rawlins, Wyo., July 13.—A man named Rogers was shot to death by Ned Hartley Copeland, on Union Pacific train No. 6 last night. Copeland was traveling from Stockton, Cal., to Council Bluffs, Iowa.

When at a point three miles east of Wamsutter, he walked into the car where Rogers was sitting and at once began shooting at him, saying: "There, take that." He shot three times, the bullets entering Rogers' breast, and he died instantly. Copeland was arrested and is now in jail here.

When asked what caused him to kill Rogers, he said: "He had me hypnotized and I had to do it."

Copeland is undoubtedly out of his mind.

WESTROM ARRESTED.

He Is Wanted In Minnesota For Robbery.

Helena, Mont., July 13.—Michael Westrom, wanted for breaking into an Adams Express office in Minnesota and stealing several money orders, is under arrest here. He had been working for a local light and power company for two months. An attempt to pass some of the stolen orders in Butte resulted in the arrest and conviction of his partner, James Rowland, who jumped from a flying train while being taken to the state prison a week ago.

THE GENTRY SHOW.

Coming to the City For Three Days.

Gentry's dog and pony show is coming to Duluth for three days, commencing Thursday. There is no entertainment that pleases the little ones more than the miniature carts driven by monkeys and pulled by dogs. Mr. Gentry has the smallest ponies and dogs that have been exhibited in the country and there is nothing that a child will enjoy more than a visit to this show. It is a large one and the program is as varied as it is interesting. Parents are about as enthusiastic over it as the children and they enjoy it just as much. A visit to Gentry's dog and pony show will give the children something to talk about for months afterward.

SICKNESS AMONG SOLDIERS

Chicago Times-Herald: With the disbanding of the volunteer army comes the intimation that a very large number of the soldiers have been wrecked for life physically by their services in the tropics. Undoubtedly that service had its peculiar hardships, which were due to the climate, some hints of which are given in the reports of Charles R. Greenleaf, chief surgeon in the Philippines. We read, for example, the following summary, which covers the point in a general way: "All sickness in the tropics produces an effect on the general economy that does not follow similar sickness in the temperate regions, in that it saps vital forces which are not restored by natural processes, and thus each illness possesses an increased importance in destroying that which cannot be regained without removal from the country. The effect of illness in the tropics is, therefore, cumulative, each illness, great or small, adding to the total until the patient becomes permanently disabled."

Col. Greenleaf goes on to say that malaria is the only disease from which recovery may be expected by residence at any of the sanitary points in the islands. Even in the case of this disease, however, reinfection is very common. Tuberculosis, smallpox and typhoid are said to be rapidly fatal, rheumatism to be practically incurable, and the report adds that though dysentery and other intestinal diseases are frequently benefited by treatment and the sufferers sent back to duty, a return to the sick bed with aggravated symptoms is the rule and complete recovery a rare exception.

In our great civil war the largest number of deaths attributed to any one disease were caused by chronic diarrhoea, and intestinal disorders figured largely afterward in the claims for pensions. Evidently the men who served in the Philippines will be heard from on the same account.

Danger Sign For Bachelors.

Newport Press: When a summer girl gets to worrying for fear you go your Fourth of July headache working in the hot city it is time to consider whether you want to be mixed up in anything so serious.

What About Guam?

Washington Times: A report from Honolulu is to the effect that Judge Estee has refused to admit to citizenship in the United States a native of the island of Guam. • • • It seems bad enough to hold that civilized people over whom we claim full sovereignty should not be accorded full American privileges. But when it is held that they are not only foreigners, but a class of foreigners who cannot even become American citizens by complying with the naturalization laws of the country, it presents a monstrous incongruity that a few years ago would have been deemed impossible in the United States. It will be strange, indeed, if such a doctrine can ever become a part of the permanent policy of the United States.

How a Joke Was Builded.

Springfield Republican: Mr. Long is a gentle, playful, subtle humorist, who has been having his little joke. This is our theory of the matter, whatever may be thought of it elsewhere. It occurred to Mr. Long that nothing would make the opposition chortle more chortlingly than to proclaim Mr. McKinley to be as great a man as either Washington or Lincoln. The thought of it tickled him. In order to make it seem entirely reasonable, he first argued that there never have been any great men, in the usual acceptance of the phrase, and that the boulevards of Washington are graced by no more discerning minds of affairs of statesmanship than the sugar barrels and the soap boxes of the stores down in Bucksport, Me. Then the thing was done.

Business Before Partisanship.

Philadelphia North American: If we have learned one thing in the last ten years it is that business and partisan politics must be divorced. It is a hopeful sign that the business men of the country and especially those of the Republican faith have learned this lesson and are prepared to apply it. That they have the courage and foresight to put themselves on record so far in advance of the meeting of congress encourages the belief that their influence will not count for nothing next winter in Washington.

BIG PARADE.

Magnificent Free Spectacle Presented By Ringling Brothers.

Those who witnessed the superb free street carnival given by Ringling Bros.' circus when last here might naturally have supposed that the limit of expansion and processional display had been reached. Certainly nothing to equal it in magnificence had ever before been seen in the Western hemisphere. It is doubly interesting, therefore, to learn that Ringling Bros.' parade has been practically doubled in size this year, and that the display is richer, grander and more elaborate than ever before.

The thing that impresses the public most forcibly is the lack of conventionality in the pageant. It is not merely a collection of horses, cages and tableau wagons, jumbled together without design or order, such as the public has learned to expect from other circuses, but it is an elaborately planned processional display, divided into sections or divisions, each of which is representative of some central idea or theme, and constitutes in effect a complete parade in itself. There are thirty of these divisions, and in unison they form the most original, the most complete and the most scintillatingly resplendent pageant that human ingenuity and artistic taste has ever organized.

Among the most striking sections is the military division, which serves to illustrate the sterling features of the world's most famous military organizations. The handsome uniforms, the bright accoutrements and the magnificently caparisoned horses render this picture of mimic warfare brilliant in the extreme. The section devoted to the Punjaub, with its red-coated British soldiers and its huge war elephants harnessed to great, rumbling siege guns, is also particularly impressive. An Egyptian caravan, crossing the desert, with its camels, dromedaries, wiry Arabian horses, Bedouins of the desert, Soudanese and other strange people, vies in interest with the Boer section, which illustrates a burgher commando trekking across the plains of South Africa, with its long train of ox teams and its hardy native ponies.

There is a special children's section, with tiny cages and miniature Mother Goose tableaux drawn by dwarf ponies, and an entire division devoted to the sports and martial glories of old Rome, with its gladiators, its fearless standing riders, its charioteers and its gorgeous racing chariots, so thrillingly described in "Ben Hur" and "Quo Vadis." The wild animal section contains scores of cages of rare wild beasts, many of which are displayed in open dens, and a great double herd of thirty big and little elephants.

The costuming throughout is superb, and the display of fine stock unequalled. There are 500 horses, splendidly groomed and gorgeously trapped, and they constitute a sight never to be forgotten. This grand display of processional wealth takes place at 10 o'clock in the morning, and serves to introduce what is incomparably the largest and most complete circus in the world. The big show exhibits here Friday, July 26, and at West Superior July 25.

LAST DAY OF N. E. A.

Small Attendance to Hear Concluding Papers of Session.

"Higher Education" Was the Leading Topic Under Discussion.

Urged Separate Educational Building For St. Louis Exposition.

Detroit, July 13.—Yesterday was last day of the National Educational association convention, and when the morning session was called to order by President Green, the smallest audience of the week was noted. "Higher Education" was the topic of the morning, papers being read by President Thomas Thwing of Western Reserve university, Cleveland; Robert B. Fulton, president of the University of Mississippi, and Hon. W. T. Harris, national commissioner of education. President Thwing, who was the first speaker, discussed "The Functions of a University in a Popular Democracy."

President Fulton's paper, on "Federal and State Interest in Higher Education," was in part as follows:

"A review of the development of state systems of education, including schools of all grades, shows that in most cases the initiative lay in grants of land made by congress. Through the stimulus thus given the newer states have been able to make more rapid progres than the older states, especially in the work of higher education. Through the co-ordination and co-operation of schools of all grades belonging to state systems there has come about an unprecedented growth of the work of the state universities. The total number of students enrolled in twenty-six state universities located in all parts of the Union, excepting the North Atlantic states, in 1894 was 14,943 students. The same twenty-six institutions in 1901 show a total enrollment of 29,583 students—an increase of fully 100 per cent in seven years. The reports of the commissioner of education shows an increase of about 19 per cent in total of students attending all colleges and universities throughout the United States within the same period.

"The remarkable growth of the work of the state universities, is the natural result of their co-ordination with the public school systems in the states. To meet the requirements of the work of these institutions, larger means will be needed. A proper co-ordination of the educational work of all the states calls for federal assistance. This should take the form of aid for the more advanced work. Provision should be made in Washington for such graduate work by students from state universities and all the colleges of the country as cannot be thoroughly done by these separate institutions.

"Congress should give further aid to educational work in the states, and this should best take the form of maintenance of mining or other engineering and technical schools."

Hon. W. T. Harris read the last paper of the morning on "Recent Growth of Public Schools in the United States as Affecting the Attendance of Colleges." He said in part:

"To understand the real growth for the past ten years in secondary and higher education one must consider the number of each million of population. There were sixty-three groups of a million each in 1890 and seventy-six similar groups in 1900. Private high schools and academies furnished in each group of a million inhabitants, 1516 pupils in 1890 but in 1900 only 1443 pupils, the same being a slight falling off. This was more than made up by the increase in public high schools for the latter furnished 3241 in each group of a million inhabitants in 1890, but 6832 in each group in 1900. Looking at it together the total number of persons in each million of inhabitants in the United States studying secondary studies increased from 4757 in 1890 to 8275 in 1900.

"This shows that the people of the country are bent on giving their children a higher education and are increasing rapidly in their ability to do so.

"With this growth of secondary schools there has gone on an increase in numbers who resort to colleges and universities. While in 1890 each group of a million showed 360 students in colleges and universities, ten years later each group showed 1284 students. In the professional schools and technical schools of the United States the increase has been even more surprising, counting these in with the colleges and universities so as to get a grand total of students in higher education, the entire enrollment in the United States in higher education, which for practical purposes may be said to include the fourth period of four years in the course of study, namely, the work from the thirteenth year to the sixteenth year inclusive, students being from 19 to 21 years of age—counting these together were 135,242 students in the United States in 1890, but 238,575 in 1900."

The papers were discussed by William Smiley of Denver, Col., and James Russell Parsons, Jr., of Albany, N. Y.

The committee appointed to consider the details and organization of an educational exhibit at the St. Louis exposition this morning decided to recommend to board of managers the construction of a separate building for the educational exhibit.

This building should have twenty-five per cent more floor space than the educational building at the Columbian exposition, the committee will recommend H. J. Rogers of Albany, N. Y., was endorsed by the committee for director of the educational exhibit at the exposition.

The last sessions of the National Council of Education and the departments of elementary education higher education, normal schools, science instruction, business education, library and deaf, dumb and feeble minded instruction were held this afternoon.

Before the department of science instruction, Joseph Carter, of Champaign, Ill., read a paper on "Agriculture as a Science For the Elementary Schools."

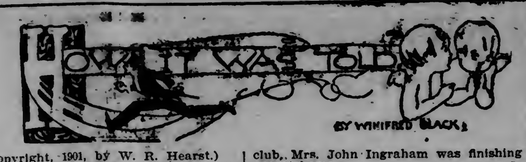

"How Shall Children be Led to Love Good Books" was the topic of the paper read by Miss Isabel Lawrence of St. Cloud, Minn., before the library department.

"Well, but I say, old man," said Bobby Lincoln, "how on earth did you know she was pretty?

"How does any man know a woman is pretty?" said John Ingraham. "You don't have to look at a woman to know it—not if you're close enough to her to see the way she holds her head; and, then, I tell you, she spoke, and a fellow who can't tell the voice of an attractive woman from the voice of a frump ought to go and be a monk."

"What were you doing in the Studio building after the elevator had stopped anyway?" said Mr. Lincoln, in the voice of one who argues to keep another man from telling a good story.

"Oh, Bobby, do let the man tell the thing straight. You can be Pink Eye the detective afterward.

"Begin over again, Johnnie."

"Well," said John Ingraham, "it was like this. I was upstairs going over my solo with Jennings—I'm to play at the hospital musical, you know—and it got late and the elevator stopped. Jennings said he was awfully sorry, don't you know, and all that, but I had to walk down. It's six stories and the steps are all marble—you can hear a man coming for a mile or so. I had my fiddle under my arm, don't you know, but I was running down rather fast. Just as I got almost to the bottom of the last flight, somebody stepped out from behind the post at the end of the steps and said: 'Throw up your hands!'

"I threw them up, and out stepped a woman. hTe light was turned down and all I could see was that she was tall and young and swagger, no end. She had on a raglan and she was pointing a pistol straight into my face.

"Of course, when I saw that it was a woman, I thought it was a joke and I began to grin.

"'Keep your hands up!' she said. 'Hand over your watch and your money. I'm desperate. Be quick or I'll blow your brains out!'

"Well, of course, I wouldn't be bullied, so I just knocked the pistol out of her hand with the fiddle and she began to cry and I said, 'If you really need the money, my dear—'

"She threw herself up."

"'In the dark?'" said Bobby Lincoln.

"Oh, shut up, Bobby," chorused the rest. "Go on Johnnie."

"And I saw that I was wrong, I started to beg her pardon," resumed Mr. Ingraham, with much dignity, "when all at once a policeman came across the street. I could see his shadow in the electric light outside the door. She saw him, too, and she picked up the pistol and started to the street. 'I trust you,' she said, 'I was desperate. Don't call the policeman.'

"'I won't,' said I, and she was gone.

"'Poor devil,' said the stock speculator, who called himself a broker.

"'Why don't you advertise?' said the wine agent. 'It might prove an adventure.'

"'Sh!' said Johnnie Ingraham, "here comes my father-in-law."

And that was the end of the story for that time.

Just about at the time that John Ingraham was finishing his little story at the club, Mrs. John Ingraham was finishing one at home.

"She was a great muscular thing Johnnie said," repeated Mrs. John Ingraham, "and she had the pistol right in his face, and when he and the policeman disarmed her they found a knife up one of her sleeves, and she cried and begged, but Johnnie doesn't believe in encouraging criminals, and it took him a long time to make up his mind to get the policeman to let her go. He said she had a terrible face, but, of course, he wouldn't be bullied.

"Some of those women are worse than men. I tell Johnnie that he is entirely too reckless. Of course, it turned out all right this time, but—"

"Of course," said the sympathetic listener, "but it might—dear me, is that 6 o'clock," and she went home.

When the sympathetic listener arrived at her own dinner table, she found her sister and her sister's husband there before her.

"We couldn't wait to tell you the adventure," said the sympathetic listener's sister, "so we came to dine." And then she told her story.

"Billie wanted to see Sullivan, the artist, about those frescoes," she said, "and we saw a light when we were coming home from the theater and Billie made we wait in the drug store a minute, but he staid so long the man was shutting the store, so I just ran across the way.

"It was as light as day in the electric light, and just as I got inside the Studio building door I heard Billie coming down the stairs.

"We'd been talking about the hold-up epidemic, and I just stepped out from behind the post and said, "Throw up your hands!"

"I held my lorgnette in my hand like a pistol, you know, and the man threw up his hands—and it was a perfect stranger. He had a violin or something in his hand and he threw it down and stood there and trembled and shook like a leaf. I tried to explain, but he just stood and trembled. I heard Billie coming and I didn't know what might happen, and I said, "Run! Run, quick!"

"'Can I go?' said the man.

"'Yes,' said I. 'Run.'

"He picked up his violin, or whatever it was he dropped, and started.

"'Don't shoot!' he kept saying. 'Don't shoot!'"

The sympathetic listener caught her breath. "Why, Mrs. John Ingraham," she began.

The sympathetic listener's husband, who, by the way, bore the name of Robert Lincoln in the directory, stepped on his wife's foot and never told what she was going to say about Mrs. John Ingraham. hWen the visitors were gone, Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln talked the story over in all its versions.

"Which do you suppose is true?" said Mrs. Lincoln.

"None of 'em, exactly," said Mr. Lincoln.

So they never told. But it is common gossip at the club that Bobby Lincoln is really rude to Ingraham.

Whenever Ingraham starts to telling a story, which is rather often, Bobby is quite apt to say, "Be careful of your facts, ingraham. You know I won't be bullied."

And no one can guess why Ingraham is so good natured about it.

ROBERTS

Likely to Succeed Dawes As Comptroller of Currency.

Washington, July 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—George E. Roberts, present director of the United States mint, will, it is believed, succeed Charles G. Dawes as comptroller of the currency Oct. 1 next.

Mr. Roberts, having proved himself entirely capable of managing this important bureau in the treasury department, is now regarded by Secretary Gage, and, of course, by President McKinley, as a man well equipped to take Comptroller Dawes' place, and if there is any change in the political wind within the next three months, the newcomer from Iowa, namely, George E. Roberts, will be installed in this position when Mr. Dawes retires to begin his contest for the senatorship in Illinois. Both Dawes and Roberts are newcomers in important financial wings of the treasury department. For many years it was expected that in order to hold either the position of comptroller of the currency or director of the mint, a man should have had a lifetime experience either in the treasury or in financial affairs outside.

During the last term of office of Grover Cleveland as president of the United States, he took a somewhat peculiar course in selecting James H. Eckels for comptroller of the currency. The fact that he did so was a mistake upon his part, or upon the part of his associates, who sent to the senate one afternoon the appointment of James H. Eckels for comptroller of the currency. The office that Mr. Eckels aspired to was that of United States district attorney for one of the districts of Illinois. His appointment as comptroller of the currency came as a thunderclap not only to himself, but to the politicians of Illinois and elsewhere throughout the country. As is well known, Grover Cleveland, twice president of the United States, proved to the country that he was a very determined individual. Having sent the nomination of James H. Eckels to the senate for the comptrollership, he declined to withdraw it, notwithstanding the fact that he had made a mistake, and induced Eckels to accept an office with which he had no experience whatever, and the result was that the boyish-looking politician from Illinois made a great hit in the position which he was forced to accept.

When Maj. McKinley defeated William Jennings Bryan for the presidency in 1896 it was believed by people interested in the workings of the treasury department that a man trained for the comptrollership would be appointed to take care of the interests of this great bureau in the treasury department. After the election and induction into office of Maj. McKinley, he surprised the people of the country by placing another novice at the head of this great bureau. As is well known his choice was Charles G. Dawes, of Illinois. Until Mr. McKinley sent Dawes' nomination to the senate as comptroller of the currency, he was not known outside of Illinois and was not conspicuous within the confines of that state.

It has become history that Mr. Dawes has made an excellent record for himself as comptroller of the currency. This proves to a great many people that it is not absolutely necessary for a man to have a lifetime training in order to occupy an important position in the treasury department or in any other department of the United States government. The case in point is that of George Roberts, a resident of Iowa, who was named by President McKinley as director of the United States mint. Mr. Roberts has filled this position very acceptably to the secretary of the treasury and to the president as well. It is now the purpose of the president and the secretary, unless the unexpected happens, to name Mr. Roberts for comptroller of the currency when Charles G. Dawes retires from this position.

CHOOSING A PLAY'S TITLE

Adelaide Thurston, Who Stars Next Season In "Sweet Clover," Tells How An Inappropriate Title Injures a Play's Chances.

Miss Adelaide Thurston, the winsome and delightful Lady Babbie of "The Little Minister," who "stars" next season in "Sweet Clover," had some interesting things to say lately on the subject of titles of plays: "It was a wise head who said 'The play is the thing'; but I would meekly suggest that the title is something. I say this for the reason that many a good play has been snuffed out by an inappropriate and repellant title.

"I recall a play entitled 'The Witch'—and a very good play it was said to be, but the title killed it as dead as the proverbial door nail. Nobody wanted to spend an evening with horrid old writhing witches—a few minutes of them in Macbeth is quite sufficient. Then there was a play called 'The Idiot' and another 'Anarchy'. Horrors!

"A prettier play than 'When We Were Twenty-one' was never written. The title like the play is sweet and alluring. But that was not its original name. The author called it 'The Trinity'; but Mr. Nat C. Goodwin objected, contending that such a title would be offensive and would give a wrong impression of the character of the play. He was right. A sacrilegious title for a delightful comedy would have been a serious mistake.

"The title should indicate the character of the drama, whether opera, burlesque, farce comedy, melodrama or tragedy. We know exactly what to expect when we go to see 'McFadden's Row of Flats'—the name is a sure index of the character of the play; so also 'On the Quiet'; it tells its own story. Such titles for an opera or melodrama would be fatal. 'The Danites' was a great title, so also 'The Henrietta', and 'The Old Homestead'. These several plays with inappropriate and jarring titles would have been dangerously handicapped.

"It would seem to me that the comedy and the melodrama require the greatest care in the selection of a title. Such simple and colorless names 'Wang', 'The Little Corporal,' 'El Capitan,' 'The Strollers' and 'Miss Bob White' and 'The Princess Chic' do very well for comic opera and musical comedy, and such titles as 'Macbeth', 'Richard the Third', and 'King Lear' are exactly appropriate for tragedy.

"A title which would be admirable for one play would be ruinous for another. 'The Highwayman' for example, would be a capital title for a highly colored melodrama; but not so for a comic opera, since there is no suggestion of comedy or prettiness, two necessary ingredients for success in light opera. For the same reason, I contend that 'The Charlatan' would be an excellent name for a melodrama, but inadequate for a comic opera. 'Foxy Quiller,' on the other hand, is a capital name for a musical piece.

"Such plays as 'Lovers' Lane,' 'Sag Harbor, 'A Peaceful Valley' and 'Way Down East' profit immensely by their titles, which are admirable. It was on this account that I chose 'Sweet Clover' as the name for my new play. The theatergoer will divine at once the character of the play, a pretty, dramatic love story, with an infusion of delightful comedy. A hundred titles were suggested, but none of them indicated its character, or what it is like. When travelling I looked out of the car window one day and discovered a beautiful field of clover in full bloom. It was so peaceful and charming, that I remarked at once, 'I have it, I shall call my play 'Sweet Clover'."

SIXTH AVENUE THEATER.

The Gibney Stock Co. will open a return engagement at the Sixth Avenue theater, commencing Monday evening next, in a new play called "Child of The Night." All new plays will be presented here and a different one each night. A gold watch will also be given away each night. The company played in West Superior all of this week to big houses nightly. The superior press says of the Gibney Stock Co.:

"Another big audience saw the Gibney Co. play the four act rural comedy drama last night, entitled, 'Angle, the Country Girl.' Morgan Gibney as "Pheneas Putnam," and Mrs. Nellie Gibney, as "Angle," his daughter, were, as usual, the central attractions, and were accorded a hearty welcome. The play was handsomely mounted and superbly acted, the supper scene in act three creating roars of laughter. Fred Goulding, as "Sammy Putnam," the brother of Angle, caused all kinds of laughter. Act fourth was as fine a piece of the scene painter's art as was ever shown in the opera house, and Mrs. Gibney looked stunning in her costume and received a handsome bouquet of flowers across the footlights."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Henry Dixey Is Once More an Adonis.

New York, July 10.—A remarkable return to youth has come to Henry E. Dixey. He has startled Broadway by showing his friends that in appearance at least he is again the Adonis who had the town at his feet. Dixey told about it thus:

"You see, I've been up to Muldoon's, and a bully time we had. Out-of-door life is certainly great, and once you have made up your mind to it it is gorgeous. I have never felt so well in my life before, and now I'm ready for business. Glen McDonough has written me a play and I'm certain it will be a winner."

John Drew spent only an hour on Broadway when he got in from England. Then he hastened to his country place at East Hampton, L. I. He was looking brown and happy and declared that his new play, "The Second In Command," will be the best he has had in years. He will remain in the country a month and then begin rehearsals.

There is one press agent in town upon whom the sun's rays fail with absolute indifference. His business is not to keep his star before the public and it may be hotter than the hinges of Hades, but he goes on just the same. His industry deserves the publication of at least two of his news items this week. They are:

"Some years ago, while spending her summer vacation at her home on Long Island, Mildred Holland conceived the idea that she could make some money by raising terrapin for the market. Her friends derided the idea, but the actress persisted in carrying out her plans. This spring she marketed the first crop of terrapin, receiving therefor about $900. Next year, if all goes well, Miss Holland will have twice that number to dispose of."

"Mildred Holland, the well-known young emotional actress, recently won a large pool on the ship's daily run on the Anchor line steamer Ethiopia. The pool amounted to $174, Miss Holland's number being 289 miles."

While "Robespierre" was in rehearsal at the Lyceum in London Kyrle Bellew played the part of Robespierre's illegitimate son, and he tells a story of his star and Beerbohm Tree. The "Three Musketeers" was crowding Her Majesty's theater and Tree was D'Artagnan, while Mrs. Brown Potter was Milady. Irving happened to need a horse for his play, and one morning he inspected several. Among them was a little white one which had been used by Mrs. Potter. This animal had been fired, it seems, because when Tree came on the stage he put his arms around the horse's neck, whereupon the latter yawned. "That animal was too good a critic," was Irving's comment, as he turned him down with a smile.

Miss Barrymore's name illustrates how easily one is forgotten when off Broadway and out of the glare of the footlights. Poor Maurice Barrymore's name is never heard nowadays beyond the walls of the Lamb's club, and the man who once counted his friends along the Rialto by the thousands is now gone from the minds of all save a small faithful few. Charley "Gus" Thomas is the most devoted to his old comrade.

"Charlie" Boyd, whose theatrical experience has been both large and varied, has settled down with considerable hope of a quiet summer. He is now in charge of the department of publicity connected with Koster and Bial's.

A story is being fully told about a well-known actor who lives not far from New Rochelle. Unlike many of his less fortunate brethren this actor could, should his desire ever prompt him, burn money in quantities sufficient to scorch a wet dog. His wealth is due in a large part to a deeply rooted habit of careful expenditure, and a case in point is the story. The said actor went a-golfing recently and bargained for a caddy. He explained to the cheapest that a caddy would make a first rate usurer, and then offered to play the youth for a nice, new golf ball the latter held in his hand. He generously offered to give the boy a handicap of one hole, the latter to carry the clubs for both. Now this actor can play golf almost as well as he can save money, which is the reason that he won hands down. The small boy handed over the ball reluctantly and then held out his hand for his fee. The actor was mightily indignant and said: "Why, you're no sport. You agreed to play for that golf ball, didn't you? And didn't I win it from you fairly? Didn't I beat you play with my golf clubs? And now you want me to pay you for caddling. Trot along now and don't ever try to impose on me again. I won't stand for it." The best part of this story is that it is quite true.

Speaking of first-nighters, Broadway will miss Rex Mr. Maynard. He was a conspicuous figure along Broadway, and he never missed an opening if he was in town. When he left the church he was many friends regarded as a victim to too advanced ideas. Although he became a thorough man-about-town, he never abandoned the clerical garb. He lectured frequently on European travel, usually under the patronage of many members of the "four hundred." Like Father Ducey, he had many friends in the theatrical profession, and his opinion of their efforts was frequently sought.

Miss Ethel Barrymore has decided to take a rest, and the Garrick will now be dark for six weeks. The proposed visit to London has been abandoned for the present, or, more strictly speaking, it has been postponed until mid winter certainly, and possibly until the summer. All arrangements had been made for her to appear at the English capital in "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," but business here was so good that the change could not be made. Miss Barrymore is not physically able to go abroad and play, and after a vacation of considerable length she will go on the road in this country.

Letters from Edgar L. Davenport announce that he is highly pleased with his change from leading man to vaudeville. It is to be only for the summer, however. He is using a new one-act play, "Just a Man."

The marriage of Elita Proctor Otis without mamma's knowledge and her subsequent departure for London with her bilssful bridegroom, William Carpenter Camp, has caused some speculation as to whether by any chance they reach the Hotel Cecil they will be assigned to room No. 153. That is the apartment in which Miss Otis was murdered six nights a week and two matinees in "Hearts Are Trumps.' All told her harrowing windup reached the total of 390, and it might cloud the honeymoon to have such a grim reminder of past events.

The reappearance of the Castle Square Opera company on Broadway is primarily designed to be a happy mdium between cheap opera on Eighth avenue and higher-priced but successful opera at the Metropolitan. Henry W. Savage's experience with Maurice Grau has taught him much in the way of caution, for in the time Manager Jacob Litt, of the Broadway, will do practically all the worrying over the gate receipts. Savage will produce opera at that for six weeks and will provide a strong company, with a particularly efficient chorus of fifty. His expenses and a fair profit are assured. The prices charged will vary from $1.50 to 25c for the orchestra to 25 cents for the rear of the gallery.

The name of Ariel Barney has been taken down from its long accustomed place of business manager for the Francis Wilson show. Although George Ledger is responsible for the production of "The Strollers" it is really the property of Nixon and Zimmerman, the Philadelphia division of the trust. Mr. Barney, it is now revealed, was once very outspoken against the trust's methods, and so was Wilson for that matter. The star, however gradually came to see that it would be decidedly to his advantage to enjoy the Nixon and Zimmerman management, and now Barney is no longer at the helm. The latter claims he has a contract, with some years to run, and a lawsuit is to follow.

A new way to make trouble for a manager who fails to pay up was put into operation by a youth at the American Theater Roof Garden the other night. Manager Blumenthal went shy with his comic opera company to a degree that the entente cordiale between them was strained, not to say shattered. Blumenthal explained that everything would be all right the very next day, but the youth who possessed a claim for $10 winked one eye and went to work with a piece of chalk. Wherever he got a chance, on chairs, on posts, on waiters' backs and even on the hard-working piano he registered the fatal "$10." He made the hit of the evening with the audience, and they applauded him liberally up to the time he was led away into the outer darkness.

William Harris, of Rich and Harris, has taken a solemn vow that the next time he goes fishing it will be in Delmonico's or Shanley's. He took a day off, and accommanied by his star, Andrew Mack, he headed for the latter's home at Buzzard's bay. They got there early in the morning, and Harris' program called for a return on the evening train for New York. As they were driving to Mack's house they met a man who had a good string of bluefish which, he explained, were part of a big school that had come into the bay over night and were still there. Mack couldn't rest until Harris agreed to go out with him and catch at least one for breakfast. They put out in a sailboat and four miles from shore they ran into a calm, where they remained until after 6 p. m. There wasn't a thing to eat or drink on the boat and Harris missed his train.

Lee Arthur's new play, "Down Yonder," will give Dell Williams as good an opportunity as did "Way Down East." David Belasco will be the manager.

Hurtig and Seamon came into town some years ago unheralded and to a considerable extent unknown. Their managerial debut was made at the Knickerbocker skating rink, which had been turned into a summer music hall without success. They took hold and made it pay just as they did another unsuccessful music hall in Oscar Hammerstein's Harlem Opera house. Now the firm announces that they have leased land on One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street for a term of sixty-five years and will build thereon a theater, music hall and roof garden. Just as soon as the building operations are begun they will start on another music hall in the same street, but somewhere over on the East Side. The firm also runs an exchange and a music publishing house of large proportions. They have not as yet had leisure to devote any attention to the lower part of town, but this will come all in good time.

Vaudeville is having a sweet revenge upon its rivals. One roof garden, the American, has had to abandon comic opera after a season of about one consecutive week, and vaudeville now reigns there serene. Proctor's stock companies have wilted, and outside of the Casino and the Knickerbocker vaudeville is having a fine summer.

Two distinctly American dramas will be seen in London this fall. One is "The Mystery of the Chilkoot Pass" and the other "The Pulse of Chinatown." Americans have for many years been drawing upon London for blood and thunder plays, and at last the time has come when we can return the compliment. The Terrss theater and the Lyric will be the theaters, and the productions, which are to be most elaborate, will be made by Howard P. Taylor.

Atlantic City will be very brisk this summer, so far as big theatrical companies are concerned. "The Casino Girl" will be taken there in a couple of weeks for a run, and the Bostonians will begin their season there on Aug. 26. They will not, however, attempt a new production until late. The opera selected for rehearsal in September is the new De Koven-Smith "Maid Marian," which is to be a sequel to "Robin Hood."

If the sequel proves a success the Bostonians may adopt the Frohman method of giving both operas the same week. Frohman had "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "Rupert of Hentzau" to dispose of, and he struck upon the scheme of continuing them to the same company on the road. Week stands will be played, and "The Prisoner" will have the first three nights and the mid-week matinee, while "Rupert" will get the balance of the week. By this arrangement it is calculated that there won't be a dollar overlooked in any form.

Charles Barker Bradford, another editor-actor-manager, is to take "Florodora" and all its pretty maidens on the road in the autumn. Once upon a time, before he connected with Upper Broadway, Bradford ran a paper in Bluefield, W. Va. That town shelters some 2000 souls, and Bradford was the whole thing for a while. Then he hired a couple of wayfarers, so he would have time to rest. He is very fond of recalling through the dim vista of years just how he rested. Being ambitious, he made one city editor and the other foreman. From that time on both fought bitterly, and finally they drove Bradford off on a trip to the mountains. He left each in charge, and the first thing they did was to fire each other. Bradford only stayed in the state one night after he got back, and he has no more yearning for country editorship.

Gabe Case's roadhouse, which is known from one end of this continent to the other, has been turned into a casino, with a vaudeville attachment, under the direction of George H. Huber, who has heretofore confined himself to a museum in Fourteenth street. Huber is a man of remarkable industry, and at one time not many years ago had all New York in a fever of excitement. The papers were full of a loose lion in a stable on Eighteenth street. All the papers printed columns about it, and embryo war correspondents described with photographic fidelity the groans of a poor horse who had become a victim to the rage of the king of beasts. Every time a roar went up all the neighborhood shook with terror and prayed that Providence would keep those doors shut. Expert trainers came to town and contributed some excellent advice on how to catch the fiery untamed lion. Just when the governor was about to order out the National Guard the lion was taken prisoner and led away to Huber's Museum, where awestruck crowds visited him daily at 10 cents per visit. Huber and his press agent fell out over the bill, and so the story came to light. The lion hadn't a tooth in his head and would only roar when he had been prodded vigorously for at least fifteen minutes. The horse was a dead one, any way, but the public was gloriously fooled.

Among the arrivals from London last week was Fred J. Titus, once a bicycle rider and still the husband of Edna May. Her success has led him to abandon the cinder path for good, and he, too, hopes for fame and fortune behind the footlights. With proper dignity he carefully announced a chat within a few hours after he stepped on shore he signed a contract with Frank L. Perley to sing in the chorus of "The Chaperons." He has it quite firmly fixed in his mind that the lightning of fame hit his wife while she was in that same humble department of art, and he wants to be on the spot when it breaks loose again.

Perley has also secured for the same show "Little Eddie" Redway, who for five years has been playing leading comedy parts in George Edwarde's productions at the Gaiety in London. Redway was still under contract to Edwarde, but Manager Sol. Solomon and Redway will was released upon Perley's earnest solicihave twin roles.

This summer has brought good luck to Brighton Beach, which is proving a formidable rival to its neighbor, Manhattan. The Brighton Beach Music Hall has been greatly improved and a high class vaudeville show now holds forth there nightly. John W. Ransome heads the bill, and an especial feature is a grand ballet arranged by Arnold Kiralfy, entitled "The Birth of the Rose." Another favorite summer amusement is on the big steamer Grand Republic, which sails over the bay while the passengers enjoy the acts on the stage.

Richard F. Carroll, the comic opera comedian, has been secured for Willard Spencer's new opera, "Miss Bob White."

Minnie Britton, one of the proteges of Jean de Reszke, is said to have lost her position as well as a few blonde tresses, owing to troubles behind the scenes at Terrace Garden, New York, late Wednesday night. Bertha Mallett, a female chorister, possesses some of the mementoes left in the shape of bruises and scratches. William Parry, director, contributed some of the mementoes, consisting of a few tufts of whiskers and a section of shirt bosom which became tangled in the young woman's fingers while her wrath was being vented. As a child Minnie Britton was engaged with her father and mother in the chorus of the Maurice Grau Grand Opera company at the Metropolitan, New York. There she first came under the observation of Jean de Reszke, who remarked that it was a shame to rear such a pretty youngster without every advantage of education and voice cultivation. The girl's parents were nothing loath to giving her up to the special care and protection of the famous tenor. De Reszke spent many thousands of dollars on the child, but she has not fulfilled his ambition further than to play small roles in comic opera.

With time hanging heavily on her hands this summer she secured a position in the chorus of the Parry Opera company at Terrace Garden. Everything was peaceable among the chorus until Wednesday night. During the second act of "The Beggar Student," Miss Britton, it is claimed, decided that her nose needed powdering, so she entered a dressing room, picked up a powder puff and dabbed her face with it. As she turned she met Bertha Mallett, who stood with a set face and a strong glitter in her eyes.

"How dare you use my powder puff?" demanded Miss Mallett. Now, I suppose I shall be compelled to have this disinfected or buy a new one and let you keep it."

"I'm sure I thought it was my own," answered Miss Britton with polite frigidity.

More words to the same effect. Thirty persons saw the battle which ensued. They are evenly divided as to which struck the first blow or did the most execution. The girls were so earnestly at work that even had they heard Mr. Parry they could not heed. Mr. Parry knew it would be impossible to get the other players to answer cues so projected himself into the melee. After the disappearance from their accustomed places of part of Mr. Parry's whiskers and his sawing pattern shirt bosom Mr. Parry separated the girls. When he asked each for her version of the affair Miss Britton tossed her blonde locks disdainfully and said:

"Why, that presumptuous person called me anything but a lady right in the presence of three or four of the men of the company. You know I couldn't stand that from a person who should still be washing dishes in a country hotel."

Miss Mallett thought this latter statement should be disproved by force of arms, and Miss Britton was just as anxious. But the battle was postponed indefinitely when Mr. Parry discharged both and saw that they left the garden by different exits.

"Ben Hur" will be offered in three countries next season, and if the negotiations which are now going on come to any definite conclusion another country will be added by next spring. In Melbourne the piece will be produced Christmas week, and after its run at the Princess theater, it will be taken to Sydney and other large towns in Australia. In London it will be brought out at the Drury Lane theater on March 31 of next year, and it is expected to continue throughout the summer season. In this country its third year will begin at the Illinois theater in Chicago on Sept. 2. The negotiations mentioned concern Paris, so the French people will also have an opportunity of enjoying a play which will soon have an international fame. Unlike other plays which have been offered in all the countries on the map, Klaw & Erlanger retain an interest in the production wherever made, and it will not take long before Germany and Italy will have the drama in its theaters.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

William Norris is in vaudeville.

Marion Manola is again in vaudeville.

Eben Plympton recently broke one of his legs.

Helen Mora will return to America in May, 1902.

Dixey is to appear in the Boston revival of "Evangeline."

It is likely that Lotta Doone will run all summer at Chicago.

Helen Dauvray will return to the legitimate stage next season.

Madge Lessing made her vaudeville debut in London last Monday.

Edwin Arden played Harris in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" last week.

Zelma Rawiston is to play Rosalind in an open air production of "As You Like It."

The new statue of John Brahms, which will be erected in Hamburg, will cost 40,000 marks.

Sarah Bernhardt will produce Catulle Mendes' drama, "Sainte Therese," the latter part of the coming season.

There will be four "Ben Hur" companies next season. England, France and Australia will view it simultaneously.

"The Lady of Lyons" is to appear in London as a comic opera, under the title of "Melnotte," or the Gardner's Bride."

Fred C. Whitney has decided to name the new musical comedy in which he will star Lulu Glaser "Dolly Varden."

A new one-act opera by Richard Strauss, entitled "Fuersnotth," will have its first production at the Hofopera in Dresden.

It is the invariable rule that expositions do not help theatricals. It was true of Philadelphia, Chicago and Paris, and it is true of Buffalo.

Peter E. Baker, the German comedian, who is considered a headliner in vaudeville, is in the St. Vincent hospital in Toledo, Ohio, with typhoid fever.

Fanny Davenport, a niece of the late Fany Davenport, made her stage debut with the McCallum stock company in Peak's Island, Me., last week in "Under Two Flags."

On the principal day of the summer race meeting at Warsaw, Poland, Jean De Reszke, the famous tenor, won four of the eight races, including the Warsaw Derby, worth $10,250.

They have been giving "Romeo and Juliet" al fresco in St. Louis at Koerner's Park, with Lawrence Hanley as Romeo, Eva Vincent as Juliet, Lawrence and Frances Kemble as Juliet.

An opening date has been chosen for "Maid Marian," the sequel to "Robin Hood," written by Reginald de Koven and Harry B. Smith for the Bostonians. Monday, Nov. 4, is the time, and the place will be Philadelphia.

The Dutch actor, Louis Bouwmeester, will celebrate on Dec. 19 his fortieth year as an actor in Amsterdam, Holland. He made his debut on Dec. 19 in 1861 at the Salon des Varietes in a play entitled "Fridolin," in which he played the title role.

The winnings in the lottery of the Paris Society of Dramatic Artists were paid last week, a total of 140,000 francs being distributed. The 100,000 prize went to a Bordeaux hair dresser, who is said to have received his ticket from a speedy individual who wanted a shave and tendered the ticket, in lieu of cash, in payment therefor.

Mrs. Kendal, in a speech in England recently, remarked that to succeed an actress must have "the face of a goddess, the strength of a lion, the voice of a dove, the temper of an angel, the grace of a swan, the agility of an antelope and the skin of a rhinocerous." An ungallant writer in this connection asks: "But has not Mrs. Kendal succeeded?"

Robert Griffin Morris is engaged in writing an entirely new version of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," in which the veteran actor, Joseph Wheelock, will star next season, opening in Jersey City, under the management of John W. Hamilton. One of the novel features will be the introduction of the real Salvation Army in the bar room scene, arrangements having been perfected to that effect.

I cannot say with absolute authority that Otis Skinner has found his new play, "The Heretic," wanting, but from what I can gather there is something amiss, for he has secured the rights to George H. Boker's story, dramatized by William Young, called "Francesca de Rimini" and and will make an elaborate revival of it, beginning at the Grand Opera house, Chicago, says the New York Telegraph.

"Tom Moore," the historical comedy drama, in which Rich & Harris will present Andrew Mack, is not so much an Irish play as has been supposed. Only one of the four acts represent the Emeral disle, and of the thirty speaking characters only four are Irish. The story follows the life of the poet but casually, being confined chiefly to a fictitious love affair in which Moore was implicated in London.

A HAPPY WOMAN.

Why Mrs. Eugene Turgeon praises

Smith's Green Mountain Renovator.

It cured her when doctors had failed.

IN HER GRATITUDE SHE TELLS THE WORLD ABOUT THIS REMEDY.

To the fact that SMITH'S GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR makes pure blood and strong nerves is due its great popularity.

When the blood is vitiated with poisonous secretions, and when the nerves, acting in harmony with the great life fluid, break down, any or all of the life-maintaining orgaus are apt to succumb to disease.

The way to maintain good health is to begin at the root of the trouble and cure the cause. Make your blood pure, your nerves strong, and you will find that every organ of the body will perform its function as it should, and a return to health is inevitable.

Women especially, are subject to certain disorders that make it necessary for them to pay particular attention to their health. Blood troubles, in many instances, are the cause of these disorders, and should be promptly treated, no matter whether they have been inherited, or contracted in after life.

The following is a very interesting letter coming from a Maine woman, which will explain itself:—

ST. ALBANS REMEDY CO.,
St. Albans, Vt.

GENTLEMEN:—

I owe my life to your wonderful medicine. I am an altogether different person than I was five years ago. I was then troubled with displacement of the womb. Was unable to walk any distance—in fact was dragging a miserable existence. I had tried three different doctors in vain. They gave me all kinds of medicines, and tried everything which they thought would give me relief or effect a cure, but without any good results. At last they told me that nothing short of an operation would do in my case, a thing which I dreaded as much as death itself. My husband was advised by a lady friend of your Renovator to try it. I did so, and after taking a few bottles, began to feel better. This encouraged me, and I continued taking the medicine, and, incredulous as it may seem, am to-day a well woman, and the happy mother of a lovely child. I always have the Renovator in the house and could not do without it.

(Signed) MRS. EUGENE TURGEON, Auburn, Me.

If other women, who are dragging themselves through life, feeling miserable and dejected, would but try SMITH'S GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR before giving up hope, there would be much more happiness, and a vastly less amount of illness in the world.

The great advantage of SMITH'S GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR over other remedies is that it is vegetable in its composition and harmless in its action, though quick and sure.

We are sole agents and will refund your money if you are not benefitted.

MY LADY'S BELTS.

My lady's collection of belts this summer ranges from narrow to wide and comprises all kinds of materials. The first of these dainty models is of white canvas, embroidered on both edges in gay colors, and clasped with a fine art nouveau buckle. The second is a wide white satin ribbon, with waving groups of silver cord, and a deep buckle set with pearls and turquoise on Roman gold. The third is a band of woven silver with fine gold and pearl buckle. The fourth and last is wide at the back, sloping to a narrow front closed by small discs of gold set with green stones. The belt itself is black velvet with gold bands held by slides to match the buckle.

Smart Sea and Shore Costumes

Best Skill of the Artistic Dressmaker Called Into Recognition In the Fashioning of These Special Costumes.

New York, July 9.—The mountains, hills and lakes claim hosts of admiring visitors during the summer months, and hundreds find comfort and pleasure in the enjoyment of their many attractions, but to a far larger contingent the seashore is the Mecca during the sultry days of July and August.

To the New Yorker the sea is a valued friend, but a canvass among the guests at any seaside resort will disclose the fact that the charm and potency of the fresh salt air, not to mention the invigorating result of a dip in the briny deep, are recognized by the resident of the inland town as well as the dweller by the sea, and every summer at all the Eastern coast resorts may be found visitors from as remote localities as the mid-West.

Life at a watering place calls for special costumes for wear at sea and on colorless, but finished with a similar band, of narrower width, while beneath it is worn a blouse of soft white mull and a belt of blue louisine ribbon. With the natty hat of stitched silk wound round with a scarf of white silk mull, it makes as charming a costume as one need ask. Plain skirts, kilted skirts and box-plaited skirts are all much liked and are peculiarly effective for gowns of this sort in conjunction with the hip yoke. A really exquisite costume of white canvas has the skirt laid in box plaits that widen toward the hem and are attached to a snug fitted yoke cut in points. Each point strikes the exact center of each plait and the edge of the yoke is finished with rows of tailor stitching, but at hem depth at the skirt is a band of old blue that is charming in the extreme. The jacket is tiny and much like a genuine Zouave, with half sleeves that are cut in bell-shape, and beneath are worn blouses of the flimlest, softest white cotton stuffs, with belt and tie of the blue. The Zouave form is a variation, and an effective as well as sensible one. It is jaunty, and means just enough protection while allowing the blouse below to be seen. This special suit is to be worn with a hat of Panama straw wound with a soft blue silk scarf, white shoes and white, open-work silk gloves. For actual sailing, the shoes will be heelless, with russet or kangaroo soles, but for shore use they will be of canvas, with extension soles. The hat is ideally light and comfortable in addition to being in the latest style.

Blue gowns and gowns of other colors are made on similar lines, but almost uniformly show touches of white. Those women who love the sea for the sea's own sake are apt to be the simplest in their dress. Jacket suits are much liked and are practical as well as correct, for the reason that the wrap can be slipped on and off at need. During a calm the thinnest blouse or shirt waist is none too cool. When a stiff breeze sends the boat skimming along, the jacket becomes a necessity. Nevertheless entire gowns are seen and some fascinatingly natty and sailor-like separate coats are worn. A model gown of this latest sort is of etamine, in the sailor's blue. The skirt is kilt plaited and hung from a yoke, but the bodice is finished with a fancy collar and narrow front of stitched white taffeta. Accompanying it is a hat of Manilla straw, with crown of blue felt, and wound about the crown is a white mull scarf. As an additional wrap its owner carries a short little coat of blue broadcloth, that is finished with bands piped with white and closed by means of brass buttons that bear an anchor upon each one. It is jaunty, smart, all that a coat requires to be and is none too warm when the sails are set after sundown or the afternoon breeze is uncommonly stiff.

Duck and linen both are liked and much worn for short trips and for mornings on the shore. An exceedingly effective gown is of marine blue linen made with a plain skirt and a sailor shirt waist, the shield being of tucked white batiste, the collar and stitched bands of white linen. Another is of mercerized linen canvas, in ox blood, and is made with a narrow circular flounce and a collarless Eton, beneath which waists of white lawn are worn. As a rule sailor hats draped with foulard or India silk, or hats of stitched white canvas or linen, with a plain band, are worn with these suits. A novel color, where so much white and blue are seen, appears in a costume of soft gray madras that is piped with white, worn with white waist, gloves and hat, and belt of gray.

Bathing costumes are made of many materials, but the best are black or dark blue. Conservative women shrink from being over conspicuous. These dark-hued suits, with trimmings of white, avoid that annoyance, yet are as tasteful as can be desired. The favorite material is mohair, with trimming of the same or of duck in white. In this and some advantages, and taffeta is liked by many women who aim to reduce clothing to the minimum weight. Mohair in the better qualities retains its color and is always comparatively light, besides shedding the water. Flannel is seldom seen. It becomes water soaked and an unbearable burden, and its much vaunted advantage of preventing cold has proven a myth. The smartest suits, as well as the most comfortable, are made with big sailor collars and short puffed sleeves. Many women order the collars removable and have them made to button on. By so doing they effect change with the minimum of trouble and expense. One collar may be pointed, one of duck, severely stitched; another of mohair with trimming of narrow braid, and a third made with square ends. An exceedingly attractive model includes comfortable bloomers and blouse in one and short full skirt. The material is black Sicilian mohair, the trimming the same in cream white. The frills that finish the bloomers and the short sleeves, the belt, collar and shield are of the white, covered with machine stitching. With the suit are worn black hose and canvas sandals, and over it is thrown a wrap of Turkish toweling, made not unlike a kimona, when its wearer is en route to or returning from the sea. Taffeta is made in a similar manner, but is far more costly and not to be commended except for such swimmers as consider lack of weight a first essential. Wraps are less considered here than abroad, but are a luxury. Simple Turkish toweling is excellent and can be found in white and soft natural gray. Such accessories as the shoes, the tie and the head covering are important. Bathing corsets are worn by many women, but every law of health cries out against the practice. The salt sea bath should provide free movement and exercise. If the skirt be well shaped and the blouse fitted with care, if the lines be good the result will be entirely satisfactory without confining the body by artificial means. In the few instances where over-stoutness makes it imperative that the bodice should be partly snug, light girdles are perhaps allowable, but the bath should be taken with a view to health first of all. Shoes are of canvas and some specially prepared leather in really charming sandal form, and sailor ties, that match the trimming, usually finish the sailor collar. Many shields are cut off at the collar line, but, where that is unbecoming, are finished with straight bands or fitted stocks of moderate width that are unstiffened. Many caps are shown, but a square of mercerized material, hemmed and worn as a kerchief, is both effective and practical if the color be well chosen. The material tends to shed rather than harbor water, and a bit of brightness adds a picturesque touch to the costume.

Poplin barege is one of the late season importations that is much liked for its softness and clinging qualities.

Vests of grass linen, with vari-colored embroidery, are new and smart.

Linen gowns embroidered in cashmere colors, with a glint of gold, are among the novelties.

Traveling gowns of mohair are dressy and serviceable.

In the millinery line about the prettiest novelty just now is the handkerchief hat. Three shades of straw are employed and the brims—three in number—are of graduated sizes, one turning up against the other but in such a way that no two points meet.

Crinkled crepe muslin is one of the novelties in sheer fabrics.

Cherry red blouses and hats to match are worn with fawn colored or gray cloth skirts for morning wear.

Belts of black velvet with long loop and streamers are worn by young girls, the dotted ribbons being especially popular.

Castor gray and castor blue both belong to the category of summer favorites, and in red we have strawberry, raspberry, cerise and tomato.

Biscuit color, with a touch of torquoise, makes an excellent combination.

Silver braid is seen in conjunction with velvet ribbons as a trimming for some of the imported gowns.

Terra cotta is one of the tints in which pongee has made its appearance this season.

Wedgwood buttons—white figures on blue ground, set in a rim of dull gold or silver, are among the latest additions.

White, cream, castor, beige, cafe au lait, leather, pale blue, rose and light yellow are the tints favored in Paris.

Flowered organdies make the daintiest and most serviceable dressing sacques, and the material may be had in a number of petty patterns.

Circles of amethysts or pearls are worn as buckles on some of the new fancy slippers.

Oriental embroidery is effectively used for trimming silk and cotton shirt waists. A strip is placed down the front plait and used also for stock and cuffs.

Platinum or gold paillettes, or a combination of both, represent the latest development in spangled trimming.

The latest fancy for girls' evening gowns is a trimming of rose petals. They border the flounces at the hem, and a row of the petals is carried round the back and front. A strap of roses is carried over the shoulder and supplemented by ruches formed of rose petals.

Tom Reed cigar is proving a winner for us and will prove a winner for you if you will give it a chance.

THE PRINCESS WAIST.

White organdie is the sheer material over a colored slip. The collar, jacket and wristbands are of hand-made renaissance lace.

DAINTY MID-SUMMER WAIST.

Mull waists in delicate shades of blue, pink and lavender are, perhaps, the daintiest offerings of the season in separate waists. This model, open in the back, is very becoming, and while apparently elaborate, is really simple. The summer girl may copy it with ease in white or any color provided with a small quantity of the already tucked material and the irregular lace bandings. The tucked mull or China silk is used for the collar, yoke and bias strips which form the wristbands. Straight insertion may be also used and set on in points.—From John Forsythe.

Practical Suggestions About What to Eat and How to Prepare Food.

This matter will be found to be entirely different from and superior to the usual run of food articles, in that every item is a nugget of culinary wisdom and eminently practical.

BEVERAGES AND COOLING DRINKS.

Grateful mixture forms
Of tart and sweet,
Of icy taste: that in midsummer best
Slake craving thirst and mitigate the day.

So keen is the sensation and so inexorable the demand when one is thirsty, that there is an all prevading and well-defined feeling throughout the digestive system generally. In almost every language we find the word thirst used to express excessive longing or an absorbing desire for something aimed at, thirst for wealth, power, knowledge or fame. When weary or cold, exhausted or warm, we prefer drinking to eating, as instinct has taught us that we feel the effect instantaneously as whatever is drunk is absorbed with extreme facility by the animal economy and the relief it affords is prompt and satisfying until the solid foods which may be partaken of later will produce a more lasting feeling of satisfaction.

USE OF ACID DRINKS.

While water is the only drink which really quenches thirst, and most other beverages are merely palliatives, there is no doubt that the acids of fruit juices allay thirst and in hot weather, cool the blood and supply a natural tonic of which the system is greatly in need.

Ice water and iced drinks are not injurious when taken in small quantities and sipped slowly. Ice water, in fact, acts as a stimulant to the digestive functions, its solvent principles eliminating from the digestive organs all indigestible substances, this being of very considerable importance in hot weather when so much fermentable food is consumed. Water is rapidly absorbed and eliminated by and from the system, and while in hot weather we obtain a very considerable amount from succulent, uncooked vegetable substances and fresh fruit, the waste is very much greater and naturally the bodily temperature higher, and this creates a corresponding demand for cooling drinks.

The sub-acid fruit juices, shrubs, lime juice and lemonade are more agreeable and inviting to the taste than plain distilled or filtered water. They satisfy the desire for something "tasty" and at same time are beneficial.

FRUIT JUICES.

In preserving time the housekeeper often finds she has considerable fruit syrup remaining. This she can bottle and seal and use for various kinds of cooking when fresh fruits are out of season and also for summer beverages.

When using berries especially for this purpose, heat, mash and strain same as for jelly. Boil for fifteen minutes, skimming as the scum arises and until perfectly clear. Allow half a pound of granulated sugar to every quart of the juice; heat sugar before adding; boil together for ten minutes and seal in jars or bottles.

EGG LEMONADE.

Beat the yolk and white of one egg separately, then beat together. Whip this into a glass of strong, sweet lemonade.

OLD-FASHIONED

Cover quarter of a pound of Spanish sarsaparilla with cold water and boil gently for five hours; strain off and to two quarts add four pounds granulated sugar and two ounces of tartaric acid. Bottle and cork; allow a gill of syrup to half a teaspoonful of soda and half a pint of water.

GINGER BEER.

Add two quarts of water to five ounces of ginger root and yellow peel of one lemon; boil for one hour; then add four gallons of water, five pounds of sugar, quarter of a pound of honey and juice of four lemons. When lukewarm add one and one-half pints of liquid yeast. When cold strain and add the beaten white of one egg. Let stand four days before putting into bottles.

HOP BEER.

This is more suitable for a spring tonic, but is a good home-made beer. Put into a deep boiler one pound of hops, a handful of thoroughwort, a small bunch of dandelion root and two gallons of water. Boil for one hour. Then strain; when lukewarm add four pounds of sugar and one cake of yeast dissolved in lukewarm water. Pour into a crock and let work, then put into bottles and cork tightly and set in a cool place. Do not drink too much of this at a time, a small glass three times a day for a tonic is sufficient.

PINEAPPLE LEMONADE.

Squeeze the juice from three large lemons; pare a nice large pineapple; remove the eyes and grate into the bowl with the lemon juice. Boil one pound of sugar with a pint of water for ten minutes, skimming carefully; pour this into the bowl with lemon juice and pineapple. Let the mixture stand two hours, then strain and add a quart of ice water. Serve with a strawberry or a few red raspberries on top.

WEST INDIAN PINEAPPLE SHRUB.

Pare a large, ripe pineapple, remove the eyes and chop very fine, using a silver knife; add one pound of sugar and a gallon of cold water; fill long-necked bottles or jugs and shake well for five minutes; then stand in a temperature of about 9 degrees Fahrenheit for two or three days until it begins to ferment; then cool it on ice and use it. It may be prepared, at this stage, like Roman punch or sherbet, by the addition of half a pound more sugar and a fresh grated pineapple.

UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.

Press out the juices from ripe grapes, as for jelly; place in an earthen jar or preserving kettle and boil slowly until reduced one-half. Bottle and seal while juice is hot, the cultivated grape needs no sugar. Wild grape juice requires half a pound to each quart of juice. Boil and skim the juice as for jelly; add and boil five minutes. Seal while hot.

RASPBERRY VINEGAR, NO. 1.

Two quarts of ripe, red raspberries covered with two quarts of best vinegar; let stand twenty-four hours, then strain; pour this juice over two quarts more of ripe berries and let stand over night; strain and make very sweet; put over the fire and boil for three minutes then bottle and seal. This will keep for two years.

RASPBERRY VINEGAR, NO. 2.

Put three quarts of ripe, black raspberries in a large china bowl; pour over them one quart of best vinegar; let stand twenty-four hours and strain. Pour the juice over three quarts of fresh berries and let stand another day and night. Strain and add a pound of white sugar to every pint of juice. Boil for fifteen minutes; skim until clear. When cold bottle and seal. Serve with crushed ice and water.

APOLLINARIS LEMONADE.

Fill a glass two-thirds full with chipped ice; add the sweetened juice of one lemon and fill up the glass with apollinaris. Put a few large berries on top.

BLACKBERRY CORDIAL.

This is not properly a summer drink, but is very useful in sickness common to the heated season:

To each quart of blackberry juice allow a pound of granulated or crushed loaf sugar. To these quantities add a quarter of an ounce each of whole cloves, allspice, cinnamon and pounded, now powdered nutmeg. Boil all together over a gentle fire for two hours; then strain through a fine cloth; add to it a pint of best French brandy, bottle and cork. This will keep a long time.

OLD VIRGINIA MINT JULEP.

The old Kentucky colonel who certainly knew how to concoct a mint julep claimed that the proper method was not to crowd down the stems of the mint, but to pick off the tender sprigs; steep them in best brandy. The use of rum with brandy or whisky is no longer the proper thing. Make a small quantity of sugar and water; fill a tumbler one-third full of brandy; add three teaspoonfuls of syrup and fill the glass up with pounded ice. Stick five or six tender sprigs of mint on top and add two or three ripe berries.

GOLF BALL.

This is a new drink from "The Caterer." While we do not advocate the use of liquors in summer we give it for sake of those seeking novelties. Use a high-ball glass. Take the juice of one orange and one drink of whisky and fill up with carbonic. Sugar is not considered desirable when the juice of the ripe orange is used.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

(No attention paid to inquiries not giving name and address of writer, plainly written).

Mrs. F. S. S. writes: Have tried a number of your recipes with perfect success. Will you kindly publish recipe for making mushroom catsup?

MUSHROOM CATSUP.

Have the mushrooms freshly gathered; examine them carefully to see that they are not wormy; you must break off the stems in order to do this; wipe them, but do not wash. Put a layer of mushrooms in the bottom of an earthen dish; sprinkle with a little salt; then add another layer of mushrooms; sprinkle with salt and continue until all mushrooms are used. Cover with a cloth and let stand in a warm place (not hot) for a day and night; then mash and strain through coarse muslin. Measure the liquor and to each quart add one ounce of pepper corns; boil gently for half an hour. Then add half an ounce of ginger root, quarter of an ounce of allspice, one dozen cloves and two blades of mace. Boil fifteen or twenty minutes longer. Let cool and strain and put into small bottles, filling them very full; cork tightly and seal. Chili vinegar and bay leaf instead of mace may be added. Do not have spices strong enough to destroy the delicate flavor of the mushrooms.

GRAPE JUICE.

Mrs. E. S. writes the Journal: Having been able to get some very good hints through reading your column, I wished to write you and ask if you would kindly inform me of a good way to preserve Concord grape and strawberry juice. We bottle it in beer bottles with patent stopper leaving a little space for the air, but it often ferments, even when we dip the heads in sealing wax. If you can help me in this matter I would be very grateful to you.

I would not use the self sealing bottles; corks will fit tighter. The bottles must be full to the top as all air must be excluded if you do not want the juice to ferment. The principle is same as canning. The bottles must be thoroughly heated to sterilize them and must be kept in a cool, dark, dry place.

The fruit must be perfect and very fresh.

No sugar is necessary, but it is used in most recipes. The recipes given in article on beverages we have used for years, both are excellent. We will, however, give you another which you may like better.

Take twenty-five pounds of well-ripened Concord grapes; pick from the stems rejecting all imperfect fruit. Wash thoroughly in cold water. Put into double boilers or in earthen dishes which can be placed over boiling water; steam until the skins and pulp separate; then strain, without squeezing, through jelly bags. The juice and skins with pulp remaining in the bags may be squeezed out and used for jelly. Let the juice stand until any sediment settles; then pour off carefully through thin muslin, leaving sediment in bottom of vessel. Add four pounds of granulated or crushed loaf sugar. Bring to boiling point; skim, cook about fifteen minutes and finish same as canned fruit or fill bottles to top, allowing room for the cork. Pound this in tightly and seal.

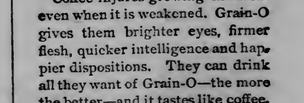

Marked Notice

An English Doctor On Coffee.

Haig, an eminent English physician, has proven that coffee is a cause of rheumatism, sick headache, "gravel," nervous exhaustion and numerous other maladies. Coffee drinkers are unconsciously cultivating these maladies with each cup of their favorite beverage. Caffein the active poison contained in coffee, behaves in the body like uric acid.

The coffee habit is often hard to shake off, but is made easy by the use of the Battle Creek Sanitarium substitute, Caramel Cereal, a pure cereal product, made by an improved process and absolutely free from molasses and other cheap refuse.

MY LADY'S BELTS.

My lady's collection of belts this summer ranges from narrow to wide and comprises all kinds of materials. The first of these dainty models is of white canvas, embroidered on both edges in gay colors, and clasped with a fine art nouveau buckle. The second is a wide white satin ribbon, with waving groups of silver cord, and a deep buckle set with pearls and turquoise on Roman gold. The third is a band of woven silver with fine gold and pearl buckle. The fourth and last is wide at the back, sloping to a narrow front closed by small discs of gold set with green stones. The belt itself is black velvet with gold bands held by slides to match the buckle.

Smart Sea and Shore Costumes

Best Skill of the Artistic Dressmaker Called Into Recognition In the Fashioning of These Special Costumes.

New York, July 9.—The mountains, hills and lakes claim hosts of admiring visitors during the summer months, and hundreds find comfort and pleasure in the enjoyment of their many attractions, but to a far larger contingent the seashore is the Mecca during the sultry days of July and August.

To the New Yorker the sea is a valued friend, but a canvass among the guests at any seaside resort will disclose the fact that the charm and potency of the fresh salt air, not to mention the invigorating result of a dip in the briny deep, are recognized by the resident of the inland town as well as the dweller by the sea, and every summer at all the Eastern coast resorts may be found visitors from as remote localities as the mid-West.

Life at a watering place calls for special costumes for wear at sea and on shore, and the best skill of the artistic and clever dressmaker is called into requisition in the fashioning of these special costumes.

Serge and flannel are standbys, and are always in use, but women have learned many lessons in sailing as in other matters, and go forth clothed after a variety of ways. While blue is the traditional sea color, we make use of many others, and we take advantage of the multitude of fabrics offered until duck, linen, mohair and etamine are as commonly seen as the serge and flannel of former days. White is a conspicuous favorite, and a deserved one. In addition to being charming in effect and universally becoming, it suffers no harm from exposure to sea and sun. It may take a deeper cream, but there the effect of their influence stops. The fact that it is the smartest of all smart things adds another and potent charm, but the practical value stands for all time. Blue, both navy and cadet, is worn and is effective. Other colors appear wherever any number of women are gathered, but white predominates, and has the sanction of fashion, for these sturdy gowns of the sea and shore, as its more dainty, filmy materials have for garden parties, and general summer wear.

A similarly effective idea, and one that has a most select following, is that of using colored bands, and so producing a gay and picturesque note. Mohair, serge, etamine and canvas are all so treated with charming results. Skirts uniformly clear the ground, and the Eton is the favorite jacket. A really fascinating gown, that is to be worn at Newport, is of fine quality cream Sicilian. The skirt is plain, and snug at the upper portion, but includes a circular flounce that is banded and headed by a stitched band of old blue. The Eton is colorless, but finished with a similar band, of narrower width, while beneath it is worn a blouse of soft white mull and a belt of blue louisine ribbon. With the natty hat of stitched silk wound round with a scarf of white silk mull, it makes as charming a costume as one need ask. Plain skirts, kilted skirts and box-plaited skirts are all much liked and are peculiarly effective for gowns of this sort in conjunction with the hip yoke. A really exquisite costume of white canvas has the skirt laid in box plaits that widen toward the hem and are attached to a snug fitted yoke cut in points. Each point strikes the exact center of each plait and the edge of the yoke is finished with rows of tailor stitching, but at hem depth at the skirt is a band of old blue that is charming in the extreme. The jacket is tiny and much like a genuine Zouave, with half sleeves that are cut in bell-shape, and beneath are worn blouses of the filmiest, softest white cotton stuffs, with belt and tie of the blue. The Zouave form is a variation, and an effective as well as sensible one. It is jaunty, and means just enough protection while allowing the blouse below to be seen. This special suit is to be worn with a hat of Panama straw wound with a soft blue silk scarf, white shoes and white, open-work silk gloves. For actual sailing, the shoes will be heelless, with russet or kangaroo soles, but for shore use they will be of canvas, with extension soles. The hat is ideally light and comfortable in addition to being in the latest style.

Blue gowns and gowns of other colors are made on similar lines, but almost uniformly show touches of white. Those women who love the sea for the sea's own sake are apt to be the simplest in their dress. Jacket suits are much liked and are practical as well as correct, for the reason that the wrap can be slipped on and off at need. During a calm the thinnest blouse or shirt waist is none too cool. When a stiff breeze sends the boat skimming along, the jacket becomes a necessity. Nevertheless entire gowns are seen and some fascinatingly natty and sailor-like separate coats are worn. A model gown of this latest sort is of etamine, in the sailor's blue. The skirt is kilt plaited and hung from a yoke, but the bodice is finished with a fancy collar and narrow front of stitched white taffeta. Accompanying it is a hat of Manila straw, with crown of blue felt, and wound about the crown is a white mull scarf. As an additional wrap its owner carries a short little coat of blue broadcloth, that is finished with bands piped with white and closed by means of brass buttons that bear an anchor upon each one. It is jaunty, smart, all that a coat requires to be and is none too warm when the sails are set after sundown or the afternoon breeze is uncommonly stiff.

Duck and linen both are liked and much worn for short trips and for mornings on the shore. An exceedingly effective gown is of marine blue linen made with a plain skirt and a sailor shirt waist, the shield being of tucked white batiste, the collar and stitched bands of white linen. Another is of mercerized linen canvas, in ox blood, and is made with a narrow circular flounce and a collarless Eton, beneath which waists of white lawn are worn. As a rule sailor hats draped with foulard or India silk, or hats of stitched white canvas or linen, with a plain band, are worn with these suits. A novel color, where so much white and blue are seen, appears in a costume of soft gray madras that is piped with white, worn with white waist, gloves and hat, and belt of gray.

Bathing costumes are made of many materials, but the best are black or dark blue. Conservative women shrink from being over conspicuous. These dark-hued suits, with trimmings of white, avoid that annoyance, yet are as tasteful as can be desired. The favorite material is mohair, with trimming of the same or of white. Serge has some advantages, and taffeta is liked by many women who aim to reduce clothing to the minimum weight. Mohair in the better qualities retains its color and is always comparatively light, besides shedding the water. Flannel is seldom seen. It becomes water soaked and an unbearable burden, and its much vaunted advantage of preventing cold has proven a myth. The smartest suits, as well as the most comfortable, are made with big sailor collars and short puffed sleeves. Many women order the collars removable and have them made to button on. By so doing they effect change with the minimum of trouble and expense. One collar may be pointed, and of duck, severely stitched; another of mohair with trimming of narrow braid, and a third made with square ends. An exceedingly attractive model includes comfortable bloomers and blouse in one and short full skirt. The material is black Sicilian mohair, the trimming the same in cream white. The frills that finish the bloomers and the short sleeves, the belt, collar and shield are of the white, covered with machine stitching. With the suit are worn black hose and canvas sandals, and over it is thrown a wrap of Turkish toweling, made not unlike a kimona, when its wearer is en route to or returning from the sea. Taffeta is made in a similar manner, but is far more costly and not to be commended except for such swimmers as consider lack of weight a first essential. Wraps are less considered here than abroad, but are a luxury. Simple Turkish toweling is excellent and can be found in white and soft natural gray. Such accessories as the shoes, the tie and the head covering are important. Bathing corsets are worn by many women, but every law of health cries out against the practice. The salt sea bath should provide free movement and exercise. If the skirt be well shaped and the blouse fitted with care, if the lines be good the result will be entirely satisfactory without confining the body by artificial means. In the few instances where over-stoutness makes it imperative that the bodice should be partly snug, light girdles are perhaps allowable, but the bath should be taken with a view to health first of all. Shoes are of canvas and some specially prepared leather in really charming sandal form, and sailor ties, that match the trimming, usually finish the sailor collar. Many shields are cut off at the collar line, but, where that is unbecoming, are finished with straight bands or fitted stocks of moderate width that are unstiffened. Many caps are shown, but a square of mercerized material, hemmed and worn as a kerchief, is both effective and practical if the color be well chosen. The material tends to shed rather than harbor water, and a bit of brightness adds a picturesque touch to the costume.

Poplin barege is one of the late season importations that is much liked for its softness and clinging qualities.

Vests of grass linen, with vari-colored embroidery, are new and smart.

Linen gowns embroidered in cashmere colors, with a glint of gold, are among the novelties.

Traveling gowns of mohair are dressy and serviceable.

In the millinery line about the prettiest novelty just now is the handkerchief hat. Three shades of straw are employed and the brim—three in number—are of graduated sizes, one turning up against the other but in such a way that no two points meet.

Crinkled crepe muslin is one of the novelties in sheer fabrics.

Cherry red blouses and hats to match are worn with fawn colored or gray cloth skirts for morning wear.

Belts of black velvet with long loop and streamers are worn by young girls, the dotted ribbons being especially popular.

Castor gray and castor blue both belong to the category of summer favorites, and in red we have strawberry, raspberry, cerise and tomato.

Biscuit color, with a touch of torquoise, makes an excellent combination.

Silver braid is seen in conjunction with velvet ribbons as a trimming for some of the imported gowns.

Terra cotta is one of the tints in which pongee has made its appearance this season.

Wedgwood buttons—white figures on blue ground, set in a rim of dull gold or silver, are among the latest additions.

White, cream, castor, beige, cafe au lait, leather, pale blue, rose and light yellow are the tints favored in Paris.

Flowered organdies make the daintiest and most serviceable dressing sacques, and the material may be had in a number of petty patterns.

Circles of amethysts or pearls are worn as buckles on some of the new fancy slippers.

Oriental embroidery is effectively used for trimming silk and cotton shirt waists. A strip is placed down the front plait and used also for stock and cuffs.

Platinum or gold paillettes, or a combination of both, represent the latest development in spangled trimming.

The latest fancy for girls' evening gowns is a trimming of rose petals. They border the flounces at the hem, and a row of the petals is carried round the back and front. A strap of roses is carried over the shoulder and supplemented by ruches formed of rose petals.

Tom Reed cigar is proving a winner for us and will prove a winner for you if you will give it a chance.

THE PRINCESS WAIST.

White organdie is the sheer material over a colored slip. The collar, jacket renaissance lace.

DAINTY MID-SUMMER WAIST.

Mull waists in delicate shades of blue, pink and lavender are, perhaps, the daintiest offerings of the season in separate waists. This model, open in the back, is very becoming, and while apparently elaborate, is really simple. The summer girl may copy it with ease in white or any color provided with a small quantity of the already tucked material and the irregular lace bandings. The tucked mull or China silk is used for the collar, yoke and bias strips which form the wristbands. Straight insertion may be also used and set on in points.—From John Forsythe.

Practical Suggestions About What to Eat and How to Prepare Food.

This matter will be found to be entirely different from and superior to the usual run of food articles, in that every item is a nugget of culinary wisdom and eminently practical.

BEVERAGES AND COOLING DRINKS.

Grateful mixture forms
Of tart and sweet,
Of icy taste; that in midsummer best
Slake craving thirst and mitigate the day.

So keen is the sensation and so inexorable the demand when one is thirsty, that there is an all prevailing and well-defined feeling throughout the digestive system generally. In almost every language we find the word thirst used to express every kind of longing and absorbing desire for something aimed at, thirst for wealth, power, knowledge or fame. When weary or cold, exhausted or warm, we prefer drinking to eating, as instinct has taught us that we feel the effect instantaneously, as whatever is drunk is absorbed with extreme facility by the animal economy and the relief it affords is prompt and satisfying until the solid foods which may be partaken of later will produce a more lasting feeling of satisfaction.

USE OF ACID DRINKS.

While water is the only drink which really quenches thirst, and most other beverages are merely palliatives, there is no doubt that the acids of fruit juices allay thirst and in hot weather, cool the blood and supply a natural tonic of which the system is greatly in need.

Ice water and iced drinks are not injurious when taken in small quantities and sipped slowly. Ice water, in fact, acts as a stimulant to the digestive functions, its solvent principles eliminating from the digestive organs all indigestible substances; this being of very considerable importance in hot weather when so much fermentable food is consumed. Water is rapidly absorbed and eliminated by and from the system, and while in hot weather we obtain a very considerable amount from succulent, uncooked vegetable substances and fresh fruit, the waste is very much greater and naturally the bodily temperature higher, and this creates a corresponding demand for cooling drinks.

The sub-acid fruit juices, shrubs, lime juice and lemonade are more agreeable and inviting to the taste than plain distilled or filtered water. They satisfy the desire for something "tasty" and at same time are beneficial.

FRUIT JUICES.

In preserving time the housekeeper often finds she has considerable fruit syrup remaining. This she can bottle and seal and use for various kinds of cooking when fresh fruits are out of season and also for summer beverages.

When using berries especially for this purpose, heat, mash and strain same as for jelly. Boil for fifteen minutes, skimming as the scum arises and until perfectly clear. Allow half a pound of granulated sugar to every quart of the juice; heat sugar before adding; boil together for ten minutes and seal in jars or bottles.

EGG LEMONADE.

Beat the yolk and white of one egg separately, then beat together. Whip this into a glass of strong, sweet lemonade.

OLD-FASHIONED

Cover quarter of a pound of Spanish sarsaparilla with cold water and boil gently for five hours; strain off and to two quarts add four pounds granulated sugar and two ounces of tartaric acid. Bottle and cork; allow a gill of syrup to half a teaspoonful of soda and half a pint of water.

GINGER BEER.

Add two quarts of water to five ounces of ginger root and yellow peel of one lemon; boil for one hour; then add four gallons of water, five pounds of sugar, quarter of a pound of honey and juice of four lemons. When lukewarm add one and one-half pints of liquid yeast. When cold strain and add the beaten white of one egg. Let stand four days before putting into bottles.

HOP BEER.

This is more suitable for a spring tonic, but is a good home-made beer. Put into a deep boiler one pound of hops, a handful of thoroughwort, a small bunch of dandelion root and two gallons of water. Boil for one hour. Then strain; when lukewarm add four pounds of sugar and one cake of yeast dissolved in lukewarm water. Pour into a crock and let work, then put into bottles and cork tightly and set in a cool place. Do not drink too much of this at a time, a small glass three times a day for a tonic is sufficient.

PINEAPPLE LEMONADE.

Squeeze the juice from three large lemons; pare a nice large pineapple; remove the eyes and grate into the bowl with the lemon juice. Boil one pound of sugar with a pint of water for ten minutes, skimming carefully; pour this into the bowl with lemon juice and pineapple. Let the mixture stand two hours, then strain and add a quart of ice water. Serve with a strawberry or a few red rasnberries on top.

WEST INDIAN PINEAPPLE SHRUB.

Pare a large, ripe pineapple, remove the eyes and chop very fine, using a silver knife; add one pound of sugar and a gallon of cold water; fill long-necked bottles or jugs and shake well for five minutes; then stand in a temperature of about 9 degrees Fahrenheit for two or three days until it begins to ferment; then cool it on ice and use it. It may be prepared, at this stage, like Roman punch or sherbet, by the addition of half a pound more sugar and a fresh grated pineapple.

UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.

Press out the juices from ripe grapes, as for jelly; place in an earthen jar or preserving kettle and boil slowly until reduced one-half. Bottle and seal while juice is hot, the cultivated grape needs no sugar. Wild grape juice requires half a pound to each quart of juice. Boil and skim the juice as for jelly; add and boil five minutes. Seal while hot.

RASPBERRY VINEGAR, NO. 1.

Two quarts of ripe, red raspberries covered with two quarts of best vinegar; let stand twenty-four hours, then strain; pour this juice over two quarts more of ripe berries and let stand over night; strain and make very sweet; put over the fire and boil for five minutes then bottle and seal. This will keep for two years.

RASPBERRY VINEGAR, NO. 2.

Put three quarts of ripe, black raspberries in a large china bowl; pour over them one quart of best vinegar; let stand twenty-four hours and strain. Pour the juice over three quarts of fresh berries and let stand another day and night. Strain and add a pound of white sugar to every pint of juice. Boil for fifteen minutes; skim until clear. When cold bottle and seal. Serve with crushed ice and water.

APOLLINARIS LEMONADE.

Fill a glass two-thirds full with chipped ice; add the sweetened juice of one lemon and fill up the glass with apollinaris. Put a few large berries on top.

BLACKBERRY CORDIAL.

This is not properly a summer drink, but is very useful in sickness common to the heated season.

To each quart of blackberry juice allow a pound of granulated or crushed loaf sugar. To these quantities add a quarter of an ounce each of whole cloves, allspice, cinnamon and pounded, now powdered nutmeg. Boil all together over a gentle fire for two hours; then strain through a fine cloth; add to it a pint of best French brandy, bottle and cork. This will keep a long time.

OLD VIRGINIA MINT JULEP.

The old Kentucky colonel who certainly knew how to concoct a mint julep claimed that the proper method was not to crowd down the stems of the mint, but to pick off the tender sprigs; steep them in best brandy. The use of rum with brandy or whisky is no longer the proper thing. Make a small quantity of sugar and water; fill a tumbler one-third full of brandy; add three teaspoonfuls of syrup and fill the glass up with pounded ice. Stick five or six tender sprigs of mint on top and add two or three ripe berries.

GOLF BALL.

This is a new drink from "The Caterer." While we do not advocate the use of liquors in summer we give it for sake of those seeking novelties. Use a high-ball glass. Take the juice of one orange and one drink of whisky and fill up with carbonic. Sugar is not considered desirable when the juice of the ripe orange is used.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

(No attention paid to inquiries not giving name and address of writer, plainly written).

Mrs. F. S. S. writes: Have tried a number of your recipes with perfect success. Will you kindly publish recipe for making mushroom catsup?

MUSHROOM CATSUP.

Have the mushrooms freshly gathered; examine them carefully to see that they are not wormy; you must break off the stems in order to do this; wipe them, but do not wash. Put a layer of mushrooms in the bottom of an earthen dish; sprinkle with a little salt; then add another layer of mushrooms; sprinkle with salt and continue until all mushrooms are used. Cover with a cloth and let stand in a warm place (not hot) for a day and night; then mash and strain through coarse muslin. Measure the liquor and to each quart add one ounce of pepper corns; boil gently for half an hour. Then add half an ounce of ginger root, quarter of an ounce of allspice, one dozen cloves and two blades of mace. Boil fifteen or twenty minutes longer. Let cool and strain and put into small bottles, filling them very full; cork tightly and seal. Chili vinegar and bay leaf instead of mace may be added. Do not have spices strong enough to destroy the delicate flavor of the mushrooms.

GRAPE JUICE.

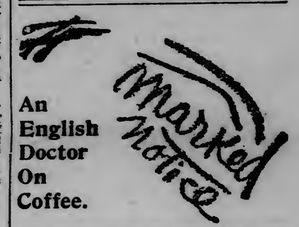

Mrs. E. S. writes the Journal: Having been able to get some very good hints through reading your column, I wished to write you and ask if you would kindly inform me of a good way to preserve Concord grape and strawberry juice. We bottle it in beer bottles with patent stopper leaving a little space for the air, but it often ferments, even when we dip the heads in sealing wax. If you can help me in this matter I would be very grateful to you.

I would not use the self sealing bottles; corks will fit tighter. The bottles must be full to the top as all air must be excluded if you do not want the juice to ferment. The principle is same as canning. The bottles must be thoroughly heated to sterilize them and must be kept in a cool, dark, dry place.

The fruit must be perfect and very fresh.

No sugar is necessary, but it is used in most recipes. The recipes given in article on beverages we have used for years, both are excellent. We will, however, give you another which you may like better.

Take twenty-five pounds of well-ripened Concord grapes; pick from the stems rejecting all imperfect fruit. Wash thoroughly in cold water. Put into double boilers or in earthen dishes which can be placed over boiling water and steam until the skins and pulp separate; then strain, without squeezing, through jelly bags. The juice and skins with pulp remaining in the bags may be squeezed out and used for jelly. Let the juice stand until any sediment settles; then pour off carefully through thin muslin, leaving sediment in bottom of vessel. Add four pounds of granulated or crushed loaf sugar. Bring to boiling point; skim, cook about fifteen minutes and finish same as canned fruit or fill bottles to top, allowing room for the cork. Pound this in tightly and seal.

An English Doctor On Coffee.

Haig, an eminent English physician, has proven that coffee is a cause of rheumatism, sick headache, "gravel," nervous exhaustion and numerous other maladies. Coffee drinkers are unconsciously cultivating these maladies with each cup of their favorite beverage. Caffein the active poison contained in coffee, behaves in the body like uric acid.

The coffee habit is often hard to shake off, but is made easy by the use of the Battle Creek Sanitarium substitute, Caramel Cereal, a pure cereal product, made by an improved process and absolutely free from molasses and other cheap refuse.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Baseball and Other Sports

Duluths and Fashions to Be Consolidated —Chicago Unions Fail to Come—Gus Ruhlin to Umpire Sunday's Game.

At last Duluth will have a team "as is a team." The Fashions and Duluths have met and fought and the Duluths conquered. The game was exciting from start to finish, and had it not been for the rank umpireing would have been a very satisfactory one. Almost the same teams are playing today at the Driving park, although had the Chicago Unions been able to make connections, the two teams would have been consolidated, making one of the fastest teams in the Northwest.

It was to be deplored that the Chicago Unions were unable to close with Hansell's offer for games here today and tomorrow, as they are among the fastest teams in the country and have the reputation of being the fastest colored team in the world. Undoubtedly it would have been a good game, and it is to be hoped that the Duluth team will play them in the near future.

Duluth has the opportunity granted to but few cities at the present time of seeing three celebrities in the fistic arena. Gus Ruhlin, the heavyweight, who is going up against Jim Jeffries for the championship of the world this fall in California, with his trainer, Billy Madden, and his sparring partner, "Denver Ed" Smith, are three men that will be attracting a great deal of space in the newspapers in a few months. What Ruhlin is as an umpire is not known, but that he is a fighter few care to dispute. Many think that he will outclass Jeffries in the fall, and he certainly is the man above all others that the champion will have to meet. Duluth people will have not only a chance to see him umpire two games of baseball, but to see him get in a little of his own special work, as he is billed to box six rounds with his sparring partner at the Driving park after the game this afternoon. This fact has not been mentioned in the newspapers, but the people that are there this afternoon—weather permitting—will have an opportunity to see the man box who may be the champion of the world in a few months.

In last Sunday's game Staub, the Fashion pitcher, put up a magnificent game against the Duluth team during the first eight innings, giving but five hits during that time. The Chicago boy had pitched four games during the previous week and held out wonderfully under the circumstances. He bids fair to shine in the baseball world before long. Hickey, the Tower third baseman who played with the Fashions last Sunday, is a whirlwind, and it is to be hoped that he can be secured for the Duluth team.

The Central Gun club contest, held at the shooting grounds last week, has demonstrated the fact that Duluth possesses some first-class shots. Dr. Day was fourth on the list and first of the Duluth aggregation. Hughes, the Palmyra, Wis., man, who won the tournament, made a record of 293 birds out of 300. But seven birds missed out of 300, covering a period of two days of shooting, and under conditions anything but favorable, is a record of which few men can boast.

Duluth's big stores are advertising swimming suits, and the season for that delightful sport is on. Although Duluth is somewhat late in the matter of going in swimming, it does not necessarily mean that Duluthians do not swim, and excellent facilities are to be found on Minnesota Point. Swimming as an exercise probably leads all others. A good swimmer exercises every muscle in his body in the various different ways of shooting through the water, and one comes out refreshed in a way that cannot be secured in any other manner. Swimming ought to be learned by every one that has any occasion to go near the water, and there would be fewer drownings if children were permitted to learn to swim by going into the water, and not expected to learn on shore as so many fond mothers seem to think.

Superior is to have a new boat club, which will occupy the same building that was used by its old club. This, it will be remembered, went out of existence last winter, the Duluth club purchasing some of its equipment. With the new club in the field, there may be some races on the bay this summer that will prove entertaining to the lovers of the art of rowing.

It has often been stated that while English and Scotch champion golfers have frequently come to America to exhibit their strokes and pit their skill against our cracks the leading exponents of the game in this country have a decided disinclination toward reciprocating. Last year Vardon and Taylor, the English experts, performed on various American links, the former winning the open championship. None of our noteworthy golfers would listen to suggestions that it would be only fair to organize an American team to invade England in turn.

This year international golf, in which American players will appear abroad, bids fair to become a leading feature. Walter J. Travis, amatuer champion, and Miss Frances E. Griscom, the champion woman golfer, have arrived in England to exploit American methods in the very birthplace of the game.

The success of the United States champions in their venture into the enemy's country would surprise many of their admirers on this side of the pond. While Travis and Miss Griscom have sufficient brilliancy and steadiness to place them at the heal of their rivals at home, they will naturally be handicapped by the strange conditions which confront them. Miss Griscom, it is true has already had considerable practice on foreign courses. She received her primary instruction in golf on Scotland's famous St. Andrew's links. Her good work, however, has all been done in America on grounds so familiar to her as the compass is to the sailor.

The trans-Atlantic career of the woman champion will be followed with interest. Her going was indeed a new departure. Who a few years ago would have thought, and if he had thought would have made the statement, that the time was coming when American women would cross the seas to enter with foreigners in tests of athletic prowess.

The athletic women is the natural product of the times. Here, there, everywhere, she is found. In golf she has a pastime of complete adaptability to all requirements. The social side of the game appeals particularly to femininity, so that the widespread patronage of mothers, wives and sisters is not to be wondered at.

International golf until recently was thought to be absolutely dead so far as 1901 was concerned. The sudden spurt was in all likelihood due to the renewed interest in this line for other sports. In the list of outdoor pastimes there are not more than two or three that have not received trans-Atlantic attention. Cycling, tennis, horse racing, shooting, rowing, field and track sports, pugilism, wrestling and yachting are all moving onward with the tide of international promotion.

Tennis sharps everywhere are perfecting their form for the sectional and national championships. The boom which struck tennis early in the year brought good results. Lovers of the game are happy in the belief that 1901 will totally eclipse the last three or four years.

In the West, where so many fine racket manipulators have been produced, tennis has quite regained the stride of former years when the game was in the height of its swing. Kreigh Collins, the champion of the West, is in rare fettle. He is judged to have his title "cinched" this year.

Malcolmn D. Whitman, champion of America, has been in evidence in Eastern courts of late. There is no doubt in tennis circles that the Harvard graduate will retain the trophy for another twelve months. Whitman is a born player. His height and reach, combined with natural agility, accuracy and strength, go to make up the ideal tennis expert.

News of the success of Dwight F. Davis and Holcombe Ward in the recent English tournaments at Wimbledon was received with satisfaction over here. The American doubles champions are to play in the international matches at Hoboken during the latter part of the month. Their recent victories will not add to the confidence of the invading Britons.

The most marked change in the English turf is on the social side, a change indicated by the increased attendance of ladies. In a thoughtful review of the question, London Field says:

"That ladies have assisted at races in the past, and even taken actual part in them on rare occasions, the history of the turf informs us. The presence of gaily dressed ladies at Ascot and Goodwood affords a spectacle no less unique whatever, but Ascot and Goodwood are social functions of high order and reputation. At Newmarket, where racing pure and simple is the program, and where no string band charms the ear or delicacy laden table panders to the palate, the feminine spectators are not such a great while since a scarce phenomenon, to be counted upon the fingers. This was in the days previous to the erection of the stand, a comparatively modern affair, and in the absence of any such shelter it was, on by no means rare occasions, no light thing to face the elements. Newmarket has always been the slowest to adopt measures that tend to the greater convenience of visitors, perhaps by way of gentle reminder that 'The play's the thing,' and that if good racing is provided on the finest of all race courses, people should be perfectly satisfied. The present season is the first in which provision has been made in the reserved (Tattersall's) for ladies in the shape of special seating accommodation. Previously the bare boards, covered with the dust from the soles of thousands of boots, was all there was to sit upon. Newmarket could no doubt subsist very comfortably without the handful of ladies who frequent Tattersall's, and the incident is, therefore, noticeable as evidence of the mysterious force which compels all of us to march with the times. We are here dealing with facts and not with the pointing of morals, and we have no intention of discussing how far the turf is helped by the very large attendance of ladies that is customary.

"That the earning of dividends is materially assisted cannot be doubted, or we should not see astute men of business like our clerks of the course going to the lengths they do, stands at the most up-to-date meetings being provided with glass-sided drawing rooms that, at the proper season of the year, would not be miscalled by the name of summer gardens. The earning of the dividends is the key to the situation, and where the community to be attraced is one accustomed to the social refinement in its sports the surest way of attracting it is to provide comfort. It has been discovered that by this means is a goodly membership to be secured, for when ladies learn that charming rooms and flower-bedecked lawns are placed at their disposal for practically nothing—the male membership including a couple of ladies' passes as a rule—small wonder is it that husbands are enjoined by the family powers to enroll their names," says Turf, Field and Farm.

Here in America the most successful courses are those favored by refined women. When racing was in its glory in South Carolina the social queens of the slave-holding states gathered in Charleston and lent charm to the meetings at the famous Washington course. After the civil war, when steps were taken to revive racing in the North, Dr. John B. Irving, the ex-secretary of the South Carolina Jockey club, was sent for and elected secretary of the American Jockey club, to carry out the ideas which had given social prestige to the turf at Charleston. The club house on the bluff at Jerome park was made exclusive, and the bright spirits of fashionable drawing rooms manifested an eagerness to go there. Had it not been for the encouraging smile of refined woman the success of the meetings of the American Jockey club would not have been so immediate and pronounced.

The use of artificial aids in horse racing is extensive. Devices of all sorts are called into play by trainers and jockeys to overcome weaknesses and peculiarities of turf performers. Freak shoes, novel toe weights, seemingly ridiculous bandages and innovations in harness are comparatively numerous. But whoever heard of an able race horse wearing glasses?

Glade Run, owned by a nephew of the prominent plunger, George E. Smith, better known as "Pittsburg Phil," is probably the first horse that ever peered at a starter through spectacles. During a recent race at Gravesend, N. Y., Shaw, who was riding Glade Run, noticed that his mount was bothered by flying gravel thrown back by the hoofs of opposing steeds. Glade Run's eyes suffered considerably. "Pittsburg Phil," being interested in his relative's horse, and also being a heavy backer of Shaw's mounts, designed the shields which have caused waves of comment in racing circles.

Glade Run's spectacles are the real thing. From a distance they appear to be huge, lusterless searchlights or the orbs of a gigantic owl. The much maligned "googoo" eyes of the current popular song are simply not in it for a minute.

"Pittsburg Phil's" invention is a clear piece of celluloid, which comes down from the cup of the blinker over the eye. This affords a perfect guard from dust and dirt, at the same time enabling the horse to see perfectly. Glass might be broken by a stone, but celluloid is not easily shattered.

The idea is not a bad one. The protectors are especially valuable on days of heavy going. Horses wearing the ordinary cup blinkers finish with mud filled eyes. Phil's idea may be improved on and become a permanent fixture at the tracks.

As a matter of fact, Robert Waddell is a greater horse than he was a week ago, says the Chicago Tribune. Since then he has added the Sheridan Stakes to his credit; but that was not unexpected. He has been defeated in a great handicap; and that was not unexpected. But the colt which he decisively defeated in the American Derby has lowered the colors of Commando, supposedly one of the greatest racehorses that ever lived, and that was unexpected. Robert Waddell shares a part of the glory of that victory. The Parader was giving Robert Waddell five pounds in the American Derby, but Waddell handed back the Parader a five-pound beating. The Parader was conceding Commando five pounds when he defeated the latter in the Realization Stakes on Thursday, and while Commando was doubtless not in his best form on that day, the line of comparison is there, with excuses to offer for almost everybody; and this morning Robert Waddell stands out as the foremost 3-year-old in America—good over a sprinting distance, over a route, on a dry track, in the mud, with light weight, with heavy weight, game, gentle and sound. Defeated, but not dethroned.

It is not a matter of public knowledge, but nevertheless the retirement in the fall of President Nick Young, who for 25 years has guided the National league through war and peace, is practically sure. There are many reasonse for "Uncle" Nick's relinquishing of the helm. They are best withheld at this time.

President Ban Johnson of the American league is strongly "touted" as Nick Young's successor. Johnson, in case the anticipated coalition of the organizations takes place, will be the logical occupant of the leader's chair. Ebbets, of Brooklyn, is said to have had aspirations toward the presidential perch. Support of a majority of the other magnates, however, is not forthcoming.

The ultimate combination of the National with the American is almost certain, but in many quarters the idea is scouted. The warring organizations realize even now that sustained opposition will end in financial loss to both. A complete reorganization, with arrangements as to admission prices and players' salaries, would keep many a dollar in the coffers of the baseball purveyors.

The Players' Protective association will have a large finger in the pie of final settlement of league differences. The recent election to the presidency of Tom Daly, Ed Hanlon's reliable second best man, was a good move. He will be a more peaceable official than was "Chief" Zimmer, the veteran Pittsburg catcher, who preceded him.

Daly is one of the shrewdest men in the business. At the head of the P. P. A., he will, it is expected, bring about harmony between players of the rival leagues. American delegates at the New York convention were responsible for the Daly boom.

The Baltimore Baseball club of the American league has a mascot that is not only ornamental, but also extremely useful. It takes the form of a Great Dane dog, the property of Capt. Wilbert Robinson. McGraw and the fat catcher arranged a Machiavellian scheme for the discomfiture of the oposing team. Securing a long, stout rope, they tied the dog to a stake near the right field fence, where it could simultaneously eat grass and watch the game. By giving the animal plenty of rope, it was enabled to cover considerable ground in right garden. The right fielder of the other team, a person named Thompson, was inclined to cavil at the presence of a huge beast, but upon assurances from Robinson that it was as gentle as a kitten, the player proceeded with the game.

When McGraw got his first chance at the ball, he whacked it against the right field fence. Ordinarily he would not have made more than one base, but he received valuable aid from the dog. The ball attracted the brute's attention, and he fielded it before Thompson reached the spot. The Dane then lay down and, holding the ball between his paws, gazed thoughtfully at it. Fielder Thompson danced a hornpipe at a respectful distance as he heard the command of his captain to "git the ball and throw it!" Thompson decided not to "git" it, and McGraw made a home run. Robinson was the only man who dared take the ball away from the dog. The catcher declared that he would station the dog at the same spot regularly this summer and make him useful.

Manager McGraw recalled a 16-inning game in Olean, N. Y., which was won by a spaniel picking up a ball out in left field and running with it until the batter had scored the winning run.

John M. Ward, in a special chapter on team work in baseball, which he wrote a few years ago for the New York Journal, said:

The hit-and-run game is nothing new. The Bostons of '93 were, perhaps, the first team to reduce it to a system and make it a distinguishing feature of team play. The New York team of the same year, toward the close of the season, appropriated the idea from the Bostons and began systematically to practice it, and the Giants of '94 had it down to perfection. Hanlon, of Baltimore, was quick to see its value and make it part of his team work, and so the Orioles of '94 and '95 were thoroughly drilled in its execution.

"It is such an important feature of play today that no team can hope to win without it. It is team work at the bat. When I commented on team work in a previous article," he continued, "I referred only to infield work. But the hit-and-run idea means that this unity of effort is now extended to the play between the batters and base runners. By a system of signals there is now expected to be a clear understanding between the runners on the bases and the man at the bat, so that they may work together and each play into each other's hands, being guided always by what each knows the other is about to do.

"The hit-and-run name for it doubtless comes from the fact that one of its chief points is that the batter aims to hit the ball when the runner starts to steal, and vice versa. The runner will start to steal when he knows it is the batter's intention to hit. For instance, a runner on first or second, intending to try for a steal, signals that he is going on the next ball pitched. Now, the batter, if possible, hits that ball, and if possible, hits it in the direction of the fielder, who is expected to cover the base to which the base runner is running. For, the fielder having gone to the base, to receive an expected throw from the catcher to head off the runner, necessarily leaves his regular position uncovered, so that a ball hit in that direction on the ground will roll safely through the infield. The result is that the first runner who started to steal, gets not only the base he started for, but generally is able to go on to the next, while in the ensuing mix-up the ball will go all the way to second base.

"So, there we have a man on third and second, and all by a measly little hit that would have been a sure out, but for the assistance of the runner on first. With sufficient practice any intelligent batter can learn to 'place' such slow hits with considerable accuracy, and with a great deal more certainty that he can ever have of making a line drive. And even if such a slow hit does not get through it results in a sacrifice and advances the runner, whereas a hard hit would often result in double play."

The double umpire system should be so restored, and that speedily, in both leagues, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. It is silly for the managers of the national and American circuits to continue operations under the single umpire system, counting that to add five more men to the staff will increase the expenses too much. Reason should tell them that the innovation would prove a good investment. The satisfaction accruing among the patrons of the sport from the change would be sufficient to provide the revenue necessary for the increased expense in the addition to the crowds attending the games. The magnates of the National league used a fine-toothed comb to find an excuse for the abolition of the double umpire system with which to go before the public, and could only ascribe their change to the extra expense being a burden. Economic reasons thus given did not warrant the act of retrogression, for it was surely a step backward. A few prejudiced ones had the effrontery to proclaim that the single system was preferable, but every patron of the game knows and realizes the falsity of such an assertion. Incompetent umpires are pretty apt to get on any staff, which is somehow expected, for infallibility isn't a human attribute even in these days of amazing progress. These numerous spats between the player and umpire may, in nearly every instance, be modified and reduced to a minimum under the double system. All that is necessary in the selection of umpires is the exercise of proper wisdom and judgment, and it must not be said that there are not enough for the positions. The magnates owe it to the public for its splendid patronage that the double umpire system be restored at once.

Again there is talk of crooked betting at 'Frisco. The Examiner of that city recalls the Sharkey-Fitzsimmons Wyatt-Earp decision by publishing the following:

"The men who make wagering a profession won their bets on the Twentieth Century club's fight, although many who saw the contests believed that both decisions should have been reversed. When Root was clinging to Carter's sawed-off stallion after nearly a beaten man in the fifteenth round of his go, he was struck a blow which Referee Phil Wand declares was delivered when the fighter's knees were on the floor. Wand gave Root the fight on a foul. The crowd hooted and howled.

In the set-to between Callahan and Joe Bernstein, the former, a 2 to 1 favorite, was given the decision at the end of the twentieth rounr, although his opponent had landed five effective blows to his one. This decision was also very unsatisfactory to the spectators. Referee Wand justifies both awards. Whether or not his judgment is correct, the fact remains that the 'sure-thing' men won all the money wagered on the contests."

Indications point to a revival of the pugilistic game in the city of Chicago before long. The fistic followers were made happy last week by the passage of an ordinance which grants protection to the club promoters.

The managers of the various clubs of the Windy Metropolis, upon learning of the favorable move made by the City Dads at once started in to prepare for the fistic feast, and within the next few weeks active steps will be taken by Paddy Carroll and others to get things in readiness for the opening sessions of fistiana at the old haunts where the "blokes w'at loves de mill" are wont to gather.

Some of the sporting men of Chicago claim that the new ordinance is not strong enough to put the promoters past the Illinois state law, which prohibits public boxing contests, but the fight managers are willing to accept the situation as it is and take chances at any cost to put the game back to its old standard of years ago.

Mayor Harrison, it appears, is not at all pleased with the new ordinance, and has been very outspoken against the provisions of the ordinance going into effect. This adds a new phase to the situation, and there is no telling what the outcome will be when an attempt is made to reopen the arena at Tattersall's and other places where such contests are usually held.

Of the many funny stories told on Sailor Tom Sharkey none of them have pictured Tom as a referee. The latest one describes how the husky sailor acted at his first attemp to referee a bout in San Fransisco. The fight took place in an old road house for training quarters at different times by well known pugilists. The contestants were two men from the United States navy. Tom was acquainted with both of them, and by mutual consent Sharkey was chosen referee. They knew he was honest, and did not inquire as to his qualifications for the position of referee. Well, the fight started, and the two seamen threw their husky forms at each other like a couple of giant buffaloes battling on the plains. The first round was exciting and the second even more so. In the third round one of the marines began to tire and was getting weaker every second. Finally he was knocked down and after regaining his feet came to with a vigorous rush and sent his opponent to the boards. Then there was all kinds of excitement. Tom became confused and pulled the man from the floor. This did not help matters any, however, for the fellow was too weak to stand on his pins. His seconds, seeing that it was only a question of a short space of time before he would be put out, threw up the sponge. When the mushy substance was hurled through the air it struck the referee square in the eye. Sharkey, taking this as an insult, became furious, and, instead of stopping the fight and awarding the decision as he saw fit, he began to count over the prostrate form of the defeated marine, and at the same time fighting with the men who threw up the sponge that accidentally struck him in the face.

"Wan," said Sharkey, starting to count, and pointing his finger to the man on the floor. "I can lick ivery last wan of ye. Two. No, don't ye think that I'm foolen', but I'm not. Three. See if I don't keep me word now. Four. There's a crowd of ye, I know, but you'll not be after blufin' me. Five. Take me by my word of honor. I'll not lave the place until I trim wan or more of ye. Six. I'm not the man that's looking for trouble, but won't let it kick me on the shins without kicking back. Seven. Niver mind your howling now, for I'm not the kind that will be scared. Eight I can bate ivery last wan of ye, wan at a time. Nine. Bay quiet now and act the gentleman. Ten. You're out." Sharkey then jumped over the rope, and amid the wild laughter of the spectators offered to fight any man in the house, rules or no rules.

The Home Beer

Whatever you drink outside, let your home beer be Schlitz. That is pure beer. No bacilli in it—nothing to make you bilious.

Beer is a saccharine product, and the germs multiply rapidly in it. The slightest taint of impurity quickly ruins its healthfulness.

We go to the utmost extremes to prevent that. Cleanliness is a science where Schlitz beer is brewed.

We even cool the beer in plate glass rooms in nothing but filtered air.

Then we filter the beer. Then we sterilize every bottle.

And Schlitz beer is aged. The beer that makes you bilious is green beer.

When you order a beer for your home, get the healthfulness without the harm. Get a pure beer—get an old beer—get Schlitz. Call for the Brewery Bottling.

A CASE OF IT

Many More Like It in Duluth

The following case is but one of many similar occuring daily in Duluth. It is an easy matter to verify its correctness. Surely you cannot ask for better proof than such conclusive evidence.

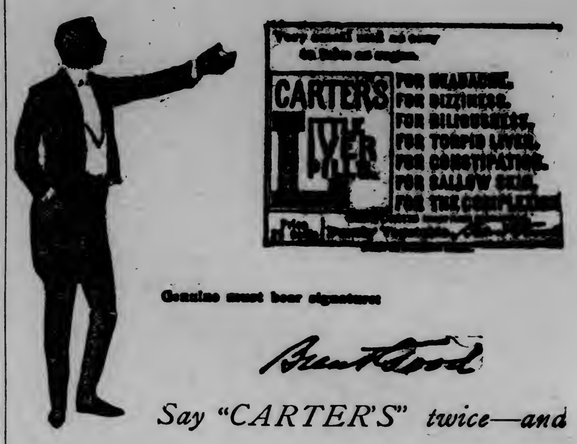

Mr. C. Coons, conducting a meat market at 104 East Fourth street, says: "For three or four years there was a severe, heavy aching pain across the small of my back, I did not rest well at night and rose in the morning feeling tired and worn out. The secretions from the kidneys were irregular and highly colored and on standing deposited a heavy sediment. I felt generally run down and had no energy or ambition left. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and having heard them highly spoken of, I procured them at W. A. Abbett's Drug store, and commenced to use them. In a few days I noticed an improvement and the aches and pains soon left me. My appetite became good and I slept well and felt refreshed in the mornings. I began to gain weight, and, in fact, never felt better in my life."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Fire! Fire!!

When that cry sounds how people rush to help and sympathize! And when some fireman rescues a woman from the flames, the streets echo with applauding shouts.

And yet if that woman had perished in the flames it is possible that she would have suffered less than she suffers almost daily from the inflammation which disease has lighted in the delicate womanly organism.

That fire of inflammation can be put out. The gnawing ulcer can be cured. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only establishes womanly regularity and dries enfeebling drains, but it heals inflammation and ulcerations and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"I suffered for four years with what four physicians pronounced ulceration and prolapsus of the uterus," writes Mrs. Ada Brooks, of Kirbyville, Taney Co., Missouri. "Also inflammation of bladder and urethra. My case was chronic and complicated. Had several good physicians, but kept getting worse. Had been confined to my bed five months when I wrote to you. I received your reply very soon and then dismissed my physician and began taking Dr. Pierce's medicines. I took eight bottles of his 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and began to get better at once. In two months I could sit up in a chair, and kept getting better. In four months could do all my house work, including washing and sewing."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

MAKE-MAN TABLETS

WORTH $1000. PER BOX

A promident merchant of Minneapolis, writes: "Knowing what I do about Make-man Tablets and what they have accomplished for me I would not besitate to pay a thousand dollars a box for them. I was a total wreck, all my nerve force was gone. I could not think clearly, and my life was being dragged out of me by degrees, my family had already arranged to send me to a private sanitarium when I was urged to try Make-man Tablets—I had not used a half box until I could feel a decided benefit, and in some way I felt more hopeful, altho' I had tried all forms of medicine and the best physicians I could find. I used in all 10 boxes of Make-man Tablets in 9 weeks—and I feel all the snap and ambition, as when I was a boy. Make-man Tablets certainly have done wonders for me, and I recommend them to all my friends.

I gained 42 lbs. in weight, for I was a mere skeleton when I began their use."

Free A trial treatment of Make-man Tablets will be sent free to any reader of this paper who send their name and address. Make-man Tablets are sold on a positive guarantee at 50 cents a box by all leading druggists or sent postpaid upon receipt of price by the Make-man Tablet Company, 1056 Milwaukee Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

AS LIGHT AS DAY.

Electric Lights Rival Old Sol at the Pan-American.

The electrical display in the grounds of the Pan-American every evening after sunset is one of the most beautiful sights imaginable and the view from Statler's hotel, which adjoins the exposition grounds, is one which once seen will never be forgotten. Speaking of Statler's hotel, one of the editors of the St. Paul Dispatch says:

"Statler's hotel is one of the wonders of the exposition. Although but three stories high, it is the largest hotel in the world, having 2100 rooms and its arrangements are such that persons of moderate means may visit the Pan-American without incurring the usual prohibitive expenses usual at such gatherings. You can get a neat, clean room, good meals, promptly and nicely served and every needed accommodation for $2 and $2.50 per day, including breakfast and evening dinner. The dining room will seat 1200 and the morning we left 1000 people were taking breakfast all at one time. Excursion parties of 500 and over are accommodated and stowed away without even so much as a ripple of excitement—so perfect are all the details of management. This is not intended to puff Mr. Statler, for we paid for all we got, but simply to save the Minnesota people and others who go to Buffalo unnecessary expense and trouble."

Intending visitors are cautioned against heeding the stories circulated on the trains and elsewhere about the difficulties of getting accommodations, etc. Statler can and will take care of you. If a party of two or more who intend staying at the hotel for two or more days will take a cab from any station in Buffalo and drive out to Statler's, Mr. Statler will refund the cab hire.

This offer is only good to our readers up to Aug. 1 and upon presentation of this article. Cut it out! and save it.

MAN'S MALADIES MASTERED!

MASTER SPECIALIST.

I made up my mind soon after graduating from college, that no one man was great enough to master the entire field of medicine and surgery. Many physicians have tried to do this, but they have met with results usually disappointing to themselves and often disastrous to their patients. For this reason I determined early in my professional career to confine my practice strictly to a single line of disease, and to originating and perfecting cures for them. I therefore treat only what I am absolutely certain that I can positively cure to stay cured—VARICOCELE, STRICTURE, CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON, NERVO-SEXUAL DEBILITY, RUPTURE, KIDNEY AND URINAL DISEASES, and all reflex complications and associate diseases and weaknesses of men. To these maladies alone, the best years of my life have been earnestly devoted and on them all my faculties are concentrated. Our consultation and operating rooms are thoroughly equipped with every scientific apparatus, instrument and device essential to the most modern methods of practice, and our references, both professional and financial, are claiming the best citizens of this vicinity, who have been cured by us and made happy. I want every afflicted man to freely and fully investigate our treatment. My education, my experience, my conscience, condemn all kinds of quackery. I treat each case separately, closely watching it and carefully following its symptoms with remedies varied through every stage. The diseases that constitute my specialty are more fully commented upon below and are well worth the careful perusal of all men in need of medical attention.

Varicocele.

Whatever may be the cause of Varicocele its injurious effects are too well known for extended comment. Suffice to know that it depresses the mind, weakens the body, racks the nervous system, and ultimately leads to a complete loss of sexual power. If you are a victim of this dire disease, come to our office and let us explain to you our process of treating it. You will then not wonder why we have positively cured hundreds of cases of Varicocele during the past twelve months. Under our treatment the patient improves from the very beginning. All pain instantly subsides. The pools of stagnant blood are forced from the dilated veins, which rapidly assume their normal size, strength and soundness. All indications of disease and weakness vanish completely, and in their stead comes the pride, the power, and the pleasures of perfect health and restored manhood.

Stricture.

It matters not how long you have suffered from Stricture nor now many different doctors have disappointed you, we will cure just as certainly as you come to us for treatment. We will not do it by cutting or dilating. Our treatment is new, entirely original with us and perfectly painless. It completely dissolves the Stricture and permanently removes every obstruction from the urinary passage. It stops every unnatural discharge, allays all inflammation, reduces the prostate gland when enlarged, cleanses the bladder and kidneys, invigorates the sexual organs and restores health and soundness to every part of the body affected by the disease.

Nervo-Sexual Debility.

Men, plenty of you are now reaping the results of your former folly. Your manhood is failing and will soon be lost unless you do something for yourself. There is no time to lose. Impotency, like all sexual diseases, is never on the standstill. Either you must master it or it will master you, and fill your whole future with misery and indescribable woe. We have treated so many cases of this kind that we are as familiar with them as you are with the very daylight. Once cured by us, you will never again be bothered with emissions, prematureness, small or weak organs, nervousness, failing memory, loss of ambition or other symptoms which rob you of your manhood and absolutely unfit you for study, business, pleasure or marriage. Our treatment for weak men will correct all these evils, and restore you to what nature intended—a hale, hearty, happy man, with physical, mental and sexual powers complete.

Contagious Blood Poison

On account of its frightful hideousness, Blood Poison is commonly called the king of all venereal diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself in the form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruptions or copper-colored spots on face or body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen joints, falling of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprouslike decay of the flesh and bone. If you have any of these or similar symptoms you are cordially invited to consult us immediately. If we find your fears are unfounded, we will quickly unburden your mind. But if your constitution is infected with poisonous virus we will tell you so frankly, and show you how to get rid of it. Our special treatment for Blood Poison is practically the result of our life work, and is indorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign and symptom of blood poison disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health, and the patient is prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

Associate Diseases.

In curing a disease of any kind, we never fail to remove all reflex complications. If the case is Varicocele, the weakness caused by it disappears. If it is Stricture, and has developed into Prostatic, Bladder or Kidney affections, the injured organs are all restored to perfectly healthy conditions. If it is Blood Poison, any and all Skin, Blood and Bone diseases arising from the taint, are entirely and permanently eliminated from the system. If it is Impotency, the many distressing symptoms following in its train and indicating a permanent decline of physical, mental and sexual powers are totally removed and rapidly replaced by the youthful energy of robust manhood. Hence, all resulting ills and reflex complications which may be properly termed associate diseases, and which, in fact, are often more serious than the original ailment that gives rise to them—all, we say, disappear completely and forever with the cure of the main malady.

Correspondence.

One personal visit is preferred, but if it is impossible or inconvenient for you to call at our office, write a full and unreserved history of your case, plainly stating your symptoms. We make no charge for private counsel, and give to each patient a legal contract to hold to our promises.

THE RACES.

Some Lively Contests Take Place at the Driving Park.

The last event of Duluth's old-time Fourth of July celebration took place at the driving park yesterday afternoon, when three very good races were pulled off. The events were a 3-minute class, a 2:30 class and a free-for-all trot or pace. Although the track was heavy and the conditions unfavorable for good work, some of the heats were well worth seeing.

In the free-for-all three new horses were put on. John Tinn has a new pacer, Beachwood, which has gone the mile in 2:08. William T. Bailey had Pilot Lambert, which showed up well, and Dr. McKay a speedy trotter. The race was the best two out of three half-mile heats. Pilot Lambert took the first in 1:15, Beachwood second and Alice McKay third. In the second heat Beachwood won by about half a neck with Pilot Lambert second. The last heat was made in 1:11.

Billy M, belonging to J. A. Wiles, had a tendon cut by catching his leg in the brace of a wheel. The accident will probably disable him for the rest of the summer. He was valued at $300 and had done the mile in 2:29¼.

In the 3-minute race three horses were entered. Lucy H took the three heats, with Rex second and Harry third. The starter announced the time as 2:59¼.

Albert H took first place in the 2:30. Carrie Eaton finished second in the first two heats, being set back in the second, but taking the third.

T. R. Kyle was starter, the judges being George Dowd, E. B. Gates and G. G. Nevins.

Everything New.

Gentry Bros.' famous shows, enlarged exactly twice their former size, will exhibit in Duluth next week. Gentry Bros.' shows are the most entertaining exhibitions that exhibit under canvas, and the recent addition of nearly 100 new acts and animals make it more enjoyable than ever. The tiny baby elephants, the novel acting of the monkeys, together with the other new features make the show even superior to its former self. They will exhibit in Duluth, two performances, afternoon and night, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at the corner of First street and Third avenue east.

Save Your Brain From Anxiety By the Use of Cascarine.

Between the nervous system and the different organs of the body exists such a bond of sympathy that the latter cannot suffer without producing an evil effect upon the other. This is the reason why so many ministers, great thinkers, become nervous officeholders and merchants, who are great thinkers, become nervous wrecks. The organs that are especially wont to trouble the brain are the stomach and liver. If you wish to keep your mind sharp, energetic and strong, be sure to keep your digestive organs in perfect order. Sometimes, however, even in the case of a careful person, medical aid must be resorted to. Then get the best. That is Cascarine. Cascarine is nature's own remedy for all stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles. It is made from roots, herbs, barks, plants and berries. Cascarine clears the bowels and stomach of the undigested food stuffs which adhere to the sides and clog up the passages. The best tonic for the muscular walls of the organs is Cascarine. It exhilarates the flow of stomach juices, pepsin and gall, thus making digestion thorough and complete. Makes movement regular and natural and effects an absolute cure. Cascarine aids the brain by removing its source of anxiety and by bringing to it good wholesome blood. Thinkers ought never to be without Cascarine. Buy a bottle today today at your druggist's. Price, 50 cents per bottle.

The manufacturers will send to any address, free of charge, a little booklet explaining thoroughly the cause and cure of diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and one week's treatment, for 10 cents in stamps to cover postage.
